Increased Trucking Rates Seen

By MICHAEL GILLAN

TORONTO (CP) — The 14-week truckers strike which paralysed portions of southern Ontario's inter - city transport ended Sunday, but higher trucking rates are forecast and few trucks are expected on the highways today.

A spokesman for the 35 trucking companies that were involved in the strike by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) said it may be one or two weeks before large companies get their fleets ready to roll.

He added that some firms were calling in the mechanics and maintenance men Sunday night in attempts to have the trucks moving today.

The consensus at a meeting of trucking firm representatives Sunday night was that trucking rates will have to be increased because of the new contracts, the spokesman said.

The strike, involving some 2,500 drivers and maintenance men, officially ended Sunday afternoon when maintenance men voted more than 80 per cent in favor of accepting a new contract.

VOTE FOR RETURN

Drivers and warehousemen had voted Saturday to return to work, but the agreement on the new contract hinged on whether the maintenance men and mechanics would accept the contract they were offered.

Joe Consteel, chairman of the maintenance workers' bargaining committee, said: "We are requesting all our members to be available for work today or as required by employers."

A spokesman for the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the trucking companies, said "All employees will be called as required but it will not be one or two weeks before things are back to normal."

Trucking firm representatives met Sunday night to discuss an

OTTAWA (CP) — Publisher Stuart Keate of the Vancouver Sun plans separate meetings today with CBC management and television producers aimed at winning their agreement on terms for a "comprehensive review" of the Seven Days controversy.

Mr. Keate, 52, flew to the capital Sunday within hours of his appointment as informal mediator.

Announcement that the Vancouver-born newspaper executive would head mediation efforts followed a weekend of what were termed "delicate" negotiations by Prime Minister Pearson with the disputing parties.

STUART KEATE

It headed off, at least temporarily, a strike set by producers for 10 p.m. EDT Sunday night over management's removal from next season's This Hour Has Seven Days of co-hosts Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre.

Mr. Keate said he expects first to meet separately with representatives of management and the producers.

CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet will represent the corporation. Tom Koch, president of the Toronto Producers' Association, and two other members of the executive are in Ottawa for the talks.

WATCHES THE SHOW

Mr. Keate said he has been out of Canada for about 10 days and had several hours reading ahead to bring himself up to date on the controversy. He met officials Sunday evening, talked to the prime minister and flopped on his television set to watch Seven Days.

"I wouldn't miss it for the world," he said.

Seven Days went on as scheduled for its second last show of the season, with Mr. Watson, Mr. LaPierre and a third Seven Days staff member chanting Dan Banks to the "good offices", of the prime minister "this hour HAS seven days."

Mr. Pearson's prepared statement said he had asked Mr. Keate to meet at once with management and producers to discuss the current dispute over the program This Hour Has Seven Days, with a view to

Rhodesian Talks Open On Monday

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — A small group of Rhodesian officials is expected in London Tuesday to open informal talks on settling the breakaway colony's future, political sources said today.

Once first soundings have been made, they added, the talks can be expected to switch to Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, or perhaps to neutral ground.

If they make progress, and ministers can detect little optimism on either side, they logically would lead to a conference to rewrite the Rhodesian constitution and couple independence with guarantees for Negro advancement.

British government officials declined all comment on the imminent arrival. This was in line with prime Minister Wilson's declared aim to keep the early talks as much out of the spotlight as possible.

But informed sources said the British side almost certainly will include Oliver Wright, foreign affairs adviser in Wilson's secretariat, and Duncan Watson of the Commonwealth relations office.

Both men played key roles in the hush-hush bargaining which last week produced surprise agreement to get talks moving—the first step toward settlement since Rhodesia seized independence from British authority last Nov. 11.

TALK ABOUT TALKS

Officially the talks are designed to discover if a basis can be found for negotiation — in other words, they are talks about talks.

And in the British, anxious to avert African suspicions that are knuckling under to the Rhodesian regime's demands, insist that they stand by the six principles for Rhodesian independence laid down by Wilson.

These are:

—A guarantee of unimpeded progress toward eventual majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 Negroes.

—Guarantees against retrogressive amendment of the agreed constitution.

—An immediate improvement in the political status of Negroes whose voting rights now are closely restricted.

—Progress toward ending racial discrimination socially and economically.

—Britain must be satisfied that the basis proposed for independence is acceptable to both Negroes and whites.

—Guarantees against oppression for the 250,000 whites who now hold power.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith has belittled the effect of a British blockade of his country and says "we will come out of this exercise a lot stronger than we went into it."

Smith, in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report, says a number of reasons make him confident the government can survive the British campaign.

"You see, inherently we have a very good country here," he said when questioned at Salisbury, Rhodesia. "It produces lots of things that are in demand in the rest of the world and there are people who have built up trading relations with us, who like the quality of the things that we produce; the price is right and so they are not going to be easily dev-ilded . . ."

Smith, who contended "there are a lot more people in the world than governments on the surface who are actually sympathetic with what we are doing," admitted the British sanctions have affected his country's economy.

"But in the long run these shortages and these embarrassments are going to strengthen our economy, and hence the country. . . ."

Warn Students Not to Board U.S. Vessels

SYDNEY (Reuters) — U.S. Navy officials warned today Australian university students could be shot if they tried to sneak aboard American warships now visiting Sydney.

The warning was issued in response to reports that students who had tried to board U.S. vessels in the past may try to slash anti-Viet Nam war slogans on a guided missile destroyer and a sea plane tender now in harbor.

Question Not Yet Solved

OTTAWA (CP) — What was Gerda Munsinger's relationship with the Montreal underworld? This is one of the big questions left unanswered in evidence given so far to the royal commission investigating the German blonde's associations with members of the Diefenbaker cabinet.

The commission was told last week the RCMP believed that Mrs. Munsinger was extremely vulnerable to pressure and that any persons associating with her were prime targets for blackmail by racketeers.

Commission counsel J. L. O'Brien said the RCMP security file on the Munsinger case says that during her stay in Montreal prior to 1961, she associated with people thought to be connected with the underworld.

The file also reported that at one time she had paid "protection money," along with other Montreal call girls.

Claude Wagner, Quebec Justice minister, told the provincial legislature recently that his department has a file on Mrs. Munsinger's alleged ties with Montreal racketeers.

The German playgirl herself told reporters in Munich a few weeks ago that she would want heavy police protection if she ever returned to Canada, because she feared violence from a Montreal racketeer. She did not elaborate.

MAKES OTHER MENTION

Other references to crime have cropped up in evidence before the inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The commission was told that an RCMP officer who supervised a 24-hour surveillance of Mrs. Munsinger for nearly three

Identify Man Killed by Train Crossing Bridge

Belleville police today identified an elderly man killed when struck by a train early Sunday morning. He was Lee Bongard of 74 Bay Street, Trenton. Mr. Bongard was apparently crossing the CNR Bridge between East Moira and the Cannifton Road about 3:30 a.m. when struck by the train and thrown into the Moira River by the impact.

City police and firemen recovered the body five and a half hours later near the CPR bridge at the mouth of the river, approximately a mile and a half downstream from the scene of the mishap.

The man was not identified until noon today.

He was described as being about seventy, 5 feet eight inches in height, with gray hair, partly bald, and wearing a green coat and sweater, plaid sports shirt, black slacks, black shoes, and a blue ski cap.

Party Leaders Hit Hustings In Que. Election Campaign

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage and Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson hit the hustings Sunday as the June 5 provincial election campaign warmed up in Quebec.

Mr. Lesage officially opened his campaign at a political rally in Sherbrooke. Mr. Johnson, at a rally in Montreal, unveiled his party platform.

The premier drew an audience of 2,000. Mr. Johnson had about 1,000.

In Quebec City, some 250 persons showed up for the start of a campaign by a new political party called Le Ralliement National (The National Rally).

Mr. Lesage said he wants a new mandate so that he can press the claims of Quebec in Ottawa. Quebec must become "master in its own house" in education, more human, and stronger than ever, he said.

"We must be firm without animosity and sure of ourselves without being arrogant."

Mr. Lesage said one of the claims of Quebec is in the field of labor and manpower, which the federal government has been invading.

Mr. Lesage, who continues his campaign today in Ste. Therese, north of Montreal, told his audience "we shall have a government that has real manpower."

In Montreal, Mr. Johnson said the Union Nationale wants to stay in Confederation. But, he said, "we want a new alliance."

The party platform calls for the "extension of Quebec's powers and its sovereignty" with regard to "internal policies and external affairs." This means that Quebec would seek representation at the United Nations and would set up its own department of immigration.

The Union Nationale platform also calls for the establishment of a Quebec radio and television network to "diminish the influence of Anglo - American culture." In addition it asks for complete control by the Quebec government over income taxes corporation taxes and succession duties as well as social security funds.

In a speech to party supporters, Mr. Johnson said that, under a Union Nationale government, "no Quebecer who is not of the French culture will feel like a stranger here."

"We do expect more of you English-speaking members to be elected in this election."

He also said three members of former members of the federal Progressive Conservative party will support the Union Nationale in the provincial election.

He said the three are Clement Vincent, the present member of the Commons for Nicolet-Yamaska, who will run for the Union Nationale in the provincial constituency of Nicolet; Jean-Noel Tremblay, ons time MP for Roberval; and Rene Paul, Berthier - Maskinonge-Delanaudiere.

Mr. Paul quit the Conservative party last year along with Leon Balcer, who has been chosen to run for the provincial Liberals in Trois-Rivieres. Both had complained about the leadership of Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

In Quebec City, Le Ralliement National put forth its own platform, promising that the party, if it came to power, would set up a Bank of Quebec. It would establish a "Radio Quebec" and a Quebec news agency.

In Montreal, the three-year-old Quebec Socialist Party announced plans to run three candidates—all in east-end—Montreal constituencies.

The party, which claims 700 members, made public a platform calling for the "nationalization" of businesses, industries and radio stations.

WABUSH WORKING AGAIN

WABUSH, Labrador (CP)—Iron ore now is being concentrated at full production at Wabush mines, a company spokesman said Sunday.

Wagner Charges Smear

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Claude Wagner said Sunday he is the victim of a smear campaign.

In a radio interview, Mr. Wagner said a news leak about his being summoned before a Montreal Bar Association disciplinary committee was a deliberate attempt to have the matter transformed into newspaper headlines.

He was referring to a hearing started Friday into a complaint by sessions Judge Jean Paul Bervile of Riviere du Loup, Que., about a speech by Mr. Wagner in Drummondville, Que., last October in which Mr. Wagner spoke of a "handful of undesirables practising law" in connection with a hit-and-run case in which a minimum sentence was imposed.

Mr. Wagner did not mention names at that time.

Sunday, Mr. Wagner said that his purpose had been to warn of certain "disloyal tactics, stratagems" which allow the underworld to triumph over honest citizens.

"If it had been any other lawyer, there would have been no mention of it in the press . . ."

Sources close to the minister said a Quebec City daily the weekend that he may demand an investigation to discover how news about the hearing leaked out.

The hearing has been postponed to September.

PLAN AIR RADIO LINKS

GENEVA (Reuters)—A new world plan for high-frequency radio communications for aircraft on regional, national and international air routes will be introduced July 1 next year, Ilnovsky accused the United States of waging "a foul bandit war against the heroic Vietnamese people."

Other Soviet leaders standing stop Lenin's Tomb in a cold rain reviewed the parade, which included floats denouncing the U.S. presences in South Viet Nam.

Radio Peking said 3,000,000 persons turned out for the celebrations in the Chinese capital.

During the Peking rally Premier Chou En-lai warned the United States that "the more disastrous defeats are in store" if the Viet Nam war is expanded. He said U.S. attacks to set up peace talks would fail.

In Paris, UN Secretary-General U Thant said after a two-hour talk with President de Gaulle. "For the moment we agree that there is no possibility for a settlement of the war (in Viet Nam) or for any new peace attempts."

President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam warned in a letter to his armed forces:

U.S. Is Target in May Day Demonstrations Around World

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

May Day demonstrations around the world Sunday vividly focussed attention on the United States, which was the central round of bitter criticism of American involvement in Viet Nam.

The Johnson administration particularly was singled out for waging a "bandit" and "dirty" war in Viet Nam. Premier Fidel Castro called President Johnson one of the "worst criminals" in history.

But at many of the May Day gatherings the focus for peace in Viet Nam were sounded.

The Russians showed no new military hardware at their Moscow parade. Mao Tse-tung, 72, did not appear in Peking. He has not been out in public for five months. And 7,000 South Vietnamese staged an anti-American demonstration in front of the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

In the Dominican Republic, Hermogenes Vazquez, the information minister, accused former president Juan Bosch's dominican Revolutionary party, was stabbed to death during May Day violence in the town of Cruce de Rosa.

Throughout cities in Japan, more than 2,000,000 persons paraded in a festive mood under bright banners and slogans dealt with domestic price issues but some demanded that the U.S. get out of South Viet Nam.

Demonstrators in Budapest, Paris, Stockholm and Oslo also took advantage of the traditional international labor to protest U.S. Viet Nam policy. Polish Communist Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka said in a speech in Warsaw it is clear the Americans will never break the heroic Vietnamese nation."

New Highway Safety Stamp Now Available at Post Office

Postmaster-General Cote introduced the new highway safety stamp at a meeting of the Canadian Highway Safety Council here.

"There are 36,000,000 of them," Mr. Cote said. "Each will bring your message to the sender and the addressee of a piece of mail."

The sombre, black, yellow, blue and white design by Helen Fitzgerald of Toronto was chosen "to emphasize the dark tragedy of the death toll on our Canadian highways."

Mr. Cote said the federal government intends, if there is a general desire on the part of the provinces, to do what it can as a co-ordinator in meeting highway problems.

"Canada is the only country with a large car population that has no nation-wide highway authority to plan highways, give advice on standards and coordinate provincial activities," he said.

Even in the provinces, responsibility was divided among cities, countries and other municipalities.

Highways were a provincial responsibility primarily, but the federal government, answerable to the country as a whole, surely had an obligation to ensure safety.

"The task for us is to achieve this aim while still respecting the jurisdiction of the various provincial governments."

Traffic mishaps accounted for 1 per cent of all accidents in the provinces, to what it can accidents had begun to increase alarmingly in 1962 and the trend continued.

Mr. Cote said that to reduce highway deaths five different approaches had to be taken—highway design, adult education, juvenile education, rigorous law enforcement, and improved auto design.

"It would be irresponsible to claim solution of the safety problem lay in improved auto design, but this aspect also was just as important as the others, he said.

"We cannot accept as an argument for failing to install safety features that many people won't use them."

Mr. Cote said the value of seat belts is unquestionable, but it wasn't until 1964 that the auto industry accepted the idea that they should be standard equip-

Airman Killed as Car Rolls Over on Highway

A one-car accident on Highway 2 Sunday evening resulted in the fatality of a Trenton airman and sent the other occupant of the vehicle, also an airman, to Belleville General Hospital with "serious, but not critical injuries."

Dead is Keith David Leighton, 23, of the RCAF Base in Trenton and originally from Winnipeg, Nova Scotia. Admitted to Belleville General Hospital was Gerald Murray, 121 Lorne Avenue, Trenton, the owner of the car. Leighton, whose nickname was 'Rusty', was a defenceman with the Trenton RCAF Flyers hockey team, and Murray was the coach of the same team.

The mishap occurred about 6 p.m. Sunday when the east-bound 1955 model car in which the two men were travelling went out of control on a bend, rolled over, and struck a concrete bridge abutment a mile west of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club. Both men were thrown from the vehicle.

Leighton was rushed to Kingston by City Ambulance with critical head injuries and died in Kingston General Hospital at 8.35 Sunday night. Provincial Police are investigating.

Jaycees Hold District Meet At Perth

PERTH — Ninety-five Jaycees representing units in District 6 yesterday attended the Spring Conference at Farrell Hall here. Speaker for the event was Jaycee Ontario president, Zdenek Kvarda of Belleville. Speaking at the evening banquet, Mr. Kvarda implored Jaycees to "Quit sleeping and wake up and participate."

"Practice being a Canadian," "Our biggest fear in life is that we may become a failure. We know that our country will need leaders but we are not ready to admit that we are to be these leaders.

"We are afraid to venture out in the world, saying 'I am what I am . . . I can not change; but we can change and we need to get a better grip on life. Then and only then can we have a better outlook on life."

In a move aimed at eliminating excessive travel by one man in visiting units in the Jaycee districts, it was decided at yesterday's meeting to have a regional president and two area representatives for each district.

John Currie of Smiths Falls was elected regional president while Don Dafoe of Belleville was elected representative for the western area (Belleville, Picton, Napanee and Kingston) and Peter Code of Perth, the eastern area (Perth, Smiths Falls, Brockville and Carleton Place).

Group discussions featured a Canadianism Workshop conducted by Val Swain of Kingston and John Currie. Five topics were discussed. They were: "What is Canada?" "What is a Canadian", "What are the two greatest unifying forces in Canada today?", "What are the two greatest problems confronting Canada today?" and "What three specific recommendations does your group make to assure to Canada and Canadians a distinct, unique identity as well as unifying our country?"

Ontario representative Bernice Adams conducted a clinic for Jaycettes attending the Conference. The women also took a tour of Perth and later in the day joined their husbands at the banquet.

Attending from Belleville were recently elected president Alex McLeod, Marilyn Inwood, Mr. and Mrs. Don Dafoe, Dave Charles and Mr. and Mrs. Kvarda.

Belleville will be host for the 1967 Spring Conference.

County Home Dairy Herd Sold at Auction Saturday

Hastings county home is out of the dairy farm business but it will continue growing cash crops for another season.

The Hastings county home farm, just west of the city, several months ago was sold to a local land development firm and Saturday an auction sale was held to dispose of cattle, some of the farm machinery, and the barn and silo.

There was a good turnout of local farmers and all 40 head of cattle went under the auctioneer's hammer. Some of the farm machinery was sold, as was the concrete silo. The barn has not yet been sold.

The condition of sale for both the barn and silo is that they be moved from the premises.

County farm superintendent Kenneth York said that about "normal" prices were received for the livestock with the sale being generally satisfactory.

Police Suspend 'Moral Strike' In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Several hundred members of the Quebec Provincial Police Association voted unanimously Saturday night for a temporary suspension of a "moral strike" that began last Monday.

At a meeting in Montreal, they also gave a standing ovation to Arthur Vachon, president of the association, recently dismissed from the provincial police force.

The moral strike was called as a means of trying to get a collective labor agreement with the Quebec government. Members of the force picketed at QPP headquarters while off duty and agreed not to cash their pay cheques.

Quebec Pupils Back at School As Strike Ends

QUEBEC (CP)—Thirty thousand students returned to classes in government - run schools throughout the province today, ending an unscheduled three-week holiday that began April 12 when their 2,300 teachers went on strike.

In announcing settlement of the strike, Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie said Saturday that though most students should be able to make up for lost time, 10-to-20 per cent of them may have abandoned their courses at the teacher-training, vocational and agricultural schools as a result of the strike.

Though the government and union representatives had agreed to a contract April 27, the strike dragged on until Saturday because of teachers' demands that the government drop legal proceedings against the leaders of their union, Le Syndicat des Professeurs de l'Etat du Quebec (the Quebec government teachers' union), and that it pay them for all but seven days they have been on strike.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie had said earlier that the government was determined not to yield to the teachers on these two points and after negotiations through last Friday night and Saturday, the union members conceded and agreed to return to work, accepting the fact that the province will continue legal action against 13 of its leaders.

IN MEMORIAM

BROAD — In loving memory of Mabel Broad who died May 2, 1965.
Who shared sorrow? Who shared pain?
His smiling way and pleasant face?
A dear friend to many.
He had a kindly word for each,
And cheer for all he met.
Some day we know not when,
We'll meet him in a better land.
Never to part again.
Remembered by wife Mae and daughter Gloria.

Musical Group Makes Debut At H. and S. Assoc. Fun Fair

BRIGHTON — Playing their own originally composed arrangements of jazz and rock and roll which include lyrics written by one of the group, a quartet of grade 5 and 8 boys made their debut Friday night providing music for a senior class dance and were back on stage Saturday during a fun fair at the public school here.

With composer, Bruce Gardiner, 11, at the piano, Roger Brown, 12, doing the vocals and handling the bongos, Douglas Wright on the Spanish Guitar, and David Sandford, 10, on the electric bass guitar the Four Companions, as they call themselves, have been playing as a group for about a month. Their first engagements on the week-end were for a grade 7 and 8 class dance and the Home and School Association fun fair.

"It is important that we show people the things being done in our schools today," observed Principal William Pettingell.

The student musicians and exhibits displayed in the auditorium illustrated Mr. Pettingell's point showing parents and other citizens attending the event which attracted a large turnout, how students' creative talents are being encouraged both in class and in after school interests, both of which Mr. Pettingell feels are important in elementary education.

Judging of art exhibits and projects was done by a well known local artist, Mrs. Jarko Zavi. First project prize was awarded depicting the time chart of the earth in drawings and hand printed text showing the geological artistic and cultural evolution of the world concluding with a chart arrangement of the solar system. Second prize a chart of colored hands was a project of Nancy Baldwin and third prize a dimensional colored pictorial series of illustrations of the mammals of the world was a joint project of Lynne Simpson and Cheryl Dingle.

Included in his display are a sample of hand crafted Czechoslovakia cut glass and inlaid mother of pearl jewel box and hand painted Easter eggs brought to Canada by his grandmother Mrs. F. Sita of Zlin, Czechoslavakia, now visiting in Canada. Tea and lunch rooms became temporary banquet halls the display of used clothing on sale and competitors enjoyed games as part of the fun fair a project of the Brighton Home and School Association.

RIDING THE WAVES — About 28 boats, canoes, and kayaks participated in a 2-day excursion down the Moira River this weekend. Three groups, starting at Tweed, took their boats out of the water at Victoria Park in Belleville. The adventurous boaters were members of two Toronto outdoor clubs and one Boy Scout group from Weston.

Three Toronto Groups Stage Kayak Trip Down Moira River

Sunday afternoon was perfect for kayaking in the Moira River. Motorists travelling along the Canniffton Road yesterday might have thought they were seeing some displaced Eskimos shooting the river rapids, but what they in fact saw was a group of adventure - loving Toronto area outdoorsmen and women having their kind of fun.

About 28 boats, canoes, and kayaks set out from just below Tweed Saturday on a weekend excursion by members of the Mohawk Rod and Gun Club, the Ontario Voyageurs Kayak Club, and the Fourth Weston Adventurers, a Boy Scout group. The participants reached the finishing point of their journey yesterday afternoon at the mouth of the river at Victoria Park.

Only the more experienced of the party attempted to run any rapids that they encountered, and safety is utmost in the minds of even the most daring of the boaters.

No competition is involved in the trip, similar to those held by the boaters in many other areas of the province. Rather, they embark on their voyages with the idea of enjoying their surroundings foremost in their minds.

School Board Administrator Has Resigned

PPICTON (Staff) — A special meeting of Prince Edward Collegiate School Board is scheduled for tonight (Monday), to review the complete business operation of the school and also to consider a replacement for board business manager Gilbert Platt. Mr. Platt, who was the first full-time administrator hired by the board, resigned recently after holding the position for approximately one year.

A spokesman for the board, Mr. H. J. Colliver, said he is sorry to learn of Mr. Platt's resignation. He described him as "one of the most able administrators in the province."

Mr. Platt said that he would make no comment at this time concerning his resignation or his reasons.

Mr. Colliver said he has several times dissuaded Mr. Platt from resigning, but in all conscience, I don't feel I can make any attempt to do so at this time." Mr. Colliver said that he will wait until next board meeting to decide whether or not he will resign himself.

Cement Plant Reduces Dust

PICTON (STAFF) — Although the Lake Ontario Cement Company here is still operating at full capacity, many citizens have been wondering if the plant has been operating at all these past few weeks. A decided difference in the amount of dust emission from the kiln stacks has been noted. At times little or none of the bothersome dust could be detected.

A company spokesman said there has been a decided difference as a result of efforts to eliminate the dust, and these efforts are continuing. There is more work to be done but the improvements are very noticeable. Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. provides payrolls for 250 families and wages paid are the highest in the area. It is a continuous, non-stop operation.

Wellington Tomato Losses Are Heaviest in 21 Years

PICTON (Staff) — The past week has been a rough one for tomato growers in Prince Edward County. Last Tuesday's low of 24 degrees in Wellington nearly put canners out of business when about 75 per-cent of tomato seedlings and plants were lost. Half a million plants had been transplanted and there were 800,000 seedlings. United canners said that some of these seedling beds were a total loss; parts of others may be saved.

All attempts to prevent damage were in vain. Smudge pots, cotton, bales of straw, and watering were all tried to no avail.

Re-seeding is being done but it may be necessary to import plants. This is the first time in 21 years such a loss has been suffered, stated Alvin Holmes.

Previous damage was minor compared with this. James Clemiston, plant manager for Baxter's Canners, lost only a few seedlings. Transplanting they transitioned as it was too cold to bring the tender plants out of doors.

License Bicycles

PICTON (Staff) — This year, for the first time, bicycles will be licensed in Picton. Each of the 516 bicycles owned by Picton Public School and Separate School pupils will have a licence plate.

Those to be guilty of any infraction,' he will be given a "ticket" in the same manner as a motorist. The ticket will be for a safety violation and parents must sign this card, which will be returned to police. Parents are urged to assist the child in correcting unsafe habits. The objective is "safe riding", Const. George Wright of the Picton Police Force is drawing up the plans for safety program and licence plates on bikes will also help police recover them if they are stolen.

The provincial department of labor announced Saturday that Teamsters had voted 1,380 to 885 to accept the trucking company proposals for drivers and warehousemen.

TAKE MAIL VOTE

The voting was done by mail from the five Ontario locals— Hamilton, Toronto, London, Windsor and Kingston — after the union had reached a preliminary agreement with the trucking companies.

Under the new contract Teamsters will get a 70-cent-an-hour wage increase and a 40-hour work week within three years. They will receive an additional 17 cents an hour in fringe benefits.

City drivers were paid a basic $2 an hour before the strike while highway drivers were on mileage rates.

Terms of the maintenance contract accepted Sunday call for wage increases of 90 cents an hour for skilled classifications over the next 24 months, and 77 cents an hour for semi-skilled classifications.

Present rate for skilled workers is about $2.30 an hour.

The contract also calls for reduction of the work week to 40 from the previous 48 hours in a three-year period.

The contract for maintenance men and mechanics expired last May. The drivers and warehousemen's contract expired last September.

The strike began Jan. 15 when workers at two Toronto firms walked off their jobs. The bureau retaliated by closing all 55 member firms. Several picketing incidents and bargaining sessions followed before the union executive accepted a company proposal, and the general union membership turned it down.

The union finally agreed on a vote by mail supervised by the Ontario department of labor to settle the issue.

The strike disrupted transport across the province and forced railways and airlines to place embargoes on freight. Small manufacturers found difficulty in shipping goods to small centres.

Missile Misses, Navy Bombers Destroy Site

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. Navy jet bombers described as Russian-supplied anti - aircraft missile site in North Viet Nam Sunday after it launched a missile at them and missed, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The bomber hit the site, located about 54 miles northwest of the port of Vinh, with radio guided Bullpup air-to-ground missiles and 500- and 1,000-pound bombs.

American planes flew more than 300 sorties against suspected Communist targets in South Viet Nam. For the second day in a row B-52s pounded Viet Cong troop areas near the Cambodian border.

U.S. spokesmen reported the loss of two more planes over North Viet Nam, raising the total shot down there to 227, but the pilots of both were rescued by helicopters.

War on Ugliness

Tourist literature and publicity films about Canada can be misleading. They depict only the best — the quiet fishing communities in the Maritimes, the healthy rolling pastures, lakes and woods of Ontario, the pure unspoiled mountain regions of British Columbia.

Not shown are the kind of views a city affords as the visitor enters it by car or train — the treeless wastelands and garish signs, the auto graveyards, ugly wiring and poorly kept properties.

Views such as these may be seen in Belleville and every other community of any size in Canada.

Spring, which in Ontario at least is a pure excuse of a season does little to enhance the generally depressing atmosphere that pervades our cities at this time of year. Except in the handful of places which have embarked on Norwich Plans (after the manner of Norwich in England) to paint and clean up their downtown business areas, citizens gaze on the same old layouts and the same depressing old color schemes they have been viewing for years.

In some cases (Belleville is an example) fires have razed sections of the downtown area and left ugly gaps that have yet to be filled. Downtown areas generally are dust and gasoline-polluted traps. Freshly-painted shopfronts and maybe even some flower boxes are conspicuous by their absence.

It is getting to the point where we may be shamed into doing something. And Belleville need not look for an only target in this criticism. It is not, as John Fisher, Canada's centennial commissioner, indicated at a recent Ottawa seminar on community improvement.

Declaring a war on ugliness, Mr. Fisher said: "We are going to clean up Canada — and it-is a big job."

"It could be we have become so used to the dull and the drab in our daily surroundings that we have lost sight of the potential for being bright and gay."

Mr. Fisher said Prince Edward Island's community clean-up blitz got everyone involved "by the sheer power of example and the embarrassment it was causing." He added that cities like Victoria, B.C. and Niagara Falls, Ontario, had made notable progress.

A facelift is not one of Belleville's centennial plans, but this is no excuse for ignoring the problem. The Norwich Plan in England was carried out at reasonable cost by the downtown merchants.

The centennial commission is putting teeth into its fight against community ugliness by issuing "how to do it" manuals to every community and will follow this up with professional advice as requested.

Urging everyone to get involved, Mr. Turner summed up the need thus: "We have fences that need paint, houses that need paint, barns that need paint. We have litter in areas which should be clean, and barren ground which should be blossoming. We have air pollution and water pollution. We have industrial dirt, construction dirt, just plain dirt and garbage dumps."

Here is a job for every Canadian with a pride in his country, including the young people who are supposed to be restless these days. There is plenty of work involved in the centennial director's plans to satisfy any number of rebels without causes.

Thugs Active in U. K.

Those who advocate an end to capital punishment should do well to consider Britain's experience in this regard.

There has been a rash of gangland shootings in the London area of late. In two separate incidents — one in a club, the other in a pub — two men were shot dead and four injured. The shootings took place before some 30 people who were in the establishments at the time.

Though apparently confined to the underworld, in what it is viewed as a challenge to existing protection rackets by "upstarts," police are worried lest innocent persons get hurt. At least eight guns were reported in action in the fight that erupted in the club and continued on the street.

Since capital punishment was abolished," a senior police officer is quoted as saying, "more gangsters are carrying guns and are prepared to use them."

Cold Comfort

Suddenly it seems we are back in February. It is damp and cold and there is a good deal of sickness about. Resistance is low at this time of year and colds are fair game for all bugs.

Some people have been laid low by pneumonia. Usually it begins with a cold or flu and could be avoided if, sufferers would only allow themselves sufficient time to recover from the initial symptoms.

Could it be also that many of us are all too unaccustomed to obtaining proper exercise? A brisk walk even when the weather is cold improves the circulation and helps to maintain general fitness.

Their Favorite Things

Ottawa Journal

When British children were asked, "What are the 12 loveliest things you know?" one boy made this list:

"The cold of ice cream, The scrunch of dry leaves, The smell of new clothes, Water running into a bath, Cool wind on a hot day, Climbing up a hill, looking down, Hot water bottle in bed, Honey in your mouth, Smell in a drug store, Babies smiling, The feeling inside when you sing, Baby kittens."

The girl's answer was:

"Your dog's eyes, Street lights on the river, Wet stones, The smell of rain, An organ playing, Red roofs in trees, Smoke rising, Rain on your cheeks, The smell of cut grass, Red velvet, The smell of picnic teas, The moon in clouds."

These delightful catalogues set one wondering. Could we expect such remarkable sensitivity only in British children? What would a Canadian boy or girl put down — Batman on TV? How typical are such replies? Do adults underestimate the powers of observation possessed by children? What would we answer?

Mr. Edmund Carpenter offers these lists in an article appearing in the University of Toronto's publication, Explorations. He observes that these phrases "do not contain a single word in the list of 24 to 30 most beautiful words in the English language suggested 30 years ago by Wilfred Funk, the eminent wordsmith."

Mr. Carpenter's main point is that children — and primitive peoples — have a sharpness of sensory awareness which literate man loses. Most of us, he says, emphasize sight at the expense of the other senses.

The slarshing thing is, he just might be right. The senses were so much involved in those children's lists become dulled from disuse. Roses are more important for their appearance than their smell; sculpture is looked at, not touched (gallery guards would not approve); rain is a nuisance instead of a pleasant sensation

There are more ways than one in which we should be as little children.

Consumer Protection Issue

London Free Press

For years efforts have been made in the Commons and elsewhere to gain passage of bills that would afford protection to Canadian consumers by requiring full disclosure of interest charges on credit accounts. These have fallen by the wayside for a variety of reasons. Now the Ontario government appears ready to step into the breach with two pieces of legislation designed to safeguard the interests of purchasers.

In prospect, it is the establishment of a consumer information bureau. The other government measure would require that the disclosure in credit contracts not only of interest charges in stated dollar amounts, but in terms of annual interest rates.

Perhaps of equal importance are other features of the legislation. These would provide a two-day cooling-off period during which a spur-of-the-moment or impulse buyer could repudiate a purchase from a door-to-door salesman and a requirement that possession of articles be permitted only by court if two-thirds of a time-payment debt has been repaid.

There doubtless will be resistance from lenders over the interest-disclosure bill, the main contention being that it is well nigh impossible to compute in terms of simple interest that an "Odyssey," to a destination as a "Mecca."

You'll never be a writer if you refer to an unsexual relationship as "Platonic," to an advisor as a "mentor," to fun as "burlesque," to an event as "gala," to marriages as "nuptials," to debuts as "coming out," to a prepared speech as the "King's English," to madness as "mania," to "motif" in it, to circles as "vicious."

You'll never be a writer if you refer to the "Great" in the "Great Sex," to children as "tykes," to influential men as "moguls" or "tycoons," to managers as "impresarios," to the luxurious as "swank" or "plush," to a hero as "idol," to a dull person as "white," to a thumb as "green."

You'll never be a writer if you refer to correct grammar as "according to Hoyle," to a stalwart woman as an "Amazon," to different things as "behind the eight-ball," to a person who brings ill-luck as a "jinx," to an Eden," to a hope as "forlorn," to a debate as a "controversy," to infinite kindness as constituted of "milk."

Debt to Pensioners

Sudbury Star

No person in Canada should be permitted to be debt owed to the senior citizens who are the pensioners of today. They might give some thought to the handicaps of two world wars through which the pensioners passed and still left a well developed country of opportunity for the workers of today.

The working population today reaps the rewards of the work of past generations. It is a condition to remember before "sounding off" against old age pensioners.

Uric Acid Harmful Only if Not Thrown Off

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes uric acid and will diet cure it? — Mrs. A. D.

Dear Doctor: In recent years I have had all the symptoms of gout, which I understand is a form of arthritis. — M. D. E.

Uric acid is a natural ingredient of human life, and is not to be feared unless the body, for reasons not fully understood, cannot dispose of it in reasonable quantities.

When the concentration of uric acid in the blood becomes too high, it tends to be deposited in the form of "stones" or crystals. In some cases these are kidney stones — and painful.

In other instances, the deposits form in a joint or joints, and the result is extremely painful, too. When a joint is so affected, it is indeed a form of arthritis, or more specifically, gouty arthritis.

Diet has some effect on uric acid. Foods that are high in purine content produce the most uric acid. Principal of these are "organ meats" — sweetbreads, kidneys, liver and so on. Seafoods such as anchovies, for example, being high. Among vegetables, dried peas and bean families are high.

While watchfulness of diet can help to some extent, with modern drugs developed in fairly recent years, uric acid can be controlled far more successfully. Some drugs are used to curb an acute attack. Other drugs, and more useful in the long run, prevent attacks by keeping the uric acid level lower.

They are prescription drugs and in any event have to be administered by proper amounts in the beginning, after which it is usually possible to put the patient on a small, regular maintenance dose. But the results are excellent.

Gout can be painfully disabling. I can't recommend, either. Perhaps 1,000,000 Americans have gout. For whatever reasons, two different diseases still don't seem to be aware of the developments in new treatment in recent years. Possibly some had treatment years ago and do not realize that it now can be far more effective.

Anyway, I have had enough inquiries about gout to see to it that a booklet, describing the treatment and precautions for the patient to take would be useful.

The booklet is now ready, and can be obtained by sending 20 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. Ask for "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It."

The booklet will? I hope, play a useful role in saving many sufferers from repeated bouts with this cruel disease.

Dear Dr. Molner: Help! How do I rid my daughter of mites? I have tried everything the drugstore suggested. I have sterilized combs, brushes, curlers, everything used on the hair. I am still ill when I see nits in her hair. — L. C.

Two suggestions: First, have your doctor prescribe specific treatment. Second, find out which of your daughter's playmates has mites. If you are as careful as you say, then it is likely that she is getting them from someone else.

URGENT NOTE TO H.E.K.: A person with diabetes should avoid liquor. Your husband is fooling himself when he says there is no sugar in hard liquor. Although liquor doesn't have it in the same form as table sugar it is high in calories.

Girl's Cries Were Ignored

Cape Breton Post

Several years ago, a young woman was stabbed to death on a street in Brooklyn, N.Y., in the view of people who watched from the windows of their apartments in the immediate neighborhood. Nobody attempted to come to her rescue, nor did anybody ring up the police. The spectators merely watched the brutal deed — as the slayer stabbed her repeatedly — as if it were occurring on a TV screen.

Now, we know that the like of it, or something similar, did occur in Nova Scotia, as made fearfully explicit in testimony at a murder trial in Yarmouth recently. . . . A young man is charged with the death of a girl whose skull was crushed by a heavy object in a field. She was walking home alone from a dance when attacked.

The question of the guilt or innocence of the accused will be established in court and it cannot properly be discussed here. What should concern us is the fact that

Area Sea Cadets Open Navy League Week With Service, Parade

About 100 area sea cadets were decked out in their finest navy blue Sunday morning, the occasion being a church parade in Belleville to mark the beginning of Navy League Week in Canada.

Taking part in the parade were R.C.S.C.C. Quinte from Belleville with the corps commanding officer Lieut. G. Somers, R.C.S.C.C. Trent from Trenton with C.O. Lieut. G. Paro and R.C.S.C.C. Hallowell, Picton, with Lieut. Bill Hobson, the executive officer of the corps.

Also participating was the Belleville Navy League Cadet Corps, comprised of boys aged 10 - 14.

The parade also commemorated the Battle of the Atlantic, the arduous struggles of the allied navies in World War II to maintain convoy supply lines to Europe.

The cadets marched along Pinnacle and Bridge Streets to Church Street where they dispersed and attended regular Sunday morning services at St. Michael's and St. Thomas' Churches.

At th ecompletion of the services, the parade reassembled and marched south on Front Street past a reviewing stand, where the salute was taken by Lieut. J. J. Jackson, R.C.N., Assistant Area Officer of the Sea Cadets.

Youth Suffers Concussion When His Motorcycle Skids

A Corbyville youth suffered a concussion early Sunday morning when the motorcycle on which he was travelling went into a skid and ran off the Cannifton Road.

Roger Neil Woodcock, 16, of R. R. 1, Corbyville, apparently slammed on the brakes of his northbound cycle, causing it to go out of control and hurtle him against a roadside hydro pole. The mishap occurred about 2:30 Sunday morning.

The Woodcock youth was in a semi - conscious state when rushed to Belleville General Hospital by City Ambulance. Hospital authorities reported him in satisfactory condition late yesterday, although he appears to have a temporary partial loss of memory.

His doctor noted that the fact that Woodcock was wearing a crash helmet probably was responsible for preventing more serious injury.

Accused Claims Mistress Helped to Plan Burial

CHESTER, England (AP) — Ian Brady today admitted killing a 17 year-old youth and told a hushed court his sab-blonde mistress helped him in a carefully planned plot to bury the body.

The 28-year-old stock clerk denied, however, that he had any thing to do with the murder of two children whose bodies were found in shallow graves in the bleak Yorkshire moorlands.

Brady clashed repeatedly with Attorney - General Sir Elwyn Jones as the "murder of the moors" trial went into the 10th day. There are indications the case that has brought revulsion to Britain will wind up this week.

Brady and his mistress, Myra Hindley, a 23-year-old stenographer, have pleaded not guilty. They are being tried for three murders before an all - male jury. Conviction could mean life imprisonment. The death penalty has been abolished in Britain.

Brady under cross-examination described the plan to get rid of the body of Edward Evans, 17, whom he called homosexual and admitted murdering with an axe in a robbery attempt.

Brady said the plan was not carried out because David Smith, main prosecution witness and brother-in-law of Miss Hindley, "spilled the beans" to the police.

In addition to the Evans killing, Brady and Miss Hindley are accused of murdering Lesley Ann Downey, 10, and John Kilbride, 12.

"Am I to understand from your evidence that you admit killing Edward Evans?" Jones asked.

"Yes," replied Brady.

Brady denied under cross-examination that he killed the two youngsters whose bodies were found in shallow graves in the bleak Yorkshire moors months after they disappeared.

Brady admitted that the Downey girl was in his house shortly before she died but claimed he had no idea who killed her.

Successful Living

New Stepbrother Turns Home Into Purgatory

DEAR DORIS: I am a boy 18 and I feel life is not worth living. Previous to my mother's recent marriage I lived happily with my older brother and my mother. My stepfather fits into our household very nicely and I do not possess any animosity towards him.

The trouble rests with my stepbrother. He is the manifestation of every human characteristic I detest. I have attempted to adjust my life to coincide with his, but it is impossible. My once happy home has turned into a purgatory. Could you please offer some solution to this problem? — A DETERIORATING STUDENT.

DEAR DETERIORATING: Who of us doesn't resist change — especially when the New Order loads us with an interloper?

The very extravagance of your words — "the manifestation of every human characteristic I detest" — tells me two things: (1) you have set yourself up in judgment; and (2) your judgment is colored by your rage against anyone with whom you must now share your home and your mother.

Come out of your shell enough to discuss things with your mother — in whom you still have an important share. Perhaps she has not guessed how deeply you are being hurt.

Remember, too, that the Detestable Manifestation is having growing pains too; and try to give, a little. Then be man enough to keep your feelings from undermining your study life. You can, you know.

Mrs. Wallace Gets Chance On Tuesday

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—If Lurleen Wallace wins the Democratic nomination Tuesday in Alabama she'll be on her way toward following the petticoat pattern set by Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming and Miriam Amanda (Ma) Ferguson of Texas, the only two women ever elected governor in the United States.

Mrs. Wallace is a stand-in for her husband, Gov. George C. Wallace, barred by law from another term. Their husband-wife team effort is reminiscent of a 1924 Democratic campaign in Texas.

"Two governors for the price of one" was Ma and Pa Ferguson's campaign slogan then.

James E. Ferguson had been governor and his wife, 49, made no pretence that he wouldn't be helping to run things if she got elected. She became governor Jan. 20, 1925.

ELECTED AGAIN

The Fergusen team ran again and again. Ma winning a second term in 1932 and being defeated for the last time in 1940.

On Jan. 5, 1925—115 days before Ma first took office—Nellie Taylor Ross, 45, became governor of Wyoming, first state to give women the vote.

Up to that moment Mrs. Ross had been only a mother of three boys, taking no part in politics. Then her husband, Gov. William Bradford Ross, died in office and the Democratic state convention nominated her to serve the remainder of the term.

Defeated for re-election, she later became the first woman director of the U.S. Mint.

HOLY ROSARY COMMUNION BREAKFAST

The annual Communion breakfast for Holy Rosary Council was held on the evening of April 27th in the form of a smorgasbord.

Mrs. M. Waller, president, welcomed the ladies to the Communion breakfast and Mrs. L. McEvoy introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Father Hamilton, diocesan spiritual director of th eC.W.L. He spoke on the Lay Apostolate which has received most of its publicity from the Second Vatican Council. It gives a new realization of the church in spreading the kingdom of Christ on earth. The C.W.L. is one such organization established in every parish whereby laymen can contribute their talents to the church.

Mrs. R. Hamilton thanked the guest speaker.

Special guests included Rev. Father Reginald and Rev. Father Rufus of Holy Rosary Parish together with Mrs. J. Buckley, Mrs. G. O'Brien and Mrs. Duminie, presidents of the Belleville councils, and Mrs. H. Brown, diocesan first vice-president.

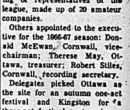
STEWING VEAL CASSEROLE



There is some doubt in my mind about the stability of stewing veal prices, but as I know the price is 79c per pound in our area.

I have a dear friend who, when she invites me in dinner, makes a point of preparing something she hopes will be typical of serving the light of day in this column. Marjie is a great comfort to me for she produced a delicious veal casserole which has the advantage of advance preparation. Indeed she prepared it early in the afternoon, put it in the oven at a low temperature and went out.

VEAL CASSEROLE A LA MARJIE (serves 5):

2 lbs. stewing veal, cut up, ¼ cup margarine, ¼ cup flour, 1½ teaspoon salt, ¼ to ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon accent, ½ teaspoon onion salt, 1 teaspoon Lea and Perrins (or Worcestershire) sauce, 1 onion, chopped, 1 can cream of mushroom soup, undiluted, 2/3 cup milk, ½ lb. scrubbed and sliced mushrooms, 1 tablespoons margarine (second amount).

Curried Chicken Livers on Fluffy Boiled Rice; Apply Jelly; Mixed Diced Carrots and Green Peppers; Celery Hearts; One-crust Canned Peach and Cherry Pie with Fresh Sour Cream; Tea.

Into a strong paper bag measure the flour, salt, pepper, accent and onion salt. Shake the pieces of veal in them to coat. In a large heavy frying pan melt the ¼ cup margarine with the ½ lb. bubbling add the floured veal and brown on all sides. Transfer to large casserole that has a lid. In the fat remaining in pan wilt the chopped onion but do not brown it. Transfer to meat in casserole. Rinse out frying pan with ½ cup hot water and pour it into casserole. Mix the milk with the soup and pour over meat, mixing it in. Cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 2 hours. (Or bake at 275 deg. Fahr. 3 hours.) Twenty minutes before it is done to be finished add the sliced mushrooms which you have sauteed in the second amount of margarine for a few minutes to wilt (but not brown) them. Cover and finish baking.

Ann Landers

Ash Trays Denounced, Encourage Bad Habit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were wrong, wrong, wrong when you said people should have ash trays around for guests who smoke even if they don't smoke themselves. Why? To encourage the filthy habit? Ash trays are an invitation to smoke. When there are no ash trays a guest should take the hint.

We have no ash trays in our home because we don't want people to smoke. If a guest asks if he may light up we tell him (as politely as we can) to take his cigarettes outside. He can like it or lump it.

I happen to know you are a non-smoker, Ann, and that you have repeatedly spoken out against tobacco. In a recent column you told a teen-ager, "Smoking is a dirty, offensive, expensive, ugly habit and we now have indisputable evidence that it is damaging to health. Don't start."

Why did you suddenly abandon this stand? Please explain. — DEEPLY DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR DEEPLY: You are right, I was wrong. I plead temporary insanity and recommend that my punishment be 10 lashes with a wet tobacco leaf. When there are no ash trays in sight a guest should indeed take the hint.

You are correct when you say I am a militant anti-cigarette girl. I blast the weed wherever I can — in fact I've been accused of being a bit of a nut on the subject. I know someone who is even nuttier than I am and I'm going to print part of his column which appeared in the Minneapolis Tribune. The writer is Will Jones and this is what he had to say:

"An open letter from a Non-Smoker to All Smokers: Having trouble kicking the habit? Well, I'm sick of hearing about it. I'm sick of the whining and hawing and yapping about the surgeon general's report. I'm bored with all the jokes and the excuses you're having trying to give up cigarettes.

"For 40 years I've lived in a world dominated by smokers. I've complained very little. I've accepted the fact that this is a smoker's world. But I'm through being quiet about it.

"Do you know how you smokers look to those of us who don't smoke? You are ill-bred, ill-mannered, inconsiderate slobs. You'd may think you look glamorous like the smokers in the ads and the movies, but you don't. You have a nasty habit and you look ridiculous. Furthermore you stink. Your clothes stink, your breath stinks and you stink up the whole world around you.

"I play a little game with women who expect me to light their cigarettes. I out-wait them. Some give up and light their own. Others ask for a light. Last night one babe said, 'Well, aren't you going to light my cigarette?' I replied, 'No. I'd rather you didn't smoke.' She lit up anyway and that got me mad. I grabbed the cigarette out of her mouth, snuffed it out and tore it to shreds.

"Do you think I am rude?' I asked. 'Yes,' she answered. 'I am not half as rude as you.' I told her.

"I've had it up to here with sore, red eyes caused by other people's smoke. I've had it up to here with burned rugs and floors and furniture because of slobs who not only are slaves to a habit but are so fumble-fingered that they can't even handle it. And unless you smoke in absolute fireproof privacy, with other smokers, you are intolerable. You are the enemy."

BABY WEEK

April 30 to May 7 is National Baby Week and the following tips may be of interest to our readers:

"Babies sleep 20 hours a day during their first weeks of life," "Ha!" reply the mothers.

Be that as it may, if "sleep" he doesn't, the clue, for you, may be contained in the following.

Insulated or blanket zip-suit sleepers for the slightly older tosser and turner are marvelous.

When bathing him, routine, again, is the keynote. Bathe him about the same time each day. Before 10 o'clock morning feeding is often the handiest time. A once-a-day all-over bath is should be sufficient.

Keep pins safely accounted for in a cushion, cushion or soft bar of gauze-wrapped soap.

The one important, rather frightening point about which we should all be constantly reminded, is never leave baby unattended for a second while he is being bathed, or dressed, or diapered on a table. If you are a slave to the phone or doorbell, and must answer, then swoop him up in a large towel or something soft and warm and take him with you.

PITTER PATTER

After washing his bonnet, retain its shape by drying it over a balloon blown up to the desired size. Way out, but practical.

Freshly laundered woollen socks and booties can also be treated to a stretching over stiff cardboard cut to the original size of the footwear.

If his new walking shoes are overly slippery, roughen the soles with sandpaper or a strip or two of adhesive tape.

Check the accuracy of his scales with an unopened five pound bag of flour, oats, sugar, anything.

PLAYTIME DEVELOPMENT

At an infant, simple, cuddly bright or tinkling toys that he can handle and manipulate, will delight him and increase his self-confidence.

Complicated mechanical ones, with which he is too young and immature to cope, that he must simply watch while they go through their act, may frustrate his need to play.

Let his toys progress with him and give considerable care to selecting ones most suitable to his stage of development.

Often, one will find that "home grown" toys such as a string of spools, pots and pans and wooden spoons are hard to match.

A certain little girl of 18 months experiences infinite pleasure taking apart and reassembling a set of three old aluminum coffee percolators in graded sizes. The glass tops were first removed just to be on the safe side.

Then, when he learns to walk, a shoe box with cord attached, and filled with odds and ends, makes quite a satisfactory pull toy.

LOVE CONQUERS ALL

In the final analysis, for the icing on his cake, give him plenty of close, physical, loving contact. Let him really know you care! — SUSANNA

Nearly All 48 Fatalities Traffic Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's weekend accidental death toll reached at least 48, with about three-quarters of the fatalities occurring in traffic mishaps. The others included seven drownings, two fire deaths, a man killed by a train and another by a fall from a cliff and a man killed when his car fell on him.

Ontario registered 18 deaths in a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times—12 in traffic, two drownings, two in fires, the train fatality and the man whose car fell on him.

Quebec also had 12 highways deaths. Four persons were drowned in the province.

Six persons died in British Columbia, including five on roads and the fall from a cliff.

New Brunswick reported the three traffic fatalities, and Manitoba and Alberta each had two.

One person drowned in Newfoundland.

months in Montreal late in 1960 and early in 1961 recommended her case be referred to the national investigation branch in connection with smuggling.

Former RCMP commissioner C.W. Harvison testified that an officer identified only as Milligan had reported Jan. 24, 1961, that Mrs. Munsinger was out of further interest to RCMP intelligence and that the criminal investigation bureau should take over.

There was no elaboration of the reference to smuggling.

RCMP Commissioner George McClellan testified Thursday that during her stay in Canada, Mrs. Munsinger made trips to Colombia, Panama, Belgium, Mexico, Germany and Britain. He did not elaborate on the purposes of the trips.

The inquiry was told that the RCMP file branded Mrs. Munsinger as a thief and hashcheese passer, as well as a prostitute and former Communist agent in Germany.

Some of the questions arising from the testimony may be answered when hearings resume May 9.

making an independent and comprehensive review."

After he had given author's announcement, the producers suspended the deadline. They said Mr. Pearson told them "that the president of the CBC has not our request for a full-scale review of this one-sided disinterested third party."

The CBC said there is a frequent need for clarification of the points of difference between the parties.

REJECTED OTHERS

In an interview Mr. Keale had understood management and producers agreed upon him after either one side or the other had rejected other names on a list. It had been suggested he was acceptable to both because he had served on the executive side of newspapers before going into administration.

Mr. Keale said he thinks the dispute involves a "breakdown of communications" between management and producers.

He said he does not expect the review will focus on any single issue such as the Watson LaPierre issue, though this was bound to arise in the discussions.

Last week, before the prime minister intervened, producers announced the suspension of the decision on Mr. Watson and Mr. LaPierre pending an inquiry before they would suspend the strike deadline. Mr. Olivnet offered an internal inquiry into grievances and started a reopening of the particular case.

Public statements by the two men sparked the dispute. Mr. Keale's appointment did not indicate where this issue now stands.

KEPT BUSY FLYING

Mr. Keate crossed the continent by air twice during the weekend, and will head west Tuesday night for a speaking engagement in San Francisco.

He will return to Ottawa Thursday.

He left Vancouver for Ottawa on only five flours sleep after rising at 9 a.m. EDT—"that's 3 a.m. Vancouver time"—to telephone the prime minister Saturday morning.

There was a message for him from the prime minister's office waiting for him when he arrived host Saturday night from another speaking engagement in Boston. He called, but was informed Mr. Pearson was already in bed.

He expects to hold no public hearings and to call no witnesses because his work is informal and not an inquiry committee. And he hopes to complete his task in about two weeks.

Mr. Keale is a member of the Canada Council and honorary president of The Canadian Press.

POPE BLESSES WORKERS

Chinese Education Said Turning Into School for Backward Boys

During a visit to China, British author Frank Tuohy got a glimpse of the changes being made in education and how they are wrapped up in Communist ideology. Today brought this article out of China and supplied it to The Associated Press.

By FRANK TUOHY

NANKING, China (AP)—Chinese education is turning into an enormous school for backward boys. That the more intelligent will suffer from this does not appear to matter.

Indoctrination must first serve the policy of the proletariat; second be combined with productive labor; third, train cultured laborers with social consciousness.

These are the ideas of the Communist party chairman, Mao Tse-tung. The educational system of China is being transformed. All Chinese children are being taught to "serve labor, and be an outstanding pupil of Papa Mao." Nearly all boys and girls join the pioneers, the Communist boy and girl scout movement, between the ages of nine and 14.

I was told the pioneers, with their red scarves, "volunteer in groups at the seaside to help their teachers" to clean the streets, tidy up the public parks and help the old.

You see them everywhere, these spring days, taking part in tree - planting drives in which are changing the face and even the climate of China. On the communes, too, very small children were hunking peanuts, sorting out human hair for wigmaking, and herding ducks and geese.

DAYS OF LABOR

Middle schools and universities already set aside days of the week or months of the year for physical labor. But today there is an education revolution: The changeover to what are called work-study schools.

This movement began in 1958, for five years' trial and then five years' further trial. By 1963, China's whole school population will go "work study" after the age of 16.

I saw a work-study school for commercial art and two for light industry. At many factories in the school buildings boy and girl students, with their heads together over blue prints, themselves had constructed, were turning out machine parts.

In nearby classrooms, students on a different shift were studying as ordinary school children. They took courses in subjects connected with their manual work, in English and, of course, in political education as well.

What are the reasons for this educational changeover? China has no labor shortage, but she has great difficulty in combatting illiteracy and financing an enormous educational program. Work-study students are paid a wage for what they produce. Ultimately the schools are to be self-supporting (or "self-reliant" as the Chinese call it). But I found government loans had played a part in setting them up. The state supplies the raw materials and takes the finished products. When the loans have been repaid, the state will take all surplus profits.

SERVE PROLETARIAT

According to Chairman Mao's idea, education must serve the policy of the proletariat. The policy of the proletariat is to break down all distinctions between town and country, worker and peasant and mental and manual labor.

Education must also train cultured laborers with social consciousness. These are to be produced by sending students to communes, by transferring university departments to remote country areas and by conscripting graduates for factory work.

"What will you do after your finals?" I asked one student.

"I will go wherever the party sends me."

Their jobs are allotted," a professional explained. "They state their ambitions but they do not choose their jobs."

I expressed several times my own supicion that the whole standard of higher education in China was lower than 1,000,000 university students would be put in jeopardy by the adoption of work-study. I did get an admission that important intellectuals such as nuclear physicists would be treated in a special way. But nobody seemed as concerned as I was.

Students are traditionally a source of discontent; professors of three different universities admitted the presence of "bourgeois reactionaries" on the campus, but it is certain that they object to interrupting the preparations for physical work. The fact that the professors themselves were survivors of China's past days explained their uncomfortable manner as they said this.

My conclusion is that Mao does not want the children of China to be educated overmuch. They are the party's future and the party is trying to make sure that his influence will not die with him.

Mao Tse-Tung Transformed Into a Sort of Red Buddha

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Staff Writer

The small group of aged men who run China's huge Communist party appears to have disposed of the problem of who will succeed to the mantle of Mao Tse-tung.

Evidently, nobody will.

Whether the 72-year-old chairman of the Communist party is sick or well, alive or dead, does not seem to matter. His supremacy remains unchallenged in the inner circle of the ruling politburo already have transformed him into a sort of Red Buddha, a legend, an infallible giver of Marxist-Leninist wisdom whose thinking supposedly is enough to rule the vast land without his physical presence. There will be no new chairman, but not another Mao.

No one man succeeded Joseph Stalin in the Soviet Union. No one man will succeed Mao in China. But the similarity of success ends there. In the Communist nations is likely to end there.

In many Western capitals, the big question is: What will China be like after the present leadership has passed from the scene? There is the hope—and there is evidence some foreign policy decisions are based on it—that China will follow the road taken by the Soviet Union from revolution fervor to a more moderate stance on world affairs.

Some observers have claimed the same forces that changed the Kremlin — desire for a better life by the peasant and city dweller, a disappearance of the revolutionary spirit in a younger generation which must be at work in China, too.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk expressed this view recently in testimony before a congressional committee. He said he did not doubt the Communists were in firm control of China. He added: "But there is evidence of a growing psychological weariness that in years to come could produce a significant shift in the policies of a new generation of leaders."

But Soviet Russia has been daubed with the blood of purges, punctuated by grim power struggles. Communist China have been ruled by the same man for four decades, and there is no sign of change since it became a Communist nation 16 years ago.

Today a public of 16 members whose average age is 66 years have been persuaded that it is not immortal, that its members, like other human beings, are going to die. And so the inner circle has only a relatively few years.

The politburo is engaged in a vast campaign which seems aimed at ensuring the Communist revolution in China will not follow the example of the Russians. The tenor of all this suggests, as Rusk should Mao did and his death be announced, there would be little perceptible change in Peking, at least so long as the old men of the politburo retain their authority.

And the old men seem to be seeking assurance that younger men, who one day must succeed them, will affirm, as the propaganda puts it, that "the anti - imperialist struggle must be fought through to the end."

Gradually, the whole generation which grew up in China's Communist revolution is withering away. There has been no evidence of any effort on the leaders' part to raise new and outstanding leaders to places of prominence. Indeed, there have been no new emerging personalities at the top.

Presumably, men now in their middle 30s and early 40s will be the ones to replace the old leaders, pass from the picture. Behind them are the new generation, about whom the top leadership now seems worried. Although younger generations has been virtually sealed from the outside world, some apparently have been tainted by Western ideas. One examines from what Peking calls "the modern revisionists" of the Soviet Union.

Young people, the Chinese Communists complain, and particularly intellectuals must "rinse away their non-proletarian ideology."

"Inevitably," said one internal propaganda blast, "there still appear a certain number of bourgeois mental aristocrats who will rise high above the workers and peasants and consolidate the social basis for a possible rise of revisionism."

To the Chinese leaders, revisionism means creeping capitalism and weakness in the face of a strong-thinking. If this is to be avoided, the party says, young intellectuals from the cities must be sent to the farms and factories to do manual labor and participate actively in "the hard and arduous struggle" to "consolidate the socialist revolution."

The campaign directed to the young is aimed, says the party, at making them "worthy successors to the proletarian revolution." The party announces it is determined to stamp out "bourgeois individualism" and promote among young people what it calls "proletarian collectivism." Youth, it says, "should be ready to take over the red banner of the revolution from the older generation of revolutionaries."

To do this they must diligently study Mao's works and "remold the ideology of the 10,000 words from anybody else, each Mao sentence worth 10,000 other sentences. Mao is "the acme of Marxism-Leninism in our time, the peak of creative development of Marxism-Leninism and Mao, in effect, has become a godhead with a cult.

This extravagant glorification is enough to suggest Mao now is in the upper stratosphere, removed from mundane affairs and from active participation in the affairs of the country. In effect, he already is a figurehead.

If the regime in China ever is to be liberalized to the extent the Soviet system was after Stalin, the chances are the changes will be much slower. Great Russia which dominates the U.S.S.R., is basically European, next door to a prosperous and industrial West which it has traditionally admired and, with which it has strong cultural ties.

China is a different world, a world of its own. For 16 years now its people have been fairly well sealed off from the outside. Those among its younger generation who will rule the country in the future have been indoctrinated carefully from their cradle days.

Violent Wind Turbulence Caused Crash

TORONTO (CP)—The father of one of two Canadian airmen fatally injured April 25 in an RCAF plane crash near the Israeli-Egyptian border said Sunday night violent wind turbulence caused the accident.

Jack W. Edwards of Toronto visited the scene of the crash which took the life of his son, FO R. V. Edwards, 25, and FO J. M. L. P. Picard, 27, of Beauharnois, Que.

Mr. Edwards said the temperature was 125 degrees and violent wind turbulence dropped the Otter aircraft shortly after it took off from a United Nations camp on the border. FO Edwards died Thursday night, FO Picard Saturday.

The lone survivor, Flt. Lt. Glenn of Melville, Sask., who was injured, were serving with the UN Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip. A Yugoslav officer was also killed in the crash.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Regardless of what the swamis, savants, yogis and other various forms of soothsayers of office, plant, factory and farm predict, the Minnesota Twins and the Los Angeles Dodgers will face the barrier when the bugle blows "They're Off" in the 1966 world series stakes.

I have that information on what should be the best authorities in the world. At least they should be the best authorities baseball-wise for they are the guys who make up the twenty teams in the National and American Leagues.

The players made their selections on the points basis. Ten points for first place, nine points for second choices and so on down the line.

Here are the selections:

American League: Twins, Orioles, White, Sox, Indians, Yankees, Tigers, Angels, Red Sox, Senators and Athletics.

There must have been a lot of head-scratching, skull-digging and pencil-crunching on the part of the players for never in the history of the players' pennant polls some 14 years old have so many teams been rated so strong.

The fact that the Twins and Dodgers were narrowly picked to repeat as league champions was overshadowed by the fact that in each league five other teams got a large amount of first-place votes. One American League star summed it up: - "It should be a five-team race in both leagues with the winners playing under .500".

Neither the Twins or the Dodgers drew the top number of first-place votes. In the American League the Orioles drew 45 first placers as against 55 by the Twins. In the National League the Giants picked up 47 top-spot votes as against 40 for the Dodgers.

Both the Twins and Dodgers received heavy second-place votes and thereby hangs the totals. The American Leaguers polled 78 as against 76 for the Orioles while, over in the National the selectors gave the Dodgers 71 second-place spots as compared to 39 for the Giants. In the total pointage the Twins collected 1656 while the Orioles picked up 1639 — that's how close it was.

In the National when all the polls were recorded the Giants (1572) lacked but 30 points of the Dodgers total.

Baseball players are human, I guess, like the rest of us, but there was some rather strange selecting done. For instance the National Phillies drew 28 top spot votes, one to finish ninth and one to end up in the cellar. And here's another odd quirk. The Cardinals drew but one vote to finish first, four to finish ninth and one to end up tenth.

As for the poor old Mets, one heroic selector chose them to finish sixth, they got two seventh-place votes; 13 ninth place tabs and — brace yourself, 166 to end up, you know where.

Over in the American League 128 picked the Athletics for the bottom slot while the Red Sox drew 22 and the Senators 23 to wind up in the basement.

In the individual categories the boys had no trouble picking Sandy Koufax as the National's top hurler. In fact Sandy got more votes than anybody got for anything even more than the Mets got to finish in the cellar. The Indian's Sam, McDowell nosed out the Yankees Stottlemyre in the junior circuit. Willie Mays and Frank Robinson were voted the most valuable players; Tony Oliva and Roberto Clemente, leading hitters; Mays and Harmon Killebrew, top homer hitters and Joe Foy, American League and Tommy Helms top rookies.

Drumheller Gets Nod

CALGARY (CP) — Drumheller Miners earned the Western berth in the national senior hockey championships Saturday night by defeating Selkirk Fishermen 4-2 before 2,535 fans.

Miners, who won the best-of-five series 3-1, will open the best-of-seven Allan Cup final against Sherbrooke Beavers in Calgary Thursday. The entire series will be played in Calgary.

The Miners scored once in the first and second periods and held a 3-0 lead in the early minutes of the final period before Selkirk came back with two goals.

Drumheller wrapped up the game with another goal at the 19:23 mark of the final period. Bill McCulley, Pat Hulse and Rock Crawford got the first three Drumheller goals, and Sid Finney the final goal. Selkirk's two third-period goals were scored by Leo Konyk.

Drumheller's fourth goal was scored into an open net after goaltender Julian Klymkiw was pulled in the final seconds to add scoring punch.

Goat-To-Hero Backstrom Swung It

By BOB TRIMBEE

DETROIT (CP) — No matter how you look at the current best-of seven series for the Stanley Cup, you run into questions.

Among them:

Will the loss of netminder Roger Crozier end the hopes of the Red Wings?

Can either club win at home?

Ralph Backstrom took just five seconds to turn from a goat into a hero when he scored Canadiens' winning goal 13¼ minutes into the final period and gave his team a 2-1 victory Sunday afternoon before 15,154 fans.

Captain Jean Beliveau scored the other Montreal goal and Norm Ullman replied for Detroit.

SERIES TIED

The result brought the Canadiens level in games with Detroit for the first time in the series. Each club now has won twice away from home. The fifth game is scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT Tuesday in Montreal with the sixth here Thursday at 8 p.m. EST. If a seventh game is needed, it will be in Montreal Saturday night.

The victory re-established the Canadiens as favorites to capture their second consecutive Stanley Cup, their 12th over-all and seventh in 11 years under coach Toe Blake.

The Wings, striving to become only the second club to finish fourth in the regular season and win the playoff title, have not won a Cup in 11 years.

Both Montreal goals were against Hank Bassen, who last saw action March 31 against New York Rangers. He hadn't been in a playoff game since the 1961 semi-finals.

Backstrom saw service for the Canadiens just twice in the game prior to being sent out for the play that brought Montreal the winning goal. The second time out he let Ullman shake loose and it cost the Habs a goal.

Blake said Backstrom, 28, a native of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was "getting into trouble" early in the game and "I just decided to sit him out for a while."

Montreal generally went with two lines and for part of the final period Blake inserted Rousseau in Backstrom's normal spot between Jim Roberts and Dick Duff.

"By the time I threw him back in, Rousseau had been out there for a while and was getting tired . . ."

In five seconds Backstrom was a hero as he finished a three-way play with Roberts and Duff, turning the puck into the Detroit goal from just outside the crease.

CALLS IT FLUKE

Detroit coach Sid Abel looked upon the goal as a fluke.

"Roberts was trying to throw the puck to Duff in the slot and Floyd Smith got a stick on it and deflected it to Backstrom. It wasn't the way they were playing it.

"The series isn't over. Neither club has been run out of the house yet. And one goal isn't going to make us feel that we can't win it all."

"Blake wasn't satisfied with his club's scoring.

"I thought we had more good chances today than any of the previous games. We couldn't finish."

Abel said Crozier would undergo a medical checkup today, prior to the Wings' departure for Montreal by air scheduled for 1 p.m. EST. After the checkup he'll decide if Crozier is fit for additional action.

A defensive lapse by Rousseau and Backstrom led to the opening goal after Montreal, aided by three Detroit penalties, dominated the opening period.

INTERCEPTS PASS

Paul Henderson intercepted a clearing pass and passed to Bruce MacGregor who relayed it to Ullman, unguarded directly in front of the Canadiens' goal.

It was his fourth goal of the playoffs, the second consecutive time he opened the scoring and his 13th point in 10 games, to give him the points lead in the playoffs.

Beliveau tied the score while Gordie Howe served a penalty. Duff relayed the puck from a corner to J. C. Tremblay from the blueline and Beliveau got his stick on the shot to deflect it into the top corner.

It was also Beliveau's fourth playoff goal and it gave him a career record of 118 playoff points, third in the all-time Stanley Cup list.

Howe has 154 in 148 playoff games, including 65 goals. Maurice Richard, retired Montreal great, scored 126 points, including a record 82 goals, in 133 playoff contests.

WORSLEY CAUGHT OUT OF POSITION BUT GETS HELPING HAND — Montreal Canadiens goalie Gump Worsley (30) trips up Detroit's Red Wings Paul Henderson (19) who gets a shot on the goal as Worsley dumps him in this third period action in NHL playoff game in Detroit. But the open net was guarded by Montreal defenceman Gene-Guy Talbot who steers puck away. Montreal evened up series two all with their 2-1 win over Detroit. (AP Wirephoto)

Injuries Not Helping Slumping "Willie"

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays added to his recent problems Sunday by suffering a bruised left knee, in San Francisco Giants' 2-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

The injury, suffered in a first base collision with the Cardinals' George Kernek, forced Mays from the game in the fourth inning, marking the third time in the last week that he left a game before it was over.

A cold and an upset stomach sent Mays to bed last Tuesday and Wednesday and kept him out of the line - up Thursday. Contributing to his ills was a bruised right hand which caused him to throw his bat a couple of times.

The result has been a drastic reduction in his hitting output. When he hit his 511th homer and tied Mel Ott's National League career record last Sunday, it gave Mays six homers in the Giants' first 12 games. COULDN'T BREAK RECORD

But in the next six games, Mays not only failed to break the record, he also has seen his batting average drop 62 points from .348 to .286.

Mays, who will be 35 this Friday, took a day off today as the Giants played an exhibition game. He expected to return to the line-up Tuesday.

In other National League games Pittsburgh Pirates walloped New York Mets 8-0, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Cincinnati Reds 3-0, Houston Astros whipped Atlanta Braves 7-1 and Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 6-1.

Saturday, San Francisco defeated St. Louis 6-1, Philadelphia walloped Chicago 12-0, Houston edged Atlanta 5-4, Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 3-1, and the New York at Pittsburgh game was rained out.

The Giants scored their first run with the help of third baseman Charlie Smith's bad throw on Mays' grounder. Dick Schofield went to third on the play and scored as Willie McCovey flied out. Gaylor Perry stopped St. Louis on four hits.

Pittsburgh's Bob Veale also pitched a four-hitter and received lusty batting support from Roberto Clemente, who lashed two doubles and two singles, scoring two runs and driving in two. Matty Alou triggered a five-run fifth inning with a double and added a triple in the sixth.

Mike Cuellar of Houston posted the third four-hitter of the day, losing a shutout when Hank Aaron homered in the third inning. John Roseboro's leadoff double was one of the hits while a run-scoring bunt single by pitcher Don Sutton and another bunt single by Maury Wills were the others.

The Cubs, who made four errors, took advantage of six Phillie errors for their victory.

Rolls Brilliant 2786 Score

Glen Hamilton Is 1966 "Mr. Bowling"

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Spectator

Bowling consistently from start to finish, Glenn Hamilton captured the 15th annual "Mr. Bowling" championship Saturday afternoon with a brilliant ten - game score of 2786.

A veteran Belleville kegler from the Major "A" and Classic Leagues, Hamilton compiled one of the city's top averages this season, 246.50, but bettered that mark by 32 pins a game Saturday.

Hamilton received the Lloyd's Cleaners trophy, the Gerry O'Connor wrist watch and $170 in cash for the winning score and added another $5 for one of the ten high singles game, a 347. The Lloyd's Trophy has been beautifully refurbished by Jack Fitzgerald and Hamilton's watch marked the ninth such presentation by O'Connor.

Bob Deline, with 2596 staged a strong finish to nose out Jim Begley, at 2594 for fifth place. Both are from Belleville.

Harry Ridley, Belleville was seventh with 2583, followed by Walter Bailey, Trenton, 2500, Leo Labelle, Belleville, 2499, Bill Whitton, Deseronto, 2471, Don Smith, Kingston, 2456 and Jack McEachern, Kingston, 2422.

Young Allan Clark, of Deseronto, had the tournament's top single of 378 and received a special cash award. Other big singles were: Paul Bailey 370, Bob Deline 359, Leo St. Louis 356, Tom Fletcher 352, Leo Labelle 353, and 336, Hamilton 347, Les Tyrick 347, Bud Pelican 345, Harvey Oakley 343, Art Butler 339, Harry Ridley 338, Woody Woodward 336, Bob McKinder 334, Don Smith 333, Jim McKenzie 328, Joe Law 326 and Walter Bailey 325. There were numerous other scores between 300 and 325.

Hamilton got away to a flying start by lopping 300 in his first three games. He had 300, 303, 323, 230 and 254 for a 1430 total at the half-way mark. Games of 340, a big 347, 235, 277 and a finishing 254 of 297 put the title in wraps.

McKenzie also started strong with 264, 318 and 228. He followed with a pair of 211's for a mid-way 1332. In the second five he rolled 262, 291, 235, 268 and 292. His total would have been good enough to win most of the past tourneys. Hamilton's mark was close to the record.

Fletcher was hurt by a 175 seventh game while finishing third. His other games were 203, 230, 230, 227, 321, 278, 352 and 339.

Labelle, the city's top average five-pinner this season with a 250.9 HAND TIMER average, started slowly but surged in the fifth, sixth and seventh games with scores of 336, 266 and 353 to put him in strong contention at that point. A 145 in the ninth finished his hopes.

Deline had 359 in the ninth game and 275 in the tenth to pass Begley who had 326 and 283 in the same stretch. Lockwood, in fourth, was consistent with four of his final five games in the 270's.

Last year's winner and holder of the title on four occasions, Ross Saylor, finished well down with a 2591 score. About 70 bowlers competed.

Twenty-four of the area's best will be back next Saturday for the first Intelligencer Gold Cup Classic match-play tournament.

DETROIT (CP) — A coach's hunch paid off Sunday afternoon and brought Montreal Canadiens a 2-1 victory and back at even terms with Detroit Red Wings, two games apiece in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

Coach Toe Blake said he threw Ralph Backstrom, the speedy Silver Jack, into the game late in the third period because "it's just one of those things you do on the spur of the moment."

"Backstrom was getting into trouble earlier in the game," Blake said, "and I just decided to sit him out for a while.

"By the time I threw him back in, Bobb Rousseau had been out there for a while and was getting tired so I threw in some fresh blood."

Backstrom responded in fine form, as he scored the winning goal in the 2-1 victory at 13:37 of the third period.

"We've have a hard time winning here all year," Blake said, referring to the fact this team won only the last two regular season games and the two Stanley Cup contests here in almost two years.

"There's no use saying here he will be beneficial in this series," he added with a wry grin. Both clubs have scored their victories on foreign ice.

Blake paid tribute to substitute Detroit goaltender Hank Bassen who relieved Roger Crozier at 5:46 of the first period, when the latter was sidelined with a sprained left knee and ankle.

"I think Bassen made some good stops—he was about the best him would have beaten anyone," Blake said.

Blake said his new line of Henri Richard, Leon Rochefort and Dave Balon, played well and that Rochefort had checked well on a couple of plays.

DETROIT (CP)—Defiant Red Wings coach Sid Abel said his club had played a good game in the Stanley Cup finals Sunday but lost it on a fluke play.

"We're pleased with the way the boys played," Abel said after his club dropped a 2-1 decision to Montreal Canadiens, who evened the best-of-seven final 2-2.

But he regarded the game-winning goal, scored in the third period by Ralph Backstrom, as a fluke. He said Montreal's Jim Roberts was trying to pass to team-mate Dick Duff and Floyd Smith of the Wings got his stick on it, deflecting it to Backstrom.

Abel said he did not think the loss had placed his club at a psychological disadvantage, but since they had won the two games played at Montreal, "Maybe it gives us a psychological advantage to get the hell out of here."

The Detroit coach said neither club had been "run out of the house" yet, and one goal isn't going to make us feel we can't win it all."

Abel said he did not know yet weather or not his number one netminder Roger Crozier will be back in action for the fifth game in Montreal Tuesday night.

TWISTED ANKLE

Crozier left the game at 5:46 of the first period after suffering from a sprained left knee and twisted ankle.

The netminder said he did not see how badly his leg had been injured and he will see "how it survives overnight."

Abel said he thought substitute Hank Bassen played "a real fine game. He's a hot and cold player and today he was hot."

Bassen said that with Crozier playing hurt, all he had hoped he could come up with a win.

"Anyway we'll be there yet," he added.

Veteran detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby said the Wings can't hope to win with "only one goal."

"We'll just have to get after them on Tuesday and get our guys to get us some goals, then we'll be tough to beat."

OHA Says Pros Eyeing Seniors

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP)—C. G. (Pat) Patterson of Guelph, immediate past president of the Ontario Hockey Association, said at the group's annual meeting Saturday that professional hockey scouts are paying more attention to the OHA Senior A series.

"The pro scouts now are interested in a senior hockey's younger players because the National Hockey League has expanded to 12 teams and also because the calibre of play is much better."

Patterson said it would be a good idea to give consideration to a Central Professional Hockey League rule which states the teams must carry a certain number of players under 23 years old.

The senior teams have scheduled a meeting for Friday to decide whether they will play an interlocking schedule next season with the Central Ontario Senior League.

A final decision couldn't be reached because all delegates were not in attendance. Kingston Aces and Galt Hornets were at the meeting, but not Woodstock Athletics, Guelph Regals or Oakville Oaks.

Also in attendance were representatives from the four Central teams: Barrie, Midland, Collingwood and Orillia.

An interlocking schedule will call for only one round for the first season with emphasis placed on weekend games to cut down travel costs.

Patterson said it could be assumed the two leagues will interlock.

Also to be decided at Friday's meeting is whether Kingston will remain in the league next year. Woodstock has voiced dissatisfaction because of difficulties in travelling to Kingston.

The Aces said if they drop out of the OHA series, they will consider joining forces with the Central Ontario group.

Most of the afternoon meeting was consumed by a number of amendments to the regulations and constitution by the executive.

Two major points voted on and passed concerned ties for positions at the end of the regular schedule and overtime in playoffs.

Bill Hanley of Toronto, who had his position of business manager changed to secretary manager by the executive, said duties, said that while the standings will still be determined by the point system, it now will be left up to the groups to decide what methods to use.

"In previous years, we left it up to the groups to decide among themselves to determine what methods to use in the case of a tie for a position," said Hanley. "If they didn't decide, it was turned over to the OHA executive. Now they have to decide among themselves."

A third vice-president will be named by Leyden for the 1966-67 season.

James Crombie, Bowmanville, Frank Doherty, Thorold, Don Hughes, Stratford, Jack Oakes, Lindsay, and Clint Phillips, Newmarket, were appointed to the executive committee.

Baseball School Was Successful

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association termed its coaches and players training school "a tremendous success".

The school was conducted Saturday and Sunday, with intersquad games being played Sunday. A B.M.B.A. spokesman said that a good number of parents turned out.

Approximately 300 children took advantage of the training in all phases of the game on Saturday.

The B.M.B.A. paid tribute to the baseball men in the city and district who turned out to conduct the training. "They are the men who put it across," said one minor baseball executive.

The training school is expected to become an annual affair.

B.M.B.A. schedules is expected to open on the May 24 weekend.

A meeting for all coaches managers and umpires has been called for tomorrow (Tuesday) night, at the Recreation Centre, at seven o'clock.

Memorial Cup Finals Set For Gardens

TORONTO (CP)—The dates for the Memorial Cup final for the Canadian Junior hockey championship were announced Sunday by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Oshawa Generals, eastern representatives, will oppose Edmonton Oil Kings, the Western Canadian champions, in a best-of-seven series opening Wednesday night.

All games will be played at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

Edmonton played in an intermediate league this season because no junior league exists in Alberta. The Oil Kings qualified for the national final by defeating Estevan Bruins 4-1 in their best - of - seven western final, wrapping up the series with a 3-2 victory Sunday in Estevan.

Oshawa, four-time finalist in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, clinched the other Memorial Cup berth by ousting Shawinigan, Que., Bruins 3-1 in their best-of-five eastern final.

Wednesday's Memorial Cup opener will be followed by games Friday, Sunday and Wednesday, May 11. If fifth, sixth and seventh games are necessary, they will be played Saturday, May 14, Sunday, May 15, and Tuesday, May 17.

They're calling him Sudden Sam McDowell, but Sensational Sam would seem to be more appropriate for a pitcher who has collected as many hits in one game as he's given up in two.

McDowell, Cleveland Indians' ace lefthander, collected two hits Sunday and his second complete game, a three-hit shutout, blowing only a double by Don Buford in the second inning as he ditched the Baltimore Orioles to a 1-0 victory over Chicago White Sox.

McDowell also lived up to his Sudden label, applied because of his blazing speed, by striking out 10 and bringing his major-league-leading total to 49. The undefeated sophomore ace became the first American League pitcher to win four games and lowered his earned run average to a sparkling 1.56.

The victory was the 11th in 12 games this season for the Indians, who started off by winning their first 10 games. The 10-game winning streak was matched Sunday by Baltimore Orioles, who lifted their record to 12-1 by defeating Detroit Tigers 4-1.

ALL SPLIT

The other teams played doubleheaders and all split.

Minnesota Twins lost to Washington Senators 5-3 and won 3-1. California Angels whipped Boston Red Sox 6-1 before losing 9-1, and Kansas City Athletics shaded New York Yankees 1-0 before losing 10-4.

On Saturday, New York Giants moved into first place by California defeated Boston 16-9. Baltimore edged Detroit 3-2, making games between Chicago and Cleveland and Minnesota and Washington were rained out.

Tommy John allowed only four hits in the seven innings he worked but gave up the game's only run in the second inning on a double by Pedro Gonzales and Larry Brown's single.

Boog Powell hit a two-run homer for the Orioles in the fifth. That was enough as Steve Barber and Dick Hall kept eight Tiger hits well scattered.

Don Lock drove home three runs with a homer and a single for the Senators in the opener and they held on behind reliever Casey Cox despite homers by Earl Bailey and Vernon Kilebrew.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant won the nightcap for the Twins, who had lost seven of their previous eight games.

Joe Adcock, Tim Fregosi and Jack Warner unloaded homers as Los Angeles whipped the Red Sox in the opener. But Jerry Stephenson handcuffed the Californians in the nightcap, becoming the first Boston pitcher this season to complete a game as he scattered nine hits.

Rico Petrocelli, who had a homer in the opener, and George Scott backed Stephenson with homers in the second game.

The Athletics won their opener behind Rollie Sheldon's three-hitter. Ossie Chavarria's double and a single by Jim Suarez produced the game's only run off Whitey Ford in the sixth inning.

The Yankees overcame a 4-2 deficit and a six-run sixth inning explosion triggered by Ray White's homer.

Second baseman Billy Goodman also lived up to his Sudden label, applied because of his blazing speed, by striking out 10 and bringing his major-league-leading total to 49. The undefeated sophomore ace became the first American League pitcher to win four games and lowered his earned run average to a sparkling 1.56.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Magic of Broadcasting, a CBS special Sunday night, was about broadcasting but the "magic" was elusive.

It was a curious hodgepodge—partly a rollcall of radio's early stars, partly a memoir of television's early days and it included a requiem for live television drama. But most of the program consisted of long sequences which didn't fit at all into the context of the show.

The program opened with bits of old film showing famile Brice, a youthful Rudy Vallee, Al Jolson and others. Then, jumping into living color, we saw Arthur Godfrey doing a short history of the development of radio in the 1930s—Franklin D. Roosevelt's fireside chats, Amos 'n' Andy, and Ed Wynn, the perfect fool.

Fine. But then along came Bing Crosby in a sequence with a couple of modern kids doing the sympathy when he sang. WHY INCLUDE IT?

There was more about old radio shows and then some something called "a day with Sheldon Leonard." Leonard is the producer of a number of hit-TV-revision shows and a big man in the industry but it is still not clear why this hit the program. It showed him running from one to another of his shows, in each case discussing ways to punch up comedy gags that misfired.

Prizes will be given and an election of officers held at the annual meeting, slated for the Belleville Bowl, at 2:00 on Sunday, May 15.

Women's Ten-Pin Tourney

Singles and doubles events bowled on the weekend completed the Belleville Women's Bowling Association ten-pin tournament. Team events were held earlier.

The "Belle Villians" won first place, $50 cash and the Belleville Bowl Trophy with a 2673 score, later pin total better than the 2nd place "Strugglers." Members of the championship team were: captain Peg Ronsky, Carm Miller, Val Tucker, Dot Anderson, and Madeline Jones.

The "Strugglers," captained by Grace Hatfield, won $30 for second place, other members of the team were: Rowena Carson; Evelyn Farnell, Lil Macraro and Grace Clapp.

White and Morris, of Deseronto, finished third and the "Adornettes" came fourth.

In the doubles events, for the Dinie Lee Trophy, Muriel Kinnear and Betty Brant, Deseronto, won top spot with 1162, followed by Vivian Brant and Iva Thompson with 1122. Joan Lisium and Gilbert were third with 1107 and Alice Leavitt and Madeline James fourth with 1068. Prize money was awarded with the winners receiving $20.

Thelma Stefan copped first place, $10 prize money and the D'Arcel's and Millady trophy for winning the singles with 633. Ina Thompson was second with 585, followed by Trudy Sands 580, Nora Tinney 574, Sarah Brant 562, Alice Lewitt 553 and Betty Ling 535.

The all-events' winner, with handicap, receiving the Paul Kelly Drugs Trophy, was Ina Thompson, Deseronto, with 1722. Thelma Stefan was next with 1720 and Alice Leavitt third with 1653.

Val Tucker won the all-events scratch title with 1417, followed by Maxine Messer

Son of John Garfield Getting Start in Movies

By BOB THOMAS

You see the same deep-burning eyes, the easily rumpled brow, the square shoulders. You also catch glimpses of the same intensive energy. The only jarring note is his height: A towering 6-foot-inch compared with his father's 5-foot-9-inch frame.

Young Garfield has come to Hollywood at age 22—his late father was 40—to be made the journey. John Sr. was already a Broadway star when he made his film debut in Four Daughters in 1938.

His son has a year of stage repertory behind him and is starting with a two-page bit part in The Warning Shot, starring David Janssen.

Garfield is aware of the assets and liabilities of bearing a famous name.

"It used to be hang-up with me, but I've learned to live with it," he remarked. "Listen — it can be a real advantage in getting to see people who can help you. But of course that's all it does for you; then you're on your own."

HOLLYWOOD BORN

Young John was born here during his father's tenure as a Warner Brothers star—"so in a sense I'm coming home." He moved to New York when he was six, and his father died when the boy was eight. So his memories of his father are dim, but his image has been reverenced, thanks to television.

"I've seen all his pictures about 30 times," said John. "My mother and I would sit and watch them comes They Made Me a Criminal and parts of The Fallen Sparrow, Body and Soul, Marines and of course Four Daughters."

The urge to act was always deep in young Garfield's consciousness, and he pursued dramatic during his 4½ years at Brandeis University.

"Then I decided I needed more practical instruction, and I went in London to study at the Academy of Musical and Dramatic Arts," he said. "I learned a great deal and acquired some needed confidence. That's what it takes in actin' —confidence, and having something to say."

Americans Blank Cleveland

TORONTO (CP) — Rochester Americans' goaltender Bob Perreault blanked Cleveland Barons as Americans scored a 4-0 triumph in the opening game of their best-of-seven American Hockey League's Calder Cup final series Saturday.

Brian Kilrea, Jim Pappin, Mike Walton and Gerry Ehman scored the Rochester goals.

The last-time Barons lost a playoff game was April 15, 1950, in Hershey. They won nine games in a row in sweeping to the Calder Cup championship in 1956, then missed the playoffs in the 1956-57 season. This year, they swept Pittsburgh Hornets and Springfield Indians in best-of-five preliminary rounds

Americans won Saturday's game with a three-goal splurge within two minutes and 17 seconds midway through the opening period.

The next game is in Cleveland Wednesday.

The Golden Years

Wife, Husband Both Content With This Retirement Plan

By THOMAS COLLINS

He had heard the warnings in the wind about a man retiring and becoming a woman's best companion to his wife. He didn't like the sound of it. He didn't want any problems. And he liked his wife.

So, six months before he retired, J. Paul Williams bought a half-interest in a $50,000 apartment house.

He put a $10,00 mortgage on his own home to swing it. He was fairly sure he was making a safe business deal. But he also was buying a job for himself. And the job, he figured, was the most promising way to avoid being the sort of home companion that would make his wife miserable.

"There's a bit of claptrap, of course, about a wife having such a hard time of it when her husband retires," Mr. Williams says. "She gains a permanent companion to talk to, a permanent dishwasher, gardener, errand runner, and fixer. Some husbands are very weary, naturally. A good many of them fall into the dumps, or pretend illness, or wander around the house like restless children. But most men who have held a job can adjust fairly soon. And turn out to be pretty good companions. . ."

GREATEST ORDEAL

Mr. Williams insists that a wife's greatest ordeal is not when her husband comes home to retire, but when her children grow up and leave. "We have three children, and as each one left home for college or a job my wife cried. And struggled to fill that one-third void in her life. When the last child left she was actually ill for six months . . ."

He thought he should ease the retirement pains his wife might face, and at the same time enrich his retirement. This is what he did:

1. Mortgaged his home and bought the apartment house with a businessman he had known for several years.

2. Had his doctor put him in a clinic for a health examination extending from his feet to his ba-ding head. "I don't have much faith in these physicals," he explained "But I think they may catch about 20 percent of the ailments that will make you an invalid or kill you. That 20 percent makes it worthwhile. A man has no right to come home at 65 to be nursed. Or to die in his wife's bed. He is now all his wife has left."

3. Sat his wife down on the sofa and with her help wrote down a schedule of the pattern of life they would follow when he retired . . . what time to get to bed, get up, have meals, do the washing, the weekly housecleaning, the marketing, etc. He says he didn't want to set up a straight jacket but wanted a pattern as both a business deal, and a retirement leisure and w i n d u wasating their days.

4. Picked out of the newspaper, the names of five civic clubs and orga lzatiogs they had never belonged to, and wrote letters to the presidents of each asking if they could join. This was to start cultivating new friends.

5. Made his wife list on a sheet of paper all personal friends she had, then scratch out e a c h name that was related in a w y way with his job. "Just as my business friends will fade after I retire, so will their wives. My wife, after her scratching, found she had only three friends who might last. I told her to start recruiting replacements, and I set aside $200 for her to give parties for that purpose."

6. Demanded that he be given one hour each day to read the newspaper without yak-yak from her, and was granted silence for three favorite television p r o grams a week and all football games. In return, he would give her an average of two hours a day — 14 hours a week — of freedom from him. He would get out of the house.

Which is where his apartment house project came in. He made a deal with his partner to be manager of the project, collecting rents, advertising f o r new tenants, and handling all renovations. Talk on Retarded Association Given at O.S.T.O.C. Dinner

NAPANEE — Three children of every 100 born are mentally retarded to some degree," Mrs. Gordon Kimmett told the O.S.T.O.C. Club at its dinner meeting last Thursday. "From this area, there are now 36 children in Smiths Falls, and nobody knows how many more are being cared for at home," she stated.

Mrs. Kimmet, is a vice - president of the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded, and is the chairman of the finance committee which is launching a campaign for funds May 9.

Mrs. Betty Stewart of Enterprise heads a committee which gives residential care to the children from this district in Smiths Falls. Cards go to them on birthdays and at Christmas, and this year each will receive a gift from the Association.

OUTLINES HISTORY

Mrs. Kimmett outlined the history of the county Association, and some of its accomplishments. She described the nursery school, which is held each morning a n week in Trinity United Church, with all the teachers volunteers.

The speaker went into detail describing the school which the Association has started at the Slash Road. A painting bee will be held soon. Hope for opening the school in September is not quite as high as it was, but difficulties may be overcome.

Mrs. Kimmett outlined the plans for the forthcoming fundraising campaign with the object of building a association for retarded. The Slash Road school is only temporary. Letters have been mailed to 10 business men and firms, and contributions are already coming in. Today will see 7,000 "Flowers of Hope" appeals go into the Post Office. Each envelope contains a leaflet with directions for planting the few cosmos seeds enclosed, and an appeal to plant them Mother's Day and care for them as a symbol of planting hope in the lives of these unfortunate, children, and their parents.

O.S.T.O.C. ASSISTANCE

Members of the Of Service To Our Community Club (The O.S.T.O.C.'s) are constantly looking for new ways in which to live up to their name. They had invited Mrs. Kimmett as the guest speaker in order to learn about the work for the retarded, and to see whether they could be of assistance.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Ron Teal, and thanked by Miss Laura Curry, who presented her with a small gift.

During the business meeting donations were voted to the Heart Fund, the Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Cancer fund. A letter of thanks was read from the Jaycees for their support of "Spring Flaw" by participating in the program.

Girl Wins Bicycle Roadeo Competitions

NAPANEE — Brenda Lowry of Prince Charles School not only won the award for girls 12 and under at the bicycle roadeo, organized by the Jaycees on Saturday, but also was declared grand champion, with more points than any of the other 68 contestants. A plaque will be placed in her school in recognition of her skill. It will be competed for at next year's roadeo.

Paul Wattham of the Slash Road School was the winner for boys 12 and under and Steve Lowry of the Prince Charles School for the boys over 12. No award was given for the girls over 12 class. Not enough points were acquired by anyone in this class to warrant an award.

Because of inclement weather the course was held in the armory instead of on the Market Square as had been expected. Permission to use it was received from Ottawa through the offices of A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P.

Committee chairman James Hawkins reports that a great deal of planning was necessary. Letters were written to 25 school principals asking for their co-operation in publicizing the event. The actual setting up of the course was shared by Lorne Kimmett, Bill Hughes and Mike Kourt, the other members of the committee.

Statistics are being compiled which will be given to James Elliott, safety officer for the O.P.P. of this detachment. The same mistakes were made by most contestants.

The Jaycees hope that the safety lessons learned by the boys and girls in the bicycle roadeo will be carried over to the time when they are driving cars on the highways. A safe bicycle rider will grow to be a safe driver, they believe.

Teen-age Groups Work on Projects

NAPANEE — Napanee has seen a great deal of constructive work on the part of its teenagers this winter and spring.

Now it is car washes to make money for the various youth organizations.

Saturday, a week ago two church groups took over this job, The Anglican Young People's Association turned out clean cars from Pringle's Esso Station, and Trinity Youth Organization from Dickson's Bus Terminal.

Saturday of last week it was the turn of the N.D.S.S. Athletic Association in the school parking lot.

In all cases it is a shared project, with the girls making the inside of the car spick and span and the boys shining up the outside.

CLEAN
EXTRAORDINARILY! OIL HEAT

Fuel oil is a champagne-coloured liquid.
Surprised it isn't thick and black? Then here's another eye-opener—oil heat cannot cause household "dirt" or window "film".

Dark streaks above vents and radiators occur with all types of modern heating systems—oil, gas, and electricity—but are not caused by the heating fuel. They occur because this is where air circulates most, and air carries dust, dirt and grime, brought indoors on shoes, through open windows etc. As to "film" on windows and mirrors, analysis has proved that 90% comes from cooking fumes, cigar & cigarette smoke. Oil heat is clean heat, and it also saves you money.

Less cost—continuously! Depending on where you live, you can save $50 or more every year on fuel bills by choosing oil instead of gas—and save much, much more by choosing oil instead of electricity.

Safe—unquestionably! Oil is non-explosive. You could safely extinguish a lighted match in it. Of course, all fuels are safe—if handled and consumed with proper care. Oil, however, is safe under all conditions.

The oil supplier of your choice is on the job 24-hours a day to give you personalized, no-cost, dependable service.

Million and Half Expansion Planned By Mead Johnson

EVANSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Mead Johnson and Co. has announced its Canadian subsidiary, Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd., will spend $1,500,000 in an expansion program at its Belleville plant.

Company President Mead Johnson said at the pharmaceutical firm's annual meeting the expansion program will concentrate on research and development and enlargement of warehouse facilities.

Mayor Jack Ellis said the Belleville Industrial Commission had been working with Mead Johnson and Company since last October assisting in plans for the plant expansion at Belleville.

It was learned that planning consultants for the plant addition have been hired and that soil tests at the site had been taken.

Ted Kennedy Seeks China Policy Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy called today for a sweeping reassessment of U.S. policy toward China and urged President Johnson to appoint a "blue ribbon" commission to recommend new approaches.

He said the commission could be headed "by a national leader of the calibre and credentials" of retired Gen. Matthew Ridgway, who commanded allied forces in Korea; retired Gen. Alfred Gruenther, former American Red Cross president, or Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Johns Hopkins University president who is a brother of former president Eisenhower.

The Massachusetts Democrat, in a speech prepared for the Senate, said the commission could be asked to make recommendations on "vital issues," including:

—How to increase "informal government contacts" with China, as well as scientific, educational, cultural, athletic and tourist contacts.

—The problem of Chinese Communist membership in the United Nations. Kennedy did not advocate seating of mainland China but said "if a system of representation were devised which would allow a seat for mainland China and still preserve Taiwan's (Formosa's) rights, it should receive a serious consideration."

—Whether the present U.S. embargo on all trade with Peking should be modified to allow "a limited trading relationship . . . on goods which could not be used to fuel Chinese war machines."

—How to increase Chinese participation in international arms control negotiations. He said the United States should "continue to hold the door open" for China at every disarmament conference "in the hope that eventually she will participate."

The senator said any overtures probably would be rejected quickly by China. But, he added, "if offered patiently and imaginatively and persistently enough, they might be accepted

U Thant Warns Tensions Push Us to War's Brink

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant warned today that political, economic and racial tensions are threatening to push mankind into the total disaster of a third world war.

Speaking to the European Consultative Assembly, Thant called on the peoples of Europe to devote their talents and genius to efforts to prevent another global conflict.

The secretary - general proposed that the United Nations undertake a thorough study of the probable effects of a nuclear war on the world's population and civilizations.

He said such a report should be distributed as widely as possible in all languages to alert the average person to the dangers dangling over mankind.

Thant said the causes of tension are the east-west political struggle, the growing gap between the have and have-not nations, the breakup of the colonial system and racial discrimination in several forms.

"It is unlikely," Thant told the assembly, "that we may need a third world war to teach us how to coexist on this richly endowed planet, but sometimes events in the world seem to be pointing in this direction.

"There is thus a desperate need to bring the forces of enlightened public opinion to bear firmly on problems which threaten, or are likely to threaten in the future the welfare of all."

Cambodia Shelled By U.S.

A spokesman said American artillery unleashed a heavy barrage Saturday to silence "very heavy" automatic weapons and mortar fire from across the border.

The Viet Cong was firing on a battalion of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division which was making a sweep on the South Vietnamese side of the Cai Bac River, the spokesman said.

The artillery duel took place in Tay Ninh province about 75 miles northwest of Saigon. That border sector has been the scene of the 1st Division's Operation Birmingham for the last nine days, and during it U.S. troops seized the biggest cache of Viet Cong supplies of the war.

BOMBERS FOUND AREA

The area has been pounded repeatedly in recent days by B-52 bombers. They unloaded their 750 - pound bombs there again today.

U.S. planes flew 306 combat sorties over South Viet Nam Monday while the three-week lull in ground fighting persisted.

There have been repeated unofficial reports of U.S. troops firing into Cambodia, but the disclosure today was the first of official acknowledgement. The spokesman said the decision to shell the Viet Cong across the frontier was made by the battalion commander on the spot.

Field commanders are authorized to take any means at their disposal to protect their troops, the spokesman said, adding that the area shelled contained no villages and the nearest settlement was about five miles away.

REPORTS ON SHELLING

The spokesman gave this report of the shelling:

The 1st Division battalion ran into heavy Viet Cong sniper fire as it approached the village of Lo Go, on the South Vietnamese side of the Cai Bac River. The battalion overran the Viet Cong position, killing eight Viet Cong.

At this point, the Americans received heavy-machine and automatic-weapon fire from Viet Cong positions on the Cambodian side. The battalion commander called for artillery support, and U.S. artillery units unleashed a heavy volume of 105-millimetre shells into the jungle on the Cambodian side, silencing the Viet Cong fire.

In air action over North Viet Nam Monday, the spokesman reported a navy jet was shot down by ground fire 10 miles northeast of Vinh. The pilot is missing.

It was the 28th U.S. plane reported lost in action over North Viet Nam.

In South Viet Nam, two U.S.

Beryl Fox Defends Filming Girl Abed

TORONTO (CP)—A CBC director-producer said Monday a cameraman filmed a bedroom scene last summer of a girl in bed with two boys for the CBC program Document, but "it was not pornographic."

Beryl Fox, 34, award-winning free-lancer under contract to the CBC, said the shooting was done under her direction. The bedroom episode was an unexpected sequence in filming for a Document program called Lonely.

The scene ran for less than a minute, was found to be of no value and will not be included in the program scheduled for next fall, Miss Fox said in a 750-word statement.

The girl was lying on the bed under bedclothes with the two boys. They were talking and not engaged in sexual activity. . . . It was not pornographic

Keate Meets Producers CBC President, Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Publisher Stuart Keate had expected meetings with CBC producers and corporation President J. Alphonse Ouimet Monday as he began an informal mediation of their dispute.

The Vancouver Sun publisher also chatted with Prime Minister Pearson, confined to bed with the flu after talks during the weekend to avert a producers' strike.

Mr. Keate was expected to continue his discussions today before flying to San Francisco for a speaking engagement. He returns to Ottawa Thursday.

He said he expects to complete a comprehensive and independent review of the CBC programming dispute in about two weeks.

The television program This Hour Has Seven Days, the centre of the conflict, is scheduled to be aired for the last time this season Sunday night. The CBC's decision to drop Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre as the show's hosts next fall precipitated the producers' strike threat and an uproar in Parliament.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh told the commons she and less erotic than many a current movie.

". . . The girl in question was not given any drugs or alcohol by me or anybody from the CBC. Nor were the youths under the influence of drink or drugs."

Miss Fox's statement, released through her lawyer, capped a day of quick development spurred by a copyright story in the Toronto Telegram, by reporters Frank Drea and Fred Cederberg, in which the 11-year-old girl says she was under the influence of a pill she was photographed in bed with the two youths.

The CBC said it had asked the RCMP to investigate allegations in the story because of the reference to drugs.

Seven-Hour Meet Revises Program Of City Manager

Prime Minister On Spot

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is to lay today how and why the Gerda Munsinger file came into his office—and, possibly, why it stayed there for 16 months.

His explanation, promised in the Commons Monday night by External Affairs Minister Martin, could affect what shapes up as one of the closest voting tests to face the minority Liberal government.

The vote is due by 8:15 p.m. EDT.

The Conservatives spotlighted Mr. Pearson's alleged handling of the file on the German blonde with a motion criticizing the administration for "... having let the RCMP provide information to the government as to the past conduct of all members of Parliament generally—a course of action which would destroy the independence of all members and undermine the institution of Parliament."

Mr. Martin asked MPs not to come to a decision until they hear from Mr. Pearson, who was at home with the flu.

"He will be there tomorrow and he wishes to take part in this debate to explain what he believes to be the interpretation of a situation that has been described by someone else in the inquiry that is under way," Mr. Martin said.

'SOUGHT INFORMATION'

The "someone else" is RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan, who told the Munsinger judicial inquiry last Thursday that Mr. Pearson sought from him in late November, 1964, any "scandalous" information about the file during the previous 10 years.

This was only a few days after Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) made his charges of influence-peddling in high liberal circles which led to the judicial inquiry into the Lucien Rivard affair.

The debate on a supply motion Monday, R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Royal) criticized Mr. Pearson for a "minister abuse of the rule of law" in making a "straight request for any scandal or gossip that the RCMP might have gathered."

He then introduced the Conservative motion and sparked a procedural wrangle over whether it was in order or was "sub judice," since the Munsinger inquiry is still in progress. With all parties but the Liberals agreeing the motion was proper, Speaker Lucien Lamoureux upheld the motion.

The Conservatives may debate "co-lateral issues" relating to the Munsinger case, to the central questions as outlined in Inquiry's terms of reference, said Mr. Martin.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of using "tactics that frustrate" members of this chamber, tac-

Belleville property owners with homes having an assessed value in the $7,000 bracket will be facing a $20 tax hike this year.

Actually the millrate increase over last year is three mills for commercial and 2.9 mills for residential.

This year's rate for commercial properties will be 36.7 mills and for residential 33.3 mills, as compared with last year's rate of 33.7 mills commercial and 30.4 mills residential.

The 1960 mill rate was tentatively struck yesterday at a city hall budget meeting lasting nearly seven hours. The by-law setting the rate will be passed at next Monday's regular meeting of city council.

MAJOR COST RISES

Increased educational costs, salary and wage increases for city employees, and debenture payments are the major items Belleville General Hospital addition were given as the main reasons for the tax rate hike.

At the same time, in an effort to keep the mill rate as low as possible, considerable work is planned by the public works department was eliminated for 1960.

Total city expenditures for the year are estimated at just over $5,000,000, with the mill rate designed to raise approximately $1,940,000 the balance being provided through grants and subsidies, recoverable debt charges and other revenue.

The public schools will cost the local taxpayer $688,089, requiring a commercial rate of 7.8 mills, and a residential rate of 7.00 mills. The local levy for high schools will be $393,474, to be raised by a commercial rate of 5.9 mills and a residential rate of 5.3 mills. Separate schools will cost local separate school supporters $94,320.

Price to consideration of the year's estimates, the 1963 audit reports were received from the George A. Welch and Company audit firm.

HAD $117,000 SURPLUS

The report showed that the city had ended the year 1963 with a surplus of $117,000.

Coming into yesterday's budget meeting, City Manager J.R. Reynolds recommended a reduction of $235,000 from the original estimates, a big percentage of this amount to be lopped from the public works requirements.

Council went along with many of the recommendations but at the last minute approved approximately $19,000 more than suggested by the city manager.

The city manager recommended $107,200 cut from the public works budget of $753,653, mostly consisting of expenditures on roads and sidewalks, and also suggested cuts of $20,900 scheduled to be spent on new traffic lights, and cuts in the year's asphalt resurfacing program. These cuts, with minor recommendations, were approved by Council.

Plans to re-pave Bridge St. from Ann to Herchimer were shelved, as also were plans to re-pave West Bridge St., said to be in poor condition. Curbs were constructed on the Brock and Jas St. area was also shelved for this year.

A budget of $236,392 was ap-

Pollution Under Fire Of Liberals

TORONTO (CP) — The government is falling down in its efforts to control air pollution in Ontario, Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson said in the legislature Monday.

Mr. Thompson accused the health department of permitting discomfort, illness and death in cities throughout the province by failing to control pollution.

Also heard in the house were: —Ross Whicher (L—Bruce), who said many university graduates are leaving the province for better jobs.

—Health Minister Matthew Dymond, who announced the extension of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan to May 16.

"Our impotent laws and small-change penalties are no service at all to the residents of this province who are choking and dying from the putrid, contaminated fumes being pumped into our air," Mr. Thompson said.

The government has ignored the recommendations of a select committee of the legislature which urged in 1957 a stepped-up pollution control program. Municipalities also have shown lack of concern, he said.

Mr. Whicher said graduates of Ontario universities, particularly in the professions, should be persuaded or forced to spend a specified time after graduation in the province.

He also picked out dentists as an example.

"All dentists have an obligation to the people who finance them. We cannot afford to lose them to California or Hawaii. "We not only need their services but we need their taxes. We can't be a boy scout to the rest of the world for all time to come."

Dr. Dymond announced the Queen Has to Pay Parking Fee---Prince's Car Illegally Registered

LONDON (AP) — The Queen had to pay a parking fee while her husband, Prince Philip, was spotted with an illegal registration on his car.

The Queen's chauffeur plunked a coin in the parking meter when she visited King Edward VII Hospital where her daughter, Princess Anne, is being treated for a broken nose suffered in a fall from a horse.

"It's unusual for the Queen to pay for parking," explained a Buckingham Palace spokesman, "but on this occasion the Queen was on a private visit.

"The hospital is in a crowded London area and the only parking spaces available are those in front of parking meters. So, when one of these was used by the Queen's car yesterday, the Queen's chauffeur paid."

Prince Philip parked his 130-mile - an - hour, glass topped sports station wagon at London airport before flying to Oslo. Passersby noticed the licence tag was 86 OGLE, technically an illegal registration.

"The phone hasn't stopped ringing about it," said a palace spokesman. "I'm sure Prince Philip doesn't realize the registration is illegal."

A spokesman for the company that turned out the custom-made car said: a.

"We thought it would be a good idea to get the year and the maker's name on the registration plate. I know it's technically wrong, but nobody objected."

The prince drove the new car, known as the Tripiex GTS, to London Airport on his way to the British trade fair in Oslo, Norway, Monday.

The car was commissioned and formerly owned by the Triplex Glass Co., which makes windshields and windows for many of the world's cars.

Prince Philip's model—the only one of its kind in Britain—has GTS (glazing tost special glass) which changes color in bright sunlight, overcoming driving strain caused by poor visibility and seasonal changes.

In bad weather the windows do not mist up or smear.

Workshops on Mental Health Scheduled for This City

When Dr. Richard Shooter, psychiatrist at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto is in Belleville tomorrow he will address four separate groups.

Dr. Shooter is coming in connection with Mental Health Week and he will speak during the day to students at Moira Secondary School, to student nurses at the hospital, to the Community Agencies' Association. In the evening he will address a public meeting at Belleville General Hospital.

The president of the local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, the Rev. Norman Hutchinson, told Intelligencer yesterday that efforts are being made to better acquaint the public with the Mental Health Week theme "Knowledge through the various community agencies and involves both with church, educational and law enforcement groups in the city.

For example, a meeting is scheduled Thursday for district police officers whose work frequently brings them in contact with persons who are mentally ill. The meeting is being held to address a public meeting at Belleville General Hospital.

The president of the local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, the Rev. Norman Hutchinson, told Intelligencer yesterday that efforts are being made to better acquaint the public with the Mental Health Week theme "Knowledge through the various community agencies and involves both with church, educational and law enforcement groups in the city.

For example, a meeting is scheduled Thursday for district police officers whose work frequently brings them in contact with persons who are mentally ill. The meeting is being held to address a public meeting at under the direction of Dr. E. B. Conn, director of the Mental Health Unit.

Mr. Hutchinson said it is hoped similar workshops will be held in other parts of Hastings and lay groups in the city. He described this as an effort to improve community attitudes on the subject of mental health.

Last year, he said, people were "still very much depressed" by Dr. Shooter expecting to obtain answers to their problems. For example, a person with problems of their own and came away disappointed. He explained that the "groups that work with groups" it is hoped to get across more clearly the mental health.

OCCASIONAL SYMPTOMS

Mr. Hutchinson said that everyone has occasional symptoms of mental illness, such as feeling unloved, inferior and discouraged, as well as varying degrees of anxiety, tension, fear and anxiety. However, in many people who are mentally ill the feelings may be either more intense or more frequent or both.

At times, when these symptoms become severe, a person may require psychiatric treatment and possibly hospital care. Others may have an altered personality and may be unable to distinguish between what is real and what is imagined. Some may suffer from periods of deep depression or of elation and have bizarre thoughts, including delusions and hallucinations, false beliefs and false perceptions.

"Many people with severe emotional problems develop physical symptoms such as ulcers, skin eruptions, allergies and similar complaints."

Even the personality problems and emotional upsets, yet continue to function throughout their illness, sometimes in a chiatric treatment, said Mr. Hutchinson. Some of the world's greatest creative executive minds have suffered acutely in this way.

Others suggested that their emotional instability actually helped them to achieve heights now attained by others. It is probably more correct to say that these creative people have achieved success mainly because of their unusually great drive and determination.

"But for most people, emotional and personality disturbances represent handicaps which hinder and obstruct them, rather than help them. Many of these people, while not obviously professional mental health help, get a measure of assistance and support from their friends and relatives. Many consult their clergymen or get help from social agencies.

CLINIC IN HOSPITAL

Other persons who have severe emotional problems may, with the help of psychiatry, be able to continue to live at home with their families and carry on their jobs and usual community activities.

"It is possible," said Mr. Hutchinson, "for a person to go about his daily routine and attend a clinic in the evening. He noted that a mental health clinic is being included in the facilities of the extension to Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Hutchinson reminded his listeners that mental illness is the most serious single health problem. It disables more people than tuberculosis, heart disease and cancer combined. On any one day nearly half of all hospital beds in the province are occupied by mental patients. The cost and care and treatment of mental illness in Canada, he said, has been estimated at more than a billion dollars a year, or more than a million dollars a day.

A booklet issued by the association points out that seven alcoholics account for about 12 per cent of new admissions. These people are usually between the ages of 25 and 55.

Rotary president Ernest Thrasher thanked the invited members that next week's meeting will be held in Queensway where will be guests of Cobourg Rotarians.

Beryl Fox

of the Toronto police morality squad said his department is not investigating the allegations.

Tom Hoyt, alarrats producer of the television program This Hour Has Seven Days which is replaced one Sunday each month by Fox, said he received that notice of libel had been served on The Telegram on behalf of Mr. Justice Wishart Spence Leiterman, executive producer of Seven Days and a Document producer.

In a statement Cecil Smith, director of CBC information services, said that the CBC has noted the story. . . . It contains serious allegations not previously known to the corporation."

DROPPED WHOLE IDEA

Stevens Hagzan, CBC general supervisor of public affairs, confirmed the screns had been shot, and said there was no film footage on any sex act. In any case, he said the whole idea was dropped last July.

Miss Fox, in her statement, said Mr. Leiterman had enlisted the aid of three local youths of good character for whom he then rented a room. It contains five x e g h Toronto's Yorkville coffee-house area.

The statement said Leiterman told the youths arrived on their motorcycles, one with a girl. Then he said the outdoor filming was completed and it was arranged to meet the youths later in their apartment and complete the film by taking shots at breakfast.

"The youths asked me to allow the girl to come with us," the statement said. "I did not like the idea but she assured me she would be no trouble so I said . . . 'she can come so long as she does not interfere.'"

KEPT CAMERAS ROLLING

Miss Fox said she instructed Mr. Leiterman to rent the apartment with the camera rolling.

"We kept moving forward . . . and found ourselves in a bedroom with the girl lying on the bed under bedclothes with the two boys."

Then a cameraman acted entirely under my direction. I kept the camera rolling briefly on the bedclothes and the tousled of the heads and feet. I then stopped the camera. The cameraman and the boys left the room."

Miss Fox said she talked to the boys after the film was made and have breakfast but the girl refused. Miss Fox then returned to the room and said the entire film was taken of the boys dancing to music.

"I then went to see my executive producer, Mr. Douglas Leiterman, who was recuperating from an automobile accident and reported to him the morning shooting.

'HAD NO VALUE'

"We subsequently screened the film and found the dancing footage to be useful and the bedroom footage of no value. It was not pornographic and less erotic than many a current movie."

Miss Fox, who won two awards within a month for her hour-long film, The Mills of the Gods: Viet Nam, said the youths were paid the standard CBC fee for participating in a documentary film. The girl was not paid.

Mr. Leiterman denied the newspaper's story and said it is distorted, inaccurate and unfounded on the comments of a totally unreliable girl.

"The CBC never under my direction has filmed or been involved in the filming of simulated or real sex-marriage parties or sexual intercourse."

"And no CBC crew under my direction has been involved in the administering of drugs or liquor to any persons."

The Telegram story said the session in the apartment was to simulate a teen-age marijuana party during shooting of a planned documentary. It said the girl was induced to swallow a pill by one of the youths and she went into "kind of a daze."

Town Engineer Had Answers For Councillor

TRENTON — Town council has agreed to a traffic committee proposal that all traffic signals in town be put on a "flashing" basis from midnight to 7 a.m.

Councillor Neal Alderser, Ward 1 Todd has called for the repainting of traffic directional lines on Dundas St. Ward 1.

"I'm beginning to wonder if the machine, the paint or the operator has disappeared," said the councillor at last night's meeting.

Town engineer Eric Alderser said the new machine should be in use by next week, adding that he wasn't confident as to putting on paint.

"Well, I've had my answer for this month," said Councillor Todd, "Now you can get busy and think up a new answer for July."

"I have one," Mr. Alderser replied, "but it is too hot the paint might blister."

In other traffic problems, council agreed to put a post midway between the Bank of Commerce and the old post office to discourage drivers making an illegal left turn off Dundas Street West and circling the post office to come out on the main street facing east.

Will Place Town Sign On Outskirts

TRENTON — "The Trend is to Trenton."

This legend will appear on a sign that is 12' x 4' and will be placed at one entrance to the town on a "test basis," and represents a new idea in town signs at the other two entrances to town.

The sign will also bear an insignia, adopted by the town for letterheads and direct mailings. Councillor Paul Tripp's economic and industrial "commission" for information and "sell" for vacation," as being more impressive.)

Councillor Tripp reported to town council that the sign committee would hold Open House to industrial representatives in Toronto this month to acquaint them with sites available in Trenton.

George Kempf, a committee member, will prepare an up-to-date survey of prevailing wages and hours of local industry for the benefit of the other committee members.

Solicitor Will Prepare Bylaw On Scrap Yards

TRENTON — Roderick Campbell, town solicitor, has been asked by council to prepare a by-law, controlling the operation of scrapyards within the municipality for signing next council meeting.

Meanwhile, the town has signed an agreement with Jack Zigman whereby the town gives Mr. Zigman $45,000 for his Front St. West lot and two acres of land to east Trenton for a new yard.

Will Extend Sewage Plant In 1969

TRENTON — Trenton council last night voted to guarantee the Ontario Municipal Improvements Commission that an extension to the sewage treatment plant will be built in 1969.

Council made the promise so that the OWRC would approve the town's extensive trunk sewer installation program, slated for this year.

Meanwhile, council has empowered Clerk Conaptroller O. W. Larry to apply to Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for a loan to finance the trunk sewer program.

Town engineer Eric Alderney has been asked to prepare drawings and documents in connection with the proposed reconstruction of the parts of Front Street lying between Elgin and Bondhead Sts.; Quinte Street, from Fraser Park to Division St.

This program too, hinges on sewer installations on these streets.

The engineer suggested last night that parts of the town public works' program might be deleted in favor of installing sidewalks on parts of Front Street, Byron, Sidney and Carrying Place Road. The public "urgent" requests will investigate this possibility.

Councillor C. V. Graham, Ward 2, moved, and Councillor mitee, proposed to council that Ford Street, where the new LCBO store is to be built, be reconstructed and widened and the LCBO be asked to share in the cost. Mr. Graham said Ford Street be made a one-way street, west and the adjacent street be made one way, east, and no parking permitted on either street. Council was agreeable to this proposal, but must await the report of the engineer and solicitor concerned as Victoria Park is in the same vicinity.

News in Brief

TRENTON — Trenton firemen yesterday put out a fire in a burning Chevrolet in a garage at the Zigman scrap yard on Front Street. Fortunately damage was done to the equipment.

The bulldozer was being repaired with a welding torch and leaking gas from the machine's tank ignited.

Mrs. George Greer, chairman of the district campaign for cancer research fund, said yesterday $4,600 of the $6,500 quota had been turned in. Brighton and Frankford have yet to report.

As the money turned in so far represents only 17 of the 386 canvassers in the field, Mrs. Greer said she felt sure the objective would be reached. Each kit turned in is averaging more than $10 in collection.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment marched its colors on parade last night at the annual inspection at the Belleville Armouries. About 350 persons attended the inspection.

Various field companies gave realistic displays of field manoeuvres. The demonstrations included drill squads, a company in defence, a film presentation of unit training activities, anti-tank training and cooking. The cooking demonstration doubled as a source of food for the soldiers following the ceremonies.

Pte. W. J. Berry, 19, of Frankford, won the Duffy Trophy for the best recruit. Col. Angus Duff presented the trophy. Pte. Berry, a Grade 11 student at Quinte, is following in his father's footsteps. His father was also a member of the Hasty Pees.

The C.S.M. Leavitt Trophy, for the inter-company rifle competition, was accepted by Lt. M. H. Evans on behalf of the Rifle Co. Capt. F. R. Allan, commander of the Training Company, accepted the Rashotie Trophy for the overall best company on behalf of his company.

REGIMENT PRAISED

Col. T. de Faye was assisted in the inspection by Maj. G. E. Henderson, S.O.3 (Adm. & at Tech. Services). WO1 H. L. Kobesh, was regimental Sergeant Major.

the importance of the militia to Canada.

"You have a more important place in the armed forces now than you have had in the past," he said. "Your primary role has been changed to that of soldiering.

"My headquarters is charged solely with the militia and the cadets. This is an indication of how seriously the militia is being taken today.

"You are now better trained and better administrated than ever and have a definite role to play if we ever find ourselves in a national emergency.

"The world conditions to me, look a lot worse now than they did in 1927 or 1939 when I stood where you stand now as a young recruit."

"There are very serious times and therefore, Canada must rely on her citizen soldiers whom she has always relied on. Canada will never be able to keep a standing army large enough to meet a national calamity. We must depend upon the militia for that.

"I would say, for what I've seen tonight, that the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is fully capable of taking its place in the new national plan of things.

OFFICER IMPRESSED

Col. de Faye said he was impressed by the Hasty Pees' showing. "Those of you on parade tonight are worthy predecessors of the men who fought under the banners of this regiment in Sicily and Italy during the last war.

Col. de Faye said the militia teaches a man self-confidence. "If you take your training here seriously, and you must, you will learn a degree of self-confidence you will not get in any other line of endeavour and you will stand you in good stead no matter what your occupation may be.

"A soldier who goes into action convinced the enemy is better than he is, is surely in a right there."

The inspecting officer made particular note of the good showing of the new recruits, "many of whom have only been on parade once or twice before tonight. As an old soldier, I can say you've done incredibly well."

Several of the councillors felt such an idea was ridiculous, but Welfare Administrator Daniel Aiken said such schools were accepted in many municipalities.

He said working mothers were no accepted fact in modern society and that women would go out to work whether or not the day nursery schools were provided.

Unfortunately where schools were not provided it was found that in many instances children were being neglected by babysitters and often the ended up in the care of welfare departments.

Mr. Aiken said that 50 percent of the approved costs of a day nursery school would be paid by the province.

Mayor J. R. Ellis commended Mr. Aiken for his work in the city welfare department noting that he had put considerable effort into rehabilitation which had been reflected in reduced welfare costs. The mayor said that in Mr. Aiken's opinion a rehabilitation program would reduce juvenile delinquency ten years from now.

SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET UP

Council also boosted the budget of the Belleville industrial commission to $23,000 from $19,400 last year.

The meeting was told that since the first of the year Industrial Commissioner Ernst Knieset had been working full time at his job as c on missioner. Mayor Ellis said Mr. Knieset had divorced himself from his hotel and real estate interests, and would serve the commission full time.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce received a $6,000 grant, of which $2,000 is earmarked for publication of a centennial brochure on Belleville.

Other grants received included, although Alderman Douglas Doyle asked if it were true the city had paid for a $250 study for the council director. A spokesman answered in the affirmative, although the aims of the welfare council in co-ordinating welfare service in the city were outlined.

BUY ANTIQUES

Also approved was an item of $5,000 for the purchase of antique lighting for display by the Hastings County Historical Society.

A grant of $300 for the Central Ontario Cheese Show in Belleville was approved with Mayor Ellis noting that efforts would be made to upgrade the show to make it of more general interest.

Alderman Donald Jose commended briefly on the city's annual contribution of something like $10,000 to the Moira River Conservation Authority.

He said the city paid a big share of the Authority's local levy and got actually very little for its money. He suggested the city take a long look at the matter with a view to cutting a resolution to the province.

Protection of persons and property will cost the city approximately $948,000 of which $391,571 will be the cost of the fire department, $347,061 for the police department and $113,800 for traffic and light.

Of the latter amount $67,000 is for street lighting and $271,000 for school guards.

Haggis-eating Championship Slated For Ayr

AYR, Scotland (CP) — A world haggis - eating championship will be staged Saturday in this town in the heart of the Robert Burns country.

More haggis is consumed here annually on Burns's birthday, Jan. 25, than in any other Scottish community. Burns described Ayr as "the town of bonnie lasses" and it was while living here that he dubbed Scotland's national dish the "great chieftain o' the puddin' race."

Winner of Saturday's contest, organized by the Ayr and District Round Table Fair, will be the person still tucking into the "great chieftain" after all other competitors have given up. A haggis, which often weighs up to 15 pounds, is composed of pig's heart, lung and liver, suet, onions, seasoning and oatmeal, worn up in a sheep's stomach or ox's intestines and boiled.

The traditional accompaniment to the dish is a dram of whisky, but any teetotal competitors will be allowed to drink milk or water, said Martin, secretary of the organizing body.

12 Companies Involved in False Bidding Court Told

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Supreme Court was told Monday that 12 construction companies were involved in a false-bid scheme to win road-paving contracts in Ontario from 1958 until 1961.

Crown Prosecutor Sydney L. Robins of Toronto said the companies "skillfully hoodwinked public authorities" by entering bogus tenders and "unduly lessening competition contrary to the Combines Investigation Act."

The companies are charged with conspiring to prevent or lessen competition in the sale of sand, gravel, stone chips and asphalt used in the surface treating of provincial highways.

A similar charge against Grey-Wellington Paving Co. Ltd. was dismissed because the company is no longer in existence. The trial continues.

CALLS IN CARS

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. said Monday it has called in 182,000 Plymouth and Dodge automobiles for possible repairs because 20 of the 1966 cars were found to have loose nuts on a front suspension component. Meanwhile, an auto industry safety paper reports that Oldsmobile division of General Motors Corp. has called for repairs on a carburetor which, in some cases, allowed gasoline to spew over the engine and ignite.

Rail Workers Reject Head Of Wage Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) has declined to endorse a labor department recommendation that Mr. Justice P. Craig Munroe head the conciliation board that is to study a wage dispute between the CBRT and the railways.

Informants said Monday the union was asked last week by Labor Minister Nicholson to go along with a joint request that Mr. Justice Munroe of Vancouver be invited to head the three-member board.

The CBRT's refusal to join in the invitation may not make any difference. Under law, the labor minister has the final say when the board and management representatives on a board cannot agree on a chairman.

Labor spokesmen said the union would prefer somebody else because of Mr. Justice Munroe's decisions in past non-op cases supporting the so-called "durable goods yardstick." This is based on average wage rates in the durable goods industries — autos, appliances, furniture and the like.

Based on the latest durable goods figure set by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the non-ops' average hourly pay of about $2.21 is 20 cents behind.

But the CBRT and other non-op unions are seeking pay increases well above that figure—90 cents an hour in the CBRT demands and up to $1.25 in some shop crafts.

U.S.-Chinese Relations

British author Frank Tuohy, in a series of articles on China, confirms the observations of other recent visitors with regard to Chinese-American relations, or rather the lack of them.

"Signs of anti-American feeling are everywhere in China," says Tuohy, and he adds: "Yet I feel there is something fishy about it all. If the Americans did not exist, the central committee of the Communist party would have to invent them."

Tuohy points to China's political setbacks in Ghana, Indonesia and Cuba and the vacuum they have caused. In other words, China increasingly is becoming a land with nothing on which to pin its revolutionary fervor. To fill the gap, what better target than the arch enemy of "American imperialism."

Or why not fan the discontent evidenced by the frequent anti-war demonstrations within the United States itself? "Deprived of the Cubans," observes Tuohy, "China looks elsewhere for oppressed peoples to lead. Maps of the United States show spots of racial-workers' protest although these were Chinese outposts in a battle."

Here is proof, if any is still needed, that demonstrations against the war in Viet Nam, whatever the sincerity of the participants, are being exploited by Peking and of course by Moscow.

If the United States genuinely desires closer relations with the Communist Chinese, in order to soften Peking's belligerent pose, and possibly avoid the conflict which the Chinese at least fully expect, it will have to be more subtle in its approach.

Currently, the only formal contact between Washington and Peking is through the respective embassies in Poland. But this link is virtually useless as an instrument with which the United States might counter the ocean of anti-American propaganda the Chinese inflict on their millions.

At the risk of offending Chiang Kai-shek in his bastion on Formosa, the United States could bring off a masterly political coup by simply inviting Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung to visit the United States. He should be invited not only to tour the U.S., but also to discuss the Viet Nam war and how it might be ended.

If Mao-Tse-tung's health precludes such a visit, and there have been reports that he is ailing, then Prime Minister Chou En-lai, or the country's president might be invited.

Such an invitation would not only demonstrate the United States' magnanimity, it might even succeed in breaking the bitter relations between the two countries. But one thing is certain, it would cut the rug from under China's "Hate America" campaign.

Curbs Pollution

Our Picton correspondent reports a startling reduction in the amount of dust being emitted from the kiln stacks of the Lake Ontario Cement Company.

Ordinarily, the smoke can be seen from high ground — in the Stirling area for example — for many miles around. But lately little or no dust could be detected. Naturally area residents were puzzled, even to the point of wondering whether the plant was operating at all.

Which only goes to show that one can become accustomed to a nuisance or blight or condition. When suddenly it is no longer there, curiosity is aroused.

But the cement company is as active as ever. In fact it is a non-stop operation. The absence of dust is the result of effort to eliminate it as far as possible from the atmosphere. Technical details have not been given, but it is hoped that continuing efforts in this direction will result in a further reduction of the dust.

At a time when pollution is very much in the news — pollution of the atmosphere and of water — the cement company's success in reducing the dust from its operations is of prime significance. From the point of view of industry the benefits may be incalculable. The efforts of the company in this sphere are an example to industry everywhere in the never-ending struggle to control pollution.

Source of Wealth

Even in the predominantly industrial provinces of Ontario and Quebec, many ordinary citizens fail to realize that Canada today is more than anything a manufacturing nation.

Nevertheless, it is true that this is one of the major manufacturing nations, seventh largest in the free world in terms of annual output.

Here is what manufacturing means to Canada:

It provides more Canadians with productive jobs than any other industry, in fact one quarter of the entire national labor force.

It is the largest single contributor to national wealth — more than one quarter of the value of all goods and services Canadians produce.

Medical Terms Used In Column Explained

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You print articles like the enclosed and mention a disease but no one knows what it is. Why don't you explain what diverticulosis is? Must I send 20 cents for a booklet to find out what it is, or get a medical dictionary? Also Hirschsprung's disease, and emphysema. What good is it to write about cures when I have to ask the doctor what is emphysema? — Mrs. A. B.

For a minute, madam, you riled me. Then you amused me. And I am sorry to have caused you anxiety by mentioning some disease you don't have or have heard of.

No, I don't want your 20 cents for the booklet on diverticulosis. The booklet is for people who do have it, and want to know exactly what it is, what to expect it to do to them, and how to keep it from bothering them.

I've explained what it is in the column many times, and the same for the other things you mention, especially emphysema which is becoming a very prevalent ailment, and is taking a lot of lives.

When I prepare a booklet, it is because a great many letters indicate that people want to know more about a particular problem than I can answer in a column. A booklet is a way of getting more information to those who need it, without repeating it over and over for those who don't.

Now as to the other thing that annoys you — your itch — causes can range from pinworms to poor hygiene. In between are excessive beer drinking, allergy, hemorrhoids, rectal fissures producing a discharge, local skin changes, irritation from clothes or parasites, excessive moisture sometimes even emotional tension.

You must likely will need your doctor's judgment to discover which is involved in your case. Once you have a definite diagnosis, effective treatment is possible.

And I hope you never get emphysema. You sound like a writer by the way, energetic woman.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been troubled with a carnucle on the urethra. Two years ago a urologist removed most of it. On my last visit he said they do recur and evidently this is why mine still hurts.

Do carnucles ever turn into cancer from irritation? Do they ever clear up entirely? — R. H. H.

A carnucle is a non-malignant tumor. Being non - cancerous doesn't mean that you can forget about them. You can't, because they can be extremely painful.

They can recur, but that is more the exception than the rule. See your urologist again and have it removed, and this should in all probability end your problems. It is not a serious surgical procedure.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard that there is a form of leukemia called aleukemia in which the number of white cells in the blood is not increased, and there may even be fewer than normal. In such a case can the leukemia be detected in a blood test? — D. L.

Ordinarily in leukemia the number of white cells is high. The white cells also are predominantly abnormal.

There can be a phase of leukemia in which the count of white cells is not elevated (aleukemia) but abnormal ones will still be present, and other symptoms of the disease will be evident. Yes, in that phase, leukemia still can be detected.

Railroad Crossings

The Trentonian

We agree unreservedly with A. Douglas Aikenbrack, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox that railway level crossings must be protected. Moreover, we have long thought that the railways should install them, if they insist on having their lines cross highways, instead of building bridges.

Nor does the question of how much view of the crossing there may be any bearing on the matter. Trains move on fixed rails. They move fast. Motor vehicles travel our roads, and the roads must be protected so that they can move safely.

No railway should be allowed to create any more level crossings. For those that exist, a program of elimination should be planned, on a 10 year basis. Meanwhile, every level crossing should be fully protected by lights, and on very busy roads, by gates. Human life is too precious to do anything else.

Strictly Personal

The Limits of Disobedience

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When Socrates was invited to escape prison by his friends, who had bribed a jailer, he refused to leave, and lived out his my life under the laws and the protection of Athens," he said, "and even though I feel I was unjustly sentenced to death, I must stay and accept my punishment."

Most Americans do not understand what is meant by "civil disobedience," and many dissenters do not understand it, either. In this time of turmoil, it is important that we recognize the rights and the limits, of civil disobedience.

If a citizen feels that a law is unjust, or that it violates some higher law of conscience or religion, he has a right to resist it, if he does so with two qualifications — first, he must not injure others in doing so, and, second, he must not try to evade punishment for it.

The moral is one who breaks the law, injures others, and tries to escape punishment. A dissenter — which includes a long and glorious line all the way from Socrates down to Gandhi — is perfectly willing to suffer the penalties for his non-compliance with the law.

When Thoreau refused to pay his road tax, and was sent to jail, he objected when friends of his paid his fine and obtained his release. He did not want his conscience bought off so cheaply or so easily

If a democracy is to have any real meaning, it must respect the right of dissenters to resist the law in a non-violent manner, so long as the dissenters themselves are legally consequences. Else, in time of war or other crisis, a democracy can turn as vicious as a tyranny.

What is called the "positive law" — the body of laws promulgated by a specific government — has no moral force unless it is grounded in the "natural law." For instance, the laws against the kulaks under Stalin, or against the Jews under Hitler, were inhuman perversions of the natural law, and were rightly to be resisted, however "legal" they were.

In such countries, "civil disobedience" was impossible and the dissenters would have been summarily executed — and therefore only revolutionary activity was effective. This is why oppressive governments have suffered revolutions; they left no other way out for dissagreement.

In a democracy, however, it is still possible that dissenters may change the law through legal processes, so long as free elections are still available. To deny them the right to influence opinion through marches, demonstrations, or any kind of non-violent opposition — is to create an underground, and a truly subversive, movement in a country.

We must allow dissenters such freedom not for their sake, but for ours. Repression, in the end, hurts the majority much more than it injures the minority — and at present, but in the ominous future.

CBC Still in The Doghouse

Orillia Packet and Times

Nothing could better illustrate the sheltered situation of Canada than the current controversy over the future employment of a couple of TV figures associated with a CBC television program. At a time when Man is reaching out into space in the wings of a goblin technology undreamed of a decade ago, when whole continents reel toward suicidal race war and an exploding birth rate threatens to extinguish civilization and perhaps Man himself, what other people but Canadians could pre-occupy themselves about the hiring or firing of a pair of obscure TV performers? Yet such is indeed our fortunate situation, and such indeed are the trivialities with which we are able to concern ourselves.

To tell the truth, there must be many Canadians who can only wish that the CBC management will not be content with merely discharging two of its teeming thousand employees. For there can be no doubt whatever that the publicly-run corporation is the haven of many untalented, incapable and unproductive producers and performers living — and living very well — off the public purse, and who are quite incapable of earning a living on their own in the field of competitive television.

Five two? Five two dozen, two hundred, two thousand.

CBC Marches Arrogantly on Oblivious to All Protests

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — CBC? It's wonderful.
Miraculous, even.

For the first time in nearly 30 years, it fires somebody, and it's a national crisis, occupying the stunned attention of Parliament's Standing Committee on Broadcasting.

It was the late Conservative Revenue and Finance Minister George Nowlan, a hard - headed Maritimer if there ever was one who, incredulous, discovered when he supposedly was in charge of the CBC that nobody — but nobody — had ever been fired from its more-than-4,000-member staff.

Before he was through with CBC, he came to confess in the Commons that nobody, certainly nobody in the Cabinet, runs the CBC.

The Secretary of State is the one that the Government and Parliament assign to the so-far impossible job.

But one after another, George Nowlan through Maurice Lamontagne through Judy LaMarsh, in turn as Secretary of State, all seem to end up in the Never-Never-Land of CBC feeling for all the world like Alice in Wonderland.

Even Parliament is frustrated.

Year after year it asks the CBC about its free - handed spending, and routinely gets told to mind its own business and just fork over another few million dollars.

UP UP UP

This year the CBC bill, submitted as usual with no real attempt at accounting to Parliament, runs a record $110,000,000.

And so, with all the other problems — inflation, Quebec nationalism, defence integration, Canada-wide security both social and national, the bleeding away of Federal power, not to mention the utter lack of any semblance or control over that $110,000,000 for the CBC—incredibly, the MPs comprising the Commons Broadcasting Committee concerned themselves with the high-paid life and easy times of a couple of TV personalities.

"Personalities?" murmured former Liberal Caucus Chairman Bryce "Mackasey, "prima donnas!"

The most astonishing thing about this amazing CBC is its astounding invulnerability.

It can survive anything.

It has come, through familiar practice, to laugh off with ridiculous ease anything Parliamentarians may say individually, or collectively.

It ignores, with casual contempt, the protests of civic, church, fraternal, regional and political groups.

It can even triumph — as it did just last year, with little effort — over the collective efforts of 100,000 indignant mothers and grandmothers to wash out its dirty mouth with soap and teach it manners.

It did it by publicly labelling the non-partisan and non-denominational "Decjeration of Women" as a clutch of cackling prudes and busybodies clucking over something that was none of their business.

It didn't matter that this Declaration of Women" was headed by the widely - respected Senator Josie Quart and in its ranks included thousands of members of the National Council of Women, the Catholic Women's League, the IODE and other such national organizations.

NOTHING HAPPENED

It only mattered to the CBC that these 100,000 women had banded together to address Prime Minister Pearson with a petition to, as they phrase it: "End the denial to us of a minority who use the CBC to spread propaganda for perversion, pornography, free love, blasphemy, dope, violence as a crime."

And that was reason enough, proclaimed the CBC blindly striking back, that these 100,000 mothers and grandmothers ought to be "carefully investigated."

But as it turned out, among these 100,000 mothers and grandmothers were such women as Mrs. Maurice Bourget, wife of the Senate Speaker, Mrs. Jean Lesage, wife of the Quebec Premier — and Imagine! — a woman, anybody, even the CBC suggesting she ought to be investigated — Mrs. Lester Pearson, wife of the late Liberal-turned-Conservative Prime Minister.

Comtois, wife of the late Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, Mrs. Bruce Macaulay, wife of Alberta's Premier, the wives of a score of MPs and a good section of the membership of the CWL and NCW.

Angry and insulted, they took their case to the Prime Minister directly, protesting not only crime, sex and subversion on the CBC but the way they had been smeared.

Funny thing, too, much of what the "Declaration of Women" said about the CBC was directed at "Seven Days."

Indeed, the angry Prime Minister promised action.

But nothing has happened.

And so it must be concluded that CBC, surviving this cluband-church-women's march on Parliament, must indeed be corporatively immortal.

Perhaps Ralph Cowan, that plain-spoken Liberal MP from Toronto, has the solution:

"Put Donald Gordon in charge and watch the CBC stand around."

Just imagine what the big boss of the CNR would say had he had a couple of TV celebrities, as they like to call themselves, started arguing with him after he had fired them. He returned Parliament into some queer kind of a national crying jowl!

What a Waste!

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

Douglas Willsam, chairman of the Ontario Food Council, told a Hamilton conference that 30 per cent of the 1965 Canadian apple crop was deliberately destroyed as surplus, although 83,121,000 worth of fresh apples and a huge quantity of dried apples were imported from the United States. There are times when we have to conclude that our prosperity must be due more to good fluck than good management.

Today in History

Polish patriotic proclamation read a new constitution 175 years ago today — in 1791 — in an attempt to strengthen the weak central system. Under the old rules the king had been elected and there was a number of the Diet could veto any resolution. Because of this Poland was unable to resist an agreement by which Russia, Prussia and Austria in 1772, annexed a third of its land and half its population. Russia and Prussia invaded Poland again in 1793, taking more land, and Kosciuszko led a revolt which was crushed. Then Poland completely disappeared, swallowed up by its neighboring empires.

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — it was announced two destroyers and four freighters were lost in the British evacuation of Greece; Premier Rashid Ali of Iraq appealed to Hitler for aid as RAF airmen at Habbaniya fought off his troops; 16 German aircraft were shot down in another heavy raid on Liverpool.

Light Sprinkle Of Wet Snow Strikes City

A light sprinkle of wet snow sifted over Belleville this morning. The snow, driven by gusty winds from the south east, melted as it hit the ground.

Today's snowfall was the fifth occurring in May during the last decade. Last May snow flurries recorded occurred on the first day of the month, in 1965. Traces of light snow, under 1/100 of an inch, were also reported on May 4, 1956; May 2, 1961 and May 4, 1963.

Although last year the city had its final spring snowfall on April 17, officials at the Water Purification Plant report the average temperatures this spring are no cooler than those of last year. Temperature at the Purification Plant at the time the snow flurries occurred this morning was 37 degrees.

Canadian Divorce Laws Termed Outmoded by Huron Anglican Synod

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian divorce law was termed outmoded, mistakery salaries were increased and church unity discussed last a sympathetic ear at the opening Monday of the 107th synod of the Anglican diocese of Huron.

Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton, Bishop of Huron, said the church and Parliament should recognize grounds other than adultery by one of the married partners as legitimate reasons for divorce in Canada.

He said the present divorce law no longer is representative of most responsible Christian thought.

"It is our job now to help the government to re-phrase the civil law on divorce on application with just cause for dissolution can obtain such a conclusion of their ship-wrecked marriage without stooping to collusion and to the fabrication of evidence and to legal perjury."

Divorces should be granted to married couples who, after years of serious trial, have turned out to be temperamentally incompatible, he said.

URGES COUNSELLING

The bishop suggested, however, that there should be a period before court action during which marital counselling be given and efforts toward reconciliation taken.

"Should not we Anglicans support the courts in allowing a divorce where clear proof is submitted that there have been years of sincere effort at holding the marriage together, that there has been acceptance and following of competent marriage counselling towards reconciliation without success, and that adequate provision has been assured for all dependents?

"Then should not our courts be free to terminate the marriage and our church be ready to accept the court's action as honest and responsible and so free judgment of an actual situation?

"We would be attempting to find an honest and compassionate way to forgive men and women whose marriaged are irreparably broken and to allow them a fresh start."

He said the new Canon Church's new marriage canon is an attempt to change the church's traditional position in a radical fashion. The church law, which has been passed once by the church's national synod, must come before the group again next year before it becomes official church law.

GRANT INCREASES

Later Monday, the synod passed a resolution granting stipend increases of $1,000 a year for each of its three bishops, $200 to the diocesan commissioner and secretary-treasurer and $200 to other clergy.

The increases mean the bishop's stipend for ministers will be raised to $8,700 from $8,500, and to $3,800 from $3,700 for those with 10 years' experience.

The increases will give Bishop Luxton a salary of $10,000 as well as $1,800 in travel expenses. The suffragan bishops, Rt. Rev. W. A. Townshend and Rt. Rev. Harold F. Appleyard, will receive $9,500 and $1,800 in travel expenses.

The diocesan commissioner and secretary-treasurer will receive $7,000.

During his address to the 450 delegates, Bishop Luxton said attention must be paid to disuniting congregations in both Anglican and United churches on the question of church unity if they cannot accord them that right (to dissent) and tolerate them with respect," he said.

"As I see it, each Anglican diocese must be consulted somewhere along the way and, through synod, each parish will be required to register its vote for or against the full and detailed plan of union.

"I have never disguised my hope that our diocese will give an affirmative lead at every turn of the road."

-cool all at once, perhaps none immediately — but eventually, through the steady effect of shipping away at China's self-imposed isolation."

He said: "I also believe we should not discourage other nations friendly to us from extending their own diplomatic contacts with China as far as they desire."

Turning to the question of trade, he said it is obvious the U.S. embargo has been "effective only as a symbol of hostility."

"What Communist China is denied by us, she can purchase from England, France, Germany and Japan," he said.

"... The beginning of a trade relationship would be another source of increased contact which could yield dividends of peace in future years."

IT'S LATE SO SOON

Dear Susanna: No matter how often we reminded ourselves, we were always rushing special TV programs we wanted to watch.

Twice we missed seeing our friends on the television by a matter of minutes. We suddenly realized how late it was and rushed in just as the program was signing off.

This has not happened to us since we installed our new system.

As soon as we hear of, or read about, a program we wish to see I make a memo of it on our reminder pad. When the day arrives, as soon as I take note of it written there, I set the alarm clock for five minutes before the program is scheduled to start. We haven't missed once! — Miss D. D. Bootiller

Wow, but it's great to match wits with automation and win! — Susanna

PRETTY BOOK MARKS

Dear Susanna: A small idea for the school crowd, or book worms.

I cut slim lengths of felt or heavy brocade with the pinking shears and keep half a dozen or so of these pretty book marks made from sewing scraps in the pencil drawer where they are always ready for use.

Better then marking pages with scraps of paper, don't you think? — Mrs. J. R. Gourdine

BUTTON BIOGRAPHY

"This morning came home my fine camlet cloak with gold buttons . . ." Samuel Pepys (1633-1703.)

"Though I began my collection in earnest some fifteen years ago," says Mrs. Manly Macdonald, charming wife of Canada's renowned artist, a former Bellevillian, "a delight of my life for years, as a child, was a shining black button of my grandmother's which shone like a diamond. How I treasured it!

"Years later, I learned that it was made of black glass and popularly worn at the time Queen Victoria went into mourning.

"Thus began my interest in buttons as a hobby. It has been exciting, fun and a pleasure to discover, for example:

"The first Canadian wooden buttons were not only worn, but "hand-made" by Canadian lumberjacks for their work-clothes.

"Once in much demand were embroidered buttons adorned with sequins and beads. (By the way, so-called jet beads are in reality black glass, which became so fashionable at one time that literally hundreds were sewn on a dress as ornament. Genuine jet beads are rare, though I do possess some). Specially collectible buttons, popular around 1790 were needle wrought, and there is a button known as Cinderella on which fine colored birds were hand-painted.

"During the reign of a French king real diamonds found high favor among the gentlemen of the court, who did gold and silver buttons. In fact beautiful silver buttons embellished servants' liveries, and still do so in England's royal court today.

"In the 1790's — 1800's steel buttons were in vogue. These are most interesting. By 1860, there were over 300 kinds of composition buttons. In 1861, the Goodyear Rubber Company patented a rubber button.

"The Italians are noted for certain straw buttons; for leather buttons rubbed with gold that are exquisite, rare and lovely for imitation tortoise shell buttons. The latter are masterpieces, for it is nearly impossible to distinguish them from genuine tortoise shell.

"The pearl button, however, is a study in itself. Magnificent carved ones are produced in Palestine today. Did you know that a pearl button factory once existed in Trenton? It seems that fresh water are inferior to sea water shells and that the Pacific ones are especially choice.

"In England, Birmingham is the home of the button industry.

"It is said the extravagantly discarded shells (with only one or two pearl buttons taken per shell) would furnish enough building materials for a new Buckingham city hall. Here are still made the fine silver livery buttons, some from molds over a century old. Here, too, are produced the splendid brass military buttons, which at the beginning of the nineteenth century, Americans sent forth men to "spy 'n pry" the secret of their manufacture. Whatever the outcome a factory was established in New England. Brass buttons, however, were never made in Canada, though a cheap button was made at Kitchener during World War I.

"I find military buttons extremely fascinating. The first were made of pewter. I have a few which were found on a soldier's uniform in Louisburg, as well as pewter ones found in the Niagara River, near Fort George. The latter have battalion numbers on them and one such button, found in Toronto, has the number 28 on it. I would be interested to know where the 28th battalion was stationed. Information would be welcome.

"Button clubs and societies flourish in all American cities where members display, discuss and exchange collections, for button collecting is big business. I am sorry to say there is not a single club in Canada. Nor do antique dealers find buttons profitable to handle due to the limited turn-over.

"Such are some of the little-known facts of a hobby which has brought me in touch with stories of the past, with wonderful friends I might never have met, and many happy hours — as it does for all its enthusiasts."

Little wonder tribute is paid the button by a game: "Button, button who has the button?"; flower: "Bachelor Button"; and such expressions as: "t . . . a button of a nose . . ."; while Mark Twain found it valuable to satymetaphorically: "Biographies are but the clothes and buttons of the man — the biography of the man himself cannot be written."

Readers will be pleased to learn that this outstanding button collection may be seen at the University Women's Tea in Belleville this Saturday.

TWO LEMON DESSERTS

The two lemon desserts I am offering you today are tasty and popular. I had a field day tasting and testing them! They were a perfect excuse for me to go off my no-desserts diet.

Josephine's Cold Lemon Soufflé from Aunt Bessie is definitely a guest dessert for it calls for 14 pint whipping cream. But the Lemon-Lard Cake-Top Pudding will serve both purposes — guest and family meal.

Oven - barbecued Salisbury Steaks; Fresh Frozen Limas; Cauliflower; Hard Rolls; Hot Gingerbread with Ice Cream Topping; Coffee.

1 tablespoon gelatine, 1 cup cold water, ½ cup lemon-lard lemonade — grated rind and juice, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs — yolks and whites separated, ½ pint 32% cream, grated bitter chocolate.

In a large saucepan measure the water and gelatine and let it soak 5 minutes. Then add the grated lemon rind and juice, the sugar and egg yolks and cook stirring until it just comes to boiling. Remove from heat. Cool and chill, standing it in pan of ice water, if desired, until it begins to jell. Beat egg whites until barely stiff and fold in. Whip cream and fold in smoothly. Turn into cut glass bowl and sprinkle shaved bitter chocolate over the top. Chill about 3 of a one-ounce square. Chill until set.

3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated (we now have 3 tablespoons lard), 2 cups fresh lemon juice, spoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated fresh lemon rind, 1 cup milk, 1/3 cup toasted slivered almonds.

Cream butter and sugar together until fluffy. Add yolks and beat well. Add flour, salt, lemon juice and rind and mix in well. Remove beater and stir in milk. Fold in ¼ cup of almonds. Beat whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into buttered 9" x 5" loaf pan. Stand in pan of hot water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 40 minutes. Increase heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 10 minutes longer to brown. Remove from oven, sprinkle with remaining almonds and serve warm or chilled. Note: Once, when my secretary Elsie made the Lemon Cake-Top Pudding, she used only 2 eggs and the pudding was quite satisfactory.

MENU Magic from the TEST KITCHEN

Ice Cream Finales

Maytime is Ice Cream Festival time, when this popular year round dairy food treat comes into its own. What a choice of delicious flavors and what a multitude of shapes and sizes! Choosing from them is more than half the fun as letting your imagination run wild can result in a treat sent them in perfect form for spring.

For the Bridge Club

Wind up the season with a pretty Rainbow Ice Cream Pie. Line the bottom of a baked 9-inch pie shell with a pint of lime sherbet and freeze. Add a layer of vanilla ice cream, packing it down lightly and top with a generous of fresh strawberry ice cream. For best results return pie to the freezer for a short time after adding each layer so the ice cream won't melt. Served with a warm lemon sauce this pie is fresh as springtime.

For the Merry-Makers

Deception is fun—when it takes the form of an ice cream pizza. Bake your favorite pie crust in a 12-inch pizza pan using sufficient dough for an ordinary two crust pie. Cool thoroughly, then fill with 3 pints of vanilla ice cream, packing down lightly. Now to fashion the "pizza", drizzle thick strawberry or cherry sundae sauce over top of pie. Decorate with sliced maraschino cherries and desiccated coconut. Return to freezer until ready to serve.

Freezing Tip

Cheers for modern day freezers that make possible advance preparation of almost any ice cream dessert. But please, don't forget to wrap each creation in heavy duty foil before storing it! Ice cream, like any other food, will dry out if left open to the air in your freezer.

For Spur-of-the-Minute Fun:

Keep a polka dot party loaf in the freezer ready to bring out and garnish with whipped cream on a minute's notice. Just soften 3 pints of strawberry ice cream slightly, slither by working with a wooden spoon or beating with an electric mixer. Quickly stir in 1 cup miniature marshmallows and ¾ cup slivered almonds. Turn into a 9 by 5-inch loaf pan that's lined with chocolate wafers and freeze. Cover with fresh strawberry sauce, too!

Mother Seeks Citizenship For Her Son

Michael, who was born here, is registered as a Jamaican citizen.

Mrs. MacPherson, who does social work here, says she has no quarrel with this.

But she contends it should also be possible for him to be registered as a Canadian.

Children born of Canadian fathers and mothers of some other nationality have this dual-citizenship right, and Mrs. MacPherson said in an interview at the Kingston headquarters of the Jamaican Citizen's Bureau of Ancestry, where she works full-time,

"So my point is that there is discrimination against women in the Canadian immigration law. This is what I'm concerned about, that the Citizenship—Jamaican or Canadian—of the child."

After Michael was born, she asked Canadian authorities here if "I could register the child as a Canadian citizen as well as a Jamaican."

She said she was told by the authorities that "nationality in such cases is given by the descent of the father."

CLAIMS DISCRIMINATION

Mrs. MacPherson wrote the Canadian department of citizenship and immigration to say "this is unjust discrimination against Canadian women under the law."

She said the department replied confirming what she had been told earlier and saying the law was designed to avert dilated allegiance."

"I've never considered myself a suffragette but this whole business simply brought out the woman in me."

She has lived in Jamaica eight years and was married in 1963. She and her husband, Ripton MacPherson, plan to live permanently here.

"He's not upset over the lack of dual citizenship. It is I who feel strongly about this discrimination business."

Mrs. MacPherson did post-graduate studies in social work at the University of Toronto. She worked for a time with the Toronto Juvenile court's psychiatric clinic before coming to Jamaica. Her home town of Mitchell is near Stratford.

What does she plan doing next about the discrimination issue?

"I'll talk that over with my husband. On the basis of what he says, I'll decide on any further action."

Ann Landers

Is Friend, 250 Pounds, Too Fat for Wedding?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I will be getting married in a few weeks. My best friend is a wonderful girl and I want her to be my maid of honor but she weighs 250 pounds. Everyone to whom I've mentioned this says I should not ask her because she will ruin the wedding pictures and make a comedy out of the procession.

Is there any way I can explain the problem to her tactfully? Also, where to give a shower for me. If I let her give a shower am I obligated to have her as my maid of honor? — WALKING ON EGGS.

DEAR WALKING: There is no tactful ANN LANDERS way to tell a friend that you'd like her to be your maid of honor but she is too fat. In my book it would be plain and simple crudity if you did not ask her because of her size.

If you do decide against including this girl in the wedding party it would be rock-bottom treatment to allow her to give a shower.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman wrote recently to tell you how rough her husband has it in a family-owned business.

Here is my story, which reveals the other side. I could have gone into my father's business but it didn't interest me. I got a first class education and then went to work for a large corporation.

Six years later the hammer fell. The boss's son graduated from college and came into the business. He is seven years younger than I am and he is capable and pleasant. His starting salary is one-third more than my present salary although we do exactly the same work. You can bet your boots this boy will be my boss one day even though I was here first and am every bit as capable and pleasant as he.

You will probably say, "Be content or be gone." Well, I'm going just as soon as I get something lined up. But next time I'll pick an organization that has promotions are based on merit . . . not genes. I guess the point of this letter is to let you know that family-owned businesses can be twice as rough if you aren't part of the family. — SIDELINED.

DEAR WRONG: Blood is thicker than ability and pleasantness. Didn't you know?

If you owned a business and your son wanted to follow in your footsteps, he'd have a perfect right to turn the business over to an employee? Well, that's the way your boss feels. And who can blame him?

DEAR ANN: I'm a 30-year-old businessman, unmarried, and I need the advice of someone who can see fair.

Last week I was invited to an engagement party in another city. A relative is being married and several members of both families convened for the engagement party.

When I got to the reception I almost passed out. I knew the dame 30 years ago in Newark and she was the town tramp. This is not just idle gossip. My knowledge is firsthand.

Should I tell the bridegroom? Or her relatives? Or does he wants to tell his son what kind of family he's marrying into? Hurry your advice. There's not much time. — GARCIA.

DEAR GARCIA: Forget the message. I can't imagine anything less worthy of passing than a 30-year-old bunk of dirt. I trust your behavior has improved over the years. Let's assume here has, too.

Maltese Women Seeking Equality in Man's World

VALLETTA (Reuters) — Maltese women are on the threshold of equality with men, they are, they want to assert their place in society and their equality with men.

They argue they should have a bigger say in their country's affairs.

The National Council of Women, formed less than two years ago, has urged the government to find a place for women on government boards and committees. "Here is Malta's influence and advice are massively called for."

They consider, for example, that they could make a contribution to the work of boards dealing with such subjects as censorship, broadcasting and education.

While women are allowed to run for election to Malta's Parliament and have proved to be hard-working and astute politicians, no woman has ever yet been selected for any service. This fact is spotlighted from time to time when a trial by jury concerning a woman comes up for hearing.

Nor has Malta any woman magistrates.

Married women especially are relegated to the home.

Women employed by the government—and there are many—have to give up their jobs when they get married. Many private firms follow the same practice.

Their opinion is supported by a majority of husbands, particularly the middle - aged group who think an average Maltese housewife with three or four children has more than enough to do at home.

Even the women themselves seem to resent spending the rest of their lives looking after their husbands, children and home.

This includes the few women doctors or dentists who give up the practice of their profession as soon as they marry.

So deeply rooted is this idea that it always comes as a shock dealing with male subjects to find men in Canada or Australia to hear that they work in factories, leaving their children in kindergartens or nursery schools.

Women here receive only two-thirds the pay of a man on the same job and the disparity is likely to remain. A government committee, supported by a number of other unions, studied the question and decided things should remain as they are.

Industrialists in Malta use female labor just because of this. Some say they would have to close down if equal pay for equal work became the rule.

Foot Health Of Children Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — An orthopedic surgeon said Monday that if children sit on the floor to watch television, they should do so in a cross-leg fashion rather than with their legs bent back and spread out at the side.

Dr. Walter Bobechuks of Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children told a one-day seminar on children's foot health that children sitting on their haunches are "glued to the idiot box" may develop serious walking problems.

"Internal femoral tension (twisting of the thigh) is asserted when a child sits in this position" and it can lead to a painful, sometimes permanent, condition of toeing - in when walking, Dr. Bobechuko said.

He also explained that manipulation of a baby's feet to make sures it is sleeping with its legs straight out instead of with its feet curled up can help prevent throwing the feet out of alignment.

"But mothers aren't usually concerned about a baby's feet. They admire his downy hair and the chubby cheeks but seldom look at the soles of the feet. A baby's foot should make a straight line along the outside."

The curved-in foot can be straightened with plaster cast which are removed every two weeks, he said.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

IVANHOE — St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. met at the home of the president, Mrs. Stanley Shaw, on Wednesday evening.

The Easter Worship Service theme in the "Gist Trilogy" was followed. A solo was sung by Mrs. A. Hassall and a reading was given by Mrs. Harry Thompson.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Ross Mathews, Roslin, presented Mrs. Mary Montgomery, Roslin, Mrs. Violet Thompson, Fuller and Mrs. Grace Lyons, who told from personal experience of God's goodness shown to them.

Mrs. Manthorpe stressed the need for constant and effective witness in our homes, community and churches.

She said women must be informed, held in nothing worse than ignorant voters. Citizens must uphold truth and righteousness and not be content to let some one else do the fighting for them.

Mrs. John Wallace, president of Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S. gave a report of a synodical meeting held in Belleville.

The spring rally to be held in St. Mary's, Madoc, on May 25 was announced.

Teen-agers Need Sister More Than a Mother Says Mother of Year

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — "Love thy teen-age" is the theme of Mother of this year's Canadian Mother of the Year, Mrs. Jeanne-Paule Bienvenue, Ancien Ministre, Quebec.

"Teen-agers need a sister more than a mother," she said in an interview Monday after arriving in the capital for a week of visiting and official engagements.

"You have to remember what it is like, at that age, to think 'my mother is against me and my father doesn't understand me.' They need much love and understanding."

Her philosophy is backed up by a lot of practical research.

Mrs. Beaulieu, a plump pretty woman, brown - haired and brown-eyed and looking younger than her 52 years, has cared for her children on a foster-parent basis. Three English - speaking students have stayed with her while they learned French as well, she has three sons of her own.

HUSBAND KEEPS STORE

Her husband, Gerard, is a storekeeper in Riviere - Madeleine, a large community of families. They met when he came to a concert at the school where she taught 36 children.

She's still teaching. It was her Grade 9 night-school class that nominated her Mother of the year.

"They are from 14 to 55 years old. I don't think I'm an intellectual, but perhaps I can teach them that a young person soon just out of school, because I've had some experience with life."

She loves to read, and her personal book collection now fills a bookcase, but it's not the room table that seats 24 for dinner or homework.

"I've had work there herself sometimes, on business from the local credit union, of which she is president, or reports of the Canadian Welfare Council which she is a member.

SPEAKS ONLY FRENCH

Mrs. Beaulieu speaks only French, but is actively trying to promote better French-English relations.

"Biculturalism can't help but be of benefit, but I don't see it achieved without effort and determination on the part of Canadians."

While in Ottawa she'll meet the rest of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, as well as political leaders and their wives and Mme. Vanier, wife of the governor-general.

Absent the award itself, the result of a national contest sponsored by a Swiss' association and judged by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, cabinet ministers' wives and a woman senator, she said:

"When they told me, I was so shocked I had to go and sit down. That day I gave away something to everyone who came into the store."

Salvation Army Band Presents Weekend of Music

NAPANEE—The Red Shield Campaign in Lennox and Addington was introduced in Napanee by a weekend of exceptionally fine band music, with the Scarborough Citadel Band giving pleasure to a large number of people.

The band was given a civic welcome at the town hall on its arrival by chartered bus, with Mayor A. Lorne Smart representing the town, Warden Gordon Ellis the county and Harry Moore the Red Shield campaign workers. Mr. Moore is the chairman of the campaign.

A short parade took the 36 bandsmen and their leader to the Prince Charles School, where they prepared for the concert that evening.

A civic dinner in the Citadel preceded the concert. The 72 who enjoyed the dinner, prepared and served by the Home League, included: the band members, A. Douglas Aikenhead, M.P.; Norman Whitney, M.P.P.; Warden Plotz; Mayor Smart; most of the members of the council; and Mr. Moore. Earl Morrison and Herb Knuth, leaders in the Red Shield Campaign. Each man was accompanied by his wife. Salvation Army leaders present included Major A. Rideout of the territorial division of Toronto, special speaker for the week-end, with Mrs. Rideout; and Brigadier W. Hawkes of Belleville, divisional commander, with Mrs. Hawkes.

Bandmaster is Dr. William Lorimer. Joyce McLelland of Scarborough was soloist, and Miss Carol and Sharon Dudgeon of Selby also gave musical numbers.

Music lovers, numbering over 200, attended the Saturday evening concert. The program was varied, including sacred and classical music, marches, and light songs.

The patients in the County Hospitals enjoyed a brief concert; a well-attended Holiness meeting was held in the Clifford Memorial Building at 11 a.m., and a Festival of Praise in the same place at three.

A short open air meeting on the Market Square was followed by a two-hour community service in Trinity United Church which was almost completely filled for the occasion. The full choir assisted. Grace Church had withdrawn its service so that its members might attend.

A social hour in the church banquet hall was attended by the Red Shield campaign leaders and workers, some of the civic officials and government leaders, and many well-wishers from both churches.

Colborne Masons Dedicate Old Town Hall as Temple

BRIGHTON — Colborne Masonic Lodge AF and AM, Branch 91, officially dedicated its Masonic Temple Friday night. Attending the ceremony and dinner, which preceded the dedication and regular meeting of the lodge were senior lodge officers from Belleville and Port Hope, former members of the Colborne Lodge who returned for the occasion. Two Masons were present who have been members of the order for 56 years, since the branch's former lodge rooms across the street were officially opened. They were George Little of R. R. 1, Brighton who marked his 90th birthday Sunday and W. Mutton of Shiloh, 85. Another senior member present was Andrew Wolfrain of Castleton.

At the dinner, preceding the dedication ceremony and the first lodge meeting which followed was Jack Pomeroy, now Master of a Masonic lodge in West Germany, where he is stationed with the RCAF. He returned Friday on two weeks' leave which he's spending with his father in his home community of Castleton.

Among those from out-of-town points present who were former members of the Colborne Lodge were Bill Gummer of Kingston and John Purdy of Milton.

Worshipful Master James Cochrane of the Colborne branch of the lodge, presided at the dinner in the Colborne Legion Hall, prior to the dedication ceremony. He introduced senior lodge officers who included: District Deputy Grand Master Arthur M. Hewitt from Belleville and Rt. Wor. Bro. William Rowden of Port Hope, District deputy Grand Master for the district in which Colborne is included.

Donald Gunn of Toronto, Deputy Grand Master for Ontario was guest speaker at the dinner. He spoke on various aspects of Masonry and quoted passages from the order's book on the constitution. He also presided at the official dedication of the Masonic Temple, following the dinner. Members assembled in the downstairs banquet room and proceeded to the lodge room upstairs where the first regular meeting was held, following the dedication by the Deputy Grand Master for Ontario.

The building, formerly Colborne Town Hall, has been completely renovated.

Frank Hamilton, worshipful master of Brighton Lodge AF and AM branch 29 was among lodge officers and members from other area lodges who attended the events.

Among the traditional symbols and lodge furnishings installed in the new Temple that were in the former lodge rooms are two cylindrical pillars, hand crafted by a Colborne master carpenter, Charles Chapin, commissioned in craft them for the lodge more than a half century ago as a memorial gift to the lodge and three valuable paintings, depicting aspects of ritual associated with degrees of the Order, painted several decades ago by a local artist.

tics that cannot be excused in any circumstances." It was a shocking situation when a government used the RCMP as "a private eye over the lives, purposes and reputations" of MPs.

Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle) directed specific appeals at the members of all parties to support the Conservative motion and in effect, overthrow the government.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said New Democrat members "shall be voting for the amendment."

The central questions in the Munsinger political booby now under way are charges by Justice Minister Leslie Cardin that Gerda Munsinger once was a spy for the Russians, that she was romantically linked with two or more former Conservative cabinet ministers and that Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, as prime minister, mishandled the case.

The ruling by Speaker Lamoureux was that testimony by Commissioner McClellan as to just how the RCMP information on Mrs. Munsinger came before the government did not constitute one of the central issues of this inquiry, but a side issue legitimately open for discussion in the House.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) asked Mr. Martin whether he could comment on a rumor that Commissioner McClellan brought forth the file information on Mrs. Munsinger on a verbal basis."

He also sought comment on another rumor that the inquiry into the case of George Victor Spencer was "granted despite the objections of the RCMP" and the file disclosure was retaliation by the force.

"I don't believe it," replied Mr. Martin.

Minor Accidents Occur in Area

NAPANEE — On Sunday a number of minor accidents occurred in the Napanee area, and two more serious ones.

Brian Hannah of Tamworth, and Aubrey Sprouls of Enterprise received extensive injuries in a one-car accident a mile east of Enterprise. Both were removed to the Kingston General Hospital by Hannah's ambulance. Damage to the car was approximately $400. O.P.P. constables are investigating.

Jean Godfrey was admitted to the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital when she was injured in an accident in a car driven by her brother, Leo Lester Godfrey. Both are from Newburgh. The 1950 halfton truck received approximately $110 damage. The accident occurred three miles east of Napanee on County Road number one.

100 Victims Of Volcano Recovered

JAKARTA (AP)—The bodies of 100 victims of Moukut Kelut volcano have been recovered and the fate of several hundred villagers is not known, press reports from east Java said today.

In the neighboring Lesser Sunda Islands, sudden floods caused by heavy rains killed 32 persons, drove 220 from their homes and destroyed hundreds of acres of rice fields.

Mount Kelut erupted a week ago, spilling lava down its 5,679-foot slopes toward several major towns. Reports reaching Jakarta said one village near the rim of the crater and crops within a five-mile radius were destroyed.

The official news agency Antara said the lava approached the northeast edge of Blitar, a major trading centre.

Thirty - five persons were trapped for more than 12 hours on top of a rock when searing lava surrounded them, Antara said.

Blast Injures Eleven Persons

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask. (CP) — An explosion shooting purplish blue flame 12 feet in the air shattered a downtown furniture and cleaning plant Monday. Eleven persons were injured, two seriously.

Lloydminster, a city of 6,500, straddles the Saskatchewan-Alberta border 140 miles east of Edmonton.

The explosion reduced the dry cleaning building to rubble, blew out windows and cracked walls in a service station and a supermarket.

Indonesia's Anger Toward Malaysia Less Hostile Since Sukarno Weakened

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Indonesia's anger toward the Malaysian Federation has become less hostile since the weakening of President Sukarno's authority in the former Dutch territory.

The latest indication of a more tolerant attitude by Indonesia in its relations with the young Commonwealth nation came Monday when Indonesia's military strongman, Lt.-Gen. Suharto, stated his government has no territorial ambitions in the Malaysian region.

Suharto, who appears virtually to have assumed the top post in the government despite Sukarno's claim that he still is boss, reinforced his apparent peaceful posture by adding that he hopes to see the Indonesian-Malaysian problem settled—"the sooner the better."

Indonesia's shift in attitude should bring a certain amount of relief to Malaysia—consisting of Malaya, Sabah and Sarawak, and with less than one-tenth the population of Indonesia, a country of more than 100,000,000.

Under Sukarno's leadership Indonesia repeatedly pledged to crush the federation on grounds it was established in September, 1963, as a neo-colonial tool of British imperialism in Southeast Asia.

Infiltration of guerrillas from Indonesia into Malaysia has forced Britain to keep more than 50,000 troops in the federation.

Suharto's peaceful overtures, however, did not indicate a complete shift in attitude toward Malaysia. Suharto blasted the British military presence in the federation for the sporadic guerrilla fighting in the last three years.

He described Britain's retention of bases in Singapore—which last year broke away from the federation—as a threat to Indonesia but said he favored the granting unconditional recognition to Singapore nevertheless.

Neither The Philippines nor Indonesia have diplomatic relations with Malaysia—The Philippines because of a territorial dispute and Indonesia because of opposition to the formation of the federation.

But Ramos emphasized Philippine recognition of Malaysia is in sight and may even take place before the meeting of the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asia in Bangkok in July, and Malik stated Indonesia wants to drop opposition to its confirmation stand against the federation.

Indonesia has been faced with internal political troubles since the unsuccessful Communist-inspired coup last fall and this may be one of the reasons for a decision by Suharto and his supporters to relax the pressure against Malaysia. A less belligerent attitude would help attract foreign economic aid.

Only time will tell whether it is Indonesia's honest desire to preserve peace that is causing her to take a milder line toward Malaysia—or whether this is the result of internal political and economic pressures.

Dispute Over Film Reaches Top Echelon

LONDON (AP) — A controversy has developed in Britain over whether an hour-long documentary on bullfighting should be shown on television.

Matador, filmed in Spain, is described as "technically brilliant and acknowledged as "reasonably gory."

The dispute over the film has reached the top echelon of the publicity - owned BBC. Several producers have threatened to resign if it is suppressed.

The BBC board of governors has reviewed the film twice, Chairman Lord Normanbrook says "no final decision has been made."

Some scenes, including one showing a dying bull, were cut.

65 Officers Toronto Police Force Resign

In the last four months, about 90 officers have quit or are in the process of resigning from the 2,900-man force. Resignations previously averaged about 100 a year, almost all constables.

This year the resignations have included Deputy Chief Joseph Thurston, two inspectors, a sergeant of detectives and at least eight detectives.

Constable Brown said many officers leave the force for jobs that pay less. They were dissatisfied with hours, pay, the strictine police regulations and the feeling the public does not co-operate with the police.

He said other major Canadian cities and the RCMP are also losing officers for these reasons.

Polish Govt. Shifts Tactics In Struggle With R.C. Church

By GENE KRAMER

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish government has shifted tactics in its struggle with the Roman Catholic Church.

There is evidence that Wladyslaw Gomulka's Communist regime may feel it went too far with its bitter attacks on Polish bishops, the staging of government rallies in close proximity to religious celebrations and the closing of Polish borders to foreign pilgrims.

Gomulka himself eased up on the church by omitting expected criticism of the bishops from his May Day speech. He acknowledged that "the 1,000th anniversary of the Polish State is closely connected with the re-entry of Christianity into the Polish land."

In recent days, the government has started to show concern in the Polish image abroad on the question of religious freedom.

A handful of Western correspondents were given Polish entry visas at short notice to visit minute to cover today's main celebration at Czestochowa of the 1,000th anniversary of Christianity. They occurred after refusal of visas to numerous Western correspondents and broadcasters who asked months ago.

PUBLISHES ITS CASE

The government press office has issued its first fact sheet on the position of the Catholic Church in Poland. It seeks to demonstrate that the church has prospered under Communist rule, saying the number of dioceses, parishes, bishops and clergy have sharply increased since 1937 and concluding that "the church, in the sphere of religion, enjoys all the necessary freedoms and liberties."

The rival, simultaneous celebrations staged April 16-17 at Poznan and Golenno, west-central Poland, now are regarded as a turning point in the church-state struggle. The government, demanding compulsory attendance, drew larger crowds, but the church was the generally acknowledged winner in terms of enthusiasm and increased prestige.

Gomulka said at Poznan that foreign church dignitaries, including Pope Paul, were not being allowed to enter Poland for the Church millenium because the invitations had not been cleared with the government and it would imply approval of a church policy with anti-Soviet overtones.

Many a Pole has questioned whether Gomulka helped his cause by declaring publicly that the government banned a visit from this predominantly Catholic country, especially when the Vatican declared a week later that the pontiff had wanted to come.

Some feel the regime has over-reacted to the November, 1965, Polish bishops' controversial letter of invitation to the German bishops.

News of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's unpublicized, papal audience last week confirmed this. One typical comment was: "As a Pole, I am ashamed and horrified at the blindness of our authorities. Certainly the Russians have less reason than we to make contact with the Pope."

Canadian Capital Said Riding On Latest Private Radio Ship

LONDON (CP)—Some $1,000,000 in Canadian capital is reported riding on the 480-ton Olga Patricia, latest pirate radio ship preparing to go into action in the battle for British listeners.

Described as the most powerful of all invaders, the Panamanian-registered liberty ship—backed by investors from Britain, Canada and the United States—is being converted to anchor about four miles offshore near Harwich, about 75 miles northeast of London.

Equipped with transmitters that can reach all Britain and Western Europe, the project will operate two seaborne radio stations, one geared to the younger pop enthusiasts and the other ing the more mature.

Mystery surrounds the new venture, latest of more than a half-dozen pirate ship stations in Britain's commercial radio market. Investment in the Olga Patricia project is estimated by advertising and press agents at more than $3,000,000 with backers in Britain, Canada and the U.S. each paying one-third.

Only two of the backers have been identified—Jack Nixon, 30, company chairman, and William Vick, 40, managing director. Both are Texans, heading a new firm known as Peir-Vick Ltd. Canadian capital is reported to have come not from a consortium or group. All told, some 19 persons may be involved in the project.

BBC FURIOUS

The Olga Patricia, whose name may be changed to Radio Paris, is likely to go into action in a few days. The BBC, the only radio network in Britain and which takes no advertising, is furious over the pirates who remain outside the three-mile territorial limits. But the government has stated that, for now, it can do nothing.

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, postmaster-general, is preparing legislation to outlaw transactions with the pirates and thereby cut off their supplies and revenues but this preparation and parliamentary passage may take another year.

"We are doing nothing illegal," says Nixon, "but we shall adjust our operations to comply with any legislation introduced by the government."

One station on the new pirate ship will be known as Swinging Radio England which will pour out pop music 24 hours a day. The other will be Britain Radio sending out non-stop light music. Both hope to load their programs heavily with revenue-making commercials.

Even more venturesome is the Swedish ship Cheetah II which is experimenting with television transmission from the British Channel. This service would compete with the inland BBC and commercial television, is described as likely to begin this month.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled in order a Conservative motion criticizing government tactics in having the RCMP provide information . . . as to the "past conduct" of MPs.

The motion was based on RCMP Commissioner G. B. McClellan's testimony last week that he gave the Manitoba MP's file to Prime Minister Pearson after Mr. Pearson asked for reports having to do with any wrongdoing or anything of a scandalous nature involving MPs over the last 10 years.

External Affairs Minister Martin asked MPs to hear Mr. Pearson's statement on the matter before making a decision.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said medical treatment Keate will have wide terms of reference into the dispute over CBC television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

He could look into the matter of reinstatement of producers Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre, whose contracts are believed to have run out.

He also asked for time to investigate a newspaper report that a Seven Days crew filmed a pill - popping girl and filmed her in bed with two youths.

The CBC announced it has asked the RCMP to conduct a full inquiry into the report.

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EDT to continue the Munsinger debate. The Senate meets at 8 p.m.

Budget Day Will Be Tough For Britons

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons stood by for a budget day barrage of tough talk and tax changes adding up to one thing—less money to spend.

Today's spring budget for 1966 —already labelled "make or break" year for Britain's economy by Prime Minister Wilson —was expected to bring higher taxes and tighter curbs on credit.

James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, will unfold in the House of Commons the Labor government's plans to keep the country's $2,800,000,000 ($2,720,000,000) overseas debts by 1970.

His speech was to map out a program to wipe out the crucial balance of payments deficit by the end of the year and lay the foundation for big surpluses in the years ahead.

JAM STORES

Stores throughout Britain were jammed with shoppers Monday and Tuesday in a "beat-the-budget" spending spree. Biggest demands were for non-perishable foods that might be hit by higher sales taxes.

Car dealers reported sales up by 40,000 as buyers rushed to beat anticipated restrictions.

Drivers lined up at filling stations to beat the increase anticipated in the already high gasoline tax. Liquor stores reported steady sales of whisky, another favorite tax target.

Tobacconists reported business as usual. Smokers apparently thought the current price of 82 cents a pack—80 per cent of it tax—unlikely to go up.

Callaghan already had announced plans to impose a new tax on all forms of betting—a major industry in Britain—and to use the proceeds to finance cheaper mortgages.

Man in News
CBC and Producers Agree On Mediator in Dispute

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the few things the CBC and its dissident producers have been able to agree upon is the selection of Stuart Keate as the man to seek a solution to their differences.

Controversy has marked the career of the boyish, greying publisher of the Vancouver Sun —but he has been involved in making it more often than mediating it.

Born in Vancouver 52 years ago. Began newspaper work in 1933 as a 20-cents-an-inch space writer. Graduate of the University of British Columbia. Got writer for the Vancouver Province, later Toronto Star reporter before moving back to The Province as a feature writer. He spent three years in the navy, rising to lieutenant-commander and worked for Time magazine in New York and Montreal. He became publisher of the Victoria Times before moving to The Sun in similar capacity. He has been president of The Canadian Press and of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association and was a founder of the Canadian committee of the International Press Institute, an organization of journalists in 30 countries which attempts to promote better understanding among non-Communist peoples.

INFORMAL APPROACH

For the promotion of better understanding between the CBC and the producers, Mr. Keate's approach will be informal. He does not plan to hold hearings or call witnesses, but will read files and briefs and hold discussions in his Ottawa hotel suite.

His report will go to the prime minister.

Why was the pipe-smoking publisher, who operates more than 2,000 miles from the seat of the controversy, chosen for the job?

In his words:

"As a person who came up as a writer, I have some knowledge of the creative process and, as a newspaper executive, I have some knowledge of management. I guess this provides some balance and made me acceptable to both sides."

Mr. Keate says he has watched 30 to 40 per cent of the This Hour Has Seven Days programs, the touchstone of the controversy.

"I think it's a very lively and provocative show. It's unique in that there's never been a show quite like it."

However, he believes the show sometimes "misses all the good" and stresses that while Seven Days is the focal point, producer-CBC differences appear to go deeper.

As his paper comments editorially:

"The present clash . . . obscures a much wider issue of organization policy. . . ."

RAPPED MEDICAL MEN

Mr. Keate's personal clashes have included battles with:

—The medical profession—for underestimating the vast and compelling" interest of the public in the work of doctors. Arnie Myers, Sun medical writer, won a National Newspaper Award for a 1965 series on water pollution.

—The courts—for what he called the tendency of jurists to control the flow of courtroom news that may be used in the press.

—The press—for being timid and complacent. "The real job of a newspaper is to hold up the mirror of life and the federal or provincial level.

Mr. Keate's 1959 run-in with premier W. A. C. Bennett and his Social Credit administration led to a charge by the British Columbia premier that Mr. Keate was trying to become leader of the Liberal party.

He took on the Liberals on a federal scale when former justice minister Guy Favreau suggested the government might delay publication of the names of accused persons until after conviction.

Said Mr. Keate:

"The press of Canada is becoming increasingly concerned that there's a net government thickening with its free functioning."

CALLED NDP REACTIONARY

The New Democratic Party he has called the most reactionary party in Canada.

Progressive Conservative candidates and others walked out on him in 1963 when he said during a speech to the Board of Trade luncheon in Vancouver that Prime Minister Diefenbaker's hesitation in backing United States action in the Cuban crisis made him feel "ashamed of being a Canadian."

Mr. Keate feels himself to be essentially a reporter and a reporter's job is "to expose the facts and lay them open to public scrutiny, secure in the knowledge that truth has never yet lost an argument."

Personally, he is quick-witted but quiet—a personality he does not advocate for his newspaper.

It is the job of the newspaper to make itself obstreperous, to promote ferment and change, to challenge seemingly orthodox theories and debate the merits of popular opinions."

It is a wry wit. He once told a group of budget - conscious newspaper executives:

"I suspect that we have been spending too much time sharpening our pencils and not enough sharpening our papers."

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Down through the ages, in fact since 404 BC when the Greeks athletes-wise were the mightiest nation extant, the world's top athletic stars have been known by the images they created.

Fans of his heyday saw Dempsey as a ruthless killer, cutting down foemen with the savage ferocity of his attack. Joe Louis was the stalking tiger of the ring, inexorably reaching for the kill.

The image of the mighty Babe Ruth has never been questioned. The big lovable swashbuckling slugger created it not only through the power of his blastpoop but through his every day people appealing kids and his own decision to live as he saw it.

The legend of Ruth was marked by discrimination after Roger Maris broke the Babe's home run record of sixty. The Babe hit his sixty in a 154-schedule. Maris, a necessity idol-wise, in the eyes of fans, broke the record the first year of the 162-game schedule. Ford Frick the baseball commissioner was impressed by Ruth's record falling in the new schedule. He insulted Maris by putting an asterisk alongside the figures in the guidebooks.

Record or no record, the mighty Babe is still the hero of his day and era. Maris an unknown did little to shake the image of George Herman Ruth. But his 61 home run record was a marvelous feat performed under extreme pressure.

In hockey it is different. Richard received no asterisk when he scored his "50" because he played 23 more games than Joe Malone took scored 44 goals in 23 games. The feats of Richard and Malone will endure on their merits.

Bobby Hull will certainly never require any such cheap gimmicks as an asterisk. He is unique for all time. His power and speed are explosive. His body is perfection. He accepts all challenges, rises to occasions. He approaches the durability and matchless stamina of Gordie Howe, this in itself a remarkable facet among superior athletes.

Richard's image pictures a Dempsey of the ice lanes. He could turn a losing game into victory with one frantical onslaught. He was vindictive in retaliation. He was the first and greatest of the streaking blue-line-to-the-net scorers. He shot hard, quickly and accurately. He could score from nowhere even when the pressure was on.

Hull is cut from a different cloth. He is an end-to-end firing missile. Tireless and efficient he deploys himself well and can score from centre ice or make a short goal with the swiftness of a striking snake.

He takes physical abuse with surprising equanimity. He won a Lady Byng Trophy award for high sportsmanship as well as ability which for so many of his rank had done before.

Hull has a many-faceted image. Apart from his brilliance as the "Golden Jet", most of the facets have been created by Marne Bassett. His tremendous popularity off the ice is in no small part due to his ability to respond to contact with human beings.

Born with a warm personality Bobby has had no trouble developing his approach to people. I have heard him speak to gatherings several times and through simple but well-delivered words his personality reaches out across the hall to the darkest corners.

He is not controversial, partly because he is unrivalled and partly because his image is unassailable.

Those who have not met him nor heard him speak are due for a warm surprise at the testimonial dinner being given him here on May 13th by the Lions Club and the Belleville Shrine Club. And the ladies are just as welcome as the gentlemen. It is definitely not a stag party.

The City and Quinte district as a whole will do honor to an exceptional athlete, a native of Point Anne, an adopted son of Prince Edward county and the toast of this "suburb."

His activities on and off the ice have made him an international incident. He is as popular south of the border as up here and has been honored by American organizations on several occasions.

Hull will only be honored at other places, but the Island shrine dinner is set because it thrusts another facet of the Hull image on the public screen. The proceeds will go to the retarded and crippled children. That is the way Bobby would like it.

Crozier Doubtful ★★★★★ Abel Confident

Odds Favor Habs For Game, Series

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP)—With the possibility that Detroit Red Wings' starry netminder Roger Crozier may be sidelined for at least tonight's game, oddsmakers have established Montreal Canadiens as heavy favorites to take the fifth contest and the best-of-seven Stanley Cup series.

Crozier was chosen for the No. 1 all-star team in the 1964-65 season and won the Calder Memorial Trophy as the league's top rookie in the same year.

"If Roger's not okay by game time, we'll go with Bassen," Abel said. George Gardner from Detroit's farm club in the American League at Pittsburgh decision to Montreal Thursday night in Detroit, also were on the losing end Sunday. Canadiens beat Hank Bassen, Crozier's replacement, for two goals to win 3-1.

The two teams are even in the series, both winning twice away from home.

Before the final round started, Canadiens were 13-to-5 favorites to take the upset and the same 5-to-2 choice for the series.

SHIFTED TO WINGS

However, after the Wings came into the Forum and beat the defending champions by 3-2 and 5-3 scores, the odds shifted and Detroit was shown as a 14-to-5 choice to win the Cup.

Detroit's club arrived here late Monday for tonight's 8 p.m. EDT meeting and while Crozier travelled with the club, manager-coach Sid Abel did not appear overly optimistic about Bracebridge, Ont., native will see action.

ROGER WANTS TO PLAY

"Crozier's here and he wants to play," Abel said. "But we won't know until near game time whether or not he'll be fit to play.

"He took treatment for the leg today, but it's still stiff and he'll get further treatments here."

TORONTO (CP)—Coach Bob Shaw of Toronto Argonauts said Monday night he had discussions with linemen Earl Faison and Ernie Ladd of the American Football League.

Shaw said the two had a thorough discussion with him and general manager Jake Hayman, but no decision was reached.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays continues his quest for the National League home run record tonight facing San Francisco Giants' slugger has hit just 12 homers off the Dodger right-hander and only one each year the past five seasons.

Mays aims for a "lucky 13th" tonight and 512 career total as the teams open a three-game series here.

He equalled Mel Ott's career record of 511 homers in Houston April 24.

Since then, Mays has had only two hits in 18 times at bat, suffering also an attack of the flu, a bruised hand and a bruised knee.

Mays' assault on the record takes some of the drama out of the first National League game that was terrific and apart from losing Roger you can't feel too bad about it when the score could have been reversed."

Abel said veteran defenceman Bill Gadsby's sore right elbow is "much better." Gadsby has been hampered by a broken blood vessel in the joint since the final games of the season with Chicago Black Hawks in which he picked up the injury stopping a shot with his head here.

"I'll dress an extra forward and likely an extra defenceman," Abel said, confirming that defenceman Bob Wall will play. However, he said that forward Murray Hall, up from Pittsburgh for the last game, did not make the trip to Montreal.

Montreal coach Toe Blake had 20 of his players skate Monday morning after their arrival from Detroit and prior to the team's departure for the Laurentian mountain retreat they frequent between games.

Back — top goaltender Charlie Hodge, defencemen Jacques Laperriere and Jean-Guy Talbot, centres Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom joined wingers Claude Larose, Leon Rochefort and Dave Balon for an hour on the ice. Rochefort replaced Larose in the third and fourth games and Blake said he will stick with the same lineup that brought him two wins.

Blake said his club had better nice to the Wings on their two previous playoff visits to the Forum, but the time has come "to change all that."

The sixth game in the series is scheduled for Detroit at 8 p.m. Thursday, with the seventh, if necessary, here Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Team president Jim Lomore announced Monday that St. Catharines had withdrawn from the Ontario Lacrosse Association's Senior A league.

"The executive wanted to carry on, but we are simply unable to sign enough players of senior calibre to warrant fielding a team," he said.

With the exception of 1958 and 1959 when the team moved to Welland, St. Catharines has had a senior entry continuously since 1933, winning the Ontario championship 11 times and the Canadian championship on five occasions.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue. A renowned research institute has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured inflamed tissue. In the after case, with no gravity relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Generals' Image Puzzles Guidolin

Centred On Orr

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Armand (Bep) Guidolin ushers the Oshawa Generals into the Memorial Cup final against Edmonton Oil Kings Wednesday night, still uncertain he'll be able to convince the public his team is a power to be feared.

"All through our playoffs so far I've worried about the same question: 'Will we be able to beat the opposition?'" said Guidolin, the club's coach. He's said it so often he's got it down pat. RIGHT.

CAN THEY BEAT US?

"It isn't a question of whether we can beat Edmonton," the coach replied. "It's a question of whether they can beat us."

The second game of the final will be played Thursday with the third game Sunday and the fourth next Wednesday. Other games, if any, are to be played as scheduled for May 16-15-17.

Guidolin's perplexity with his team's image may be due to the fact Oshawa hasn't qualified for a Memorial Cup final in 22 years. Another factor is that much of the team's image is centred on Bobby Orr, the defenceman like Orr, but more particularly to the team's brilliant goalie, Ivan Tourigny.

The Generals eliminated their league rivals, St. Catharines Black Hawks, Montreal Junior Canadiens and Kitchener Rangers in winning the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A championship. Then, they brushed aside Key Bay Trappers and Shawinigan Bruins to take the Eastern Canada title.

ORR DOMINATES

"We have a defensive and offensive team," said Guidolin. "By that, I mean that we can get a two or three-goal lead, and then go into a sort of semi-defensive shell, but with some offensive too."

He admits Oil Kings are a big team, but says that I hear they're pretty strong."

"They got a big guy (defenceman Al Hamilton) who does all their scoring. But we have a big guy (Orr) too, and he's the greatest."

Guidolin expects the opener Wednesday will be a high-scoring affair. "Both teams can score, but after that he expects his team to win—quickly.

"After all, I figure we play in the best league in Canada! Edmonton? They haven't had any competition at all—yet."

The Oil Kings, without a penny for circuit of their own, played in the Alberta Senior League this season against teams like Drumheller Miners which have qualified for the senior Allan Cup finals.

Red Wings Win Over Mud Hens

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rochester Red Wings survived a three-run fifth inning and came back to beat Toledo Mud Hens 6-4 in International League baseball Monday night.

Mike Hegan opened the game for Toledo with a home run, but the Wings got that one back and added another. Larry Haney hit his third home run of the season with a man on in the second.

In the fifth, five walks and a single gave the Mud Hens three runs.

Rochester made it 4-3 with a single — double combination in the sixth and drove starter-loser Stan Bahnsen to the showers with three hits in the seventh.

Tony Perzychyn relieved and might have stopped the Red Wings with one run but for his own error, which allowed the winning tally to score.

Rochester added a run in the eighth and Bobby Scott, third of four Wings' pitchers, won his third game.

The only other scheduled game, Buffalo at Richmond Braves, was rained out.

WINS SERIES

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Bob Mackecher of Houston, Tex., won the Dragon class spring yachting series Monday by finishing sixth in the last race. He placed third, second and sixth in three races for 31 points. Robert Townsend of the Royal-St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Montreal was second with 40 points on placings of fourth, sixth and second.

Imlach Pokes Self In Eye

TORONTO (CP)—A freak accident during a recent trip to the West Coast has kept Punch Imlach, coach and general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, from attending any of the Stanley Cup hockey games between Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

Imlach was waiting to board a plane in San Francisco when a strong wind lifted his fedora. He grabbed for it and accidentally poked himself in the right eye with his finger.

"We had to take him to the hospital in Portland where they treated the eye and put a patch over it," said King Clancy, Imlach's assistant.

Clancy says Imlach has had further treatment since and the injury has all but cleared up.

Award Rankles Generals

OSHAWA (CP)—The awarding of the Albert (Tod) Sloan Memorial Trophy to Andre Lacroix of Peterborough Petes drew unfavorable comment Monday from officials of Oshawa Generals.

The trophy is awarded annually to the most valuable player in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

The Oshawa team executive felt it should have gone to all-star defenceman Bobby Orr of the Generals.

"It has been confirmed that the Oshawa press was not given a vote," said Wes Blair, Oshawa general manager.

The award is decided by votes of hockey writers in the nine cities represented in the circuit.

In Toronto, Jim Vipond, sports editor of The Globe and Mail which conducts the balloting, said the sports department of the Oshawa Times was mailed a ballot and did not reply.

Vipond said that even if Oshawa had cast its ballot in favor of Orr, Lacroix still would have won.

"I will never attach any importance to the award again," Blair said. "Every year they give it to the top scorer. That takes little imagination on the part of the voters."

Lacroix, who won the scoring title with 40 goals and 80 assists, joined George Armstrong, now of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, as the only players to win the trophy twice.

"There is no question that Orr is more valuable to his club than any other player," said Blair.

But Orr felt the decision was a good one.

"They made a good choice," said the 18-year-old defence star. "Without Lacroix, the Petes would have finished at least two positions lower."

Peterborough finished the schedule in first place and was eliminated by Toronto Marlboros in the first round of the playoffs. Generals finished fourth, but have won their way to the Memorial Cup final.

Kentucky Derby

What's In A Name?-Sentiment

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—As Kentucky Derby eligibles prepared for the $15,000 - added Derby Trial mile today, the boys on the backstretch at Churchill Downs turned to the subject of naming horses.

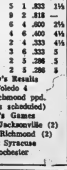
Drawing particular attention were Abe's Hope, Kauai King, Suspension and Amberoid, all going in the Derby Saturday and each with a story behind his name.

Abe's Hope, 3-to-2 choice to win the 82nd running of the 1¼-mile classic for three-year-olds, was named for his 71-year-old Hungarian groom, Vele Bojinoff, nicknamed Abe.

As a yearling, the groom predicted the horse would win the Kentucky Derby. So the filly-nois-bred son of Better See was named Abe's Hope. Bojinoff never got a chance to see if his prophecy would come true. He died last year of cancer.

Kauai King the 7-to-2 second choice, came by his name through his ancestry and a trip that owner Michael Ford and his family made to the island of Kauai in the Hawaiian group. Kauai King was sired by Native Dancer, whose father was Polynesian.

Amberoid, the 5-to-1 third choice, can thank his sire, Count Amber, for his name. Trainer Lucien Laurin, looking at the Reginald Webster colt, remarked, "He sure looks like his sire." Hence, Amber, plus the Latin "oid," which means like.



STARTS COMEBACK

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP)—Billy Walker, the British heavyweight who was a top fast year, started a comeback Monday night by knocking out Scott Adams of Phoenix, Ariz., in the third round of a 10-rounder.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER
TILT SHOULDERS TO PUT SWING ON PROPER PLANE
Often we hear advice that golfers should "turn" their shoulders, or their hips. This is a bit misleading. I think "turn" implies that the shoulder and hip movement takes place on a horizontal plane. Such a turn might be fine for baseball players who are swinging at a chest-high pitch, but not for golfers who are swinging at a ball that is on the ground.
Golfers must "tilt and turn" their shoulders on a tilted plane. Note in the illustrations that at address my right shoulder is a bit lower than my left (No. 1) because my right hand is lower than my left on the club. On my backswing (No. 2) my right side raises as it turns and my left side lowers. This is reversed on the down-and-through swing (No. 3).
If you tilt and turn your hips and shoulders in this manner, you will achieve a nice upright swing and your clubhead will follow the proper swing plane for striking a ball at ground level.

Protect Three Goalies

MONTREAL (CP)—The six National Hockey League clubs will be allowed to protect three goaltenders each, instead of the usual two, in this June's annual NHL draft, league president Clarence Campbell said Monday.

"We have agreed to raise the limit to three in the case of goaltenders for this year only in preparation for next year's expansion draft," Campbell said.

He said this step will protect the six existing clubs from losing first-string netminders in successive years.

Thirteen Drop Out

Ontario Pair Increases Rally Lead

SASKATOON (CP) — The 4,000-mile Vancouver - Quebec City car rally headed into its third day today with only 47 of the original 80 starters still in the running.

First car off at the start was the Ford-Lotus Cortina of Paul McLellan and John Wilson. They grabbed the lead early in the first day and widened it before the finish of the second here Monday evening.

McLellan, a Toronto fire-fighter, and Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., second-place finishers last year, left the start at 1:02 a.m. today on the first leg of what promised to be a muddy run to Winnipeg.

Miss Carter and her co-driver Terry Gillies of Toronto were dropped when they exceeded by five minutes the maximum allowable time at a special control point between Red Deer and here. They were driving a Fiat 850 coupe, but were delayed after a fuel pump broke down.

The drivers still in the running face two more special speed sections today. Rally organizers report road conditions muddy because of melting snow and rain.

One section is 6.4 miles long and located near Dundurn, 30 miles south of here. The other runs 25 miles through Riding Mountain National Park. The drivers are required to cover the courses in the fastest time possible.

During the first two days, road conditions were mostly dry and dusty. In several sections drivers complained that the dust obscured their vision and slowed them down.

McLellan and Wilson ran the entire second day without picking up any additional penalty points. They finished the first day with 12.

Running second after two days was McLellan and Wilson's teammate on the Cortina team—Roger Clarke of London, England, and his co-driver Robin Edwardes of Fabreville, Que.

Clarke and Edwardes also ran clean Monday and finished with a two-day point total of 27, three less than third-place John Merriman of Scarborough, Ont., and Jim Perras of Don Mills, Ont., in their Chevelle.

Pip Graham and Henry Acton of Calgary in a Volvo picked up 21 penalty points in the Slow River forest special section Tuesday and ropped from second to fourth place. They had 41 points when they left here this morning.

Rosemary Smith of Dublin was lying fifth overall with 81 points and had sewed up the Coupe de Dames award because all her competition had fallen out.

Of the original three women's teams in the running, one fell out on the first day and two more Monday.

Trudy Duniel and Lorraine Jackman of Calgary, in a Corvette GT, went out Sunday after accumulating too many penalty points and they were followed out for the same reason by two Burlington, Ont., housewives—Peggy Kurtin and Linday Floyd —in a Volvo. The Carter-Gillies duet was the last to go.

"Is A Fighter"

Russell Has Unique Problem

BOSTON (AP)—The windup of the National Basketball Association's playoffs usually means that Bill Russell, the defensive star of the champion Boston Celtics, could forget the game until September.

This year things will be different. Russell has switched from captain of the most successful pro team ever assembled to player-coach. That means some immediate homework for the six-foot-10 proviman before he attends the NBA draft meeting in New York next week.

Leading the Celtics to their ninth title in 10 years proved difficult for Russell this year. The team is aging while the rest of the league displayed signs it is catching up.

The 32-year-old Russell also has a unique problem because he is the first Negro to direct a major league team in any sport.

Since Russell joined the Celtics 10 years ago, the team has won the championship every season but one, 1957-58. Russell was injured then and missed two games in the final playoff series against St. Louis.

Retiring coach Red Auerbach presented a long list when asked why the Celtics had picked Russell as their new coach.

"Russell is a fighter," said Auerbach. "He is a keen student of basketball. He has the respect of his players, he has always had the winning habit, and he will be the boss—putting the Celtics ahead of friendship." 10.

IT'S NOT JUST 90 MPH AND STYLE THAT MAKES THE ISUZU BELLETT THE BEST BUY AT $1,898*

BUT IT SURE HELPS!

The Isuzu Bellett has now been around in Canada for a year and already it has captured the hearts of a couple of thousand people and nearly one hundred dealers from coast to coast.

It's little wonder that Bellett is considered to be the comer in the hotly contested Volkswagen price class. Bellett is a family sized four door in a style that sets a new standard for economy cars. At 2,020 pounds, Bellett has sturdiness in its 13 gauge steel body (Mercedes-Benz quality, in fact, is its yardstick), and its padding and sound deadening, and its complete undercoating. Even the inside of the trunk and the underside of the hood are undercoated and then painted over for additional protection.

There are bucket seats up front and molded-foam carpet covers the floor area. Under the carpet is another layer of undercoating—painted over of course. The dashboard is completely padded, there are two padded visors. Flexible grab handles are provided for all passengers.

The Isuzu Bellett is in a different performance class from its price competition. With a four cylinder, oversquare engine of 1900 c.c.'s, Bellett uses its 71 horsepower to walk away from other economy cars. It even outperforms some 1500's coming seven or eight hundred dollars more.

The lowest priced Bellett comes completely equipped with white-walls, back-up lights, washers and all the other things you pay extra for in other economy cars. Before you buy an economy car you owe it to yourself to see and drive the Isuzu Bellett. Where else can you find a 71 horsepower, 90 miles an hour economy car with four wheel independent suspension for as little as $1,898.*

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—An interest in Canadian affairs unmatched in the United States Congress is one characteristic of the man named by President Johnson to supervise American participation in Expo 67.

Otherwise, Stanley R. Tupper of Boothbay Harbor, Me., was not an obvious choice. He's a Republican—a moderate one—and a conservative, elected three times to the House of Representatives.

He's taking a big pay cut—to $32,500 from his current congressional salary of $30,000 plus various extras. Further, the job is only an interim one ending when the Montreal world's fair closes in late 1967.

These things must have created Tupper's mind when the New Englander of "strong independence of view" was asked personally by the president to handle the $9,300,000 American investment at Montreal.

"The assignment . . . offers as an opportunity to make a direct contribution toward widening understanding between the two great nations," Tupper told the Senate foreign relations committee before it gave him unanimous approval to the appointment.

LEARNING FRENCH

"I've started French lessons immediately," Tupper said afterwards. "I took it in school but it needs brushing up."

Tupper, a 45-year-old married man with one son, comes from English stock and has settled in Maine in the 1600s. He claims common ancestry with Sir Charles Tupper, the Nova Scotian who played a key role in Confederation and was briefly prime minister in 1896.

"He and my grandfather were contemporaries and friends," he says Tupper, though his particular branch of the family stayed in the rebelling colonies when the Nova Scotia Tuppers went east.

Tupper will handle his elected job as long as he can combine it with his new one of commissioner-general for the fair. But he will retire no later than House adjournment next fall and serve without pay until then.

He is enthusiastic about the

AN AMERICAN IN EXPO — A high degree of interest in Canada was one reason why President Johnson, a Democrat, asked Republican congressman Stanley R. Tupper (above) to supervise the American participation in Expo 67, Congressman Tupper claims common ancestry with Sir Charles Tupper, the Nova Scotian who was Canada's prime minister briefly in 1896. (CP Photo)

U.S. plans for Montreal despite a $3,000,000 cut instigated last year by congressmen at least partially motivated by Canada's limited participation in the cosponsorship of New York fair.

The U.S. pavilion will be a 30-storey transparent geodesic dome in the style of a radar dome, designed by architect Buckminster Fuller. It will be stuffed with U.S. space, scientific, economic and cultural exhibits.

HAS CANADIAN LINKS

The new commissioner's Canadian credentials are solid. For all but 8 years in the House of Representatives, he has been a member of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group and now is the ranking Republican member from the House.

Last year he was the spokesman for a group of Republican moderates who brought out a white paper on Canada-U.S. relations calling for 36 ways to improve them. It said Americans show an "appalling ignorance" about Canada and it proposed to give a larger role to the International Joint Commission, which handles boundary water problems.

Tupper declines to predict what he will do when Expo 67 is finished but there is speculation that in the 1968 congressional elections he may be in line for the Senate seat held by the veteran Margaret Chase Smith, leading Democratic contender the choice of Tupper for the Montreal job. Certainly, at 45, politics does not seem to be a dead end for Tupper.

Films With Negroes Now Earn Big Money in South

By BOB THOMAS

Throughout most of Hollywood's history, that comment has been offered for films concerning Negro themes and featuring Negro actors. Indeed, the fear of losing the southern market, which has traditionally been a good one for films, has deterred many producers from undertaking projects with interracial overtones.

The situation is different now. Film companies report that films with Negroes can earn as much and in some cases more in the South than elsewhere in the United States.

Example: A Patch of Blue, in which Negro Sidney Poitier befriends a blind white girl, Elizabeth Hartman, who falls in love with him.

"The picture was the second biggest grosser at the Loew's Theatre in Atlanta—second only to a re-release of Gone With the Wind," reports an MGM man recently returned from location in A Patch of Blue in the South.

ONE REFUSES

"Our film exchange says there has been no resistance to booking the movie in Georgia, Alabama and other southern states. Only one woman theatre owner in New Orleans refused to play it."

Oddly, A Patch of Blue was given an art-house opening in New York and did disappointing business. But on the basis of excellent returns from the South, MGM is predicting gross of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Only one concession was made to southern audiences: The kiss between Poitier and Miss Hartman was cut.

The MGM man explained: "We showed the kiss in a test screening with southerners, and there was such a gasp that it was decided to eliminate the kiss. It wasn't important to the story, anyway."

Another film starring Sidney Poitier, A Slender Thread, has also been booked extensively through the South.

"We encountered no difficulty at all with southern theatres," says the Paramount sales head, Howard Koch. "And the returns from the south on a Sidney Poitier picture are proportionate to the rest of the country."

HAS MAGIC NAME

Poitier seems to have the magic name to break down southern prejudices against films with Negroes. United Artists reports that Lilies of the Field, for which Poitier won the Academy Award two years ago, was widely circulated in the South.

The same is true of Universal's fo Kill a Mockingbird, which dealt with southern injustice for Negroes of a generation ago.

Stanley Kramer, an expert in producing controversial films, offers this observation: "We had no trouble getting southern booking of the defiant ones (which starred Poitier and Tony Curtis in 1958). But that didn't surprise me. In 1949, we played Home of the Brave (which dealt with anti - negro prejudice) throughout the South.

"I've found that theatre men in the South are the same as they are everywhere; if you can smell a buck, they'll play the picture. If they can't smell a buck, they won't. It's as simple as that."

At the Belle

Gags All the Way

In "The Great Race"

Shakespeare once suggested "Laugh yourself into stitches" . . . and "The Great Race" sews up howl after howl as the Warner Bros. comedy hit, in Technicolor and Panavision scores its mad, merry way at the Belle. Hearts ache, too, as with Tony Curtis, as the noble hero whose white costume bedecks his purity of heart, Jack Lemmon, as the mean, the dark-draped villain with a heart and mind as black as his cloak, "The Great Race" pits the stars into a hilarious auto race around the globe from New York to Paris by way of Bering Strait, for fame, fortune . . . and the legal-smacking affections of suffragette - reporter Natalie Wood.

Under the direction of Blake Edwards, the gags run a rare course, from a custard pie-throwing battle that would bring cheer from Mack Sennett, to hilarious carring-do on Lemmon's big chest and his stable ice floes. Through this madcap course Curtis and Lemmon keep a steady, and sometimes unsteady course aided and abetted in their karatic shenanigans by Keenan Wynn and Peter Falk. Keeping the pace on a hectically zooming level is the musical score penned by Academy Award winner Henry Mancini.

After eight years of marriage, she is an unaware of the realities of life as one of her children says." Political Pot Boiling Over Prince's Visit MELBOURNE (AP)—A political stir is brewing over the visit of Prince Charles to New Guinea, which starts from Melbourne tonight and lasts until May 14.

Wedau Airstrip owned by the Australian Church Mission, which Prince Charles will use, will be closed to all aircraft other than the royal flight from Wednesday until May 7, when the royal visitor is due to leave for Papondetta to continue his tour.

The bishop of Papua, New Guinea, Rt. Rev. David Hand, announcing the airstrip closure, said it was at the request of the private secretary to the Australian governor general, Lord Casey.

But spokesmen for Lord Casey and the Royal Family denied ordering the closure.

They also denied that the closure was made to keep-newspaper men from reporting the visit.

Members of Parliament were reported concerned that the closure will prevent the world getting told about one of the most colorful royal visits Australia has ever organized.

Successful Living
Finds Helping Others
Cure for Loneliness

DEAR DORIS: As I am 66 years old and blessed with good health and can see, hear and use my arms and legs, I find exactly what I wrote in enclosed poem.

I was 65 when I lost my husband and life seemed for me useless, until I started to help others. By forgetting yourself you find yourself.

Thank you for what you give to people in the paper. God bless you. — JACOBA.

Readers:
DEAR JACOBA: You've discovered a wonderful secret. Here it is, Dear DORIS CLARK

A VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

When you are old, say sixty or more,
You ask yourself what life has in store,
The family gone to live their own lives,
With husband and children or with their wives.

The feeling of sorrow, of being alone,
Hoping and waiting for a call on the phone,
So many friends have passed away;
For what were you left here to stay?

But there are always people in need,
It may be next door you do a good deed,
It can be a child, a woman or man,
Visit them, go over and do what you can!

Washing a floor or cleaning a sink
Does not lower you as you might think
Another may want just a little chat,
So what is the matter or wrong with that?

Iron a shirt or mend a blue jean,
Throw some things in your washing machine,
When you share the blessings you have received,
You feel useful again and from sorrow relieved,
—Jacoba.

DEAR DORIS: To Ugly's Mother: I doubt if a girl of this age could be called ugly; but I wonder if we have the right to dictate how our children wear their hair?

I never liked the way one of my sons wore his hair; but it was his hair. So while I told him I did not think it attractive, he was still allowed to wear it as he liked it. There are greater things we have to consider, so why make an issue of small things such as hair? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: Amen! Let's only make major issues when the subject is of major importance. Don't our young people have to learn to behave to themselves?

DEAR DORIS: I am a 16-year-old girl who has a problem. A boy whom I used to date quite often and care for, seems to ignore me. His only known me when he has no one else to go with.

I will refer to him as G.H. Should I let him take advantage of me or forget it? If not, how to thought more of me than a substitute. — WONDERING NO. 2.

DEAR WONDERINK NO. 2: Horrors, no! Think of him as a bad memory and substitute someone more promising.

DEAR DORIS: My daughter is 18. She works and pays board. I also have one boy working and paying board. We are having a lot of trouble with this house and I would like to move into a smaller one, but I don't know how to tell them I want them to find another place to board.

My daughter does the supper dishes and that's all. I take care of this enormous house, with its water pipes freezing all winter and never warm. I have three younger boys.

I have had ten children. Three were miscarriages and I was terribly ill. Now my husband has no interest in my company since the doctor told me that I wouldn't have any more children (with my husband's consent to the operation.)

If I go to bingo one night a week and stay home all the rest of the time, I am always having him alone; when I stay home he sleeps all the time. Please advise me before I take a step which I may be sorry for. — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: This is a new twist. Most mothers balk when daughters and sons want to leave the nest. Does this mean no one shares any of those deadly, daily home chores?

I'd guess that many-long years ago you set the pattern which now boomerangs on you. Husbands need to know they are also needed as parents and fathers. Children need to know they are part owners, not only of your love but of your responsibilities. How otherwise do they prepare for their own good marriages?

Replace your self-pity with some sturdy resolves and call a conference in which even the littlest lad shares. Daughter, oldest son, father, are capable of far more consideration and helpfulness than you give them credit for. "Nuff said?

Chinese Woefully Ignorant About Foreign Lands, People

Frank Tuohy, British author and an instructor at Waseda University in Japan, has just visited China. In the following story he tells about the Chinese suspicion of foreigners.

By FRANK TUOHY

SHANGHAI (AP) — Frightening ignorance and prejudice about foreigners exist everywhere in China.

The emperor of China believed all foreigners had come to pay him tribute. In those days visitors were known as foreign devils; today they are called foreign friends.

Even today, when tourists from all Western countries except the United States are allowed in to the big cities, a foreigner is something of a surprise. Mild but friendly stares of curiosity surround you until you soon become used to them.

How, I wonder, can the welcome extended to foreign visitors be reconciled with the hate campaign which by now includes not only the U.S. imperialists but also the Khrushchev revisionists, the Castro revisionists, and other lackeys and flunkeys too numerous to mention?

IGNORANT OF WEST

We were told that children learn to distinguish between the perhaps innocent foreigner and his wicked governmental system. But how can they know that the foreigner is innocent if they are kept ignorant of his world, his history and culture?

I visited a university English class where students were taught nothing about the West except that U.S. Negroes are whipped for smoking in the street, and that British children are still crowding into Oliver Twist's workhouse. There were libraries of British and American books on the campus but the last date of withdrawal in the mass of the books I leafed through was 1948.

Posters still show Negroes, Westerners and Chinese striding arm in arm toward a proletarian future. But word has gone round the new countries, a foreign diplomat told me, of the difficult life for embassy officials in Peking. African diplomats posted to China find themselves exiled for years because no one at home wants to replace them. In Peking's only bar, on the sixth floor of the Hsin Chiao Hotel, Japanese, German and British businessmen play billiards. Peking evenings often them nothing else.

ASK FOR PROSTITUTES

"Foreigners? Western businessmen lie drunk in the corridors and ask for prostitutes," one female guide told me in a shocked voice.

The same guide displayed some strange views of the outside world.

"We Chinese do not wear collars and ties," she told me. "Japanese wear them because they are controlled by the American militarists."

In general, no interest or curiosity in anything about the outside world was ever shown in our conversations.

"We know everything about the outside world, because Chairman Mao is never wrong," explained another guide. He knew nothing about the expulsion of Chinese diplomats from the new African countries.

Wondering how China's proclaimed religious tolerance is faring, I asked to go to church in Peking. "I am sorry," the guide immediately replied. "Tomorrow is Sunday and all the churches will be closed."

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A criminal court has sentenced a laborer to 10 years imprisonment at hard labor for killing a woman who had cursed the devil. Hard to Tell Who's Ahead In Moon Race Between U.S. and Soviet Union

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The United States and the Soviet Union are locked in a tight race to land the first men on the moon, perhaps within three years. The winner's rewards will be substantial: national prestige, scientific knowledge, possibly military domination of space.

U.S. space officials are spending $3,300,000,000 on the manned space and lunar program and say their budget is adequate to the American objective. Slight cuts in recent years have not affected the manned space development; reductions were made in other phases of the space program.

On the basis of deeds accomplished, the U.S. has an edge. But American space officials are looking to the next Russian manned flight to provide the answer. The last one was Voskhod 2, a one-day mission March 18, 1965, during which Alexei Leonov took history's first space walk and sent Soviet prestige soaring.

Since then, the United States has orbited six two-man Gemini teams and wrested every man-in-space record from the Russians.

HAVE LEARNED BASICS

The Gemini flights, up to 14 days, have demonstrated the basic techniques for getting to the moon. These are ability to manoeuvre a manned space ship, rendezvous of two ships, linkup of two space vehicles and the ability to sustain life for the length of time (8 - 14 days) planned for early lunar voyages.

The Russians have demonstrated only one of these: the space walk. Unless they show they can do the others on their next manned launching, U.S. experts believe America will maintain the edge.

Reports from behind the Iron Curtain indicate that during the long pause since Voskhod 2, the Russians have been developing a large third-generation space ship to follow the early Vostok and the Voskhod. There are indications it may weigh up to 27,000 pounds and carry a crew of three to six men.

The ability to link up two such craft would give the Soviets a big boost toward the moon. For it generally is believed they plan to assemble a station in earth orbit as their lunar launching pad.

The U.S. meanwhile, plans to make a direct ascent to the moon, using a single mammoth Saturn V rocket which is scheduled for its first test flight early next year.

HAS HUGE THRUST

This giant 36-storey-tall rocket will generate 7,500,000 pounds of booster thrust, compared to 430,000 pounds for the Titan II which hoists the 7,700-pound Gemini craft. The Saturn V will be able to hurl the 97,000-pound three-man Apollo ship to the moon.

Russia has an uprated version of the 800,000-+ pound thrust rocket it had been using. Improvements have upped the thrust to more than 1,000,000 pounds.

Neglect Of Ill Charged

TORONTO (CP)—A Liberal and a New Democrat raked the provincial government in the legislature Tuesday for alleged neglect of mentally disturbed children.

Stephen Lewis (NDP Scarborough) urged the government to "make money available for establishment of residential treatment centres for the disturbed. Such children "now are deposited in the wastebasket of society."

J. R. Trotter (L—Parkdale), said there was a lack of progress in providing facilities for treating disturbed children.

We aren't expecting to see Utopia all at once. But at least we like to see some progress."

Mr. Lewis also asked Health Minister Matthews Dymond how many doctors had declined to participate in the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan.

Mr. Dymond said less than 200 of the 8,000 to 8,500 doctors in Ontario refused to take part in OMSIP.

In other business the house also:

—Was told by the Ontario Water Resources Commission that the number of dentries in the register declined to 287 from 376 in the last two years. Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said this indicated the dairy business is in a crisis.

The OWRC claimed it indicated a continuing trend toward consolidation.

—Heard Hepburn of a bill to empower the provincial government to take over operation of municipal police and family courts. The bill was introduced by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

—Was told by Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton that access to Goethals from the Macdonald -Cartier Freeway was the subject of two studies to determine how to handle large volumes of traffic generated by the University of Guelph.

—Heard that a select committee investigating conservation authorities since last year has been unable to complete its work. The committee asked to be reappointed so it could continue working. The committee will examine the case after prorogation of the legislature, expected in early summer.

French Depend On Computers For Safe Test

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) France will not explode atomic devices in the southeast Pacific until a computer shows that winds will carry radioactive fallout clear of inhabited islands, it was reported here today.

Several Australian newspapers published accounts of preparations for the explosion, using a 12-day tour of Tahiti and other islands in French Polynesia made by five Australian newspaper men at the invitation of the French government.

The Sydney morning Herald reported that French scientists were basing all their security precautions on the explosion of devices into a wind blowing from the east which would not change direction for several days.

A PONDEROUS ROMANCE — A heavy romance has developed between white rhinos Cheekie and Little One, but trainer Charles Fourie is caught on the horns of a dilemma as to when a 200-pound bundle of joy will arrive at the Krugersdorp, South Africa, game preserve. Only a few white rhinos have been born in captivity and the gestation period has never been established. The romance of the normally bad tempered, three ton rhinos is not always this idyllic. Indonesia Wants Quick Peace In Its Quarrel With Malaysia

He was speaking to reporters on his return from Bangkok, Thailand, where he had talks with Philippines Foreign Secretary Narciso Ramos.

A three-power meeting of Indonesia, The Philippines and Malaysia is scheduled soon, Malik said, adding that the three countries now are seeking a formula for implementation of the 1963 Manila agreement.

Under this agreement, the three powers agreed to coordinate governing establishment of the Malaysian Federation. But later all three accused each other of breaching the pact.

The federation, which now consists of the former British territories of Malaya, Sarawak and Sabah (North Borneo), was formed in September, 1963. Indonesia viewed it as a neo-colonialist venture in Southeast Asia and vowed to crush it.

In Kuala Lumpur today, Malaysia's acting prime minister Tun Abdol Razak said the atmospheres was right for peace talks between Indonesia and Malaysia.

50,000 Copies Of Record Sold In Two Days

NEW YORK (AP)—Listening to records made by a plump, grey - haired grandmother who warbles and whistles rock 'n' roll songs, mostly off-key, is the current kick of 500 music.

The singer is Mrs. Elva Miller of Claremont, Calif., 25 miles east of Los Angeles. Her family was against Mrs. Miller's trying to make records but she went ahead.

Her first long-playing record, Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits, was released by Capitol Records April 11 and sold 30,000 copies its first two days out. The LP and two 'songs taken from it and released as a single, Downtown and A Lover's Concerto, all are on the bestselling charts compiled by Billboard magazine.

Mrs. Miller sings with a vibrato which sounds as if she had once studied voice, which she did. Meanwhile she often changes key and goes flat.

She sucks ice cubes while she does her third hit, Wishlies, to contract the muscles for a more-controlled pucker.

DUPUIS TO APPEAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Lawyers for Yvon Dupuis Tuesday filed notice of appeal against his conviction on charges of influence-peddling. Mr. Dupuis, a former federal minister without portfolio, was found guilty by a jury April 22 in Sherbrooke, Que., and sentenced to a $5,000 fine or one year of prison.

Critics Predict British Budget Will Hike Prices

LONDON (CP) —"Don't worry — this won't hurt you half as much as it'll hurt your boss."

That headline in today's Daily Mail sums up popular snap reaction to the Labor government's budget brought down Tuesday by James Callaghan, who introduced a new sob tax—to be paid by employers only. It is designed to assist exports and snuff manpower from the service industries to manufacturing. But critics of the Chancellor of the exchequer predicted it will result in price increases ranging from haircuts to homes.

"Subtle," "ingenious," and "unorthodox" were the more favorable terms used to describe the job-taking that involves forced savings and taking some of the "over-heating" out of the economy.

The budget—to the amazement of many—proposed no increase in income tax, surtax, purchase (sales) tax, beer, tobacco or spirit imporia or car licences.

Instead, a "selective employment tax" to be paid by employers will be introduced Sept. 5 at the rate of 25 shillings ($3.75) a week for men, 12s 6d ($1.88) for women and youths over 18 ($1.20) for girls.

But in the manufacturing industry the tax will be more than offset by a "premium" payments of 32s 6d ($4.88) for each man, 16s 8d ($2.48) for women and youths and 8s 4d ($1.25) girls.

In other words the manufacturers—when they collect their premiums next February—will make more than £1 for each man employed. George Woodcock, general secretary of the giant Trades Union Congress, said this may result in a wave of pay demands despite government efforts to limit both wage and dividend increases under a price-and-incomes policy.

Underlying Callaghan's budget was the Socialist government's goal of putting the economy on its feet to compete in world markets.

Eighty-five per cent of British exports are composed of manufactured goods and one-third of the total manufactured output is sold outside the country. It was apparent, overseas sources said, that Callaghan

Two Nudes Bath in Beer Coolers

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)— The facilities of the Milwaukee Art Centre have been placed off limits for "spontaneous dramatic performances" following a "happening" in which two nudes bathed in two beer coolers.

A group of art students and faculty from the University of Wisconsin staged the event which included a nude man and woman.

Sgt. Orval Zellmer of the Milwaukee vice squad said he and two detectives were questioning Art Centre leaders and some of the 250 persons who were in the audience.

When police indicated an interest in the "happening" after it happened, Art Centre Director Tracy Atkinson said the event "was about as sensational as a marble statue in a museum."

TAKES STERNER VIEW

Maurice Berger, president of the centre's board of trustees, took a little different view.

"Henceforth the facilities of the Art Centre will not be available for spontaneous dramatic performances."

In other words—two nudes, plus motorcyclists, dancers actors, a grave digger and a fire fighter—all were artists performing off canvas.

LECTURE IN KIEV

EDMONTON (CP)—Two University of Alberta instructors will deliver guest lectures at this month at University of Kiev, it was announced Tuesday. Dr. H. T. Coutts, dean of the faculty of education, and head of Slavonic languages, will visit the Ukraine university as part of an exchange program between the schools.

"After Vietnam, what then?"

Pearson Survives Non-Confidence Test 133 to 106

He spoke a few hours before his minority government drew support from 18 opposition MPs to turn back 133 to 106 a Conservative non - confidence motion censuring the government's handling of the Gerda Munsinger security file.

The motion followed testimony by Commissioner George B. McClellan at the Munsinger inquiry last Thursday that Mr. Pearson asked the RCMP 17 months ago for any information about MPs indicating "any impropriety or anything of a scandalous nature."

The Conservatives and some New Democrats charged that the government had undermined Parliament and used the RCMP as a political police.

The prime minister spoke for an hour on the second day of a tense supply debate to defend his conduct in the Munsinger and early December, 1964. He said his motives were entirely honorable in asking about what RCMP files involving MPs and in obtaining a summary of the Munsinger file.

ASKED ABOUT NOTES

New Democratic Leader Douglas Asked Mr. Pearson's notes about his 1964 conversations with Commissioner McClellan correspond with the commissioner's testimony.

"No, they do not correspond, Mr. Speaker," the prime minister replied. "Quite the contrary."

"Unlike the commissioner, and I am not quarrelling, I have no right to quarrel with his evidence, I am not sure I should even comment on it—but if the commissioner is referring to personal improprieties and personal scandals, there is nothing to confirm that.

"If he was talking about scandal in the sense of the Rivard scandal . . . I was looking for that kind of scandal in relation to members of Parliament with government departments and their intervention on behalf of dubious elements. . . ."

Mr. Pearson said he was anxious in the 1964 to find out whether there had been any political interference in police investigations and the administration of justice during the preceding five years.

MAKES BRIBERY CHARGE

A few days earlier, Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) had charged that prominent Liberals had offered a bribe and exerted political pressure in vain attempts to free narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard on bail.

Mr. Pearson said he obtained Dec. 2, 1964, an RCMP memorandum on the Munsinger affair and evidently at once that it represented "a serious security matter."

That memo had been locked up in a Privy Council office safe until the RCMP asked it back April 27 after Mr. Nielsen had used or circulated the memo.

Leaders of the four opposition parties met shortly in the debate and the vote.

Da Nang Sweep by Marines Bags at Least 47 Viet Cong

Two U.S. companies participating in Operation Georgia Hill by artillery and machine-gun fire as it crossed a river 25 miles southwest of here.

American losses were reported to be light.

The 2,000-troops taking part in the operation have reported killing 80 guerrillas in the last two days.

There were these other developments in the war:

—The largest Sydney arrived in South Viet Nam with 1,000 Australian men and equipment. This is the first contingent of 4,500 Australians due between now and mid-June to replace 1,500 who have been here since last August.

—U.S. planes flew 301 sorties over South Viet Nam.

—Viet Cong pounded the southern end of the main Viet Cong supply route for the seventh time in eight days. They also suspected guerrilla supply and troop areas about 65 miles northwest of Saigon, near the Cambodian border.

In the most significant of the fighting reported in Viet Nam, U.S. fighter-bombers attacked a suspected Viet Cong battalion 15 miles from the Viet Cong south-east of Saigon. Pilots claimed destruction or damage to more than 100 buildings.

The North Vietnamese news agency said the Viet Cong has released 89 South Vietnamese military prisoners in Kontum province, in the Central Highlands. The agency said the soldiers "pledged them selves never again to serve as cannon fodder for the U.S. aggressors."

Can Keep Northern Bell Must Cut Phone Rates If Its Profits Move Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—Earnings of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the B.C. Telephone Company are at their maximum allowable level and any increase must be offset by lower rates, the board of Transport Commissioners ruled today.

Reporting on a year-long study of both big utilities, the federal agency said in separate judgments that the companies' massive earnings should range between 6.2 per cent and 6.8 per cent of total investment.

Both companies were at the upper level of that range in 1965.

In both judgments the board said:

"Should the companies' earnings exceed that maximum, the board will require the company to furnish proposals for reductions in the rate structure designed to bring the company's earnings back within the permissible range we have found to be reasonable at this time."

The biggest private utility in Canada, since 1956 had been at a permissive earnings level of 52.43 a share. But in recent years it had been well above that figure, reaching $2.92 in 1965.

B.C.'s permissive earnings previously were calculated on a return of between 6.5 and 7 per cent of total investment.

In a side issue, the board rejected arguments that Bell should be forced to divest itself of its wholly-owned manufacturing subsidiary, Northern Electric Co.

Bell's investment in Northern was found to be in no way harmful to the interests of Bell subscribers. Northern sold equipment to Bell at prices as low or lower than normal prices and its earnings were not excessive in comparison to similar enterprises.

Specifically, the board said it saw no reason why Northern earnings should be limited to the rate of return that had been found reasonable for Bell.

Bell's non-contributory employee pension plan, which had been criticized at the hearings as too costly, was found to be reasonable and proper. There was no evidence that it was unduly liberal or that a switch to a plan in which employees would contribute would bring about a saving to customers.

Find Farm Problems Unchanged

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—The world's most powerful farm organization returned to its birthplace Tuesday to celebrate its 20th birthday, only to be reminded that the same old problems remain to be solved.

Despite the surpluses in some countries, half the world's population doesn't get enough to eat. And the countries with the greatest food shortages cannot even maintain production increases in line with their own population growth.

The sombre message of food and farm problems was stressed by almost every speaker as the International Federation of Agricultural Producers marked its anniversary.

Today the delegates from more than 50 farm organizations in almost 40 countries begin a two - week general conference that will take up the problems again.

Among the largest delegations at the conference will be the 19-man representation from Canada. Headed by President J. M. Bentley and Executive Secretary David Kirk of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the delegation includes representatives from provincial organizations and such special interests as dairy farmers, dairy farmers and fruit growers.

WELL PREPARED

Bentley said in an interview the Canadians have come prepared to speak up about "practically all the things that are likely to be discussed."

But he hesitated to commit himself to speculation about the topics most likely to be of interest to Canada.

"Tuesday's meeting was soothe for a birthday party.

New Commonwealth Extradition Law Would Protect Political Refugees

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth law ministers have proposed a new extradition program to define the kind of fugitives who can be forced to return home but to make it easier for unsuccessful politicians to escape the anger of their enemies.

The program involving uniformity and reciprocity among the 22 member countries will not apply to Rhodesia, the ministers said in a communique today summing up their six-day conference.

They also agreed to establish a small legal section in the Commonwealth secretariat which is headed by Canada's Arnold Smith. This section will help member countries develop new laws and to keep all governments informed on significant law changes in each country.

A few of the ministers, including British, Ceylon and Singapore, showed interest in establishing a Commonwealth appeal court, which didn't find favor with other member countries, including Canada.

Nevertheless, the small group of enthusiasts agreed to work with Britain in the hope that eventually a Commonwealth court could be established "along circuit to those countries who wished to make use of it." Coping with fugitives has been a major Commonwealth issue, irritated by the celebrated Enahoro case of 1963 when Britain handed over Chief Enahoro to Nigerian authorities. He had been accused of plotting against the Nigerian government and under Britain's 1881 Fugitive Offenders Act, British authorities had no alternative but to turn him over.

New legislation now being developed in Britain will halt the old system which Prime Minister Wilson condemned.

An official said law ministers agreed that all extradition laws in the Commonwealth should be substantially uniform and should include reciprocity. They should list returnable offences, establish that a prima facie case must be made before the fugitive is returned and restrict the return of political offenders, the communique said.

Lawrence Pannell, solicitor-general, represented Canada at the meeting.

The minister also approved a British proposal for bringing up to date laws dealing with maintenance orders, by which absconding husbands can be made to support their families even if they move to a distant Commonwealth country.

The conference's recommendations now go to member governments.

BEFRIENDED by Ameliasburg school children when they were only inches long and motherless the three cute cottontail rabbits shown here will soon be leaving their cardboard box home to roam the township's wide open spaces. They became a class project after three boys, Tim Anderson, 12, left, Clarence Dawson, 10 and Ken Cousins, 12, found them abandoned.

Orphaned Cottontails Not Natural Rebitat To Survival

AMELIASBURG — The three orphaned cottontails that ushered the arrival of 40 senior class pupils at the Milford Corks school will be returned to their natural habitat before long.

A barking farm dog led Timothy Anderson, 12, Clarence Dawson, 10, and Ken Cousins, 12, to their rescue when they were helpless and too young to fend for themselves. Whether their mother was killed by a car on the close by Rednerville road or became the victim of some predatory animal or bird remains a mystery.

Still in their baby bunny state the triplets were taken to school where they were named Thumper, Jumper and Tinker. For their new guardians feeding them was a problem that had to be dealt with immediately. Principal Wally Pitt suggested stewing fresh cut clover and administering the "broth" with an eye dropper. They also supplemented their formula with regular feedings of cow's milk.

From a poor start the school's adopted pets thrived without incident until one day one of them disappeared and caused considerable concern. It was eventually located hiding behind a cupboard in the classroom. As it turned out the rescue operation developed as a major project that will be remembered by the pupils of the senior class and their teachers a long time.

200 Doctors Not Likely To Participate

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said Tuesday fewer than 200 Ontario doctors have declined to participate directly in OMSIP, the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan.

Under OMSIP, the doctors are requested—but not forced—to send their statements directly to the government for medical insurance payments instead of the scheme. If they choose, the doctors may bill their patients directly.

The difference is that in the former case the medical insurance branch of the department of health will pay the doctors directly for their services while in the latter case the branch will reimburse the patients and they in turn will pay their doctors.

Dr. Dymond told Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) that he didn't know exactly how many doctors refused to accept the easier route, but that their number was "very few"—less than 200—of the 8,000 to 8,500 doctors in the province.

Mental Illness Subject of Talk To Kiwanians

Speaking yesterday to members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, Rev. Norman Hutchinson said that it is necessary for citizens to realize that mental illness is as illness.

"The mentally ill say and do the things they do because they are sick," explained Mr. Hutchinson, who is president of the Belleville and Hastings Mental Health Association.

He noted that many of the mentally ill recover but in order to aid their recovery completely, they must be accepted back into their communities by all the citizens.

"We find it easy enough to sympathize with them but it is difficult for them to associate in their position," he observed.

Mr. Hutchinson stressed the importance of community action in the family in the fight against mental illness. He said that in order to lower the rate of disorder, it is necessary in treat the whole family.

"The public must be educated. Mental illness is not confined to institutions, it's walking the streets of Belleville", he concluded.

Mr. Hutchinson's address was timely since Mental Health Week in Canada is now being observed.

Bill Stewart reminded the Kiwanians that the annual Poppy Day Blitz will be held today. The fund raising project will take place from 4-8 p.m.

Lorne Greene Keeps Trim by Playing Tennis

LONDON (AP)—Actor Lorne Greene said today that the toughest battle of his life has been against his weight.

As the Ben Cartwright of television, the Ottawa-born Greene is one of the world's best known father figures.

"I've had a real old battle with Ben," he said Greene, "and I think I've beaten him."

For the last seven years Greene has been playing Ben on Bonanza, a high-ranking TV western serial seen in 62 countries.

"Ben started out as a thundering tyrant," said Greene. He was always spouting the Bible and ordering people off the ranch at gunpoint.

ALTERED IMAGE

"I wasn't happy about that. After all, Ben is supposed to have had three wives. He must have had some charm and a sense of humor."

Greene said that as he became easier in the role and more established with the viewers he managed to transform Ben.

"I tried to make him more like I would be said. "And this wasn't easy, but I managed it.

"Heck, they wanted Ben to be 60 years old. I balked at that. I said I'd be gun-fighting from a wheel chair. Nowadays Ben's a vintage man, not an elderly one."

Greene is here to act as master of ceremonies on a TV show. Asked how he kept in such trim, he replied:

"Tennis old, is the answer. I play it all I can. I'm even having a Grandi tennis court built at home. That way I can get in a few sets after dark—and after

MODERN FREIGHT TERMINAL — Tatham Co. Ltd. of Belleville is at an advanced stage of construction on the new CNR freight express terminal, located about a mile east of the railway station on Station Street. The installation of a "towveyer," which completely automates the sorting and handling of incoming freight, will make the terminal one of the most modern of its kind.

Tried to Pass Found Cheques

TRENTON — Leslie Emory, 22, of Picton was found guilty of attempted fraud in Trenton court yesterday and sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to two months in jail.

The court was told Emory had found several travellers' cheques signed by "George Churchill," and attempted to pass them in the Quinte Hotel at Trenton.

Emory, who told the court he helps support his crippled father and invalid mother, was on parole when he committed the offence.

Inn Owner Asks Council To Alter Zoning

TRENTON — Gordon Shoniker, the owner of the Dutch Mill Inn on Dundas Street East, has asked town council to take over the zoning of his area so that he can extend his dining room facilities.

As the property was recently annexed by the town, the former zoning laid down by Sidney Township applies. As this zoning was controlled to a great extent by Department of Highways rulings, Mr. Shoniker finds he is unable to proceed with expansion plans.

At Monday night's meeting of town council, Mayor James MacDonald said the planning board had the zoning of the area under advisement, and that no decision could be made until this was completed.

However, council's public works' committee will look into the matter and report back to council May 16.

'66 Tax Bills Ready to Mail

TRENTON — Trenton pedmen won't be welcomed Tuesday; that's the day home owners will get their 1966 tax bills in the mail.

Tax collector Alan Weaver told council Monday night the billing machine at the town office had broken down, leading to a slight delay in the billing, but tax bills will be mailed out by Monday next.

Mr. Weaver said tax arrears amounting to $9,000 for Jan. and Feb. had been paid in March. 12,000 in arrears had come into his office. He said this was the best three months for tax arrears payments in his experience of many years as collector.

PLANS RECITAL

TRENTON — Sunday night, starting at 8:45 p.m., Roy Cornish will present an organ recital in the Wesleyan Methodist Church on Dixon Drive.

Mr. Cornish has planned a varies program of hymn arrangements, and organ compositions.

Rev. Frederick Love of North Trenton will be the guest soloist.

Flash Fire In Lunchroom Ruins Contents

TRENTON — Shortly after midnight today, two trucks and men were sent from the Trenton fire hall to the East Side Lunch on Dundas Street East, across from the Domin ion Store, where a flash fire had broken out in the interior of the one-storey frame building.

While the contents were a complete loss, damage to the interior of the building was not considered to be extensive.

Firemen were on the scene for two hours, and concentrated their efforts on preventing the fire from spreading to an adjoining two-storey frame house. The house and lunchroom are owned by Harry Long of Trenton. The lunchroom was operated by Alfred Lisk. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Canal Navigation To Open May 13

TRENTON — May 13, navigation opens on the Trent Canal and the lockmaster at No. 1 Lock said yesterday as far as he knew the locks between Trenton and Peterborough were "all set."

However, an extensive renovation program has been carried out this spring at Locks 36 and 39 near Burleigh Falls, above Peterborough, and there may not be ready for the opening, the lockmaster said.

PURCHASE LOT

TRENTON—Trenton council voted Monday night to purchase a lot in North Trenton from Harry and L. Seymour to be used as an alternate route for CNR and CPR tracks when work on the North Trenton subway is in progress.

BANS MAGAZINES

PARIS (Reuters) — The French government Wednesday banned 13 American and British publications including a number of girlie magazines.

News in Brief

TRENTON — Trenton council Monday night voted to have the week of Sept. 25 to Oct. 2 proclaimed "CNIB Week" locally and will permit the local organization of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to carry on fund - raising activity during that week.

Council is more than a little perturbed about the state of affairs on King Street, near the high school. There, trees planted in boulevards by the parks board are being broken off, bottles are being tossed out of cars and resulting broken glass strewn about the sidewalk and papers and refuse is also being tossed around.

Council will ask the board of education to confer with high school principal, John Garrett, in the hopes of bettering the situation, although it is not entirely certain that teen-agers are to blame.

Hit Officer, Held Careless

TRENTON — Kenneth Olson of Wrigge Street, Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of careless driving in Trenton court yesterday but was found guilty by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, fined $75 and ordered to pay $20 court costs.

Olson was the driver of a car which on the evening of Jan. 24, struck Constable Roy Miller as he stood directing traffic at the intersection of King Street and Dundas Street West. Constable Miller suffered a bruised hip and leg.

Olson, called to the witness box by his lawyer, Gregory Butler, told the court he had been proceeding east and had failed to see the constable until the car was upon him. Olson suggested this could have been because Constable Miller was standing sideways and the high visibility red parkin vest, worn by traffic officers, was not in view from the side angle.

"I can only come to the conclusion that the driver was not exercising due care and caution," said the magistrate.

Sewage Plant Odor Annoys Residents

TRENTON—Councillor Paul Tripp told council Monday night that residents living in the vicinity of the sewage treatment Plant had complained to him about the odor which they say comes from the plant from time to time.

Councillor Tripp said he thought this occurred when "sludge" was discharged from the plant.

The town engineer, Eric Alderney said it wouldn't be feasible to dig trenches and bury the sludge, but suggested it might be trucked away from the area. The Ontario Water Resources Commission will be asked for an opinion as how best to handle the sludge.

Charge 2 Queensboro Men Negligent in Shooting

Two Queensboro men have been charged with criminal negligence in the wounding of a 16-year-old Tweed girl late Monday night.

Cecil Wright, 64, and Jonas Kelly, 34, were charged in the shooting of Wanda Young, R.R. 3, Tweed. She is reported in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit of the Belleville General Hospital from a gunshot wound in her chest.

The wounded girl's mother, Mrs. Mary Young, 35, said the shooting occurred Monday at the home of Cecil Wright. She said Wanda, her daughter Marray, 13, and Jonas Kelly arrived at the Wright home about 11 p.m. and moments later Wanda screamed, "I'm hit."

Wanda was admitted to Belleville General Hospital yesterday at 2:30 a.m.

Det. Sgt. Lloyd Lyle of the Belleville O.P.P. said the gun used in the shooting was a small bore rifle. It is believed to be a semi-automatic .22 calibre rifle.

The two men were remanded until May 9 for trial at Madoc. They remain in custody.

Born a Slave Learns to Read At Age of 117

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) Mrs. Mary Walker, born a slave, will be 117 years old today, or sometime this spring. The exact date is a moot point.

Mother Walker will have a city-wide birthday party Friday, at which she will officially be certified as the oldest student in the United States.

A son—the first of three, all now dead—died three years ago at age 84.

About one year after his death, Mrs. Walker came down from her third-floor apartment in a modern high-rise apartment to sit in on a class sponsored by the Chattanooga Area Literacy Movement.

"I decided I'd better do something," she says. "I didn't know anything."

Mrs. Walker has learned to read, write script and add and subtract. She still walks unaided, sees well with the aid of bifocal glasses, hears without trouble, sews and cooks.

Construction Roundup

The pouring of the second floor level of concrete has been completed on the main section of the new addition to Belleville General Hospital, the 8-storey Block "A".

On the ground-floor level beneath Block "A", one quarter of the "Skim" concrete slab has been poured over the gravel fill to provide the base for the final basement pour.

Work is about to begin on the pouring of the first floor level of Block "B" of the addition, which eventually will contain an intensive care unit, recovery room, and operating rooms. This "U" wing, located immediately to the south of the main "A" part of the addition, will have about the same floor area as Block "A", but will be a 2-storey structure.

The erection of column forms and steel is underway in the third floor of Block "A" and also in the first floor level of Block "B".

Most of the curbing has now been completed for the east parking area, and within several days the foundation walls of the new east-side loading dock will be poured.

A new feature is being added to the construction site in the form of a 130-foot-high hoisting tower at the north side of the addition. The hoist will enable the sub-contractors to bring tools and materials up to any level at which they might be working.

The national cumulative dollar volume of Canadian construction contract awards for the first four months of 1966 sets an all-time record for this period. The total value of contracts this year is 4.1 percent higher than that for 1965, which held the previous record for the first four months. The four-month national total this year now stands at $1,463,320,200. According to information collected by Southam Building Report, a principal factor in the increase of value of contracts is a gain in the volume of "big jobs" awarded thus far this year. The jobs valued at over $1 million each to date amount to $758.2 million, up 7.1 percent from the same four-month period of 1965.

By the end of April H. J. McFarland Construction Ltd. had laid 15,350 square feet of sidewalk this year on Pinnacle St.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation this week reported that figures for the first quarter of 1966, covering rural and urban areas, showed 25,075 housing starts, an increase of 2.8 percent over the first three months of 1965. The Crown-owned agency also revealed that figures covering urban centres of 5,000 population and more during the month of March shows a 23.8 percent increase over last year in the number of starts on single detached dwellings. There was, however, a significant drop in the number of apartments started in the same areas during March.

Plans are on display at the Pinnacle Street Office of the Quinte Construction Association for the 27-unit Senior Citizens' building in Belleville (tenders due May 12), and the observation gallery facilities in the Peterborough Federal Buildings, (tenders due May 18).

The Mentally Ill

This is Mental Health Week in Canada and the Canadian Mental Health Association, as it points out in one of its booklets, provides the touch of human friendship to mental hospital patients in a variety of ways.

"Even if a patient regularly sees his family and friends — though, tragically, great numbers do not — it is important for him to know that people in the community want him to get better."

The above observation illustrates only too clearly one of the contributory elements of mental illness — a poor home environment and the absence of satisfactory family relations.

One wonders how many of the 75,000 Canadians under mental institutional care or supervision (as many as are receiving treatment in hospitals for all other illnesses combined) are suffering merely from this lack of a happy home life and conversely lack of outdoor interests in the form of sporting activities or other extra-curricular interests which most people develop early in life.

How many are weighed down simpiy by the cumulative effects of a crushing boredom, perhaps an inability to get away from it all from time to time?

And speaking of environment, it would be interesting to have a comparison of statistics of those suffering from mental disorders in Canada and those in a region such as Hawaii. Here there is a multi-racial population living amid idyllic surroundings and what is generally pictured as the very essence of happy community life?

Oddly enough, many Canadians have attempted to settle in Hawaii and other lands where the sun shines for most of the year, but not a few return because they miss the changing seasons. It is these changing seasons that should contribute in part at least to a happier frame of mind among Canadians than the 75,000, and many more borderline cases, they do not.

This brings us back to lack of outlets, or failure to take advantage of the many outlets, extra-curricular activities, call them what you will, that do exist.

A busy person is usually a happy person, and countless people lead fruitful and balanced lives by keeping busy, taking life as it comes, living and letting live. We are not of course that mental illness can go much deeper than this, but for the many who suffer from mild neurosis — and most people do at some time or another — there is a host of others who are more serious disturbed.

Yet to return to the subject of environment, it is worth noting that serious cases of schizophrenia, for example, have responded favorably when removed for a time from familiar hospital surroundings to completely different and more attractive regions.

Some years ago Swedish medical authorities took a bold step and flew a party of schizophrenics to the Italian riviera. Here, amid the exotic atmosphere of the Mediterranean, almost all of the patients were restored at least in part to more improved mental stature. Some who had not been known to utter a word in years, sitting desolately in hospital rooms, came out of their shells. Meeting new people, being accustomed to the sort of warm reception that only the Italians can give, these visitors from northern Europe became new people.

So, mixed with compassion, allied to the encouraging developments of medical research, there is a need for imaginative measures such as this one employed successfully by the Swedes. But most of all it is human interest and compassion which count most in the prevention and cure of mental illness.

A Whiz at Math

When it comes to helping their sons and daughters with the complexities of modern mathematical and scientific concepts most fathers find some suitable excuse for not being around.

It is so easy to forget, especially if mathematics was not a strong point in the first place. And what with New Math and all that, the latter day parent's confusion is complete.

In Saskatoon there is one parent at least who does not have to resort to parental guidance in this sphere. He is James Maybee, a Grade 11 student at Moira Secondary School, who has been invited to attend a mathematics seminar at the University of Saskatchewan this week.

So congratulations to James Maybee! He earned his place at the seminar by placing well in a province-wide contest sponsored by the university.

Killed in Action

Although Canada has adopted a neutral stand on the Viet Nam war, references are occasionally made to Canadian-born members of the United States forces serving there.

Some have given their lives — like Hans Lorenz of Midland, Ontario, who died from burns he received near Da Nung last month when a Viet Cong bullet struck a gasoline drum.

Mr. Lorenz was buried with full military honors at Midland last weekend. A Marine escort had accompanied his body from Oakland, California, where he died in hospital.

Protests Reflect Maturity

Christian Science Monitor

When it comes to youth and their protests, it is necessary to draw careful distinctions. Too often the most bizarre forms of protest grab the headlines. It is all too easy to seize upon extreme examples, label all protests as beatniks, and condemn one and all alike.

Countering such an over-simplification was a recent report by several specialists in mental health. Their study of civil-right volunteers and peace workers found "a noticeable absence of any mental illness" and a surprising maturity. They concluded that action is healthier than apathy or despair.

One student, who contrasted active dissent with the beatnik's dissent through disengagement, stated, "If you really believe in your values, it's important to convey them to other people." Among those who protest are many intelligent, highly motivated young people who care deeply about the liberty and welfare of others.

It is only fair to recognize that some of those who fail to protest are the victims of apathy, selfishness, or insensitivity. While some of those who choose to withdraw from society do it in the spirit of disillusionment and despair.

Irresponsible escapism, reckless rebellion, and callous unconcern are all to be deplored. But we need to recognize that protest, refusal to protest, and withdrawal can each stem from highest motivation and, under a given set of circumstances, make a positive and constructive contribution.

Let us beware of blanket condemnation. Examining the acts sought and the means employed, let us try to judge in each case whether a given protest is healthy or not.

Mortgage Money Is Scarce

London Free Press

Unavailability of residential mortgage money has become evident across Canada and particularly in Western Ontario, noticeably slowing down construction. Its effect on employment has made it a matter of House debate and study by Prime Minister Pearson if the government may offer federal funds to ease the squeeze.

The federal government for some time has used the construction industry as a means of controlling the Canadian economy. Three times in seven years has the federal treasury poured out extra construction dollars or cut back hard on spending as a means of expansion in the demand for labor or as a holdback on an inflationary economy.

Having used this means Ottawa owes something to the construction industry and its workers. If it is to be used as a prime gift it should have some compensating returns. Today the housebuilder is in dire straits. He has prospective buyers, prepared subdivisions but no money to finance building.

With the present confidence completion date shortened a cutback in housing money could cause many thousands of construction workers on the unemployed list within a few weeks. The matter is one of urgency; money roamers say the private trend today definitely is away from home construction, heading into the more lucrative industrial field.

Ottawa is to repay the home construction industry for its past manipulation today when a prompt cutback in the policy of supplying federal money for home building is everything but the definitive will have to come from top cabinet level, whether aid is not justly asked by the builders who have done so much to ease the employment picture in the past.

Hedy Lamarr's Court Ordeal

Scott Young in
The Globe and Mail

Hedy Lamarr has been in a little trouble in Los Angeles, due to carrying merchandise worth $86 U.S. ($172 Canadian) out of a department store without paying. I have been following the case with keen interest. Originally, this was because if I am ever a 31-year-old Viennese forger in search of beauty, I will know how to act when I am picked up for boosting (in my case, I would take nothing but expensive stuff).

But as the case wore on suddenly I could discern a great bond between Hedy and the rest of humanity. She defends a lawyer should be disbarred for not exploiting — even though he won the case without it.

The bond was confirmed in one line in a news report: The actress testified that while shopping she looked at the items she wanted, attempted to find sales personnel, then selected the item in her bag intending to pay later.

The bold type above indicates what I consider to be the crux of the case. If I'd been her lawyer, when I came to those words in my summing up I would have hit them like Gordon Sinclair reporting that Dr. J. R. Mutchmor had tried to give him a fluoride martini.

Leaning both hands on the rail of the jury box, I would have said: "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I ask you to examine your hearts. How many times have you been in a department store holding in your hands an item that you had chosen, and then decided at the last minute to set off, to attract a sales clerk? How many times, having found a clerk or two, have you succeeded your throat to attract attention, only to be told sternly not to interrupt when they are discussing what their boy friends had said the night before? How many times have you had an overpowering impulse to grab the articles you desired, and run — in hopes that someone then would notice you, and accept your money?

Strike Would Be Illegal

Toronto Telegram

A group of postal workers in three or four larger provinces have threatened to call a strike during the Christmas period.

Such a strike would be in defiance of the law of the land.

As industrial unrest grows, workers gaining employment in the civil service do so under certain conditions, and they are aware of these conditions before they are engaged.

They are aware that as employees of a public service, they have certain security of employment that is not always accessible to people in private business or industry, and that they forego the right to withhold their services as an organized group.

This legislation, now before Parliament, will allow civil servants to bargain collectively. But the right of civil servants to strike — the ultimate bargaining weapon in the hands of labor — is still denied them. They may, however, bargain with the Government as a body, and so reach their case to arbitration.

Such arbitration, under pending legislation, would be binding upon the civil servants and the Government.

Such arbitration, which has sought a formula to redress grievances on the part of its employees, has not given the public welfare at the same time, has been lax in its dealings with the unions and in the past. For about two weeks in 1965, the postal workers shamefully defied the civil law. The Government surrendered its authority.

It was all over, a commission under Judge J. D. Anderson, laid down a wage and work formula and ended the dispute. In the meantime, however, the commerce of the nation had been badly disrupted and the carelessness was tacitly condoned.

The postal workers — whatever their grievances — should realize that they are bound by law, as are other elements in the population. Nobody wants to see them ill-treated or denied the general rights that are available to others. But in their special role as public servants they are obliged to forego the right to strike.

Will She Catch on?

Portland Oregonian

It is continually astounding that President Johnson's special adviser on consumer affairs, Mrs. Esther Peterson, appears to know so little about consumers.

She has just published a 15-point guide for shopping housewives on how to beat the high cost of living. A smoothie:

1. Go after those weekend specials; they're cheaper.

2. Shop the ads. Choose your store ahead of time.

3. If you have a car, buy in quantity.

4. Shop alone. Kids grab things off the shelves that aren't on your list. . .

And so on.

There are probably a lot of housewives to whom this is all new — the young, young ones. But there are many more who will think that Mrs. Peterson was pretty slow to learn standard operating procedure. Thursday and Friday papers have been full of such advice for years and years.

Another thing Mrs. Peterson may not know; Shopping husbands grab things off the shelves too. Smart wives leave them at home.

To Your Good Health

Infection Usually Cause Of Perforated Ear Drum

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a perforated ear drum and what precautions are necessary? I also have a deviated septum and a continuous postnasal drip. Is there something I can take for this? — Mrs. I. D.

A perforated ear drum is one with a hole in it. The ear drum serves two purposes: transmitting sound vibrations to the middle ear; and, at the same time, keeping infection out.

A chronic infection is the usual cause of a perforated ear drum. Therefore the first question is whether this infection can be subdued, and the second is how to keep further infection out.

If the ear canal is dry (no drainage from it) little need be done except to keep dirt and germs out, and to avoid letting water get into the ear. Water also might introduce infection.

A cotton pledget is helpful to prevent dust from blowing into the ear. Swimming is, of course, taboo. Also, getting water in the ear while taking a bath or shower.

If there is drainage you should have an ear specialist's advice on necessary treatment. If the infection cannot be conquered, a drop or two of rubbing alcohol, full strength (or diluted to half, if full strength is irritating) tends to dry the canal and ward off secondary infection. Hydrogen peroxide, full strength or diluted one-third, may also be used.

Under some circumstances, sympathetically (surgical reconstruction of the ear drum) may be possible. It may or may not improve your hearing. After all, the amount of hearing impairment from a perforated drum varies, sometimes being quite noticeable, other times making little difference.

Your deviated septum (bent or distorted partition between the nostrils) no doubt is part of the cause for your postnasal drip, but chronic sinus infection, excessive smoking, allergy, polyps or enlarged turbinates in the nose can be involved, too.

Instead of wondering whether there is something you can take by far the best course is to have the nose examined so you can then know what may really help you.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a person to emit an offensive odor when nervous or excited? I am a high-strung type and in the presence of others I become excessively nervous and perspire freely. Sometimes people will give me a funny look and retreat, yet when I am alone I can detect nothing and members of my family say they can't either. Can an offensive odor be evanescent? — Mrs. J. N. F.

I think your high strung nerves are playing tricks on you. Yes, nervous tension can cause excessive perspiration. Yet as a rule this does not become odorous, and certainly not quickly. Your family is a symbody, would be able to tell you. A fastidious person rarely will have any offensive body odor, even when perspiring freely.

It would be my guess that you are hypersensitive; if people really recoil from you, it may be only that they sense your extreme nervousness.

Why don't you talk to your doctor about this anxiety you have in the presence of others? A mild sedative or tranquilizer taken before such occasions may do wonders toward easing your nerves and in time help you to take such meetings in stride.

TV's Travesty of a Classic

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Great works that have come into the public domain should be put into a public trust, to prevent their perversion and vulgarization. This was the first thought that occurred to me while the children were watching a TV special of "Alice in Wonderland" a few weeks ago.

It was a frightful travesty of that classic book, which has been more widely translated and provided the source of more quotations than any other English work except Shakespeare and the King James Bible.

After 36 years, as you may know, the author's rights run out on a book, and it is then in the "public domain" — which means that anyone can publish it, or mutilate it, without responsibility. The book "belongs" to no one.

In many important ways, "Alice" is not a children's book at all, even though it has entertained and fascinated millions of children in the 100 years since it was written.

For, working out of the springs of his unconscious, Lewis Carroll shaped a work of art that has stimulated the thoughts of, variously, mathematicians, psychiatrists, educators, and even those few statesmen who have had the time enough to draw political analogies from its pages.

Alice's adventures underground may be read, on one level, as a remarkable exposition of the theory of relativity, long before Einstein came along to validate it scientifically. And psychoanalysts have written lengthy and learned papers on Carroll's anticipation of Freudian symbolism; indeed, the whole book is an amazingly accurate map of the dream-world of the child that never dies within us.

The vagaries of the law, the absurdities of political and military conflicts, the constricting influence of formal education, pass to continue with the Walrus and the Carpenter, the faint deference that power which is an epic of social hypocrisy) — allthese, and more, make "Alice" a never-ending source of intellectual delight and illumination.

Quite apart from these sophisticated interpretations, "Alice" is a great work of art, rich in imagery, gracefully constructed, structured, holding in rare equilibrium the worlds of sensibility and of fantasy, like poetry, between opposites, in fact, is the key to its immortality.

Such a book should be protected from vandalism as much as a painting or a cathedral. When a master-piece is defaced, we should go into a national trust, and permission should be given to rebuild only in a true and faithful version. Defacing "Alice" is no less criminal than painting a moustache on the Mona Lisa.

Tweed Bus Story Strikes a Chord

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

This is my first letter to an editor and had to let you know that I enjoyed your article on the (Tweed-Belleville) bus story.

The reason for my interest is as follows, my grandfather Fred Frost ran stages from Bridgewater to Belleville prior to the Tweed Stage. I have heard and seen pictures of it as much and tell about an older brother who drove sometimes.

Joseph Frost was a carriage maker. He had four sons, — three blacksmiths and one woodworker — all of whom had to serve their apprentice-ships as hired help, with no pay, from what I am told.

Thanking you for article,

Fred Frost, Tweed.

Govt. Urged to Revise Fair Wages and Hours Of Labor Act on Contracts

OTTAWA (CP)—National representatives of labor and management in the construction industry are urging the government to revise the Fair Wages and Hours of Labor Act to establish equitable labor conditions for workers and contractors on federal jobs.

The joint approach is being made by the Canadian Construction Association and the Association of International Representatives of the Building and Construction Trades.

An amending bill was recently introduced in Parliament to add the minimum wage and maximum hours provisions of the Labor Code to this statute, which sets the standards to be met by contractors obtaining federal work.

The act already includes a regular review of construction industry wage rates in various areas of Canada This results in a local "fair wage" schedule that must be followed by firms bidding on federal contracts.

Labor and management groups are presenting to the inclusion in this rate of negotiated benefits such as pensions, vacations and welfare.

They say this would remove discrimination against contractors who pay fair wages but assums plus fringe benefits under labor agreements.

Industry spokesmen report that prevailing fringe benefits can run as high as 40 cents an hour in some metropolitan areas.

The groups also argue inclusion of the Labor Code's 40-hour week week, with overtime after 40 hours, places some firms in a superior position because some labor contracts now contain a 37½-hour week.

"This means such firms would only have to pay overtime after 40 hours while some employers face overtime pay after 37½," a spokesman said for the construction association's Ottawa office explained.

In addition, workers on seasonal construction had in many cases negotiated for work weeks of more than 40 hours, in order to compensate them for winter layoff periods. Unless the proposed amendment was changed, these workers would be faced with a sharp loss of pay because of the Labor Code restrictions.

Peter Stevens of the association said the labor-standards the situation in the construction industry is a complex one that could not be placed under inflexible regulations. The real need "was to recognize and honor the standards set by collective bargaining.

Care of Cars Most Important

VANCOUVER (CP)—A safety expert for the car manufacturers said Tuesday the present controversy over automobile safety design is obscuring the more basic causes of highway mayhem.

M.R. Darlington, managing director of the U.S. automobile industry's highway safety committee, was speaking at a meeting here of Washington state automotive dealers.

"There isn't much point in building safer cars to crash in," he said. "The automobile won't do anything the driver doesn't make it do, provided he keeps it in good condition."

and voted against the government.

Social Credit Leader Thompson and Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire said they accepted the prime minister's word that his motives had been honorable.

INTRODUCES MOTION

The defeated non-confidence motion, introduced Monday by R. G. L. Fairweather (PC—Royal) accused the government of destroying the independence of all MPs and undermining Parliament by asking the RCMP to provide information on the past conduct of all MPs.

The 115 Liberals voting drew support from the nine Creditistes, four New Democrats, three Social Credit MPs and the two independents from Quebec.

The motion was endorsed by the Conservative and the New Democrats. Two other New Democrats, Barry Mather (New Westminster) and Frank Howard (Skeena), abstained.

More sensational evidence in the Munsinger case is expected when the one-man judicial inquiry resumes hearings Thursday. The inquiry centres on charges by Justice Minister Cardin that two or more former Conservative ministers were involved romantically with Mrs. Munsinger, whom he described as a one-time communist spy, and that Mr. Diefenbaker misled the resulting security risk.

Mr. Pearson said his government was accused in 1964 of cooperating with "dubious and even criminal elements" and he wanted to know whether this had occurred during the previous 10 years.

OTHER MPS ON FILE

Commissioner McClellan had informed him that the Munsinger case was the only significant case involving MPs Two or three other MPs had been investigated, but they had been involved only in "mild" and "inconsequential" matters.

He denied that he had asked the RCMP for information about the past conduct of all MPs generally, as charged in the Conservative motion.

"That would indeed be an indefensible and shocking request which would go against all the rights of Parliament and the rights of the individual; it would be quite improper use by the executive of the powers of the police."

Mr. Pearson said he had no prior knowledge that Mr. Cardin would "blurt out" the name Munsinger during a heated

"I just removed a couple of spots from your pants, Bob . . . a five and a ten."

Commons debate early last March.

"I submit that my motives in asking for that (RCMP) inquiry were understandable and honorable and that this (non-confidence) amendment, which is inaccurate and false in its very wording, should not meet the approval of the House."

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking for about 80 minutes, labelled the prime minister's speech "an alibi of tortured guile."

He accused Mr. Pearson of trying to destroy him, turn the RCMP into "Pearson's political police" and gather material "calculated to annihilate political opponents."

Mr. Pearson said he wrote a letter to Mr. Diefenbaker Dec. 4, 1964, about the Munsinger case and asked him whether he had any information to add to that supplied by the RCMP. He had felt it was his duty to do this.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker came to his office six days later to discuss the matter.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled the meeting and quoted the prime minister as saying that he would get to the bottom of something.

"He did not indicate what it was, but it was apparently this case."

He said Mr. Pearson then added that there was no suggestion of a breach of security "and let us forget about it." There had been no further mention of the Munsinger case until Mr. Cardin brought it up in March.

Quebec Legislator Is Sorry He Spoke on Press Control

QUEBEC (CP)—"I had it to do over again, I wouldn't," say Lucien Lessard, legislative assembly Speaker and centre of a controversy involving government control of the press, said today.

Mr. Lechasseur was referring to a speech he gave last Wednesday which was interpreted as advocating government control of news media.

Admitting that his speech was in some respects vague and subject to ministerinterpretation, the Liberal MLA from Vercheres said what bothered him most about the reaction to the speech was the effect it might have on Premier Jean Lesage, who faces a provincial election June 5.

"I'm sorry I made the speech," he said in an interview. "I've been very embarrassed by this. I didn't want to stir up all this controversy. I am not a fanatic and I hate fanaticism and reglementation."

What he wanted to suggest in his speech was news media in general—anyone responsible for providing the public with information, and newspaper men in particular—should have professional training, standards and ethics.

The other suggestion he wanted to make in his peech, he said, was that the government should set up a ministry of information which would gather, co-ordinate and distribute government information.

However, he admitted the speech was ambiguous and that there were sections where the two proposals became mixed up, leading to the possibility of interpreting his words as advocating some degree of "control" over all "social communications."

Baby Saved By Operation On Heart

MONTREAL (CP)—The turning point in a tiny premature baby girl's struggle for life came with a delicate heart operation at the Montreal Children's Hospital this year.

Baby Messerry weighed only 2½ pounds when she was born at the hospital Jan. 4. She was 2½ months premature.

She was breathing with difficulty because her lungs were not yet ready to function. Her chances of survival, even if she had no physical defects, were four in 100.

The day she was born the hospital arranged to have her transferred to its newborn nursery directed by Dr. Leo Stern. She seemed to improved. Fed intravenously at first she gained almost six ounces and the breathing difficulty eased in the incubator.

Then the trouble started again. Dr. Stern and Dr. Gordon Karn found that an opening between two blood vessels taking blood to the body and lungs had failed to close as usually occurs shortly after birth. This made excess blood circulate through the baby's lungs, making them too stiff to work easily and putting her life in grave danger.

Dr. Karn undertook an operation to tie off the opening between the arteries while an anesthetist controlled baby Messerry's breathing and a special body mattress maintained her body temperature.

The operation was successful. Within two days she had started to gain weight and could be fed through a tube. "As far as we are concerned she is cured," says Dr. Stern.

Package Deal for Women And Their Dogs Advocated

LONDON (AP)—The president of Britain's beauty parlor operators has urged his fellow hairdressers to give a package deal to women and their dogs.

"We should compete for the poodle parlor customers," Sidney Henson, new president of the Incorporated Guild of Hairdressers, Wigmakers and Perfumers, told the guild's annual conference.

"Our prices are too low. Our clients openly admit that their poodles cost them 32 shillings sixpence ($4.87) for a trim and shampoo. Just let us try to charge our customers that for a shampoo and set and they'll blow their tops."

The price of a shampoo and set for women now ranges from the equivalent of about $1.50 in a run - of - the - mill beauty shop to $27 when the job is done by a top hair stylist.

Said Henson: "Now we can undercut the poodle parlors. It doesn't take any longer to work on dogs than humans.

"After all, poodles are less demanding when it comes to decor and service. I seriously suggest that we offer a combined service for madame and her poodle."

He also proposed hair-tint package with "client and poodle tinted to match at all inclusive charge."

"Mrs. Music" Honored on 85th Birthday

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—More than 200 friends, former pupils and civic officials attended a civic banquet here to honor Moncton's "Mrs. Music" on her 85th birthday.

There were baskets of gifts, telegrams, flowers and cards for white-haired Dr. Maude Burbank. They even named a street after her.

But to Vermont-born Dr. Burbank who has taught music here for a half century and has turned out some of Canada's finest bandsmen, one sentiment was probably worth more than all the gratuity combined.

The note said simply: "Dr. Maude Burbank is a good teacher. I like her very much. From one of her students."

Dr. Burbank plans to frame the note, admitting with a catch in her voice that it comes from a little boy pupil whom she scolds the most.

At the party the baton that has led so many children's and youth bands to top honors in New Brunswick music festivals during the last 60 years provided a command performance to a standing ovation. This time it led Dr. Burbank's new beginners' band through surprisingly selections.

Maude Burbank now is coaching a 25-member junior band for concerts this summer and next. The group, she says, will be ready for Canada's centennial which she promises will "definitely be my last year."

Successful Living

Dull, Lifeless Hair Reflects One's Health

DEAR DORIS: No matter how much I brush my hair, it simply won't shine. It always looks miserable, exactly like straw, dull and lifeless. Also, I've been letting it grow for three months and it's grown barely an inch. It's just at my chin.

Is there any hope for my hair and can there be anything does to make it grow? — A DEPRESSED TEEN.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DEPRESSED: What are you doing to yourself? Hair reflects general health — which comes from within.

Late hours, too much cake and candy, too little of the fresh, vitamin filled foods, too little of body-building protein, too much tension — all these have an effect on hair, and skin, and general exuberance.

DEAR DORIS: This is about the young lady who is four feet tall and finds it hard to find male friends like herself. The one that called herself Your Midget Friend.

I myself know what it is like to be small. I'm only four feet six inches tall. I find it very hard to find female friends my size too and I know of others like me.

Will you please, Doris, send me this young lady's name and address? I think she would be glad to hear from other short girls like herself. I long for how it is to not be wanted by the average-sized people, and one feels out of place.—YOUR SHORT FRIEND.

DEAR DORIS: I am 46 years old and five foot two inches tall, and seem to have a hard time finding anyone of my height or shorter to go with. As a result I am still a bachelor. — CATTLE RANCHER.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: To Midget: I am short, have worked with many short people, and in only one case can I say people let it be a handicap. It is the manner in which we do things and present ourselves that count.

One sees many short women married to large men, and occasionally short men to large women. — MRS. S. — ALSO SHORT.

DEAR SHORT FRIEND, RANCHER AND ALSO: Can't deny that unusual shortness makes easy acceptance tough — just as any unusualness tends to. But rising above handicaps is what makes men of us — or women!

I have passed your messages on to My Midget Friend, who lives thousands of miles away from you, but will get a big lift out of your concern.

Confidential to a FRIEND: Without treatment from a doctor your friend runs the risk of a chronic condition and even childlessness later. Service from a public health clinic is inexpensive; and any medical service is confidential. It is urgent for her to take her courage in her hand and go!

Bringing Up Baby

MINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Forcing or coaxing are probably the methods most unlikely to succeed if one has it in mind to get baby to cooing to feeding a baby. For these "hunger strikers" often stifle baby's natural desire for food. They may well turn a normally amiable eater into a rambunctious rebel. They may even instill a lasting distaste for foods so administered. Your baby, like all babies, instinctively knows how much food he needs and will eat enough if he's left to eat, not made to eat.

Pertinent pointer. An unhurried, unworried mother and a smiling mealtime atmosphere are still the best ways to teach your little one that eating is one of the truly pleasant experiences of life.

Solid facts with nutritional overtones. Specially prepared cereals play an important role in your baby's diet because they supply important nutrients. Gerber Baby Cereals, for example, have added iron . . . known for its blood building quality.

Gerber Cereals are famous for their mild, pleasant flavours and smooth, nice-to-the-tongue texture. Easy to mix, too . . . just add to milk or formula and they stir to creamy perfection in seconds. Five nutritious varieties!

Position isn't everything. When it comes to a sleeping baby, that is. Tummy position or flat-about are both o.k. unless your doctor specifies a preference. By alternating positions...you'll soon discover your baby's preference. Pluses for the tummy position: covers stay put better . . . diaper will absorb more moisture.

Know why? It's because they're flash-cooked to help preserve the true colours and flavours the warm sun gave them. This quick-cook method also helps preserve food values. The happy result? Fruits with exceptional meal - appeal. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Ann Landers

He Is Not Dead Yet But Heirs' Impatient

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a man in my late 60's and the doctor have told me I don't have a great deal of time left. I am not feeling sorry for myself. I've lived a full life and have enjoyed most of it. The problem is two of my three children. They are already fighting over my money.

ANN LANDERS

I've always had a good relationship with my youngest son and his wife. The son has handled my finances for the past ten years and I have complete confidence in him. I have given him and his wife money for anniversaries and birthdays because they have been wonderful to me. The other children have not been as wonderful and I have not done the same for them.

Yesterday the two older boys and their wives came to tell me that I should stop giving away their money. According to them, my money I have belongs to the estate — and they plan to share in it.

When I told them I wasn't dead yet my daughter-in-law piped up, "It won't be long now."

Please tell me if I have a right to give away my money as I please, or if it's considered part of the estate because I am old and ill. — OLD TIMER.

DEAR OLD TIMER: So long as you are mentally competent you can give your money to whomever you please. I urge you to see a lawyer at once, make a will, and leave nothing to chance. It would be a shame, if that lippy daughter-in-law were not dealt with according to your wishes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please re-word my letter and make it printable. I'm not much of a writer but I need help badly.

Our 18-year-old daughter has some awfully cute girl friends. They sometimes spend the night at our home which is fine with me, I'm pleased our daughter has such fine friends. The problem is my husband. He just can't keep his hands off the young girls. I have seen him pull them up on his lap and beg for hugs and kisses. The poor things don't know what to do or say.

On two occasions I spoke to my husband (privately, of course) and he tore into me like a wildcat. He insists that I am evil-minded and jealous and that he is just being fatherly.

I asked him how he would like it if the fathers of these girls pawed his daughter. He said I was crazy and that I ought to see a doctor. If you think my husband is right please say so. If you think I am right I'd appreciate your support. — N.M.

DEAR N.M.: You are right.

If that 53-added Icebarto thinks he's being fatherly, suggest that he talk to a physician who has some good psychiatric orientation. He may learn a thing or two.

* * *

Confidential to STILL IN LOVE WITH HIM: Keep quiet. What you have in mind is a diabolical scheme that will not diminish the man one iota. It will make you look like an envious, vicious loser who is seeking revenge. And you will, of course, earn his everlasting ill will.

Consumers Seek Simple Interest Rate

SASKATOON (CP)—A Winnipeg housewife charged the consumer credit-granting industry Tuesday with tolerating unfairness and dishonesty in its dealings.

Mrs. S. June Menzies, chairman of the Manitoba regional committee of the Canadian Association of Consumers, called for legislation requiring companies to disclose charges made for credit in terms of simple interest rates.

She was participating in a panel discussion during a conference on consumer credit sponsored by the University of Saskatchewan.

J. S. Johnstone, secretary and general counsel for Canadian Acceptances Corp., opposed disclosure of charges in terms of simple interest rates, saying any attempt to simplify the complex problem would add to confusion. He advocated disclosure of charges in dollars and cents.

A. K. McKichan, general manager of the Retail Council of Canada, said the council would support what could be carried out in practice, but was not misleading. He asked that, if there must be disclosure of a simple interest rate, it be on a monthly rather than an annual basis.

Mrs. Menzies spoke of advertisements listing a six-per-cent interest rate when the costs were actually closer to 12 or 14 per cent, and said:

". . . The consumer cannot with any certainty expect to find either fairness or honesty as part of a credit transaction."

MOIST HEAT CONDUCTOR

Hi there! Susanna, I depend on you to tell me those things, but you let me down on this one and I had to find out the hard way!

COOL STAMP STICKER

Dear Susanna: How do you like my pleasant, non-sticking, non-spilling method for sealing a large number of envelopes? Especially good in the warm weather.

LUNCH FOR TWO

Dear Susanna: There are three in our family who take lunches with them each day. Every so often, while making up them, I prepare two extra ones for my young son who comes home at noon, and me. It is not only pleasant for a change to have the noon meal ready in advance but it gives me a little height into just how appetizing (or unappealing) those lunches I send out every day really are.

You'd be amazed at how this keeps me on my toes thinking up original and interesting lunchboon menus for them. — Mrs. Jean Callaghan

Canadian Women May Adopt British Style in Coiffures

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chances are that this year Canadian women will adopt a British look in coiffures, the sleek, sassiny and shaped hairdo, say two Vancouver stylists.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hennessey, who have recently returned from Britain, predict that frizzy, fuzzy hair styles emphasizing heavy teasing will give way to a style set by Vital Sassoon of London.

Sassoon staged the ball rolling two years ago when he decided that bouffants and similar hairdos made women look older and suppressed individuality.

He set about looking for ideas. Taking his impetus from clothing fashions, he formulated the sleek look.

Mr. Hennessey, freed from several lengthy sessions with the British stylist, says he is convinced the new trend is tailor - made for Canadian women.

"The whole idea of hair fashion now is much like dress designing," says Mr. Hennessey. "The hair is shaped and cut like a piece of fabric.

"There is not just one shape. Each cut is done for the individual to bring out her best points."

He notes that younger women like the unusual, often striking effects achieved by uneven lengths and geometric points. Softer lines and gentle curls and waves fit into the mood for mature women preferring a quieter type of elegance.

New styles range from soft, romantic curls and braids to the bizarre lacquered, and frankly "fake" effect.

Mr. Hennessey says Canadian women are generally slow in giving up the "security" of puffed - up hair.

"It's a crutch they don't relinquish. Once they throw it away they rediscover themselves."

Mr. Hennessey notes that Sassoon's ideas took quite a while to catch on in Britain and North America, before the "brilliance of his thinking" started to make sense to fashion mavens.

He says the new trend will also start hairdressers on the road to perfecting and practising cutting and shaping techniques, one aspect of styling that hasn't been stressed to a great extent in recent years.

Mother of Year Talks About Children With Mrs. Pearson, Diefenbaker

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Children seem to be the most interesting conversational topic for a mother, whether her husband is the prime minister, the leader of the Opposition or a storekeeper in Riviere - Madeleine, Que.

So naturally, when Canada's Mother of the Year, Mrs. Jeanne -, Pauline Beaulieu, St. nat Mrs. Lester B. Pearson and later Mrs. John Diefenbaker Tuesday, they talked about children.

Petite brown - haired Mrs. Beaulieu, who speaks only French, was accompanied on her first call by Mrs. Hedard Robichaud, pretty blonde wife of the federal fisheries minister.

Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. Beaulieu discussed children and charge accounts, agreeing youngsters should learn to live within their means.

TEACH THEIR PARENTS?

"Then perhaps they can teach their parents," said Mrs. Beaulieu, mother of 10 Credit Union Riviere-Madeleine.

At the Diefenbakers', Mrs. J. Russell Keays, wife of the MP for Moose Jaw, came along to smooth language difficulties.

Mrs. Diefenbaker and Mrs. Beaulieu agreed that Canadian children should learn French and English from the beginning in school. But Mrs. Diefenbaker, a former Ontario school inspector, said exchanges of teachers or students would present problems because of the different school systems in every province.

SUPERIOR SOUP BY GOOD CHEF

We suspected and were prepared for eighty people and seventy-nine came. So we considered it a success.

The occasion was the monthly Press Club dinner meeting to which we invited the Toronto and London branches and the writers' clubs from Niagara Fall, New York.

I enjoy these dinner meetings for I am social conveyer and have the fun of planning the menu with chef Frank Campagnotto. At every meeting the girls wonder what new marvels Frank is going to produce.

The menu was: Potage Basque (see recipe below)
Roast Boned Loin of Pork
Minted Peas
Celery Hearts
Rosy Pickled Crabapples
Potatoes au Gratin
Ripe and Green Olives
Vanilla Ice Cream Balls in Toasted Coconut on Chocolate Sauce
Coffee and Tea

The guests had driven long distances and were hungry. The soup was the sensation of the meal. It is always the trademark of a good chef if he can produce superior soup and Frank did.

After much consultation with him I have been able to reproduce a reasonable facsimile of his Potage Basque, reduced from an 80-serving amount to a 5- or 6-serving amount.

I hope every reader of this column tries:

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

POTAGE BASQUE (Serves 5 or 6)

The greatest satisfaction of this soup is that you can use up leftover broth. This can be chicken or beef or veal or any meat broth, even ham. I used broth leftover from boiling a beef tongue which had been flavored with a bay leaf, a sliced garlic clove, and 6 Juniper berries.

2 tablespoons pot barley
2 cups meat broth (preferably chicken or beef)
2 tablespoons butter (or ham fat)
½ medium-small onion chopped
1 cup finely chopped green cabbage
2 tablespoons butter (2nd amount)
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
2 chicken bouillon cubes
½ teaspoon celery salt (optional)
5 slices side bacon chopped (or ½ cup finely chopped cooked ham)

Soak barley in broth 1 hour. Simmer, covered, for 2 hours. Saute the chopped onion and cabbage in the first amount of butter (or ham fat) but do not brown. Melt 2nd amount of butter, stir in the flour and bouillon cubes to blend, then stir in milk until thick. Add to barley and broth, stir in sauteed cabbage and onion. Taste it. You may need to add salt. Chop and fry the bacon until dry and crisp but not brown. Drain on paper toweling.

Serve the soup in preheated bowls sprinkled with crumbled bacon or ham.

Overinspitted this is economical cabbage soup but with Frank's skill it is a chef's triumph.

Woman Lawyer Is Member Of National Parole Board

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Mary Louise Lynch does personnal work for convicted thieves, dope addicts and fraud artists.

The files stacked on her desk deal with prisoners across Canada. As a member of the national parole board, she has to decide whether they are ready to return to society.

The first and only woman on the five-member board was a lawyer in Saint John, N.B., for 27 years before her appointment in 1960.

She says she had never thought of leaving the Maritimes before the justice department offered her the 10-year posting, "but it isn't often a woman of 50 gets a chance to do a new and interesting job."

Miss Lynch is a direct, matter - of - fact person with short grey hair and blue eyes. She lives in Ottawa at a residential club for women and often makes return visits to New Brunswick to visit her family and attend meetings of the senate of the University of New Brunswick.

"I like Ottawa, but I still miss the Maritimes and my lifelong friends. The job is worth it, though—I find I'm a more compassionate and understanding person.

"It's a humbling job. Seeing people who are in trouble, you realize the rotten chances they've had. You can't always judge people by your own standards."

ENCOURAGED BY JUDGE

Her law practice had dealt with title and property work, estates and income tax "even though I always hated mathematics." She only had one criminal case, a bigamy trial, which she was told about at 11 a.m. and had to handle at 2:30 p.m. the same day.

"I lost it—it put me off criminal law."

She was the first woman to plead—and win—a case in the Supreme Court of New Brunswick.

She had always wanted to be a lawyer, even when people told her nobody would go to a woman. There had never been a lawyer in her family. Her mother died when she was a small girl and her father's two single sisters took care of her and her two younger sisters.

She was encouraged in her ambition by a close family friend, a probate judge. When she had almost decided to give up and become a teacher, he persuaded her to change her mind.

Though she led her class in law school, she had no practical experience when she graduated. "I'd never even signed a cheque."

The firm she joined, at $5 a week in 1933, couldn't afford a secretary for her, so she went to vocational school and learned to do her own typing.

SUPERVISION HELPS

"My first cases were collections for small debts. It's a ghastly business, but you learn a lot about people and life."

With the parole board, she reviews several thousand cases every year. The board processed 11,100 files last year. About 9,000 of these were for parole. The others were appeals for clemency by men sentenced to be hashed, and appeals by automobile drivers who had had their licences revoked.

"We grant about 25 per cent of the paroles that come up for review. It's better for people to be released under supervision this way. About 85 per cent of the people who finish out their terms and are simply released, go back to prison."

She says prisoners convicted of non-capital murder are "our safest people. Very few people commit two murders. It was usually something like a jealous wife or husband, or a property dispute, or a drinking brawl."

Parole board members do not interview the prisoners. This is done by psychiatrists and social workers in centres across the country. Their reports, together with opinions of prison personnel, are then considered by the board.

Miss Lynch's appointment may be renewed in 1970—"but I always planned to retire at 60 anyway. The last holiday I had was the summer I graduated from university."

TO FREE OR NOT TO FREE . . . THAT'S HER QUESTION — As a member of the national parole board Mary Louise Lynch has to decide whether criminals are ready to return to society. The only woman member of the five-member board, she practised law for 27 years in Saint John, N.B., before accepting her appointment in 1960. (CP Photo)

The Experts Say — Never Buy a Perfume Without Trying It First

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — "You smell good. What do you wear?"

This is a question Pierrette Berube hears almost every day, but it usually brings an indirect answer from the perfume expert.

"I try to explain that perfume goes with your personality and the chemistry of your skin, and that it doesn't smell the same on everyone," says Miss Berube, who demonstrates French perfumes in department stores here and in other parts of Quebec.

"And I tell women never to buy a perfume without trying it first. You should put it on your wrist and wait a few minutes before you labate. Then come back in an hour. If it's still there and you still like it, it's your perfume."

But don't stick with it forever.

"Sometimes our perfume doesn't smell the same because we change our mood, our chemistry or our character. It's good for the morale to change your perfume about twice a year. A heavier perfume is needed in winter than in spring."

The Gaspe - born former model says perfume should be applied to the various pulse spots — wrists, crook of elbows, throat, temples, behind the ears, bosom, nape of the neck—where warmth of the body will make it work.

She says it should also be dabbed behind the knees "so the perfume will follow you when you walk."

To protect your pearls and clothing, always put on your perfume before you dress.

Women who complain the scent will not stay with them may have dry skin, says Miss Berube. The oil of the skin has to mix with the perfume.

"But perfume only lasts about three hours and no one can expect it to last for eight. Women should always carry a purse slumber."

She recommends the use of an atomizer at home as well.

"Women complain the perfume goes quicker with an atomizer, and it does, but it keeps the perfume from getting contaminated by tipping it out of the bottle and then back in."

All real perfumes are made from oil that comes from pressed flowers. They may take six to 15 years to perfect, the cost results from import duties and the fact that 500 pounds of flowers, picked at just the right moment, are needed for one pound of oil.

The less expensive synthetic perfumes, which Miss Berube says are improving, use artificial oil.

There are seven basic types of perfume — floral bouquet (Arpege, for example), Oriental (Shalimar), modern (Spritzlger), spicy bouquet (Indiscreet), forest blend (Sandalwood), single bouquet (La Rose) and fruit blend (Jean Marie Farina).

Miss Berube says all perfumes, even these in the single bouquet category, consist of more than one fragrance. Jasmine is used in nearly all perfumes. Spices, herbs, flowers and citrus are used in varying proportions, according to the category.

For blondes, Miss Berube recommends floral bouquet, modern or forest blend perfumes, because they are lightly scented.

Redheads can wear stronger perfumes than blondes, and brunettes with dark skin can wear the strong Oriental perfumes. Brunettes with fair skin should wear the lighter fragrance during the day and heavier ones at night.

If perfume gives you a headache, you are probably wearing one that is too strong for you, she says.

Perfume is 20 per cent fragrance and 80 per cent alcohol. Toilet water is two to five per cent fragrance and up to 80 per cent alcohol.

"I always say buy the toilet water instead of the cologne because toilet water is stronger and it will stay But cologne is good after a bath. It is made to refresh your skin."

WARM, WET OR COOL, CLEAR — Most Canadians can expect a combination of either warm, wet days or cool, dry ones during May if the 30-day forecast of the United States weather bureau is accurate. The Western provinces are expected to have below-normal temperatures and below-normal to normal precipitation, while Ontario and Quebec can look forward to above-average warmth and wetness. The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. Other normal temperatures (and precipitations): New York 62 (3.6), New Orleans 74 (4.4), San Francisco 58 (0.5). (CP Newsmap)

Canada's hodge - podge of securities legislation, under pandemic fire for decades, is in the spotlight again.

A federal-provincial conference is expected to be called in Ottawa soon to try—as others before it—to bring some order to a scene now confused by different provinces enforcing different regulations in different ways.

This lack of uniformity in securities laws has come under increasing criticism lately from promoters, who charge it results in unnecessary delays and expense in getting new stock issues cleared for placing on the Canadian market, and from investor groups, who say it leaves the door open for too many abuses by unscrupulous dealers.

The question now is whether provincial governments, which set up and administer the various laws, are ready to consider seriously either federal control or much closer co-operation with other provincial jurisdictions.

Previous efforts to sort out the interprovincial confusion have failed, says veteran mining engineer and promoter Larry Labow of Toronto, because the provinces and the people responsible for the varied enforcement have been "too jealous of their own peerogatives."

SOME RELUCTANT

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that while most provincial business officials support calls for uniform legislation, the survey also shows that only Saskatchewan and Manitoba now seem ready to give unqualified backing to the idea of blanket regulations.

Others in the other provinces hedge their support in generalities or with talk about the need to allow for special circumstances that should be excluded from future agreements.

In at least a few cases, this appears to be political posturing adopted until the governments can assess the prospects of the federal-provincial conference.

And an exception must be made for Ontario, which on March 16 introduced tough, new legislation described by the government as being a world leader in some aspects.

Ontario obviously would expect possible new moves toward national uniformity to measure up to its proposed standards.

At present, a company wanting to sell its stock in all provinces must seek approval from 10 different authorities.

Not surprisingly, Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia —the three provinces with the most active securities centres —are considered to have the most stringent, requirements covering selling of stocks.

P.E.I. FOLLOWS LEAD

In practice, getting a green light in these jurisdictions often means quick approval from other provinces, too.

"When a licence has been issued by Quebec and Ontario, we automatically issue one to the applicant," says provincial Treasurer Alban Farmer of Prince Edward Island.

"We feel that their regulations are stringent enough to prevent the possibility of improper prospectuses."

H. F. Grant, Nova Scotia's registrar of companies under the Securities Act, says his province depends on Ontario for 90 per cent of the licences it issues.

"If Ontario approves it, so do we."

This rubber - stamping by some provinces, however, fails short of what most promoters feel the situation should be.

First, they ask why, if their offering passes the strictest jurisdiction, should they still have to invest time and money in making applications in provinces where approval will be nominal.

Second, they claim that where legislation is less than adequate, administrators have sometimes made rulings based on their own views. This means, they argue, that their offering has to meet not only technical, but also personal, standards.

"That's the crux of the problem and the reason we need uniform legislation," says one Toronto promoter.

FEELS INSECURE

The interpretation of the present laws is so abominable that what was accepted last week in one province may be thrown out this month by the same administrator because he's changed his thinking.

"Uniform legislation would still depend on administration, but at least it would give us a firm and known base to work from."

The other serious complaint about the lack of uniform laws involves investor protection.

If a company is accepted in only one province, it is not supposed to sell its stock in the others—but there's nothing to stop residents of the others buying shares in the company if they hear about it, even though the company may be considered too shady to get other registrations.

Two years ago the Porter royal commission on banking and finance warned that known racketeers have been left free to operate within some provinces despite the experience and advice of others.

Government officials generally agree, nevertheless, that there has been increase co-operation in recent years, especially in the area of exchanging information.

Three years ago securities commissioners started meeting twice a year instead of once, and regular channels of communications are working, at least between the major commissions.

HITS INSIDER TRADING

A key factor in the forthcoming conference will be Ontario's proposed legislation, now before the legislature.

Consisting of amendments to the Corporation and Securities Acts, it would:

Set - up tougher requirements for the filing of prospectuses by new companies;

—Require fuller and more frequent financial reporting by companies for their shareholders;

—Crack down on so-called insider trading, where an executive uses information not available to the public to make a personal profit;

—Widen the powers of the Ontario Securities Commission, especially in the broad field of potential regulation of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Compared with the Ontario proposals, some of the provinces' present regulations appear slim, although spokesmen say they meet the provincial needs.

In Saskatchewan, for example, a company wishing to sell shares in the province complies with the Securities commission, but after that there are no provisions covering financial reporting, insider trading or proxy solicitation.

Manitoba calls for annual financial statements but does not spell out minimum requirements for satisfactory disclosure.

A company operating in New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island can get by with only an annual report.

METHODS DIFFER

Even B.C., some of some of Canada's wildest stock speculation during the last year, appears to count less on the written law than Ontario does.

Attorney - General Robert Bonner says Ontario and B.C. now are as close to uniformity as two jurisdictions can get, with the exception that B.C. "is doing and securing by administrative measures many of the good results which the Ontario jurisdiction is seeking to accomplish by legislation enactment."

Ontario made it clear when it introduced the new bill produced that they were looked on as a starting point for considering uniform legislation.

"The ethical and legal problems are the same everywhere," Provincial Secretary John Yaremko said then. "The abuses could occur anywhere."

One of the strongest statements in support of uniformity comes from Attorney-General D. V. Heald of Saskatchewan.

"We are prepared to delegate our authority in the securities field to the federal government if uniform legislation is provided," he says.

"Failing such federal action, we will take as much initiative as possible to work with other provinces in securities legislation to provide such uniformity as as many provinces as possible."

He adds that securities trading doesn't stop at provincial borders.

"While liason between provincial securities commissions is excellent, it's getting almost impossible to try to operate as a province on an independent basis with other provinces with differing laws."

WANTS CENTRAL BODY

Maitland Steinkopf, Manitoba's public utilities minister, says his province has "strong feelings that Canada should have something like the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission"—a well-muscled organization set up in 1933 under Joseph Kennedy, father of the late president, to bring order out of the chaos of various state regulations.

Other provinces, however, are not so enthusiastic about federal legislation, although supporting the idea of interprovincial agreements.

"I think in Canada it would be desirable if we were to achieve uniform or nearly uniform legislation province by province," says B.C.'s Mr. Bonner.

"It's pretty obvious, however, that even with uniform legislation the administration of this legislation will vary to some extent, and for that matter not all provinces are equally involved in securities matters in the first place."

Alberta's Premier Manning says he favors uniformity. He adds that any legislation should allow for regional variations in needs.

Quebec's securities commissioner, John B. Doran, says any form of uniform legislation is desirable and aided:

"The new legislation in Ontario will make it at a wide variance with the other provinces and possibly other provinces will amend their laws."

He did not comment on possible federal action.

BACK UNIFORMITY

Leslie Curtis, Newfoundland's justice minister, says he feels uniform legislation would be good and if a satisfactory formula comes out of the federal-provincial conference "we'll probably support it."

Most businessmen back the idea of uniformity.

A. G. Thompson, head of a Vancouver investment firm and chairman of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, says he favors anything which will improve the conduct of the securities industry in the interests of the public."

In Edmonton A. K. Snell, manager of the Bongard and Co. brokerage office, says uniform legislation would be a "wonderful thing" and make the promotion of stock issues far simpler. Hugh Blair, manager of Dominion Securities (Alberta), says it would give all investors the same protection.

Saskatoon's financial community is reported to support uniformity imposed at the federal level, but in Winnipeg James A. Richardson, president of James Richardson and Sons Ltd., says he generally favors identical laws "but we don't want to see duplication of securities laws already enforced by provincial governments."

George A. Cruikshank, executive vice-president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, notes it is not clear whether Ottawa or the provinces regulate interprovincial stock transactions. "The way it is now, it's just confusion and expense."

Maj.-Gen. R. H. Keefler, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, says the Chamber feels the federal government should use its influence to "encourage the development of high and uniform standards for securities legislation and regulation in Canada."

LAWS 'OBSCURE'.

Donald MacPherson, treasurer of the Greenshields Inc. brokerage office in Montreal, says:

"We would favor uniform legislation as the Quebec acts are vague. Uniform legislation would give clarification to our obscure laws."

Investment dealer R. A. Lambert of Fredericton says he agrees in principle with Ontario's proposed legislation, "but I fear they may go too far."

"Keep the business clean, but keep out any witch-hunt. There are so many different regulations in each province it's hard to keep track of them."

Some businessmen also specifically warn against federal regulations.

Tom Elliott, manager of the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines, which deals with many mining companies going to the public for financing, says legislative control must remain with the provinces because of the separate needs and development of different areas.

Gordon Eves, president of the Calgary Stock Exchange, says blanketing federal securities legislation is not suited to Canada. The present system is better able to cope with variety in the physical make-up and the distribution of resources in Canada, he argues.

J. Ross Murray, president of the Winnipeg Stock Exchange, says that in theory uniform legislation would be wise, "but would it work in actual practice?"

Existing provincial legislation "suits the dealers," he adds.

In Montreal, lawyer R. de Wolfe MacKay suggests that more damage can be done by a profusion of corporate information than by a lack of it.

He also warns against adopting legislation too hastily.

Armed Forces Strength Still Going Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower strength of the armed forces continues its drop despite the lure of higher pay.

Total strength at the end of April, latest month for which figures are available was 107,-597. This was a drop of 408 in a month despite re-engagement bonuses announced in February and across-the-board pay increases promised for October.

The exodus increased to 408 in March from the 282 in February—the month in which the re-engagement bonuses were announced — but was only half what it was in January.

Number of persons recruited by the armed forces in March was 927 compared with 1,002 the previous month and 791 in March, 1965.

Defence Minister Hellyer has conceded that the manpower strength of the services may fall to approximately 100,000, or 23,000 fewer than when he took over the portfolio. The reduction to 110,000 was intentional

British Writer Says Chinese Look Happy But Subject To Complete Dictatorship

Frank Tuohy, 41, is a British writer who has lived in Poland and Brazil and now is professor of English at Waseda University in Japan. Recently he has been in Communist China, and brought out this uncensored report on life there.

By FRANK TUOHY

PEKING (AP) — This is my first visit to China and I am surprised to see so many happy-looking people. Yet the Chinese are subjects of one of the most complete dictatorships the world has ever known.

Take a Sunday afternoon on Tien An Men Square in Peking.

There are people everywhere: Families with children in flowery quilted capes, wrinkled old men in fur hats and sheepskin coats who seem to be visiting the capital from somewhere far beyond the Great Wall, and boy and girl soldiers visibly jump down from trucks and join the throng.

For the most part it would be impossible, even for a Chinese, to tell how prosperous or how poor they are, or where they come from. This is because their outer clothing — in winter and spring, mostly padded jackets — is made of the regulation blue denim.—Every Chinese citizen gets an adequate ration of this each year.

For the girls there can be no competition about hairdos, makeup or clothes. I even saw a girls' dormitory on a university campus, a quotation from Chairman Mao Tse-tung which one of the students translated as: "Girls must work hard and not decorate themselves."

Rarely do you see two lovers wandering hand in hand into a dark corner. Here a Chairman Mao may not seize.

A recent play, Women Fliers, produced by the cultural troupe of the political department, Chinese air force, tells of a girl cadet whose boy friend tries to make her quit school after one of her comrades suffers a fatal accident. Her mind is in a turmoil: She begins to have difficulties in landing her plane evenly.

The political commissar says, "We must give her a lesson in class consciousness. It is obvious that her boy friend is trying to influence her with bourgeois individualistic ideas and drag her over to his side. We must counter this."

In the end she gives up her boy friend, and lands her plane evenly. All the other girls applaud happily; She has restored the world of Chairman Mao.

No kissing takes place in the four films I have seen in China. All the heroines were sexless, breastless and sterile; their energies were fixed on the brigade, and their love on Chairman Mao.

China's principal birth control technique is to discourage marriage before the age of 25.

ART EMASCULATED

Present-day China is belittling physical love and despising the works of the creative imagination. Private feelings are canalized all into public displays of aggression. The party's attitude to love and art is turning China into a desert place, even though her communes flourish and the greatest part of her population is better off than it has ever been.

The vast majority of people seem to be getting the life they want, and they are told of no other.

Without the machinery of the modern world, people themselves move faster: Children tidying up the streets, students planting trees, teams of women transplanting rice in the paddy fields, militia on the march. Everyone knows that not a minute can be wasted.

Out in the country a production team comes striding past—young girls in blue shirts and pants carrying mattocks and shovels. They have not seen me, they are not posing for photographs; but they are laughing and singing.

In the past three years some of the age-old food problems have been, at least temporarily, resolved. Only rice is rationed.

POVERTY CONTROLLED

Though China's living standards are far behind those of the West, few people today look hungry. Though clothes are uniform and often patched, you see few people in rags.

A key idea is "self-reliance" — the notion that the Chinese can do things by themselves.

This confidence has been the great source of Chinese energy.

"Self - reliance" is a belief which has risen out of a desire to reject Western influences completely.

One Western contribution, even the Chinese will admit, is vital to the new China. That is Western medicine. In country districts, nurses visit every community, and the headquarters of every commune has a clinic offering both Chinese and Western treatments, the latter predominating. True success in this field has been preventive medicine and hygienic control.

Surely, I kept thinking as I saw these giant steps in the right direction, the Chinese have cause for self - congratulation. Surely they must sometimes give themselves a pat on the back.

But I was wrong.

Any Chinese you ask will say that these achievements have a single source: Mao's life and published works.

Ont. Water Resources to Build And Maintain Disposal Plant

CAMPBELLFORD — The much discussed sewage disposal plant for the town of Campbellford finally came to a decision on Monday evening.

The entire council with the exception of Deputy Reeve Locke were a delegation calling on various government departments in connection with the project. Meeting with the O.M.B., the O.M.A. and O.W.R. The delegation asked that the ban on sewer construction, which has been in effect since 1964 be lifted so that residential construction could begin.

Due to the high debenture debt the council could not borrow $400,000 for the construction of a sewage disposal. This was a decision by the O.M.B. and the council has been aware of this situation for some time but went ahead with considerable delay for survey purposes.

PAY RENT

In view of the fact that high debenture indebtedness prevented the outlay of such a large sum the other alternative was to allow the O.W.R. to build and maintain the plant on a 40-year basis and for which the corporation would pay rent. The rate construction has been tentatively set as an additional $4.20 on the average water bill.

The local municipal council has no control over the rates which may be raised as often as the O.W.R. sees fit to do so and the plant will never be owned by the municipality. A plan to take care of a population of 5,000 people is the present plan.

They were advised if they did not go ahead with the plan now it would be mandatory in two years or less.

Council voted by resolution to accept the O.W.R. plan under which the O.W.R. will build and control the plant completely.

Need for Expansion Stressed At Hospital Board Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Memorial Hospital held its annual meeting on Friday evening. The former board members were all re-elected, C. H. Davidson, W. F. Scott, R. J. Locke, J. F. R. Douglas, F. S. Linton, C. A. Putnam; honorary members Mrs. Jesse Locke, A. J. Meyers and R. D. McDonald.

OVERCROWDING CONDITIONS

The main topics of discussion were overcrowding conditions and need for expansion. All private rooms have now been made semi-private, stressing the need for expansion as soon as possible.

Dr. L. D. Patterson, chief of medical staff commended the co-operation and team work at the hospital.

Mrs. W. F. Scott, president of the hospital auxiliary for many years reported the auxiliary members, since the hospital opened in 1953 the auxiliary has contributed $45,721 to the Board and the 1966 contribution was $3,000.

ADMINISTRATORS REPORT

S. N. Carr hospital administrator stated that considerably more patients had been treated this year, and cited the rapid growth of the hospital. Mr. Carr in reporting for the financial affairs said that in spite of every dollar goes for wages and salaries.

Revenues was up about 10 per cent in 1965 over the 1964 income.

TRIAL DATE SET

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Trial date has been set as June 13 for Ronald Ivan MacDonald, charged with impersonating another man during the almost three years he spent on the psychology faculty of Lakehead University. He is accused of impersonating Dr. D. R. MacDonald, a professor at the University of Missouri.

Tax Rate to Increase 4.5 Mills

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual budget was set for the town of Campbellford on Monday evening. Most council budgets were up from last year. The raise in taxes is 4.5 mills to bring the commercial rate to 120.6 and residential 108.5. Clerk E. M. Ibey questioned council members no commities is a separate entity, and should one committee have a surplus from the budget, the surplus should not be spent by another. He said it also should be held in reserve as some other committee might find their budget not sufficient. The municipal council as a whole should live within its means. The same economic budgeting should be employed by a municipal council as an individual would use.

The High School Board in their budget asked for $17,500 as a reserve fund. The budget without the reserve was down.

ACCEPTS FIGURE

The council after first having objected the idea of the $17,500 reserve at a special meeting accepted the idea. The Campbellford Public School Board has added 6 mills to their levy because of amalgamations with Seymour Township School Board.

The welfare budget has increased enormously, set at $120,000 last year, it is now almost $23,000 and the estimate for 1966 was set at more than $30,000. Recovery through grants is 80 per cent which leaves the amount required by levy at $6,500.

Road and Bridge is the highest on record $46,000 but because of increases in the road subsidy the mill rate will not be adversely affected.

INDUSTRIAL BUDGET

The industrial budget was set at $1,400 and the legal at $750. both the same as last year.

Increases in police salaries amounted to an increase of about $2,000 to bring the total budget to $23,900. The Property Committee budget is increased by an estimated $500 for garbage collection and the Finance Committee increased from $24,705 in 1965 to $26,600 in 1966.

All budgets considered, the mill rate has been increased by 4.5 mills and Clerk E. M. Ibey warned council that with the building program as anticipated the mill rate next year would be much increased. Due to the decision of the public school by fire, of necessity a new school must be constructed.

S. A. Opens Red Shield Campaign

CAMPBELLFORD — The Salvation Army Red Shield Campaign began on Monday in the Campbellford area. Lieut. Fayn Brown of the Salvation Army work in Campbellford is in charge. The objective this year is about the usual amount $2,500.

Local chairman of the campaign this year is E. W. Weaver, treasurer manager of the Royal Bank, Mr. E. W. Salkeld. The campaign will be conducted during the month of May, a house to house canvass will be made in the town and generally also in the surrounding rural area.

Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion in Campbellford has offered to assist.

summed up the federation's frustration when he told delegates:

"All of the issues which have been before us for 20 years will again be considered.

"It is a sad reflection upon man's ability to achieve even his most clearly defined aims that we should be confronted with a world food situation which is a grave concern and with so much unfinished work.

FRESHEN OUTLOOK

Other speakers, from prosperous and poor nations alike, reiterated the need for a fresh look at the problems of food production distribution and consumption.

James Patton, an outspoken American and former federation president, castigated the governments of wealthy western nations for being "hawks" on the question of international food programs and aid to underdeveloped countries.

Dr. B. R. Sen, an Indian who is director-general of the UN's food and agriculture organization was more diplomatic but he stressed that the gap between "haves" and "have-nots" is widening.

DOCTORS' POLICY WINS

EDMONTON (CP)—Doctors' house calls in Alberta decreased 28 per cent between 1960 and 1964, says Dr. W. G. McPhail of Medical Services Inc. He attributes the decline to doctors' "educating" patients not to request a house call except in emergency.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — The Council at the regular meeting on Monday evening agreed to the purchase of land, part of lot 9, concession 6, known locally as the island by a group of Toronto men for the sum of $5,000. The company, not yet incorporated, plan to build a large motel hotel building at approximately $300,000.

Donald Tucker of Stirling was engaged by council as animal control officer, making 24 hours per week. The by-law now in force states, dogs must be tied from April 15th to Sept. 15th each year. Under the new by-law being prepared dogs must be tied at all times. Mr. Tucker's salary was set at $600 per annum, he is to patrol the town once a week. Dogs found running in Stirling can be reclaimed by the owner within five days at a cost of $11.00 after five days the dog is destroyed the cost to the corporation will be $7.

Mr. J. Connor, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, asked permission of council to erect a plaque on a plot at the park west side of Bridge St. commemorating the memory of the Campbell brothers, who organized a settlement in 1825 and named the settlement Campbellford. Permission was granted to do so.

Sharpe's market owner Bruce Sharpe requested that council consider the lighting on Market St. As this street has a heavy traffic the matter was referred to Mrs. Frye, Water and Light committee.

Canadian British Consulting Engineers appraised the survey of surface water control in the town at a cost not to exceed $1,200. To create proper maps it was suggested by the engineering firm that an air survey be made as well as a ground survey. The letter was received and filed.

Clerk E. A. Ibey, Welfare Officer announced that a Welfare Conference was being held in Ottawa soon and in light of the fact that drastic changes in food and welfare administration he said he would like to attend. Council voted to allow Mr. Ibey to attend conference and also Wm. Nicholls, chairman of welfare committee in council.

Constable Campbell of the local police force has resigned and is now employed in Midland. Chairman H. Donk of the police committee has advertised for a replacement.

Councillor R. Kennedy of the Fire, Water and Light committee read a letter from the Campbellford Fire Department stating they did not accept the $50. raise in pay recently granted and were asked that the raise in pay be $100 above the annual salary. The request was granted on condition that Seymour Township Council approve as the cost between the municipalities is shared on a 60-40 basis.

The low level bridge over the River in the centre of the town has been known for some time to be in an uncertain condition for heavy loads. On Monday afternoon a small division occurred and had to be repaired. The bridge is now restricted to 23 ton loads and preparations are being made to use other traffic facilities until a new bridge can be built.

Preston Hall was granted permission to establish a temporary gas depot just inside the gate to the dump provided the Department of Transport also grants approval.

Councillor Sharp asked permission to advertise for tenders for a new large truck for the town for which there is a reserve fund.

Mr. Frank Smith was refused permission to build a building on Queen St. N. for two reasons, first the building was presumed to be of summer type construction and also because of small size of lot.

Clarence Irwin offered a price of $200 for a lot on Saskatoon Ave. for which a previous offer had been made of $325. The Clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Irwin the price would be $325 and the time limit 30 days.

FISH KEEPS IT WOUND

VICTORIA (CP)—Bill Botykos has a fish story which will stand the test of time. Fishing in the Alouette River near Haney, 30 miles east of Vancouver, he caught two steelhead trout. The seven pounder, when opened, had a sealer inside. It was still ticking. Botykos insists.

went as far as he could to help exports without running afoul of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

No such "premium" concessions are provided for the service industry, under which Callaghan listed stores, barbers and hairdressers, photographic goods, entertainment, banking and insurance—but not, for instance, newspapers which come under manufacturing.

APPLIES TO HOUSING

A shock aspect was that construction employers — struggling to meet a serious housing shortage—also will pay the job-tax without getting a refund.

For a third group comprising workers in local government, nationalized industries and transport, the tax will be refunded and also—as far as practical—in agriculture. The farmers' refund will become part of an annual price-support review.

On another front, Callaghan announced that an import surcharge, imposed during the 1964 crisis of the pound sterling, will end in November.

It started at 15 per cent, went down to 10 per-cent and recently has been a bone of contention between Britain and its trading partners in the European Free Trade Association. The surcharge tends to protect inefficient British industries.

Callaghan, making his budget speech just 23 days after Prime Minister Wilson's government came steam-rollering back to power in a general election, said his primary aim is to correct a bias in the tax system.

Services, including distribution, so far have been leniently taxed compared with manufacturing, which has borne the brunt of purchase and excise taxes.

'POLITICALLY CUNNING'

One television commentator, describing it as a "politically cunning budget," said the advance knowledge that the surcharge vanishes in November will mean that importers will hold off until then, perhaps easing Britain's serious balance-of-payments situation.

Manufacturers, mean awhile, would be forced to "save" their premiums until next February, thus taking a large chunk of purchasing power out of the economy and putting it in the hands of the government.

Callaghan said that during 1960-65 more than 10 per cent of the labor force increase went into manufacturing—while more than 80 per cent went into services.

He estimated the payroll tax will net added revenue of £315,000,000 ($945,000,000) in the current tax year and £340,000,000 ($720,000,000) henceforward.

The effect on the public would be comparable to increasing the sales tax—now 25 per cent—to 33 1-3 per cent, but Callaghan said he does not expect prices will be automatically increased to the full extent of the tax. Even if they were, the cost-of-living increase would be less than one per cent.

Edward Heath, Conservative Opposition leader, said the government's action in introducing a 40-per-cent corporation tax, replacing a 35-per-cent capital gains tax, will hit at industrial expansion.

CLOSES LOOPHOLES

Callaghan closed some tax loopholes. He decided to make executives pay income tax on stock options and confirmed a previous announcement of a 2½-per-cent betting tax on stakes.

All the tax changes will mean a revenue increase of £335,000,000 ($1,255,000,000) annually.

Callaghan also told the Commons the government is starting a voluntary system of limiting overseas investment. This is to help the convalescing British pound.

Callaghan said his budget would provide a surplus and might allow Britain to begin repaying its debts to the International Monetary Fund before schedule. Britain has to repay the fund and other creditors more than £900,000,000 ($2,700,000,000) between 1967 and 1970.

The money was borrowed in 1964 and 1965 to bolster the pound sterling and ease the balance-of-payments crisis.

The chancellor said total revenue in fiscal 1965-66 was £9,145,900,000 ($27,435,000,000), £119,000,000 ($357,000,000) more than forecast in the estimates. Expenditure of £8,456,900,000 ($25,368,900,000) was £28,000,000 ($78,000,000) less than forecast.

His budget Tuesday for fiscal 1966-67 gave estimated revenue as £9,838,000,000 ($29,514,000,000), an increase of £693,000,000 ($2,079,000,000), and total expenditure of £9,177,000,000 ($27,531,000,000).

Historic Changes Proposed At Anglican Synod of Huron

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Proposals of change were historic at the 107th synod of the Anglican diocese of Huron Tuesday—both within its ranks and from without.

While the group moved to amend its rigid divorce canon, the Roman Catholic bishop of London made an unprecedented appearance and disclosed plans for a synod of his own diocese.

Most Rev. G. Emmett Carter received a standing ovation from the 450 clergy and lay delegates when he became the first Roman Catholic ever in address the Anglican synod.

Bishop Carter said his diocese is planning the first Catholic synod in North America—and possibly the world—to encompass the Anglican practice of full representation of the laity.

"This moment is thrilling," he said. "It represents a trend which will continue around the world."

Meanwhile, delegates voted to accept in principle their national body's proposal for a new church law which provides for remarriage of divorced persons.

However, they also voted to recommend to the general synod that the provision be based on civil court decision. The canon had set the church's own conditions for divorce and suggested ecclesiastical tribunals to study applications for remarriage.

The Huron diocese is one of the first in Canada to discuss and act upon the proposed canon which already had been approved once by general synod. It must be approved again, without major change, by the 1968 general synod before it can become church law.

Delegates also approved, as a centennial project, a $250,000, 30-bed home for unwed mothers in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

Sharpest criticism of the day came from Archdeacon Alford Abraham of Lambton who said the Anglican Church "is building a growing bureaucracy" at its national department of information in Toronto.

He said the department's 1966 budget was $294,850 and it is asking $327,430 for 1967.

"What good or evil does this department do for the diocese of Huron?" he said. "This is a salutary word of warning which I hope will find an echo in your hearts."

The sessions conclude today.

Moscow Paper Says Jets Hit North Viet Nam Homes

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Russian Army newspaper Red Star said today American bombers had devastated residential districts of Nam-Dinh, North Viet Nam's third largest city and the country's textile centre.

The newspaper's Hanoi correspondent, Yury Yukhanasov, who visited the Hongha River Delta city with a population of some 50,000 soon after the raid, reported that civilian casualties were high.

The U.S. planes dropped 500- and 1,000-pound bombs "not on military and not even on industrial targets, but on blocks of apartments," he wrote.

He said many victims, including children who had been at home while their parents were at work, were buried among the ruins. The bombers came back five times in all, he quoted local eyewitnesses as saying.

During the last two or three weeks, Yukhanasov added, densely populated districts all over North Viet Nam had been bombed and strafed repeatedly.

Resignations Mount in U.S. Govt. as Pace Heightens

WASHINGTON (CP) — The latest dropouts from the United States power apparatus indicate an unprecedented consumption of manpower.

President Johnson is losing his 18th and 19th personal assistants —he has about a dozen — while taking office in November, 1963.

Thomas Mann, No. 3 in the state department, has resigned on health grounds and George Ball, No. 2, is believed to have submitted his resignation after five years on the hot seat.

This does not mean the government is collapsing. Some of the attrition simply reflects the transition from the late president Kennedy's New Frontier to the Great Society of President Johnson.

But there is no doubt a hard-driving, tireless and objectionable president, combined with world events and domestic problems spell unprecedented physical and mental pressures for the men at or near the top.

Rarely if ever before in the U.S. have the levers of the power structure been concentrated so few hands or manipulated so finally.

President Johnson's band of helpers consider routine a work week of six days 12 to 16 hours daily, with a half-day thrown in frequently Sundays.

The state department can equal that pace depending on just what part of the globe is currently erupting.

In the third year of the Johnson reign, the president, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, Vice - President Hubert Humphrey, Ball, Deputy Defence Secretary Cyrus Vance and a presidential aide, Bill Moyers, are the hard core of the establishment.

Both McNamara and Rusk have been on the job since 1960 without much break and each seems to thrive on more work. However, there have been signs of stress as when McNamara recently snapped angrily at a press questioner regarding possibilities American troops in Europe would be tapped for Viet Nam. McNamara said no and then 15,000 "specialists" were diverted.

McGeorge Bundy, from Kennedy's time a key international adviser, is gone to head the Ford Foundation. Jack Valenti, closest personally to President Johnson, is leaving to be president of the Motion Picture Association of America.

In fact, the high-salaried positions seemingly available to dent insiders is a sign that fatigue does is not the only answer to the turnover.

Howard Hughes Sells Shares for $550 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Industrialist Howard Hughes divested himself Tuesday of his controlling interest in Trans World Airlines.

The 6,384,937 shares owned by Hughes Tool Co. were sold in a public offering at $86 a share. It was expected to gross Hughes about $550,000,000.

TUESDAY, May 3, 1966

The minority Liberal government survived a non-confidence vote in the Commons 133 to 106. The vote was on a Conservative motion criticizing Prime Minister Pearson's handling of the Gerda Munsinger file.

Mr. Pearson denied the statement in the Conservative non-confidence motion that he asked the RCMP to investigate the past conduct of MPs generally.

He said he asked for information the force had gathered on contacts between MPs and "dubious criminal elements."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's statement "bears only a distant relationship to the truth."

Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons the government will keep 3% housing loans at the same level as 1965 but cannot make up a deficiency caused by a drying up of private mortgage funds.

The National Farmers Union presented a brief to the government seeking a guaranteed minimum income on production of wheat, oats and barley and a royal commission investigation of the food industry.

Latin America Now Home of Che Guevara

ROME (Reuters)—An Italian magazine today quoted Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Premier Fidel Castro's former right-hand man who disappeared from Cuba 12 months ago, as saying he was directing guerrilla operations in five Latin American countries.

The weekly magazine Le Ore said Guevara gave the interview in the heart of South America's Andes Mountains. He predicted Latin America would be "completely Castroist" within five years.

The Argentinian-born revolutionary was last seen in Cuba in April last year. Resigning his post as industries minister and renouncing his cuban citizenship, he said he was off to flirt "fresh battles against imperialism," but his destination never has been disclosed.

Two New Moves Taken in Slander Suit

WASHINGTON (CP) — Lawyers for Eerik Heine of Toronto said Tuesday two new moves have been taken in the naturalized Canadian's $110,000 slander suit against a fellow Estonian emigre who admits having called Heine a Soviet agent.

Prentice Johnson has been asked under an official regulation to examine whether Juri Raus, the slander-suit defendant, can legally claim immunity as a U.S. Central Intelligence Agency employee.

Heine's lawyers also have taken out a subpoena for a Washington private detective, Thomas W. LaVenia.

Ernest Rashkauskas, one of Heine's lawyers, said it is believed that LaVenia was among three men who sought to question Heine's wife in Canada some weeks ago on instructions from Raus' lawyers.

Heine, 46, and Raus, 39, have been active as professed anti-Communists in North American Estonian circles and Raus' alleged slander was committed at a Nov. 9, 1963, meeting in New York.

Judge Roszel Thomsen has set May 19 for final legal argument on the government motion to dismiss the slander case.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government is discussing with the United States the case of Eerik Heine, a Canadian citizen who is suing the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for slander, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Martin told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that he would prefer to withhold any reply until the discussions are completed.

$42,000 Paid For Holstein Milking Cow

OAKVILLE (CP)—A 10-year-old Holstein milking cow sold for a world record $42,000 Tuesday at the start of the Oak Ridges dispersal sale.

Glenafton Nettie Boaheur Maud was bought by Russell Hollinger of Woodbridge, Ont., and Robert Lowe of Maple, Ont.

She belonged to the renowned Hollycrest herd of 225 head owned by R. R. Dennis of Oak Ridges, about 15 mile, north of Toronto.

A spokesman for the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada said the purchase price reflected the high quality of the offspring as breeding cattle and milkers. She was expected to produce a calf a year for the next five-or six years, he said.

Top price previously was $33,000 paid by Agro Brothers of Hamilton in 1962 for Romandale Shamrock Elsie.

FISH TRAILS LABELS

In Ontario alone, the fresh water herring has three other names: cisco, tullibee and grayback.

Crown Will Pay All Costs In Truscott Appeal Case

OTTAWA (CP)—The Crown will pay all costs involved in bringing the Steven Truscott appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, his father said Tuesday.

Dan Truscott, a warrant officer with the RCAF here, told a press conference his family is particularly grateful to Solicitor-General Pennell and the justice department in meeting the "substantial costs of presenting the case."

Steven 21, is serving a life sentence in an Ontario prison following his conviction in 1959 of the sex strangling of a 12-year-old girl near Clinton, Ont.

He was 14 at the time.

A book casting doubts on his guilt led to a country-wide debate and prompted the cabinet to order the Supreme Court of Canada to hear an appeal.

Mr. Truscott said the court "is prepared to hold its hearings as soon as all the necessary preliminaries are completed and counsel are ready to proceed."

These preliminaries included the printing of the trial proceedings—some 2,500 pages—and the taking of new evidence by the court.

It has yet to be determined how the court will hear the evidence—whether by an appointed commissioner, ' by a single judge, or by the full court.

The court has yet to hear direct evidence in its 19-year history although it is empowered to do so.

Steven's lawyers and the Ontario attorney-general's office are to make submissions to the court as to what new evidence they wish to present.

Mrs. Truscott said Toronto lawyers Arthur Martin and E. R. Jolliffe will represent Steven at the appeal.

A court spokesman said Tuesday the case could be heard in June if the lawyers are ready to proceed. The court now is finishing its spring session and the Truscott appeal will be given priority.

BUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss: -

Down here in metro Zwick's Island (that's the newest fad, any community with a population of five plus and a suburb of three minus can dub itself "metro") the word from the pickerel mob has it that the union has decided not to co-operate with such gimmicks as fish derbies come the middle of the month.

Reports have it that the wall-eye fraternity is holding back for a year in order to take full part in "Aspirin 67" said to be a week-long dore hunt in honor of noble ancestors who fell to the bamboo-bent pin fishowns weaponry of the early Wallens who thrashed the waters while the country's fathers were trying to wrap up Canada in some kind of a whole.

However, boss, I hear there is dissension in the ranks. Quite a number of the rebels who haven't been exactly living the life of piscatorial Rileys are complaining of the food. They figure a man-made meal or two will be a pleasant diversion from the slim pickin's offered around Hay Bay, West Lake, Shannonville, Napanee, the Bay of Quinte and other common lunching areas.

Quite a few will cross the pickerel lines come Derby Day when the man-made bore-drawers are dredged under their snouts. Nor has the threatened strike caused any headaches among the genizy behind the derbies.

If other years can be judged a criterion a large influx of Pickerel Price and whalers will converge on the Bay of Quinte waters from as far away as the USA, Montreal with the possibility of a couple of U. S. gunboats to leave from Viet Nam, taking in the dore party being staged by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the Quinte Isle Tourist Association.

Phil Dodds, my old sucker-spearing buddy from Cherry Valley and the demon pabliclity man for the Derby tells me that starting Friday, May 20 and continuing until Monday May 23rd at two o'clock, the sponsors are dangling $1,000 in prizes for pickerel and northern pike under the noses of what is hoped to be a record entry of fishers.

The Derby is not, it seems a home-town affair. Fishermen from the faraway places not as well versed in the habitats of the wily dore stand an equal chance to win a top prize.

There are two first prizes each a handsome Johnston outboard motor. One will go to the fisherman hauling in the largest pickerel and who gets his haul in the counties Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland or Lennox and Addington counties. The other top award will go to the fisherman with the largest dore catch who hails from outside the abovementioned counties.

There's a spinning outfit for the lady who comes up with the largest pickerel and a rooster fee the guy or gal who hauls in the smallest of the species.

And don't throw away that pike whether he's a lunker or just a reasonable facsimile. It could be worth fifty bucks in cash.

Or if you happen to haul in a half dozen smaller pickerel fry, keep track of them. There's a spinning outfit going to the guy with the highest total weight of fish caught during the four-day session.

Potential entries will be able to get in a lot of practice runs over the various courses for the pickerel season in the Bay of Quinte and Prince Edward county lakes a few days earlier, by the way, if they're so inclined.

The season opens in all adjoining counties on May 7 through March 31st with the exception of Lennox and Addington which gets under way May 14th. Pike is the thing in Hastings, Prince Edward, and the Bay of Quinte from May 7th through March 31. In Lennox and Addington, Renfrew and Frontenac and Northumberland it is May 14 to March 31st.

And if you're a muskie lover you can start going for the big boys on June 18th to November 30 in all adjoining counties.

Suns Blank Toronto Twice

Jacksonville Suns haven't been hitting the ball too well, but with their pitching staff who needs it?

The International League Suns defeated their parent New York Mets of the National League 2-0 in exhibition play Monday without getting a hit, while pitcher Galen Cisco gave up only two hits.

Three Jacksonville pitchers combined to shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 10-0 and Tuesday night while managing 11 hits.

The Leafs managed only three hits off Ron Nischwitz and Jerry Johnson is the opener and touched Dick Rusteck for four hits in the nightcap.

"Not Crozier's Fault" ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Never Looked Back

Flying Canadiens Crush Wings 5-1

By GARY McCARTHY

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens are only one game away from winning their second consecutive Stanley Cup and their seventh in 11 years.

The Canadiens, who at one point trailed 2-0 in the best-of-seven final round against Detroit Red Wings, downed the Wings 5-1 Tuesday night to move ahead 3-2 in the series.

A victory for the Canadiens in the scheduled sixth game in Detroit Thursday night would give them the coveted trophy for the second year in a row and also their 12th cup since the 1923-24 season.

The defending champions came out flying against the Red Wings Tuesday, shooting, checking and outshooting the Wings in two of the three periods.

They fired a total of 33 shots at Detroit netminder Roger Crozier while the Red Wings could only come up with 21 shots at Gump Worsley.

Montreal led 13-8 in shots at the end of the first period and outshot Detroit 15-5 in the second period, but Wings came back to outshoot Montreal 8-5 in the third.

Detroit coach Sid Abel elected to go with Crozier in the nets, rather than substitute netminder Hank Bassen, despite the fact that Crozier picked up a severe knee and ankle sprain in the fourth game in Detroit Sunday.

Abel said after the game that he will call on Crozier again Thursday despite the loss, because "it wasn't Roger's fault."

The Canadiens scored twice in the opening period to lead 2-0 and were ahead 4-1 after two.

The Montreal marksmen were Claude Provost, Ivan Courtoyer, Dave Balon, Bobby Rousseau and Dick Duff. Norm Ullman accounted for Detroit's lone marker.

A good number of the 15,017 screaming, cheering hometown fans had now got settled in their seats when the Canadiens scored their first goal.

Crozier got off to a shaky start as Provost's second play-off goal at 1:06 was fired from a bad angle from the side of the net, but still managed to break in past the netminder's right pad.

The Canadiens continued to pour it on but they didn't get their second goal until Paul Henderson was given an interference penalty at 18:07. At 19:21 Courtoyer, Montreal's power-play expert, had his second goal of the playoffs.

WHIRLED AND SCORED

The fifth right winger took a pass from defenceman J. C. Tremblay 10 feet in front of the net, whirled and backhanded the puck into the lower right hand corner.

Balon whipped the puck between Crozier's pads at 1:05 of the second period after the diminutive goaltender had made a good stop on Leon Rochefort's 40-foot shot from the right side.

Rochefort and Henri Richard drew assists on the play, and the trio which Montreal coach Toe Blake threw together for the third game in Detroit continued to be a threat throughout the contest.

Rousseau scored his fourth goal of the playoffs at 11:22. Skating across the goalmouth attempting to control a pass from Dick Duff, he finally managed to get the puck flat and backhanded it in.

Ullman's goal came exactly two minutes later when he whacked Henderson's rebound behind Worsley, who had sprawled to make a good save on the original shot.

Canadiens continued to press in the opening minutes of the final period and Crozier had to be sharp to stop Gilles Tremblay's hard rising shot near the three-minute mark.

WORSLEY SPRAWLED

The Red Wings got a break a few minutes later when Worsley was sprawled in the crease and the puck trickled loose and was headed for the empty net.

However, Duff came up with the puck just inches away from the goal line and fed a pass to Richard who carried to the Detroit blueline and dropped it back for Duff.

Duff cut around defenceman Bill Gadsby and scored on a backhand shot to open the scoring in the game.

Referee John Ashley had a comparatively quiet game to handle, calling only 10 minor penalties, six against Detroit.

Rally Reaches Half-Way, 27 Out

By WALTER HAYES

WINNIPEG (CP)—The 4,000-mile Vancouver - Quebec City car rally reached the halfway point Tuesday night with 23 of the original 46 starters eliminated—victims of dust, rough roads and the dreaded Prairie gumbo.

Only 37 cars left the start here shortly after midnight today to begin the fourth day of the six-day rally—an 1814-hour run to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Only five leading cars all were penalty-free Tuesday.

The Ford-Lotus Cortinas continued to hold down first and second individual places and first among the two teams left in the rally. Two other teams dropped out earlier.

Paul MacLennan, a Toronto firefighter and his co-driver John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., were leading with 12 penalty points. Their teammates Peter Clark of London, England, and Robin Edwardes of Fabreville, Que., were second with 37 points.

The third member of the Cortina team—Erich Wetzer, of Toronto and Brent Davies of Erindale, Ont., held down 11th spot to give the team a substantial lead over the three-car team of Fiat 850 coupes.

The leading privately - entered car, a Volvo driven by Ewen Graham and Henry Acheson of Calgary, was third overall with 41 points.

Rosemary Smith, a Dublin, Ireland, dress designer competing in her first Canadian rally, was lying fourth over-all with 43 points.

Her Sunbeam Imp is being co-driven by Ann Coombe of Toronto.

Lying fifth was Scott Harvey of Detroit and Mike Kerry of Toronto in a Barracuda with 99 points against them.

A Falcon driven by Gene Henderson of Dearborn, Mich., and Doug Gallop of Toronto was sixth over - all and second among the private entries with 133 points.

The third place private entry was 385-pound Gilles Vincent of Montreal driving a Mustang with John Catto of Ottawa. They had 208 points.

Commercial League Has Six Entries

League president Ross Empey announced yesterday that the Belleville Commercial Softball League will have six entries for the 1955 season.

At the entry deadline meeting this week, City Hotel, Lightfoot Construction, Point Anne Cementmen, Black Diamond Cheese; Belvedere Hotel and Stewart Warner "signed up" for the coming season. All are returnees from last year.

The schedule will open on Tuesday, May 24, with City Hotel playing at Point Anne.

City Hotel won the league pennant last year and Point Anne captured the playoff championship.

The league announced this morning that two nights per week, each Monday and Wednesday, will be used at the floodlighted Alemite Field. These games will start at 8.30 p.m.

President Empey said that the loop has also been given two nights per week at Prince Charles School, one night at King George School and one either at the CNRA Park or the Prodoncrest Diamond. Point Anne diamond will also be used for that club's home games. Daylight games will start at 6.30 p.m.

A complete 20-game schedule is expected shortly.

Rejects Players' Request

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's American League has rejected the request of the Major League Players' Association for $150,000 to pay for the expenses of its executive director and his office.

The National League also has turned down the request for the money, to come from the players' pension fund, to pay for the services of Marvin Miller.

The players indicated earlier that if the major leagues decided not to appropriate the requested sum they would pay for it themselves.

Miller, 48, an assistant to the president of the United Steelworkers of America, was elected to the $50,000-a-year post by the players.

Abel Hopes To 'Regroup'

"Couldn't Beat Girl's Team"

By BOB BELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal coach Toe Blake frees Detroit Red Wings will have a tough time healing the Canadiens, while his opposite number Sid Abel hopes his team will "regroup" for the sixth game of the finals in Detroit Thursday.

"We've got a good skating team and it's going to be pretty hard for them to come back," Blake said in the Montreal dressing room after his club defeated the Wings 5-1 to take the lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final series.

"We never chased them all night, in fact we wouldn't have played if a girl's team tonight. We must have left our skates in Detroit," Abel told reporters in the quiet of the dressing room.

Jean Beliveau, Montreal's giant team captain who turned in a sparkling performance at centre to earn the games first star, said the Canadiens' victory was a team effort.

"When you go this far, it has to be a team effort."

Beliveau, the last Canadien to leave the dressing room, said that after the Canadiens fell behind 2-0 in the series the players did a lot of thinking.

"But then you play them one at a time and just do your best."

RICHARD HURT

Canadien centre Henri Richard, who played with a bandage and strap on his knee, but well enough to earn a place on the three stars of the game, said he aggravated an old knee injury when he was checked into the boards by Detroit's Leo Boivin in the first period. He said he won't know if the knee is badly injured until some time today.

Detroit's big Gordie Howe had little to say after the game, but when he was approached by a young autograph seeker sporting a heavy bandage over his eye Howe said to him "Hey, what happened to you. You couldn't have got that playing. We hit too easy." Howe signed the youngster's program as he walked to the waiting bus.

Other Detroit players reflected Howe's sentiments, but were optimistic about the next game.

"Don't count us out," Andy Bathgate said. "We'll be back here Saturday," he added as he strolled over to talk with goalie Roger Crozier who was struggling to escape from the bandages that covered his left leg from ankle to thigh that revealed a sprained left knee and twisted ankle suffered in Sunday's fourth game at Detroit.

"I felt okay in the warmups and I told the coach I could play," Crozier said. "Hook, there is no sense in second guessing at this time of the year.

"No, the leg didn't bother me in the game, only the tape did. In fact one leg felt shorter than the other."

Defenceman Bill Gadsby figured that Montreal forward Dave Balon-Cheboski star parmia. Miss Burka has been skating was the difference. "Balon was competitively since she was on fine right at the last. My leg and seven. She has been coached comes back 10 seconds later during her entire career by her and drills one at my wrists," mother, Mrs. Elner Burka, a Gadsby said jokingly as he former Dutch women's national pointed to bruises on his arm titleholder who has been teaching and leg.

Gadsby was referring to a power play attempt by the Canadiens in the second period when Cournoyer, leading the attack, let two slap shots go from the blue line that hit Gadsby while he drifted back to protect his net.

Gump Worsley, who made 39 saves in the Montreal nets, said his toughest shot of the night came from Norm Ullman, the lone Detroit goal-getter.

Ullman took a rebound from Paul Henderson and was about in front of Worsley, who made a pad save on Ullman's first attempt.

"But then he shot it back and flipped it over me," Worsley said as he slowly drank his usual after-game cup of tea and puffed on a cigarette.

"I only know that we got five and they got one, right Doc?" asked Just 34 hits and no runs.

Tribe's Tiant Has Third Shutout In Row

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Luis Tiant has lost his paunch and now he's robbing American League hitters of their stench.

Tiant's third straight shutout, a 1-0 four-hitter against New York Yankees Tuesday night, left Cleveland Indians right-handed with a string of 27 scoreless innings and a 0.00 earned run average.

The Cuban pitcher credits his success to a slender waistline.

Luis had a 10-4 rookie record in only 24½ months when he came up in 1964. Then he fell off to 11-11 last year. Birdie Tebbetts, the Indians' manager, decided excess weight was Tiant's problem.

"I lose 20 pounds," said Tiant. "I eat no fried foods, no potatoes, no soda, not too many beers. I weigh 181 now. I'm feeling better."

American League hitters have managed a mere 14 hits against Luis in his three starts.

HAVE FIVE SHUTOUTS

His third straight shutout was the fifth this season for the Indians and lowered the team's collective earned run average to a microscopic 1.41.

Tiant's job was one of four top pitching efforts in the American League Tuesday night. Detroit Tigers' Mickey Lolich hurled a five-hitter in shutting out Boston Red Sox 8-0, Phil Ortega and Casey Cox combined to blank Baltimore Orioles 3-0 for Washington Senators and Camilo Pascual's four - hitter paced Minnesota Twins to a 4-2 decision over Chicago White Sox. California Angels downed Kansas City Athletics 6-2 in the other game played.

Tiant got the run he needed on three seventh inning singles, the last by his catcher, Joe Azcue.

It was the third shutout loss in the last five games for the Yankees.

Lolich, who struck out nine, was locked in a scoreless duel for five innings with Boston's Jose Santiago. But the Tigers exploded for six runs in the sixth and Lolich breezed after that.

Norm Cash hammered three hits, including a two - run homer, for Detroit.

Baltimore's 10-game winning streak came to an end with Ortega and Cox combining for a five-hitter. Ortega worked the first seven innings before leaving with a pulled muscle in his right shoulder and Cox finished up.

Frank Howard whacked a two-run homer for the Senators.

Zoilo Versalles' three - run homer gave Pascual his victory over the White Sox. Chicago had tagged him for three hits and a pair of first inning runs, but the veteran right-hander allowed just one more hit and retired 26 of the last 27 batters he faced.

Tony Oliva had a first inning homer for Minnesota.

Bob Rodgers' three - run double helped California build an early lead against the Athletics. The Angels made the most of seven walks and eight hits off Jim (Catfish) Hunter and two relievers.

Whips Dodgers 8-1

Marichal Breezes To Fifth Victory

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The moment of truth was just another filing for Juan Marichal that lasted nine innings too long for Los Angeles Dodgers.

Marichal, San Francisco Giants' right hander, confronted by the Dodgers for the first time in regular - season play since his bat-swinging brawl with catcher John Roseboro last fall, tamed them on four hits Tuesday night as the Giants rolled to an 8-1 victory.

Backed by Willie McCovey's three-run homer off Don Drysdale and a four-run seventh-inning, Marichal breezed to his fifth straight complete - game triumph this season and beat the Dodgers for the 13th time in 11 decisions at Candlestick Park.

The victory moved the Giants past Los Angeles into second place in the National League race.

Marichal, fined $1,750 and suspended for 11 days after clubbing Roseboro with a bat last Aug. 22, passed the initial test without incident.

Roseboro got one of the Dodgers hits.

PIRATES SHADE REDS

Elsewhere, first place Pittsburgh Pirates shaded Cincinnati Reds 5-4 in 12 innings on Don Clendenon's second two-run homer of the game. Atlanta Braves edged Philadelphia Phillies 9-8 in 10 innings, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed new York Mets 5-2 and Houston Astros mauled Chicago Cubs 10-2.

McCovey homered in the fifth inning, giving Marichal all the cushion he needed, and drove in another run in the seventh. Pinch - hitter Orlando Cepeda singled home two runs in the seventh-inning uprising.

Willie Mays had a single in four trips, falling again to hit the home run that will establish a National League record. Mays tied Mel Ott's career mark of 512 homers April 24 and hasn't driven in a run since then.

Clendenon's second homer off Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis, lifted the Pirates past the Reds in the 12th and enabled them to stay one-half game up on San Francisco. The winning blow, following a single by Jim Pagliaroni, snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Pirates took a 3-2 lead in the eighth on Clendenon's first two-run blast but Cincinnati tied it in its half on a run-scoring single by Mel Queen.

SINGLES SOME WINNER

Felipe Alou, whose three-base error on a fly ball helped Philadelphia to three runs and an 8-6 lead in the eighth, singled home the winning run with two out in the 10th.

Gary Geiger, who had homered earlier, sent the game into extra innings with a two-run triple in the Braves' eighth, tying it 8-8.

Relievej Al Jackson, a former Met, set down all 12 batters he faced to nail the Cardinals' victory over New York.

The astros won their third straight as Lee Maye pounded his third homer in three games, for Morgan drove in three runs with a homer and single and the Cubs contributed five unearned runs by committing four errors.

Handgun League Champions

The Quinte Handgun League wound up its indoor season last night by declaring individual champions.

Meanwhile, the Quinte Marksmen defeated Trenton 1238 to 1166 in a team shoot.

Labatts individual trophies were presented to Frank Allin in the masters classification, to Reg Sprackett, expert, to Louis Kulcsar, sharpshooter, and Ian Finnigan, marksman.

In the team shoot, Frank Allin and Reg Sprackett tied for top score with 281. Allin got top spot with the tie settled by counting the most tens in a target.

Other Quinte high scorers were Don Wilson 259, Louis Kulcsar 243 and Dick Charlton 236.

Canadiens, European Games Out

MONTREAL (CP)—There is almost no possibility of games between Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and teams from Eastern European countries during the 1967 Montreal world's fair, an Expo spokesman said Tuesday.

Col. T. J. E. McClelland, Expo's director of sports activities, said: "The NHL and the Canadiens made their position clear on this last fall and I don't think there has been any change in the position of the Eastern European clubs."

The Canadiens said they would be prepared to meet European teams which met conditions laid down by the NHL.

POILE DISCUSSES JOB

MONTREAL (CP) — Bud Poile, who resigned as general manager of San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League two weeks ago, said Tuesday he will meet with Phil Putnam of Philadelphia, owner of the new National Hockey League club there. He said he will discuss the general manager's or coach's job with the new entry, which will operate at the start of the 1967-68 season.

Dancer Has Full Brother

OSHAWA (CP)—Joe Thomas, racing manager for E. F. Taylor's Windfields Farm, says a full brother to Northern Dancer has been foaled at the nearby National Stud Farm.

Thomas said the Dancer's dam, Natalma, gave birth to a colt by Nearctic Monday night. This is the first full brother to Northern Dancer, first Canadian-bred horse to win the Kentucky Derby. The Dancer also set a Derbyrecord of two minutes flat for the 1¼-mile strip in 1964.

The Dancer now is available for stud service since retiring last year from racing after injuring a leg.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—The racing records will show that more people usually means more money and Fort Erie raceway is out to prove this as its 36-day spring meet comes to a close.

There was no racing Tuesday and with four days left in the meeting, the figures show that 147,286 racing fans have crowded into the stands, 7,870 more than last year at the same time.

The raceway's mutuel handle also shows ad increase. This season, $8,269,028 has been wagered, an increase of $196,562 from last spring at the same time.

After Saturday's events the meet moves to Toronto's Greenwood Raceway next Monday.

The $10,000 Vigil Stakes, a 1 1-16-mile event for four year olds and up, will be the feature race Saturday.

TTC LOSING MONEY

TORONTO (CP)—The city's new east-west subway line is losing money, Ralph Day, Toronto Transit Commission chairman, said Tuesday. Mr. Day said he expected the Bloor-Danforth line to lose money, but that he was shocked when he saw a report that showed the TTC had a deficit of $52,435 in March the first month of service for his new line. This compared with a surplus of $431,906 in March, 1965.

Oil Kings Set To Win Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings are so closed-set on winning the Memorial Cup finals which get under way here tonight that they refuse to look at Toronto's tall buildings.

Tall buildings make them swoon.

At least, that's what team manager Bill Hunter says. The throb of the big city makes his team forget about playing hockey, he says.

"I'm sick and tired of having our boys come here and get so enthralled by the big buildings that they swoon and fall over dead. We're not gonna do it this time."

The Oil Kings face Oshawa Generals in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey championship. Game time tonight is 8 p.m. with the second game slated for Friday, the third Sunday and the fourth Wednesday. All games are in Maple Leaf Gardens.

Edmonton has represented the West in the last six national finals and has won only once—in 1963 at home. They've lost two of those cup finals here. In fact, no western team has been able to win a cup final in the East since 1948.

On the other hand, Oshawa has been in seven cup finals, emerging victorious in three. The last time they made the final was 22 years ago.

Champions of the powerful Ontario Hockey Association Jr. A series, Generals scored 134 goals in 25 playoff games to qualify for the series with 20 points.

Generals finished fourth in the nine-team OHA circuit, a performance that prompted the Oshawa arena management at that time to book other attractions for the next two weeks in the belief the team wouldn't make the finals.

With the Oshawa arena unavailable, the series was shifted here.

Allan Cup Final

Beavers Reshuffle Lineup

SHERBROOKE (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers, whose lineup is sprinkled with youthful players, will be in direct contrast with the aging Drumheller Miners when the two teams open the 1966 Allan Cup finals in Calgary Thursday.

Beavers, faced with a drastic reshuffling after the rough semi-final series with Guelph Regals that Sherbrooke won 4-2, lost three important players, including star centre Bill Draper, who topped the provincial senior hockey league scoring list for the season with 27 goals and 48 assists.

Also sidelined were hard-hitting centre Georges Guilbault and captain Rene Pepin. However, Pepin is still a possible for the Sherbrooke roster in the opening game.

The team's hopes rest mainly with Guy Black, Jean - Pierre Mallette and Raymond Fortin, all of whom were picked up from provincial senior league clubs for the playoffs.

Black played with St. Hyacinthe and finished the regular season in third spot in the scoring race. Mallette was top scorer for Victoriaville, Que., and Fortin earned laurels as a defenceman with the Drummondville, Que., Rockets.

Sherbrooke, known as a come - from - behind team, was down in the series with Guelph before coming on to take the series in six games. In the quarter-final series with Montriaburg of the Ottawa district, Sherbrooke was down and then took straight games to win the series.

The Beavers won the Bunny Ahearne tournament in European competition in Stockholm earlier this year.

One of the club's greatest assets is playing coach Georges Roy, a former veteran minor pro leaguer.

Kentucky Derby

Field Settles To 16

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The starting field for Saturday's 92nd Kentucky Derby settled to 16 today, making the $125,000-added classic the second richest in history if all go to the post.

Heading the field will be Abe's Hope, the colt that proved in the Blue Grass Stakes that Greentark was bestable, and Kauai King, sporting the best three - year - old record of the field.

If all 16 start, the Derby will gross $164,000 and offer a prize of $131,500 to the winner. Only the 1956 Derby when Needles earned $123,460 in beating 16 challengers had a bigger bankroll.

Owner Billy Reynolds has said either Beau Sub or Clear Spring will start, maybe both.

The $1,000 entry fee for Reginald Webster's Amberoid already has been paid and trainer Lucian Laurelin of Montreal pre-entered the colt for its Hambletonian.

The latest addition to the probable field is Duc D'Etaire, second by three lengths to Exhibitionist in Tuesday's Derby Trial Stakes.

Number of Matters Discussed At Recent Council Meeting

NAPANEE — No major decisions were made by Napanee Town councillors at their meeting Monday, but a number of matters of interest came up for discussion. All members were in attendance.

A. Patton, district manager of the Bell Telephone Co. was present to outline activities of the company of interest to this area, and to give any information Council might desire.

He explained clearly the reasons for long distance tolls to other communities, pointing out that rates to the co-tenner would rise according to the number of new telephones which became available through any new hook-up. Direct long distance dialing would come into effect in Napanee May 15, he announced. The Perry Telephone System had been purchased, and approximately $3,000,000 would be spent to modernize it.

The Bell Telephone Co. is looking forward to the day when all its lines will be underground, Mr. Patton said. The only thing that is holding them back is the tremendous expense. However, they are now planning to make a beginning in Napanee as soon as possible, starting on Dundas St. at West St., and continuing to the western limits of the town.

DELEGATION PRESENT

A delegation of home owners in the Clarkeville district waited on Council asking for action to be taken to reimburse them for damages done to their property from blasting in the quarries of the McFarland Construction Co. They complained that council had been of no help to them, but it was pointed out that Council had forced the blasting to stop. As for claims for damages, the householders must themselves take legal proceedings against the insurance company. Although the Councillors sympathized with their plight, it was powerless to take action.

Reports were received from the various committees, but only two were out of the ordinary. Several letters had been received complaining about dogs running at large and doing damage, and the matter was referred to the police committee to take action.

The suggestion was made that the term "dog catcher" be changed to "dog controller". The officer may not be able to catch many dogs, but by his patrolling the town he does influence owners to keep their dogs tied up or confined.

Councillor Walter Woodcock chairman of the sanitation and waste committee, brought in a report from W. J. C. Clark, manager of the disposal works. Mr. Clark reported that the coliform count of the river water just of the disposal works is very low, only 600 parts per hundred millimeters. The rate accepted by the Ontario Water Resources Commission is 2,400 parts per 100. The system to chlorinate the waste has been installed but is not yet hooked up.

Mayor Lorne Smart, on behalf of the town, congratulated Dr. Jarvess on the award they had received the previous day at the district convention and annual meeting in Perth. They had been awarded the president's trophy as the unit in the district which had the most outstanding achievements during the year.

FREE EDUCATION?

HALIFAX (CP) — Free university education may become necessary in Canada's anti-poverty program, Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen indicated Tuesday. Speaking to the Maritime Conference on Social Welfare, Mr. MacEachen said the federal government hoped its proposed Canada Assistance Plan would make possible a social welfare program "in keeping with the demands and problems of the mid-20th century."

May Soon Take Survey Of Town

DESERONTO — Deseronto may soon know just where it stands today if a proposal made by a former mayor is acted upon. A letter from Mr. Harry Sweetman read to the Town Council at its meeting Monday evening asked that Council request the department of municipal affairs to make a survey of the town. This would take in such things as population, resources, businesses and business opportunities.

A letter from the Ontario Water Resources Commission informed Council that it had advised its staff to proceed with preparation of a report regarding the water requirements of Napanee and Deseronto, which would be sent to those municipalities. Deseronto is in the throes of planning for the installation of a municipal water supply, and of sewers. The present source of the water supply is under question. Napanee uses water from the Napanee River, and has sufficient to supply Deseronto also, until such time as water from Lake Ontario can be piped in. Deseronto had requested information regarding the cost per thousand gallons of such water to the town.

PROGRESS OF CENTENNIAL PARK

Councillor Albert Marks reported on the progress of the work being done on Centennial Park. Councillor Marks is the chairman of the committee in charge of the project. The report was a favorable one, and Mayor Gerald Lott voiced his pleasure that the work was being wasted.

Two by-laws were passed, both dealing with the ever-present dog nuisance. Two steps have been taken to get these dogs off the street.

Raymond Wilson was appointed dog catcher for Deseronto. He holds a similar position in Napanee, part time.

The second by-law provided payment for certain fees for the impounding and control of dogs. If and when the owner of an impounded dog claims his pet, he must pay $5 for the first 48 hours of the dog's confinement, and $2 for each additional day.

The law permits the chief of police of a municipality to sell as impounded dog after 72 hours. If it is not claimed within four days, the municipality may have it destroyed.

Bildson Given Leave to Appeal Against Conviction

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal has granted Gerald Ivan Bildson of Kingston leave to appeal against his conviction and sentence on a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Bildson, 34, principal of MacDonald public school in Kingston, was sentenced April 13 to six months definite and eight months indeterminate on a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency through committing an indecent act.

GUELPH (CP)—Dr. W. E. Tossell, a prominent North American crop scientist has been named professor and associate dean of the Ontario Agricultural College, Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, University of Guelph president, announced Monday.

CANADA MISSING OUT AT ATLANTIC COLLEGE — Students, each from a different country, enjoy the sun outside the 14th century walls of St. Donat's Castle in Wales, home of a pioneering international school. The aim of the college is to increase international understanding. Canada is the only major country represented by the 180 pupils that has no scholarship program.

Pioneer International School Prepares Boys for University

By CAROL KENNEDY

LLANTWIT MAJOR, Wales (CP) — Atlantic College, the pioneering international school on the south Wales coast, is being deprived of a wealth of potential Canadian talent because Canada is the only major country lacking scholarship facilities among 28 now represented by the 180 pupils.

"It's a very unsatisfactory situation," said Robert Blackburn, deputy headmaster and director of studies here. "Canadians now studying at the college—planned as the first of a series of similar schools in different countries, including Canada — were all privately endowed. The British contingent, largest of all with 68, boasts 80 per cent scholarship students.

"Fees at the residential college, which prepares youths for university in their own countries in a unique international atmosphere, are £550 ($1,650) a year, rising this September to £600 ($1,800).

Blackburn said much vigorous work is being done in Canada to raise scholarship money by Senator Donald Cameron of Alberta, chairman of the Canadian Atlantic College Committee.

Cameron hopes to turn the Banff School of Fine Arts, which he founded in 1936, into Canada's equivalent of the Welsh college, but the project has stalled because Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing reported reluctance to permit more building on the magnificent site in Banff National Park. Additional building is said would be needed to house the students.

AIMS TO LIFT BARRIERS

Opened in 1962 with 50 pupils, Atlantic College was the brainchild of two distinguished men with an urge to increase understanding between nations. They were veteran educationist Kurt Hahn — founder of Scotland's Gordonstoun where Prince Philip studied and Prince Charles is still enrolled —and Sir Lawrence Darvall, former commander of the NATO defence college in Paris, who became inspired by the idea of breaking down national prejudices through working for a common international goal.

The name Atlantic College was chosen because the first students came from North America and Northern Europe in a kind of miniature Atlantic Community. Today, however, there are students from Africa, Asia and South America.

When and if the Canadian version of Atlantic College is established, it may draw a number of students from Japan, Malaysia and other far eastern lands, and will probably be known as Pacific College. Likewise the projected Scandinavian school may be called Baltic College.

Blackburn feels the oceanic symbolism is appropriate here, because the oceans of the world are "enduring highways for the exchange of human ideas between nations."

Atlantic College has achieved a high reputation in 3½ years and the staff are keenly aware the plan for an international chain rests on their success.

Inevitably with such a hard-driving program in pursuit of all-round excellence, the staff are aware of pressures on the students. But Toronto student Tom Tamblyn, in his last few months at the college before moving on to study engineering at University of Toronto or McGill, said he did not find the pace too tough and enjoyed the mixture of physical and academic activity.

Headmaster Desmond Hoare, a retired admiral and engineer, once described Atlantic College as "a long-term investment in humanity." The staff have found it immensely stimulating to see how different nationalities find common ground after initial preconceived prejudices have been broken down.

The school sets out to ensure the boys do not become estranged from their own roots. They are taught their country's history in their own language, world history in English.

Back in the 1920s, the villagers of Llantwit Major, a placid farming community midway between Cardiff and Swansea, were scandalized when Hearst brought his actress friend Marion Davies to St. Donat's. Today the castle is a source of local pride.

In 1925 Hearst spent £250,000 —the equivalent today of more than £1,000,000 — embellishing the rambling grey stone castle with marble bathrooms and fragments of old European buildings. The castle consists of a Norman keep and encircling wall around an Elizabethan manor house.

The college acquired the building only funds subscribed by private donors and various foundations. The British and Welsh governments have also contributed substantial sums.

Genevieve Bujold, named Actress of the Year in Montreal in 1964, portrays Nora, "a frolicsome little squirrel who has been pampered by her father and then treated like a doll by her husband. After eight years of marriage, she is as unaware of the realities of life as one of her children's toys." The way in which she rebels against the domination of her husband when a crisis arises has become a famous dramatic symbol of the emancipation of the "weaker sex."

Composer Igor Stravinsky Featured in CBS Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, sometimes accused of presenting the raw and cost of its subjects as if they were balanced on a scale, took an unequivocal position Tuesday night on composer Igor Stravinsky.

On the CBS special, we saw a closeup of the musician's hand as he wrote some notes. Then, actor Charles Kuralt, reading the script of David Oppenheim, "is a portrait of a man doing something that's he does better than anyone else in the world."

They may be fighting words to some, but the rest of the hour was dedicated to illustrating some characteristics of the Russian-born composer. It was not a "profile," a word so dear to the heart of television producers, nor was it a portrait. It was sort of a sketch of Stravinsky.

He now is 83, a resident of Hollywood and still composing controversial music.

The program focused at the beginning on the great musical "scandal" 52 years ago when Stravinsky's Rites of Spring, a stormy work in a revolutionary musical idiom was presented in a new kind of ballet choreographed by Nijinsky. It was the great departure from what European audiences were used to.

ASSAILED AUDIENCE

The program's photographers followed Stravinsky to the theatre in Paris where the audience reacted so violently to the piece that, as he recalled it, he arose from his seat in the center of the theatre, said "Go to hell," and left by a nearby fire exit.

Despite his years and physical infirmities, the composer recently completed a composition in still another musical language, the composition is called Variations and as both Oppenheim and Stravinsky explained — not so successfully for the musically uneducated — it is an attempt to break away from old-fashioned tonality and move into something called "serial music."

The sounds of Variations were undoubtedly as strange to some today as were those of Rites of Spring to another generation.

There was an amusing sequence in which Stravinsky takes recently when the small, frail man was to appear before a Texas college audience and was presented with a 10-gallon cowboy hat. Less successful were efforts to get Stravinsky hobnobbed by the Pope in Rome, and revisiting a rooming house in Switzerland where he wrote his first important work. It revealed little of the man or his work.

"The interest of my life, my everyday life," Stravinsky said very earnestly, "is to make, I am a maker."

Later, talking about Rites of Spring, Stravinsky admitted that there were pages of the work that he liked—"but there are pages to which I am indifferent."

Rival Economic Plans For Canada Presented By Gordon and Sharp

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says many proposals outlined in a book by Walter Gordon, former federal finance minister, are designed to reverse the trend toward foreign control of the Canadian economy.

The book, entitled A Choice for Canada, is to be published Saturday.

The newspaper describes copies of the proposals as "likely to be more controversial than the most contentious measures introduced by Mr. Gordon during his term as finance minister, from 1963 to 1965."

The Globe lists the main changes recommended in the book as:

—A cut in capital cost allowances for foreign subsidiaries;

—A withholding tax on all management and other professional fees paid to non-residents;

—Relinquishment of the tax on foreign takeovers of Canadian companies which was withdrawn after the 1965 budget;

—A provision that interest charges on new borrowings by wholly-owned foreign subsidiaries in the Canadian market would not be allowed as deductions in computing taxable income;

—Vigorous use of customs procedures to prevent imports of series from increasing imports from foreign parents;

—Full public disclosure of financial details by all large companies, including private companies;

—A stepped-up drive to expand exports and reduce imports, possibly through extension of variants of the automobile parts trade pact approach to such other industries as chemicals, industrial machinery and diesel engines;

—Early establishment of the proposed Canada Development Corp., which Mr. Gordon regards as a means of repatriating control of Canadian industry.

The newspaper says the proposals have four main aims: to persuade foreign parents to put more shares in the subsidiaries to Canadians; to reduce the current account deficit; to offset the negative effects on Canada of the U.S. balance-of-payments program, and to switch the capital inflow from equity to debt forms."

Little Changes Expected

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—"I hope this is not an exercise in futility."

It was Gordon Churchill's expression, but many other MPs had said it in other ways before the Commons ended its debate Wednesday on redistribution of Parliament's seats.

Mr. Churchill, Conservative member for Winnipeg South Centre, was not at all certain Manitoba's four-man redistribution commission will make any changes in the electoral map it has tentatively set out for the province.

The debate, cleaned up in five days, is the last provision of the so-called "non-political" redistribution in Canada's history.

The 10 Parliament-appointed commissions, one for each province, get a record of the debate and may make changes or not as they see fit.

Some MPs suggested the commissions will simply ignore their views.

WILL BECOME LAW

Either way, the new maps become law at the next general election. The Commons drops to 264 seats from 265 and Manitoba will be nicked for one seat, slipping to 13 from 14.

Eric Schryer (NDP—Spring-field), whose riding will be the one to vanish, told the Commons he had no illusions about the Manitoba commission.

He argued that the large new eastern Manitoba riding of Provencher should be left alone.

TORONTO — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp yesterday issued what he called an economic manifesto for strengthening Canada's independence.

Key planks in the manifesto, delivered in Toronto to the annual conference of the Association of Canadian Advertisers, urged that Canada should:

Reduce its dependence on massive imports of foreign capital;

Give top priority to generation of more savings in Canada and to channelling savings into productive enterprises;

Require more public disclosure of financial and business information by foreign subsidiaries;

Encourage growth of Canadian-owned international companies;

Use tax laws to encourage Canadians to invest in domestic enterprises;

Exclude foreigners from control of financial institutions, railways, airlines, newspapers and radio and television stations;

Avoid any free trade or customs union with the United States.

To strengthen industries in which Canada has some advantages in production, possibly through agreements similar to the Canada-U.S. auto pact.

Mr. Sharp's manifesto resembled as a major statement of policy, was issued a few days before publication of a new book by Walter Gordon, in which the former Liberal finance minister outlines his proposals for preserving national independence.

Many of the proposals are familiar — for example, the recommendations for cutting the capital inflow, requiring more public disclosure by subsidiaries, extension of auto-pact agreements, and preserving Canadian control of critical sectors of the economy.

Sharp, however, is strongly opposed to discriminatory measures intended to favor Canadian owned enterprises over foreign-owned subsidiaries. He said tax laws can be used to "Canadianize" foreign subsidiaries, within limits. "By this — and I want to be quite plain on this — I do not mean that foreign-owned enterprises should be taxed more heavily than Canadian owned enterprises; the purpose is not to penalize or discourage enterprise because it originates outside Canada. For a country like Canada with such a vast stake in non-discriminatory access to capital and to world markets, this would be short-sighted."

Cambodia Says U.S. Fired at Its Troops; Senator Says Bombs Rationed in Viet Nam

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (Reuters)—U.S. troops Saturday fired across the South Vietnamese border into Cambodia at Cambodian — not Viet Cong — forces.

Official sources said here today the troops on the Cambodian side were elements of the Royal Khmer (Cambodian) armed forces, provincial guards and village militia defending the frontier.

It was their return fire which was answered by the American bombardment, they added.

The U.S. military command in South Viet Nam admitted Tuesday that American troops had fired into Cambodia.

It said U.S. infantrymen fired shells Saturday across the Cai Bac River, the natural frontier about 70 miles northwest of Saigon, to silence Viet Cong mortars and automatic weapons.

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — The time-honored cure for arthritis, a warm, dry climate, was ridiculed Wednesday by Dr. John H. Bland, a University of Vermont researcher. He said there could be no basis for it to make little significant difference in arthritis, which he described as infectious.

Drug Value Not Proven House Told

TORONTO (CP)—More investigation is needed to the use of the drug LSD in the treatment of alcoholism, an official of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario said Wednesday.

H. D. Archibald, executive director, told the legislature committee on government commissions that the value of the hallucinatory drug in such treatment has yet to be proven.

A recent foundation study showed no greater improvement among alcoholics treated with LSD than among those not given the drug.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator John Williams (Rep. Del.) said today the United States is "rationing bombs" in Viet Nam.

He also charged that the administration "allowed the situation to deteriorate in Viet Nam" during President Johnson's 1964 campaign against Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater.

"Why have the American people not been told the truth about the seriousness of the situation in Southeast Asia?" Williams asked in a speech prepared for a conference of Republican women.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has denied U.S. forces in South Viet Nam face supply shortages.

Williams said that during the campaign Johnson "accused Goldwater of being a trigger-happy warmonger for proposing some of the same military steps that he took immediately after the election."

Williams did not say what Goldwater suggestions he had in mind.

Spencer's Information Points to Such a Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP security officials claim George Victor Spencer supplied photos and information to the Soviet embassy in Ottawa that could have been used for industrial sabotage or a projected clandestine espionage centre near the Canada - United States border in British Columbia.

In a 98-page document made public Wednesday night, Assistant Commissioner W. H. Kelly, RCMP director of security and intelligence, said the tasks performed by Spencer for the Russians fitted into an espionage pattern.

Spencer, 62, a former postal clrk, was found dead of natural causes in his ancouver home April 10.

The document, a transcript of evidence taken at closed hearings in Ottawa last month and a signed statement by Spencer labelled "top secret," revealed that Spencer supplied Soviet agents with films and verbal and written reports on such things as:

—Forms for sale close to the U.S. border;

—Ethnic groups in Canada and their political views;

—U.S.-Canada border crossing procedures;

—Names and dates of deceased persons on headstones in Vancouver cemeteries;

—Photos of harbour slums and the Trans-Mountain pipeline.

PLANNED NETWORK?

Assistant Commissioner Kelly testified that the RCMP believed the significance of Spencer's activities "extended beyond the question of suitable property for the establishment of a Russian intelligence service illegal network" near the U.S. border.

Spencer's data and photos of the Trans-Mountain pipeline and other things in Alberta and B.C. would "fit into Russian intelligence service sabotage requirements if and when they thought this was necessary," he said.

The Spencer case broke in May, 1965, when the government announced in Ottawa that two Soviet embassy officials had been ordered to leave Canada. Spencer was dismissed without pension at the end of 1965 after almost 30 years in his Vancouver post office job.

The affair caused a furore in Parliament and after Spencer appeared on television Prime Minister Pearson appointed Mr.

Says Car Insurance Firms Lax in Pressing for Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House of Representatives commerce committee get a chance today to question automobile safety crusader Ralph Nader about his latest charges against auto makers and the casualty insurance industry.

Because consideration of appropriations bills forced an abrupt end to Wednesday's session Nader had made his accusations.

The 32-year-old lawyer and author of the book Unsafe at Any Speed told the committee that the "auto industry's performance in safety could have been substantially improved if the casualty insurance industry had accepted its responsibilities as the policyholders and the public."

He blamed the insurance industries' alleged lack of responsibility on such things as "interlocking directorates," "insurance company - booking of auto industry quotas," and the ease with which the industry has got increases.

Nader said there was one exception, the Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., which he said has

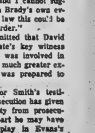
Viet Nam Tiger Lady Is Slain

SAIGON (Reuters)—A South Vietnamese army major was sentenced to life in jail today for killing his wife, Viet Nam's legendary pistol-packing "tiger lady," when she threatened him with a knife.

Maj. Le Van Dan pleaded not guilty at a military court to a charge of murdering her in November after an argument over his mistress in Saigon's nightclubs.

His wife was five months pregnant when she was killed. She was the mother of seven children.

The 36-year-old tiger lady held the rank of master sergeant in the South Vietnamese Army. She gained her nickname from the black tiger painted on her steel helmet, and from bravery in battle.



She first fought against the French during the Indochina war in the ranks of the Viet Minh guerrillas, where she met her husband.

In 1954, the couple joined the South Vietnamese Army. She gained wide fame by marching into battle with a pair of pistols strapped on her hips, and shooting encouragement to the troops.

Defence Says Moor Murder Case Based on 'Thinnest Evidence'

CHESTER, England (AP) — The case against Ian Brady in the killing of John Kilbride is based on the thinnest possible evidence, defence counsel Emlyn Hooson claimed today.

Hooson was making his final address to the all-male jury in Brady's trial.

He said: "You cannot guess whether a man committed murder. It must be established beyond all reasonable doubt. And of the evidence put forward is of the flimsiest kind."

The body of John Kilbride, 12, was found by police in a shallow grave on the Pennine moors. Nearby was the grave of 10-year-old Lesley Ann Downey.

Brady, 28, a stock clerk, and his mistress, Myra Hindley, 25, are charged with the killings. They are also accused of slaying Edward Evans, 17.

They have pleaded not guilty to all three murders — though Brady admitted slaying Evans in a brawl.

The prosecution alleges the Kilbride boy was lured to the house occupied by Brady and Miss Hindley where its was sexually assaulted before being murdered.

Hooson said the prosecution's case was based on a police interview with Brady which took place without the accused's lawyer being present.

"The prosecution therefore have upon them the onus to establish that the intervention was a voluntary one and that Brady gave voluntary answers," Hooson added.

He said the defendants' conduct with the little girl was "absolutely disgraceful" but this was not proof of murder.

Hooson said the jury might think that Brady and Miss Hindley deserved punishment for putting a gag in Lesley Ann's mouth and photographing her in the nude.

"But they are not being tried for that," Hooson added.

Turning to the Evans's killing, Hooson said:

"It has never been doubted that Brady wielded the axe that killed Evans and I cannot suggest to you on Brady's own evidence that in law this could be other than murder."

Hooson submitted that David Smith, the state's key witness in the killing, was involved in the affair to a much greater extent than he was prepared to admit.

In return for Smith's testimony, the prosecution has given Smith immunity from prosecution for any part he may have appeared to play in Evans's death.

Mrs. Lavonia Stockelbach, Artist, Author, Dies at 92

Mrs. Lavonia Stockelbach, artist, writer, ornithologist, philatelist and amateur historian, died suddenly yesterday at her home in Verona, New Jersey, as the result of a stroke. She was in her 93rd year.

Mrs. Stockelbach was born in Belleville, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, and received her early education here. She taught in Plainfield for a year before taking a position as a librarian in Ottawa. There, she met her husband, F. E. Stockelbach, a native of Denmark and holder of a doctorate in chemistry. After her marriage Mrs. Stockelbach lived in New Jersey, where her husband had established a chemical manufacturing plant. Dr. Stockelbach predeceased his wife in 1948. They had no children.

A vigorous and energetic woman, Mrs. Stockelbach travelled widely during her lifetime and contributed many articles on her tours to The Intelligencer. The last series she wrote, describing a bird-watching ornithological tour she took last autumn appeared in this newspaper after her return. In previous years Mrs. Stockelbach had written articles on her adventures during a tour of Algeria. Original historical research, done while on a trip to Great Britain, resulted in articles on the origin of Hastings County place names which appeared in The Intelligencer in 1953. Another of her interests was philately and she contributed articles on stamps to American publications.

Mrs. Stockelbach combined her love of nature with her considerable talents as a writer and artist to produce articles and an illustrated book on her favorite subjects.

LOVES OF ARAND

Her interest in birds led her to write and paint the illustration for a book on all the birds mentioned in Shakespeare's works. Her bird paintings were displayed at Stratford-on-Avon during a Shakespearean festival and she also gave lectures on the subject at the festival. Four years ago she contributed a series of articles to The Intelligencer on the floral emblems of Canada's provinces, illustrated with her own sketches.

As a perspective as observer of people as well as of her beloved birds, animals and flowers, Mrs. Stockelbach included in her articles a number of comments on the people she met in other lands and on their way of life. She was a witty conversationalist, as much at ease in an Algerian peasant's hut as she was at the captain's table on the Queen Mary.

She enjoyed excellent health until the day before she died and visited her circle of friends and acquaintances in the Quinte district almost daily. Last year, she was last in the city in the fall of 1965, following her world tour.

Mrs. Stockelbach never lost her love for Hastings County and was a staunch and loyal friend of the county until her death. Recently, she had been assisting the authors of a local centennial history by preparing, for inclusion in their book, the data she had collected on Arand land. She had planned to sponsor a newspaper story essay contest for school children on the subject of "the Moira River, flowers, birds, geology, et al."

Her affection for the county is summed up in a letter received by a Belleville friend the day, before her death. "What a county is Hastings!" Mrs. Stockelbach wrote. "I marvel at the kindness of a number of people, many people. So many happy hours I have spent."

400 Sheep On Highway Stop Traffic

HUSBORNE CRAWLEY, England (AP) — Every two weeks 73-year-old Bill Francis drives his herd of 400 sheep down the main highway between his two farms during the morning rush hour.

The sheep take 90 minutes to cover 1½ miles between the farms and traffic backs up while drivers honk and fume.

Francis says it's his contribution to slowing life down a bit. The rest of the time cars rush by his house at 70 miles an hour, making the highway noisy and dangerous.

To protesting motorists, the Bedfordshire police said a man has every right to drive sheep on the public highway. Bill's wife Mary commented: "The public is a damned nuisance."

Thurlow Twp. Tax Rate Up Over Last Year

Tax rates for the year 1968 have been set for Thurlow Township at a recent meeting of the Township Council held at the Township Hall, Cannifton.

Total tax rates, including general township rate, county rate, high school rate and elementary school rate for public school supporters, are increased by 2.21 mills for residential and farm assessments and 2.63 mills for commercial and industrial assessments. The increases for separate school supporters will be greater than this, depending on whether a separate school board the taxpayer supports.

The overall increase in rate is caused mainly by increases in the budget for county debenture and high school. The general township rate remains about the same as in 1965 and the public school rate shows a decrease from last year.

The total tax rate for supporters of public school, not including special area rates such as street lights, etc., are 63.08 mills for residential and farm and 71.14 mills for commercial and industrial. Elementary separate school and street lighting area rates are substantially the same as last year.

Future Schooling May Be More Difficult for Teachers

TRENTON — Tomorrow's schooling may be more difficult for teachers . . . who will be challenged to bring out their creative ability . . . but it sure sounds like more fun for the kids!

Special educational services' inspector Donald Malden of Ottawa, speaking at last night's District Four annual meeting of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association here in Trenton, said a new approach to education advocated "ungraded classes," where report cards were either non-existent, or conveyed very little know ledge about the student's individual weaknesses and need but be signed by parents.

Mr. Malden said teaching students by the "memory work" method, or having them copy down long lists of facts from the blackboard was an unimaginative approach to teaching and that teachers of the future were going to have to display more initiative.

Mr. Malden said that special types of training for neurologically impaired or emotionally disabled children was increasing in the larger cities and was getting a great degree of cooperation from the government, but he said these and other "special" facilities should be available in small area s and centres and rural areas.

Last night's meeting was held at the Trenton Country Club, and more than 100 teachers from the area were in attendance.

Head table guests included Sister Mary Timothy of Tweed, Father J. G. Clancy of Trenton, E. T. Morris, public school inspector in Trenton, Frederick Allore, separate school inspector for Trenton and Belleville.

Mrs. William Angus told the Kingston Arts Council Monday that the official opening of Sir John A. Macdonald's home has been tentatively set for May 24, 1967.

She is vice - chairman of the city's centennial committee.

"All the details are being handled by the federal government," Mrs. Angus said. "The ceremony is not a Kingston Historical Society project."

The society does have however a committee known as "Friends of Bellevue" which has offered federal authorities help in the restoration.

Sir John who actually lived in several sections of Kingston, incidentally referred to the Centre street dwelling as "Pekoe Pagoda."

But the house in its only name, Records reveal the house has been variously known as Tea Caddy Castle, Molasses Hall and Muscovado Cottage.

Macdonald, in a letter to his sister - in - law, Margaret Grene, in 1848, described it as "a large house" suitable for a retired grocer, who was resolved to have a 'Eyecallan Window' and all the most fantastic concern imaginable."

Fantastic or not, the government paid approximately $35,000 for the dwelling but the total cost of renovating it as a national shrine has climbed to over $65,000 — double original estimate of $65,000.

Harold Winch, NDP member for Vancouver East, has severely criticized the government's inability to control costs.

"I'm a big sentimentalist, but I don't want a sentiment bill of $65,000," he said in February. Meanwhile work on the project is continuing.

North America Defeats Italy In World Bridge

ST. VINCENT, Italy (AP)— North America defeated defending champion Italy 64-20 Wednesday night for the first time in a 36-deal session at the 1966 world contract bridge championship.

The two teams meet twice more before the tournament ends Sunday with Italy virtually certain of the fourth straight world title unless the Canadian-U.S. team can repeat its latest performance.

Italy has 227 points against North America's 191, after 100 boards in their 140-deal match.

Thailand outscored The Netherlands 39 - 21 Wednesday night's other match. The Dutch remained far behind the Dutch despite their rare wrongdoing session, however. The score is Holland 220 and Thailand 116.

In earlier games Wednesday, the North Americans defeated Venezuela 57-39 and Thailand 34-27, while Italy downed Thailand 40-21 and Venezuela beat The Netherlands 53-37.

Toronto Psychologist Heads Seminar on Multi-Problem Families at Bridge St. Church

The importance of looking at the individual as a total person when trying to solve his social-economic problems was stressed yesterday at a seminar on multi-problem families at Bridge St. United Church, sponsored jointly by the United Community Services and Community Agencies.

Speaking to over 65 representatives of Belleville's health, welfare, recreation, education and administration of justice fields, J. R. Shooter, clinical psychologist with St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, said, "We often tend to overlook the totality of the individual and the need for the help field to look at the individual as just that, a complex individual, a complex, varied and involved being."

Mr. Shooter said that usually about 20 percent of the population receives about 80 percent of professional psychiatric help.

"Part of the reason is economics, but there's another reason, a more subtle one. We tend to work with those people with whom we can relate. It's done subtly and often unconsciously but unfortunately, in the process, many people are missed that could be helped.

"When we help people, we should remember we do it on a basis of need and reality. We tend to gravitate to the people, the family situation, and so on where we feel more comfortable."

Mr. Shooter said the social services are trying to change behavior "from what has been decreed as undesirable to what we call desirable in hopes that if there is a change, it will be to the better for the individual."

INFLUENCES BEHAVIOR

He said he concentrates on client - centred psychotherapy i.e., the therapist doesn't change behavior, he influences it. It doesn't change until the person does.

Speaking of professional social workers, Mr. Shooter said, "Given a certain degree of competency and a certain degree of acquired education, other factors are much more important in affecting behavioral change than formal education or the number of degrees you have."

"The most effective therapist in changing people's behavior is the one who acquires a certain kills of character, that is, he has developed a high level of positive regard and warm, uncompromising acceptance of the individual he is helping."

Mr. Shooter said professionals often get confused over the acceptance of people, and the acceptance of people. "We may strongly disapprove of a person's behavior and reject that behavior, but often, in doing this we reject the individual.

Once we have disapproved of an individual and he knows it, our effectiveness with that individual diminishes."

The speaker said that the expectancies we have are influential in how we look at people.

"An example of this would be a school teacher who has a student who's been a truant. He will expect that student to be a truant and the student probably will be and therefore, the teacher would be doing very little to help in the situation."

He said that behavior is a combinatoiga of the function of you, the individual, the physical being, with the environment.

"That is, the organism relating to environment.

"If we are going to help an individual and solve his problems in terms of multi-problem families, we must first make proper diagnosis, then bring into his life some fundamental conditions. One of these conditions is to enable him to start to cope with his life situation."

Mr. Shooter, who is in Belleville this week, Mental Health Week, on behalf of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said, "Mental health after all is the ability to cope; the ability to handle life situations.

"In the case of multi-problem families, their coping process has broken down. They are no longer able to cope.

"If we can get the individual to start to be able to solve his problems himself and cope with them, then, his behavior changes.

"The more a person is involved with life around him, the more he feels he can manipulate and cope with his life and the more adequate he feels himself."

He said that 90 percent of all behavior we manifest is learned behavior. We have to help problem people unlearn the inappropriate things they have learned and replace these things with appropriate behavior.

"We must see these people as a totality and help them to be in tune with society. If we do that, we might, with some luck, be of help to them."

DISCUSSION GROUPS

Following the speaker's remarks, the seminar broke off into several small discussion groups then returned to the floor for a question and answer period.

One question asked was one for the comments of the community welfare agency on how they handle Belleville's multi-problem families.

Mr. Shooter said only the local welfare authorities could adequately handle this local question. "I could give generalities," he said, "but an important question of this nature must come from local welfare authorities."

Though invited, no representatives from the authority attended the seminar.

Mrs. B. de Groot, social worker, Children's Aid, chaired the seminar, assisted by Robert L. Porter, director, United Community Services.

Mr. Porter pointed out that United Community Services, or U.C.S., is a new corporation being established in Belleville to take in the existing Social Services Planning Council and the United Appeal.

The Bridge Street Church UCW supplied lunch for the delegates.

HAS PROGRAM

In a reply to a question by Syl Apps (PC—Kingston), Mr. Archibald said the foundation has under way a program to educate children about alcoholism.

Mr. Archibald said teachers will be offered courses on alcoholism when code can be translated into school instruction.

Robert Stevens, the foundation's chairman, said in reply to a question by James Renwick (NDP — Riverdale) the government in most cases "provided what we ask for" in the way of financial support.

The foundation said "the rate of prevalence of alcoholism increased sharply in Ontario in the 1950s but appears since then to have been stabilizing at two to 2½ per cent of the adult population."

Lutheran District Meeting Held at Brockville Church

Present at the Eastern District annual meeting of the Eastern Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church in America was the pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Belleville, Rev. Donald Himmelman. Accompanying him as lay delegates and visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Yaeger and Mr. Harold Hildebrandt.

One hundred Lutheran clergy and laity from Eastern Ontario and Quebec gathered at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Brockville for the meeting.

It was the first opportunity to hear about the Synod-wide program to raise $375,100 for Christian campaign. Synod president Dr. Albert Lotz of Kitchener emphasized the place of camping in the Christian education of the youth of the church. "Camping provides opportunities for learning that are not available anywhere else in the program of the church," he stressed. The Synod operates five separate camps in Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia. Final action of the proposed fundraising drive will be taken at the convention of the Synod in early June.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Elections gave Rev. Arthur Conrad of Ottawa a second term as Dean of the district. Others elected were Mrs. Alten Taylor of Renfrew as social ministry; Mr. Dale Beckstead of Morrisburg to Canadian missions; Rev. Heinz Dahle of Montreal to evangelism and the Rev. George Sifack of Pembroke to parish education.

Highlight of the meeting was a presentation by Dr. Henry Endress, executive-secretary of Waterloo Lutheran University, on "Observations and proposals about the role of the laity in the world". Seven specific questions were asked: Who are today's disciples?; does God have a purpose for our lives?; how can I get ready?; what can I do?; was another Martin Luther?; should laymen be protected from maturity?; and why not fun, and humor?

Reports on the work of the District through its operational committees and two auxiliaries were also given.

Scouting activities

2nd BELLEVILLE FATHER AND SON BANQUET

2nd Belleville annual Father and Son banquet, was held in Christ Church Parish Hall, April 27th. A delightful meal and dinner was prepared and served by the Boy Scout Auxiliary. The tables were attractively decorated with little teepees and canoes made by the Cub Pack, in the group colors. Tiny Cubs on place cards had a welcoming "Cub Grin" for the special guests.

Group chairman Howard Rainbird, introduced the head table guests: Mr. Bernard Wright, representing the Sponsoring Body; A.D.C. "Bud" Bateman; Rev. A. W. Lauder; Mr. Bernard Redner; Rover Tim Cole; District Council President A. Glover; Canon B. Matlock Wright; Cub Gordon Wright; Mr. Dick Bylsma, and Scout Doug. Rainbird.

In his remarks Mr. Rainbird said, the need for the support of the fathers in Scouting and invited them to drop in at the meetings to get acquainted with the Leaders, and to find out just what their sons are doing.

Cub Danny Buckles made an exceptionally fine job of proposing the toast to the ladies, to which Mr. Art Steenburg responded.

Rev. A. W. Lauder presented Religion and Life Awards to Cubs Robert Bailey, John Bateman, Gordon Bateman, Gordon Wright, Bill Rogers, Chris Reid and David Ingraham. Duty to God Awards to Scouts Neil Bateman and part of the Cub Promise. We commend the Cubs who received the award.

Presenting Bronze Stage Swimmer's Badges to Cubs Nigel Rooke and Robert Bailey, A.D.C. Bateman said that these badges are not easily acquired. He said that Lew Andrews makes very sure that the boy can pass the required tests, before he will sign a Badge Certificate.

Rover Tim Cole moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Glover and the ladies of the Auxiliary, for the delicious dinner, with a Miss Kenney a surprise party in the council chambers. She was presented with a cake and with a handsome 400-day clock.

Mr. Bill Ingraham then introduced Scout Geoff Calvert, who with Carol and Floyd Armstrong, Gae and Flora Donaldson, entertained with a remarkably skilful demonstration of archery. This was the highlight of the evening for both boys and parents. The Rover Skipper was elected to play the part of William Tell's son, and for a few terrible moments we wondered just where we would find someone to replace him. However Merv. came through unscathed, though looking a bit pale, on behalf of the Group Mr. Doug Preston expressed thanks for this excellent and skilful demonstration.

BANNED FROM ROADS

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 200 Quebecers have been prosecuted this winter for speed-breaking aboard powered sleds. Most of the infractions were committed by driving on city ways, which is against the law, but some drivers were prosecuted for driving over lawns, gardens and other property.

The Brain Drain

The so-called "brain-drain" is a serious enough situation for this country, just as it is for Britain.

The United States, of course, is the great mecca for talented professional people. The material benefits, and in many cases the climate, are strong attractions.

In the absence of precise figures, it is impossible to say just how many trained people are fleeing their own native heath for other lands — from Europe to Britain to Canada to the United States. However, Canada is receiving its share of talent, many of whom stay at least for a time before moving south. And there are many others who are perfectly content to stay in Canada, preferring it to life in the United States.

Thus we cannot agree with the suggestion of Ross Whitaker (Libbral-Bruce) in the Ontario legislature that graduates of Ontario universities, particularly in the professions, should be "persuaded or forced to spend a specified time after graduating in the province."

Persuaded . . . yes, but certainly not forced. Mr. Whitaker picked out dentists as an example "All dentists," he said, "have an obligation to the people who finance them. We cannot afford to lose them to California or Hawaii."

"We not only need those services but we need their taxes. We can't be a boy scout to the rest of the world for all time to come."

Not only dentists, but doctors and engineers, we might add. However, to suggest graduates be compelled to remain in this country is out of the question. The proper course is for the professional bodies in this country to try and make conditions attractive enough that young graduates will want to work in Canada.

Day Nursery for City

City Council's approval of a sum of $30,000 for the establishment of a day nursery for pre-kindergarten children of working mothers is a realistic move in line with the times.

Several councillors opposed the plan, but we are in agreement with Welfare Administrator Daniel Aiken when he says that such schools have been accepted in many municipalities and that a day-nursery here could cut juvenile delinquency ten years from now.

Russia is a classic example of the care that is provided by day nurseries while mothers are away at work. They are also common in Scandinavia.

Mr. Aiken told council that working mothers were an accepted fact in modern society and women would go to work whether or not the day nursery schools were provided.

The welfare administrator made another telling point when he said where schools were not provided the children in many instances were being neglected by baby-sitters and often ended up in the care of welfare departments.

It is significant that 50 per cent of the approved costs of a day nursery school will be paid by the province. This suggests the government recognizes the value of such an institution.

The children themselves should benefit from spending a few hours in an environment where they can meet other youngsters, and where they can engage in simple recreational and educational activities under the supervision of trained teachers.

Out of Proportion

Looking at the headlines these days it seems that more and more things are getting out of proportion in this country.

Just what is important in life these days? Is it the music of the Mods, long hair or marijuana. Is it spots like Yorkville or is it scandal in high places, spies and intrigue. Is it television — and bedroom farce?

Must life be flip . . . way-out, to be meaningful? We are a brainwashed people — and the trouble is that the material getting across to us, viewed against the vastness and wonder of this world, is in reality virtually meaningless.

Imagine yourself on a mountaintop in the Rockies, anywhere, and recall the words of a character in James Ramsey Ullman's book, Tarrer on the Mountain (the Matterhorn). Amid a region of pure beauty one climber says, with simple truth: "More people should see this." Silly's opinion of their own world would quickly pale into insignificance.

Combat Fatigue

Brutal as all wars are — and the Viet Nam one is as much as any — it is some consolation to learn from U.S. News and World Report that in Viet Nam combat fatigue, which caused many casualties in World War II and the Korean war has been minimal.

A U.S. Army spokesman says only 10 cases of battle fatigue have been reported so far. He attributes this to such factors as tours of duty of 12 months, which assure fighting men a better chance of survival and return home; good medical care and speedy evacuation of the wounded, and the absence of the "mind-crushing continuous bombardments of earlier wars."

Curtain Falls on Real-life Parliament Hill Comedy

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The closing curtain's coming down on one of the Capital's better little Parliamentary farces.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin who, for 31 years, has served as MP for Canada's motor city of Windsor — while, oddly, residing the buses and frequently hitch-hiking his way 'round and about Ottawa — finally has bought himself a car.

The familiar figure, so often standing of a late afternoon in front of Union Station, at the foot of Parliament Hill, with thumb up-thrust in the familiar hitch-hiker's "Going-my-Way?" signal, do longer will astonish tourists.

And the strap-hangers on the over-crowded Eight O'clock St. Patrick Street bus rolling in from the fringe of Rockcliffe Village to Confederation Square will miss his "Good Morning" greetings.

Why in all these Ottawa years did the Windsor MP never bother to buy a car, if only for the sake of patronizing home industry, to say nothing of personal convenience?

Seems it's nothing more complicated than that he just never bothered to — mainly because knowing half the folks in town, he never had any trouble thumbing rides, and any way there was always the bus, and, of course, in a pinch, cabs.

Over the last 10 years, the hitch-hiking External Affairs Minister has given the Capital scene of its most surprising — and entertaining — moments.

BUCKET OF RUST

Like not so long ago when he rolled up to the portico of the swank Rockcliffe Village umbassy of the Arab Republic in a rusty old English-made minicar, vintage of a dozen of these Ottawa ministers of error, let us swear of all, sait that can turn the finest of Windsor's motor products into a brown-crusted bucket of bolts in only a few seasons.

Of course he was hitch-hiking, this time in the car of a reporter-pal friend from the Press Gallery.

You should have seen us, relates the Scribe, rolling up the driveway to get into line with a fleet of Cadillacs, Mercedes, Jaguars and Rolls Royces for the embassy entrance under the portico.

(The Jags and the Rolls, the Cadys and the Mercedes all belonged to members of the Diplomatic Corps and, as it turned out, to some of the Brass in the Department of External Affairs).

And there was the Minister (and one of the most important guests at the reception) arriving in the automotive equivalent of a jeep old banged-up wreck car.

But Paul Martin's arrival, relates the Scribe, still shaking his head, was no less diffident than is any performance of the External Affairs Minister who can be the Capital's finest study in dignity.

After rocking and small talk, he descended in the same grand style, ridin' away in the battered little minicar as if he were one of the Lincoln Continentals or Chrysler Imperials waiting in line along the drive.

It was just last Fall that Prime Minister Pearson swung off riding with Paul Martin when the External Affairs Minister was the one providing the car. The PM just didn't know what sort of mobile pile-of-junk it would turn out to be.

STOP THE BUS!

That time last Fall when the PM took his last ride with him, it was one of those Ottawa days, hot, sticky and plot-sired fugitive from the auto-wrecker's lot.

You've seen the kind . . . room, but just barely, for the driver, and maybe a small-dimensioned passenger in front . . . and in back, people with no knees, and backs that must bend like hairpins.

But it was too late to offer excuses with the young man bent over to open the door and bow in his distinguished passenger.

The Mounte guard there likely won't ever forget the day.

He was all set to thumb off the luckless little pipsqueak when, pop-eyed with unbelief, he saw who was sardined in the rear.

It had been an experience, grrdled the PM, unfolding himself from the dust, old newspapers, empty oil cans and discarded inner tubes. And the Mounte, at the salute and probably wondering whether he was dreaming, allowed it to be so.

One last tale about Paul Martin's the hitch-hiker and bus rider.

He was on the St. Patrick's bus the other evening when he remembered a mission unfilled. There was a bottle of milk to be taken home. So they stopped at the Union Station, at the foot of Parliament Hill, with thumb up-thrust in the familiar hitch-hiker's "Going-my-Way?" signal, do longer will astonish tourists.

Parents Owe Debt To Their Kiddies

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to answer Mr. J. White's letter published April 30. I found it almost unbelievable that any sane person could place animal life above human life. Mr. White is obviously very much out of touch with youth.

I would like to know what Mr. White is doing to help these children who are so badly neglected and I, being the parents of three healthy, normal, individualistic boys, don't consider working with hundreds of boys in minor sports and most of our winter weekends. These children are not bad. They are normal, active youngsters, frustrated by the confinement and pressures of city life. Whatever these children are, or do, is our responsibility and the fault lies with us in most cases, whether we are their parents or their neighbors.

Please let us be just a bit tolerant and understanding. Give these people some recognition and kindness and to realize we find them more important than guns, animals, flowers, shrubbery and fences. These things can be replaced but not a child. Let us consider ourselves adults, very important and wise but the children can be our country. We are dispensable—they are not.

Let us get behind these kids and teach, guide and love them.

I have no intention of chaining my boys to a post or squelching their enthusiasm for living, nor will I allow anyone else to do it.

We lost a baby and nearly lost another — believe me when these things happen to you it makes you realize that living in the world is as important as children. Let us thank God for the birds of spring and walking our sidewalks and ask God to help us understand and give them guidance.

All children, even the neighbors' children can bring us much happiness if you help them and really show you care. We were all young once and none of us is perfect.

Mrs. Ted Sprackett.

Canadians are expected to make an excellent showing for 67per-tree returns on their T-1 Short income tax reports this year. Last year, it has been reported there are still 13 per cent of the returns which have to be corrected, but this means that 87 per cent were found to be correct. The federal revenue department this year conducted campaign to have tax-payers be accurate in making out their income tax report, and the indication is that accuracy has been widely achieved.

The record, comments The Financial Post is irrefutable proof that the average Canadian is much smarter than for which he has been given credit. The task which confronted him was not simple.

Today in History

May 5, 1966 . . .

A small British and Canadian fleet raided the United States naval base at Oswego, N.Y., 152 years ago today — in 1814 — and sacked it. The American fought well but were outnumbered 1,700 to 500. The victory, planned and led by Commodore Sir James Yeo, re-established British control of Lake Ontario for the remainder of the War of 1812. Lack of control in April enabled American forces to raid York now Toronto and burn the fort and public buildings.

First World War

Fifty years ago today — in 1916 — British warships shot down two Zeppelins, off the Danish and Greek coasts; German forces advanced on Ascoured, Verdun; Turks attacked Russian garrisons at Erzingan and Bilis in the Caucasus.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1941 — RCAF action had destroyed most of the pro-Axis Iraqi air force; many German bombers were shot down in raids on Liverpool, Glasgow and Belfast. Maj.-Gen. B.C. Freyberg, VC, was appointed commander-in-chief of Allied forces in Crete.

Strictly Personal

Why People Watch Fires

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

One must wonder whether the people who love to run to fires aren't as attracted to the destructiveness as to the colorful excitement — fire watching being a socially acceptable way of discharging aggressive feelings that are otherwise strictly repressed.

One of the paradoxes of the American temperament is that we enjoy killing on Chinese food but only when they are prepared in a familiarly un-Italian or un-Chinese way.

Most of the "famous" persons I have met have felt more insecure than the nonentities who on Monday, and this is the absolute them; this is why it is so important for them always to be seen in the company of other famous persons.

The skeptic, who sweepingly doubts all philosophical and religious doctrines, is often so irritating because the only things he never seems to doubt are his own doubts; not a thoroughgoing skepticism, to be honest and consistent, should be staged out of its own dogmatic doubts.

Because our institutions, like hospitals, have become so large complex and crowded, the task of keeping records quickly takes priority over the people who are supposed to be served by these records.

What we call a "realistic" novel is one that agrees with the idea of reality we hold before we even opened the book.

Wearing Girdle Helps Limit Kidney Movement

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss a dropped kidney. Is surgery in suspend the kidney serious? Is wearing a girdle (advised by my doctor) any great help? I am a woman of 50 and thin — 90 pounds. — Mrs. J. J.

The dropped or "floating" kidney, as it is sometimes called, doesn't always require surgery. In fact, the kidneys are intended to do a little floating around by Nature. They change position slightly when we shift from an upright to a prone position.

The kidneys are supported in part by a surrounding pad of fat. Lean folks like you, without so much "padding," are more likely to have excessive mobility of the kidneys.

Whether anything at all needs to be done depends on the amount of movement, on whether there is any discomfort, and most of all on whether there is any kinking of the ureter (the outlet from the kidney).

Frequently a snug support (a girdle, in this instance) will help. In such cases, however, surgery may be necessary. This is a major operation but it is not an uncommon one and not to be feared. It is not necessary to cut into the kidney itself, nor is it the lining of the abdomen. The approach is through the back, and the supporting tissues of the kidney are drawn in far enough to prevent more than the ordinary amount of movement.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 34 and recently have been having dizziness a week before my period. Then I feel good again. I notice that you have a leaflet on "Pre-Menstrual Blues." Would that help? I enclose the necessary five cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope. — Mrs. V. C.

I think you will find some useful suggestions. Curtailing salt in intake before the menstrual period (as discussed in the leaflet) may be all that is necessary. Or a short course of diuretics (drugs to encourage release of fluid from the body) might also be indicated.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and will soon have my third Caesarean birth. I am seriously considering having my tubes tied to prevent further pregnancies, but have heard that this often makes a woman very nervous. Is this true? What, if any, are the side effects of this operation? My doctor seems reluctant to do it without saying why. — Mrs. P. M.

There are no side effects, and no nervousness from it — unless emotionally, you are worried about having had it done.

Both husband and wife should be in thorough agreement, and both should be given the decision with the understanding that it will be permanent and cannot be undone later.

True on occasion surgeons have unnecessarily done it as the operation later, but you cannot depend on this.

My own strongest reservation stems from letters I have received from people some years after the operation. Their husband, the woman has remarried, and now wants another child. Or the daughter (or son) the children were killed in a fire. The parents then desperately want to have children, but it was too late. As to Caesarean birth, there are women who have had many more than three by this method.

Note to Mrs. D. A. R.: In certain cases of terminal cancer, "regional ileal surgery" is done to reduce pain which otherwise cannot be controlled. It can be a good blessing to the patient. No, it does not result in any brain damage. It is the nerves in the nerve trunk which transmits pain impulses.

Beguiling

The Times (London)

Every direct action, we are told, has unforeseen beneficial effects. One of the remote consequences of the switch to summer time in Britain recently is the charming air-hostesses in aircraft coming into Heathrow now wear one of their prettiest little announcements. In itself this is a pity. Almost everything they have to say is delightful. How miserable it would be if one day the companies automatically all the announcements and we lost the appealing accents of the foreign hostesses — accents that are the more beguiling for coming through the hidden loud speakers.

Librarians' Nightmare

Kingston Whig - Standard

Most people have no idea of what a nightmare a big library can be. Once it is decided that a room must be changed in its catalogue which, in most libraries in this country, is on cards, a time-consuming task, and each book or pamphlet in the collection, plus cards for all necessary cross references.

The New York Public, one of the world's very large libraries, has just had a relocation of the moment. The library has eight million cards in its index, amounting to the 4.5 million books in its collection. Many of these cards are very old, about 2.5 million of them needing immediate replacement. A job of this magnitude would require a lot of thought and, inevitably, in the course of that thought in New York they would be told wonderful about the future of their card index.

There are various alternatives and a study is now being conducted which will serve as a model for the future for research libraries. A firm of private consultants is looking into the possibilities, for instance, of having an index stored in a computer, with a microfilm reproducing devices which would flash information on a viewing screen or in print.

Whatever they do it will involve a small army of highly-trained librarians at one level and another, a lot of money and time — and the knowledge that, whatever method (and a catalogue never is finished) the index will be out of date.

Marmora Outlines Plans For Centennial Year

MARMORA — Fifty citizens of Marmora representing 29 organizations attended a meeting in the Town Hall Thursday evening, conducted by the chairman of Marmora Centennial Committee, Gordon Bennett.

A recording of a talk by John Fisher, chairman of Canada Centennial Commission was presented which gave some ideas of the plans being made in Ottawa to help communities to present a happy celebration.

Heading the committees in Marmora to plan and put into effect various aspects of the celebrations for next year are: honorary chairman, Rev. Maurice Rudkin; chairman, Mr. Gordon Bennett; vice-chairman, Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn.

Sub - committee conveners are: antiques, Rev. Maurice McLeod; crafts, Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn; financial, Mr. Glen Wentworth; sports, Mr. Ray Smith; school visits, Rev. Charles Brady; winter carnival, Mr. Percy Gray; centennial king, queen, etc., Mr. Harry Jenkins; photo and sound recording of major events during 1967, Mr. Tom Brady; old photos of village, people and countryside, Miss Mary Warren; town hall (upstairs), Mr. Robert Drummond; community improvement, Mr. Alex Fraser; caravan day, Mr. Gordon Bennett.

Theme for Marmora centennial year is to be "Fun for All" and it was felt that the celebrations and parties planned should, as far as possible, be free of charge to all visitors. To do this, it will be necessary to plan money-raising events ahead of time.

FUND RAISING PROJECTS

Doug Vilneff, representing Marmora Fire Department, indicated that they would be donating a centennial committee from that group. The Senior Citizens are preparing an autographed quilt which will be quilted caravan day for their money raising project. Marmora Scouts and Cubs are planning a pie and ice cream social this summer for centennial fund - raising effort.

A review of the possible events to take place during the months of 1967 here were made by Mr. Bennett. They are a costume ball, winter carnival, special curling bonspiel with centennial atmosphere, sleigh rides for young people, antique display, old photograph display, quilting bee, old home week, musical events, summer regatta, track and field day, sports activities, centennial king and queen, parades. Projects with a more lasting pleasure would be modifications to the town hall, establishment of a log cabin with colonial furnishings, village park area, drinking fountain, mobile library for shut-ins, and various school projects.

"Individuals can take part by coming forward with any ideas, known by making their ideas and publicizing their efforts in different groups," said Mr. Bennett. "When all suggestions are received, the committee will look for people to carry out the projects, and the work will be passed around so that everyone will have a share in the centennial plans."

CARAVAN DAY

With regard to caravan day in Marmora on June 27th from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. at Legion Park, Mr. Bennett stated that local people will be expected to provide entertainment on the stage included in the caravan. Talent may be invited from surrounding districts.

Mr. Alex Fraser, representing the Village Council reviewed the improvements made in the renovation of the town hall. The downstairs of the hall is very nearly completed with modern kitchen and partitioned rooms which will be available for use by organizations. A committee has been formed to work on the upstairs of the hall.

Co-ordinator of activities for women's organizations, Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn, noted that Mrs. Stuart Howell, Belleville, chairman of women's activities for Hastings County, has agreed to visit Marmora on May 18th, at 2 p.m. to speak on up-to-date plans made in other communities.

East Germans Detain Ghana Trade Mission

BERLIN (Reuters) — Ghana trade diplomats and their families, recalled by their government, were being kept here against their will today as an offshoot of an apparent dispute with East Germany.

James Menka Bonsu, chief of Ghana's trade mission since it opened here in 1963, said Wednesday night 17 Ghanaians could be involved. They included his five-man staff, their families and 10 students now in East Germany.

He said he was told the East German move was in retaliation for travel restrictions placed on East German trade mission members and technicians in Accra by the new government in Ghana.

The East German news agency ADN said the 17 Ghanaians were asked to leave the country after the overthrow of President Kwame Nkrumah in a February coup.

There was no official comment from the East German foreign ministry.

Quinte Music Night

Aspiring Young Musicians Show Results of Practice

By MAURICE SWITZER

The efforts of aspiring young musicians are seldom rewarded by anything more than a smattering of polite and sympathetic applause, a word of encouragement here, or a word of consolation there. And this is not to be unexpected. The practice and hard work that were obviously ingredients of "Music Night — 1966" last evening at Quinte Secondary School could not be genuinely appreciated by any save who had not actually been a part of a similar musical presentation.

The concert began with the 30-member Junior band, most of whom have had no more than two years' of musical experience. Labouring under the difficulties implied when them by dragging selections, (a costly faux pas for a program opener), instruments of questionable quality, and of course, their own inexperience, the young musicians did their best to overcome the impression that they were merely playing music, and not feeling it. Their rendition of "Give a Little Whistle" was a fairly little tune, and should have been used for the first number. The band's director, Mr. D. Aeschlimann, has nothing to be ashamed of in the way they handled themselves last night in their first public performance.

GLEE CLUB DELIGHTS

Next on the program were five selections by the 40-member glee club, (all female), under the direction of Miss Linda Wellman. The girls exhibited feeling and warmth in each of their numbers, and the quality of some excellent voices could be discerned by the audience. But again, as in the first part of the program, the material selected showed little in the way of variety. The young ladies might have put into a jaunty Londonderry Air, if for no other reason than to relieve the monotony and monotony of singing five selections of similar tempo in succession. Particularly enjoyable was their opening song, a well-arranged "It Might As Well Be Spring" which let a few more individual of voices was a delight to the ears.

As master of ceremonies Eugene Lang said, the Senior Band was the "main course" of the evening. They started off with a bang in a rousing delivery of John Philip Sousa's "Washington Post March," but the number was soon plenty stirring, right down to the usual efforts of the cymbalist. The 52-piece band, also under the direction of Mr. Aeschlimann, demonstrated that they had learned a lot since their days in the ranks of the junior musical performers.

Their precision and timing were at times excellent, and highlights included medleys from two Broadway Shows, "My Fair Lady" and "Guys and Dolls", which conveyed the true spirit of the Broadway stage.

The band could not really be expected to excel in capturing the vague, impressionistic moods of a piece by Rawsthorne's "Value Triste" by Sibelius, but it made a praiseworthy attempt at Tchaikowsky's "Valse from Swan Lake."

Despite several poor choices of material, including the aforementioned two classical works, and a morose arrangement of "Deep Purple", the band's treatment of them was quite sensitive and fluent. Its versatility was enjoyable for the audience, a credit to Mr. Aeschlimann, and

SHE WORKS AT SHIPYARD

MONTREAL (CP) — Halifax sculptor Sarah Jackson prefers to exhibit in Montreal, which she considers her artistic home, because "there is understanding here and warmth." Many of her bronze works are cast in a ship's foundry in Halifax.

Minister Commends "Mother"

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizenship Minister Marchand Wednesday commended Mrs. Jeanne-Paul-ine Beaulieu, Canada's Mother of the Year, for helping some children escape from the vicious circle of poverty.

At a luncheon in her honor, the minister in charge of the government's war on poverty program said poverty is inherited like riches and the only way to break the chain was to teach the children to want to escape.

Mrs. Beaulieu, a store-keeper's wife from Riviere-Madeleine in Quebec's Gaspe, has taken 22 foster children into her home over the years.

Mr. Marchand said the Gaspe is a depressed area, with an average annual income of about $1,000.

"This has been a preoccupation of Mme. Beaulieu's, as well as of the provincial and federal governments. She tells me she plans to use her award to promote the economic welfare of the region."

The award is given only for publicity value. There is no cash prize.

APPLE TAPIOCA WITH HARD SAUCE

If one of Canada's top economists can declare that the way to halt inflation is to stop buying the things that are marked at inflationary prices, I guess I can join him.

I am waging a one - woman battle against the high price of food. While this battle is raging I am trying to maintain the high quality of my cooking. Want to join me?

The Apple Tapioca with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce which I served to my guests last week-end meets all of my requirements. My guests would have eaten twice as much of it. These amounts will serve five people with reasonable appetites.

APPLE TAPIOCA with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce (using pearl "fish eye" tapioca)

Pudding Ingredients: ½ cup pearl tapioca
2½ cups cold water
½ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup sugar
2 apples pared and sliced (I used Macs)
6 whole cloves
½ teaspoon vanilla

Sauce Ingredients: 1-3 cup butter
1 cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon almond flavoring(or 2 tablespoons rum or brandy)

Soak the pearl tapioca overnight in the cold water using the top of your double boiler as the container. In the morning place it over boiling water in bottom of double boiler and cook 3 or 4 hours or until you are sure the tapioca is really soft in the centre. Remove from heat and add the salt, sugar, sliced apples, cloves and vanilla. Turn into baking dish and bake ½ hour or until apples are tender, at 375 deg. Fahr.

Successful Living

Should She Tell All To Her Mr. Right?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I am 22. Four years ago I was an unwed mother. I gave my baby up for adoption, which I took very hard. I realize now I did the right thing by giving my baby up, for the baby's own good, but I cried for him for a long time after.

My problem is, in the last two years I have changed my ideas on dating. Every time I see a young man is getting too interested in me, I run. What is wrong with me, Doris? Am I afraid of getting hurt or is it just that I have lived my life the hard way?

Also, if I ever did fall in love and planned to get married, should I tell my future husband I have had a baby?

I also want to say to the young girls that it's not worth it to get involved emotionally with a man and take the chance of having a baby.

If a guy loves you he'll wait and love you more for your refusing, because you prove you are a lady and respect yourself. Why ruin your future, as I feel I have, for the sake of a few minutes? — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: Who wouldn't run? We don't willingly dash right back into the fire that has burnt us!

But no, bless you, you have not lived your life. Most of it is still ahead of you.

The help which can mean more, much more, than these few words from me, is a heart-to-heart personal talk with someone who understands: perhaps the child care worker who placed your baby; or an understanding older woman.

Once you talk all the hurt and fear out of your system, you'll take another look at mankind. And when you do say yes to Mr. Right, jump the gun on gossips. Tell him about your past.

DEAR DORIS: I was wondering. My parents are in great debt. If they should happen to die still owing this money, would it be up to the children to pay? — WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR WONDERING: No, I'm glad to say. People's debts die with them. If they were to leave any assets behind, these would be used to pay off as many of the debts as possible. But that's all.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: The Canadian Centennial Commission says that, in regard to its activities, questioners should direct questions to it, rather than the Centenary Council. The Commission's address is Box 1967, Ottawa. — WM. H. METCALFE, Managing Editor, Ottawa Journal.

* * *

DEAR BILL: Thank you. Our readers will be glad to have this corrected information.

* * *

To HOMEMAKER: Next time, don't forget that even in this situation, you must act like a considerate employer. Your cleaning woman is entitled to respect, good manners, and praise when she does well. Did it ever occur to you to serve her something extra special for lunch — or does she get the leftovers?

* * *

Confidential to HATED DAUGHTER: My column is no place to deliver a message to your mother. I can't wave a magic wand and make you love each other, after all these sorry years. There is jealousy here, and misunderstanding, and your mother's disappointment in her marriage; as well as your obvious preference for your father. A family counsellor is needed, if you are ever to have any happiness in your home. In your area, your resource is the Family Counselling Service of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira Street.

DEAR DORIS: We have a son of 26 who is a promising young lawyer. His wife is teaching and leaves her six-month-old baby with any sitter they can get. She claims she is bored at home, hates housework and looking after the baby — and feels staying at home is no challenge.

Now she is hiring I should baby-sit with the baby. I have a 16-year-old son at home and am enjoying my "middle age." I am doing now the many things I couldn't do when my children were younger, such as bowling, golfing, bridge and club work. When my children were young I was happy to stay home and look after them and never felt bored.

What is wrong with the young folks now? They hate staying home, and they must have all the luxuries right away.

My son is not in favor of his wife working, but she is so unhappy at home — how can he quarrel all the time? — A YOUNG GRANDMOTHER OF 52.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: It's a poor rule that doesn't work both ways. Your girl seeks from you the service she will not give herself!

Today we understand that people differ, and that you cannot push all women into the molds of full-time housewife. At the same time a young mother builds joy into her own future by devoting all her skill, all her loving energy and knowledge, to the first few years of her babe's development. A teacher should know this.

A secure, well-balanced child is a better investment than fancy furniture. And you shouldn't be expected to supply the lack.

Susanna's Family Fare

APARTMENT PET

Dear Susanna: As my cat and I live in a downtown apartment — somewhat of an asphalt jungle, I keep a good crop of grass growing in a flower pot where he can help himself to it.

It is there for him to chew at, inside the apartment in the winter, and out on the flat roof where he plays, in the summer. — H. Y.

SPACE SAVER

Dear Susanna: Would like to offer a suggestion which has served me a lot of kitchen drawer space.

Cut a desk blotter to fit the inside area of a lower cupboard door, and fasten with transparent tape around the edges. The blotter will muffle the sound and protect the paint.

Now screw in three rows of L shaped hooks on which to hang spatulas, large spoons, shredders, bottle openers, etc. — Mrs. E. Dunsford

SEWING HINT

Dear Susanna: Where a lining or other stiffening is called for in a sewing pattern, material from an old window blind is a suitable substitute for buckram. — B. J.

Rainwear Styles Take On New Glamor Look

By MARGARET NESS

TORONTO (CP) — Rainwear has certainly taken on glamor since Charles Macintosh, the Glasgow chemist, invented a way of rubberizing cloth in 1823 and made his name a household word.

The first raincoats were drab - colored, utilitarian and overly warm to wear. Today we have high styling and exciting colors.

Between the two is a wide difference in living. In recent years showerproofing of coat fabrics and then roll-into-pocket slickers made people almost forget there were such things as real honest-to-goodness raincoats.

This spring, Canada and the United States are following an already - established trend in Europe and raincoats are back.

These are made with vinyl, clear or with patent shine. The shiny vinyl comes in brilliant colors and even zany designs like the huge target circles that have invaded sportswear.

The disadvantage is the same as with the original raincoats. They don't let air through and tend to be hot. But they are dramatic and eye-catching.

CREATES GROUP

Designer Lydia Yperlich of Montreal has created a group of the vinyl rainwear for spring. It includes a black coat, appliqued with bands and circles of black and white, and a Courreges look in a white coat with black collar edging and a low waistline band.

The transparent coats are in the exposure mood that seems to dominate in sportswear this season. Some are even designed like an extra shorts-shirt dress to cover, say, a bikini, if caught in the rain at the beach. They actually heighten the bare look. However, most of them are intended for street wear. Both vinyl types were included in a week-long spring showing here.

But the interest in showerproofed coats is still big business. One of the most important houses, Lawrence of London, has introduced almost every fabric you can name into their all-weather coats.

This spring the highlights included Irish linen, silk taffeta, flannel and even pink lurex in a floor-length theatre coat.

Two well - known American designers, John Weitz and Bill Blass of New York, have also invaded this field. And for the teens, Puddlecoat has made stripes in vinyl suits and diagonal stripes of black on a white duck coat. For the youngsters Joseph Love likes bright colors, such as a linen showerproofed coat in the shocking colors of Gauguin paintings.

Ann Landers

Skin Doctor Can Halt Excessive Sweating

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have written to you about this problem three times but you have never printed my letters. If you knew how desperate I am, you'd help me.

I'm the girl from Quebec with the clammy hands. I am 19 years old and I loathe dancing because I hate to have a fellow feel my sweaty palms. When I'm introduced to an adult I know I should shake hands, but I rod instead because of my problem.

I'm becoming so self-conscious it is spoiling my whole life. Before you say I'm anti- please let me explain that- it isn't just a little dampness that I am writing about. My hands really get wringing wet — as if I had held them under a running faucet.

ANN LANDERS

A couple of years ago I thought I'd outgrow it but it's getting worse instead of better. Please help me. — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — If you have not seen a skin doctor I recommend it. He can prescribe medication that will reduce the perspiration.

If you continue to be conscious of your hands, wear wrist-length gloves. If this doesn't put your mind at ease, you have an obsession and a head doctor is the only answer.

DEAR ANN: Thirty years ago my wife and I proudly named our first born after me. We called him Junior throughout his school years. So did everyone else.

Several months ago I began to receive mail which was obviously meant for him. The envelope read Mr..... No Jr. appeared as part of the name. I asked my son about it and he said, "I am sick of this Junior stuff. It's O.K. for kids, but when you're grown up it's ridiculous. I decided to drop the Jr. and call myself Mr. .....

I was shocked and hurt. I am a Jr. and was proud to be called Junior until my father passed away. I am also upset because my son has been signing legal documents without the Jr. and I fear they may not be valid.

What do you know about this? Please advise me. — SAD SENIOR.

DEAR SAD: I don't know nearly as much as a lawyer and I urge you to consult one.

If your son dislikes the Jr. for emotional reasons that's one thing, but there may be some legal complications, and if there are they should be ironed out, pronto.

DEAR ANN: My grandson will be married in a few weeks. In France, where I grew up, a black dress was considered appropriate for a wedding.

When I told the bride that I planned to wear a black dress she became very upset. She said black is not worn at American weddings — and, furthermore, she is superstitious about it. She says it will bring her bad luck.

I am short and stout and black dresses look best on me. I feel insulted and think perhaps I should stay at home. What do you say? — SPOKANE.

DEAR SPOKANE: Although black is considered appropriate for American weddings (if you are not in the wedding party), I hope you will comply with the girl's wishes and wear something else. This is little enough to do to please a bride on her wedding day.

First Woman Director Of National Gallery Is Art Historian

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Gallery's first woman director is as attractive art historian who thinks controversy plays an important part in arousing public interest in art.

Dr. Jean Sutherland Boggs, 43, former curator of the Art Gallery of Toronto, said at a press conference following the announcement of her appointment Wednesday:

"I certainly think controversy over an exhibition helps to stimulate public interest."

Dr. Boggs said she plans to continue present policies at the gallery, but that she hopes its collection will be added to frequently.

She also hopes the gallery's policy of sending important exhibitions to cities across the country will be continued.

Her appointment, announced in the Commons by State Secretary LaMarsh, is effective June 1. She succeeds Dr. Charles Comfort who retired last July. Dr. W. S. Dale has been acting director.

NOT AN ARTIST

Dr. Boggs is not an artist herself.

"I started out as a painter when I was an adolescent but decided I was a bad one."

Since then she has concentrated on art history.

She graduated from the University of Toronto in fine art and received her doctorate from Radcliffe College, Harvard.

From 1948 to 1951 she was an assistant and associate professor of art at three American colleges, Baltimore, Holyoke and the University of California.

In 1952, Dr. Boggs was appointed curator of the Toronto art gallery. One of the exhibitions she organized in this period was the highly successful Picasso and Man showing.

She left Toronto in 1954 to take up the Steinberg professorship at Washington University.

She is the first established on this continent for the study of modern art.

BORN IN PERU

Dr. Boggs was born in Peru of Canadian parents and spent most of her childhood in Cobourg, Ont.

She said she has discussed proposed government legislation to improve the structure and functions of the gallery with Miss LaMarsh, but declined to comment on what form the legislation might take.

Miss LaMarsh said in the Commons that the legislation is to be introduced shortly. She said its implementation would be one of the first and most important tasks for the new director.

Dr. Boggs has written many articles on art for Canadian and American publications.

She is also known to Canadians for her CBC radio talks series Listening to Pictures which began in 1955 and continued this year.

Dr. Boggs and members of the gallery board of trustees told the press conference that the gallery plans to send an exhibit of Canadian contemporary art to France in the fall of 1967.

It would be the most comprehensive exhibition of modern Canadian painting ever assembled, gallery officials said.

Newspaper More Potent, Prosperous Than Ever Says Publisher in Talk

◆ SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Vancouver Publisher Stuart Keate said Wednesday that newspaper, television and radio each is finding its place, with the newspaper more potent and prosperous than ever.

"They tell us the newspaper industry is dying," Mr. Keate, publisher of The Sun, told the National Newspaper Promotion Association.

"To paraphrase Sir Winston Churchill: 'Some corpse, Some funeral.'"

Mr. Keate is on leave of absence as publisher of The Sun while he mediates the dispute between the CBC and television producers.

He said newspapers in the United States and Canada are increasing, circulation is ahead of adult population growth, newspaper employment is up, the industry is confidently investing in technological expansion and advertising revenues are booming.

"Let our critics consider this hard fact.

"In spite of the incursions of television into the national advertising dollar, newspapers still do a greater dollar volume than all the other media combined."

Mr. Keate termed it "pointless to knock radio and television," acknowledging that television is superior in entertainment and that radio thrives "as the housewives' friend and the car companion."

"At the same time, I think we can agree that vividness is no substitute for permanence.

"A bolt of lightning is spectacular but it cannot match the lasting glow and setting of the sun nor the durability of the stars. Newspapers endure by the impressionable record of last on paper."

been working on development of prototype safety cars.

"They have done relatively well," he said, adding that the other companies have shown little interest in safety.

CRITICIZES SEAT BELT

Among the other points Nader made were:

—"The only thing offered consumers by the deluxe pushbutton seat belt sold by General Motors and Ford "is a higher price and possibly a more attractive buckle coming around an ineligible-laden pushbutton—a deadly kind of pop art."

—"The over-rated and over-priced Rolls Royce has poor door latches. . . ."

(Spokesman for the Rolls Royce Co. refused to comment on Nader's statement.)

—It is common knowledge to various university engineering faculties in this country that the Volkswagen is an unstable car that often places unreasonable strain on the driving task."

—Compulsory wearing of crash helmets would substantially reduce the motorcycle death toll which he said was about 1,000 in 1964 and 1,500 last year.

—If the cost of safety devices is to be considered in deciding which should be required, "it must be insisted in return that they (auto makers) reveal their cost figures."

veacher, which will absorb Springfield, cannot be served by a single MP. But he did not expect the commission to change its mind.

Eric Stefanson (PC—Selkirk) said Parliament created a "four-man dictatorship" in Manitoba and Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) called it a fundamental error to place redistribution into so-called, "non-political" hands.

Mr. Stefanson mentioned rumors that the Manitoba electoral map was picked from sketches drawn by students of Carleton University in Ottawa.

He urged a "64-47" principle for Manitoba seats: Six wholly urban seats for Winnipeg, six rural seats for southern Manitoba, and the single northern seat of Churchill.

Robert Simpson (PC—Churchill) said the commission had added 20,000 square miles with a population of 800 people. He would be expected to serve an area of 191,000 square miles in the next Parliament.

BREAK GROUND

Chemcell (1963) Ltd. Wednesday started construction in Cornwall on its first chemical producing plant in Eastern Canada. Dr. E. Emard, mayor of Cornwall, broke ground for the more than $5,500,000 facility, scheduled to start operations early in 1967.

Cuba Assails Yugoslavia As U.S. Tool

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuba today violently denounced Yugoslavia as "a tool of United States imperialist policy" and declared that peaceful coexistence was not an inviolate dogma.

Cuba accused Yugoslavia of betraying the Communist cause, of splitting revolutionary unity, of defamation, of intrigue and limping vacillation, described its spokesman as trash, and said the "so-called league of Yugoslav Communists is neither a party nor Communist."

At the same time, Cuba declared that helping national liberation movements against imperialism and exploiting the native classes was not intervention but a contribution to peaceful coexistence.

The broadside came in an editorial in Granma, official Cuban Communist party organ, attacking recent articles in the Yugoslave press, principally Politika of Belgrade.

Referring to a Yugoslav statement that Cuba's positions were adventurist, Granma said: "Traitors and irresolutes always accuse revolutionaries of being adventurers."

Directing his remarks to the MSS drum and trumpet band, the inspecting officer offered his congratulations for "an excellent standard of music."

L. D. Read, principal of Moira Secondary School and Gordon Lee, a member of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board addressed the corps briefly.

Canada and Allies Already Discussing Question of Chinese Entry into United Nations

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and some of its friends already are discussing informally what to do about the question of Communist Chinese membership in the United Nations when it comes up at the UN General Assembly this fall.

Such consultations are normal but this year, diplomatic quarters say, the circumstances are slightly different. The lively internal debate on China in the U.S. administration. This may leave some room for manoeuvre on the problem.

Last year, the UN vote on admitting Red China was 47 to 47 with 20 abstentions. Canada was among those against China's entry.

External Affairs Minister Martin said at the time that China had set an unacceptable price for entry to the UN: The expulsion of Nationalist China and thus loss of representation in the UN for the 12,000,000 people of Formosa.

But Mr. Martin added that it was hoped that some means might be found before the 1966 meeting of the UN to obtain "further clarification" of Red China's intentions regarding UN membership.

Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday told the Commons:

". . . There are certain conditions which have to be fulfilled before the membership of any particular country can be approved in the UN. I am thinking now of the government at Peking and I understand discussions are going on at the moment with a view to that matter being considered at the next meeting of the assembly."

NO FAVORITISM

He added that it would be undesirable to take any action "which would establish the rule of the government of Peking over the people of Formosa without their consent."

He and Mr. Martin have thus indicated that the core of Canadian policy is not that Communist China should be kept out of the UN but that Nationalist China should be kept in as the representative of Formosa.

There is some evidence, diplomatic quarters say, that the U.S. is beginning to take the same position and to encourage more contacts with China, as Canada has done.

Mr. Martin has been saying for the last two years that China cannot be kept in isolation.

U.S. Vice - President Hubert Humphrey has recently described American policy as "containment, not isolation."

For the first time since 1949, there is an uninhibited debate in the U.S." on China and its policy no longer appears monolithic. Canadian officials are following this debate closely.

Even if the UN votes to admit China, a good possibility is seen here that China would still refuse to accept membership without the UN accepting its conditions. But in this case, the onus would be on China and not on UN members for keeping China out.

Having Time of His Life, Prince Stays in Australia

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP)—It is no wonder Prince Charles has decided, with his parents' permission, to stay on at his Australian school for another term. He is having, as one master put it, "the time of his life."

Geelong grammar school, which Charles joined in February, is Australia's top private school for top people's sons. Timbertop, in the foothills of the Australian Alps, where Charles is staying, is the school's showpiece.

Senior boys spend a few terms at Timbertop roughing it bush setting. Charles, apparently, has enjoyed every minute of it.

The master in charge at Timbertop, Michael Hanley, said "the sunny weather and the bush life are what Prince Charles likes most."

He has taken part in all the normal school activities and has been on four weekend hikes into the nearby mountains; put on shirt and shorts for a three mile cross-country run; swum in the chilly waters of the school dam; chopped wood for war widows as part of the school's "aid the needy" project; and visited a shearing shed and finished shearing a sheep.

PLAYS TRUMPET

When not taking part in the toughening-up, outdoor activities, Charles has been delighting his schoolmates with his musical ability. He blows the trumpet, and blows it well.

Geelong grammar's headmaster said: "Prince Charles blows the trumpet with great skill. We have a brass band at school in Geelong and a number of boys took their instruments to Timbertop with them."

Charles, playing the trumpet, has accompanied the school choir in the chapel at Timbertop.

But he has enjoyed most playing with the boys in "jam sessions" after the day's work is done.

Charles will be in a party of 20 Geelong grammar boys who will visit Papua-New Guinea this month. During the trip he will live in a native-style hut and eat native food.

He will spend two or three days at an Anglican mission station at Dogura, in southeast Papua, and five or six days at an Anglican secondary school near Popondetta, in the northern district of Papua.

FLIES OVER MOUNTAINS

To reach Dogura and Popondetta, Charles will fly by light aircraft over the rugged Owen Stanley mountain range and miles of dense jungle.

Geelong grammar boys make occasional visits to the Papua schools to help with teaching and other activities.

When Charles returns from his Papua-New Guinea trip, it is hoped there may be enough snow on mountains within easy driving distance of Timbertop for him to go skiing.

He has already played polo for a local team of graziers and scored two goals.

Charles is due to leave Australia before the end of the second 1.7m so he can be in Jamaica in time for the opening of the Commonwealth Games Aug. 4.

Judging by the way he has enjoyed this visit, it won't be his last trip down under.

We Are Left-footed Loungers

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Nature equipped man to sweat out his problems. . . . The human skin contains 2,500,000 perspiration glands . . . and they can excrete 2½ pints an hour.

Are you a chronic daydreamer? . . . Well, don't fret about it. . . . Some psychologists believe that those who daydream habitually have a better chance of making their dreams come true because they develop a better insight into their own personality. (My trouble, doctor, is that I have the kind of daydreams which, if carried out, would land me in jail.)

Science has found that you probably are an overly anxious person if you breathe hoarsely and heavily, take deep breaths, and cough and clear your throat repeatedly. . . . On the other hand, you can develop the same symptoms by running for a bus.

Sign in a New Hampshire town: "Drive carefully. Our squirrels cannot tell one suit from another."

Bashful: A survey of 75 honeymoon couples by the Hotel Edison here found that only one requested the honeymoon suite.

Apt definitions: The Catholic Digest describes a night club as a place "where they get away with murder—and you face the charges.

At one time or another practically everything scarce has been used for money, from oyster shells to shrunken human heads. . . . One of the oddest was a 175-pound circular piece of stone. . . . On Yap, a Pacific island, it would buy either 1,000 coconuts or a wife.

Lawyer Refuses To Enter Plea For His Client

TORONTO (CP)—A man who has been held in jail for almost two years awaiting trial had his case adjourned after his lawyer refused to enter a plea Wednesday in county court.

Robert Arnold Baker, 31, is charged with robbing eight elderly men after hitting them on the head with garden posts. He was sentenced to 15 years in prison after being found guilty of the charges in July, 1964.

The sentence was squashed by an Ontario Supreme Court decision in August, 1964, providing for a new trial.

Baker's lawyer, Anthony C. Bazos, said that ever since winning a new trial for his client he has been thwarted in attempts to obtain documents on Baker held by the Ontario department of reform institutions.

Mr. Bazos had subpoenaed Allan Grossman, minister of reform institutions, to come to court Wednesday to tell why his department refused to release the documents on Baker.

WILLING TO COME

Mr. Grossman did not appear, but the department's counsel, Robin Scott, said the minister would come to court if the judge wanted him to.

Mr. Scott said he was prepared to put all the department's documents on Baker, extending over the last 10 years, into the judge's hands so that the judge could decide what records are relevant.

Mr. Bazos said that until he has all the government documents on Baker he cannot enter a plea.

Judge William Lyon adjourned the hearing so that the documents could be gone through by a department executive. The judge also ordered the governor of Toronto's Don Jail to submit all the jail's records on Baker to the court for a ruling on which are relevant to the defense.

Judge Lyon also issued an order that the department of health turn over to Mr. Bazos all its documents concerning Baker's stay last October at Penetanguishene mental hospital.

Resignation Of RCMP Officer Asked

OTTAWA (CP)—RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan should resign in the case of a direct conflict between his own sworn evidence and a statement by Prime Minister Pearson, MP David Orlikow said Wednesday.

Either the commissioner had not told a true story before the Munsinger judicial inquiry "or else he's not competent at his job," the New Democrat member for Winnipeg North said in an interview.

In either case it was the commissioner's duty to quit.

Mr. Orlikow referred to the commissioner's testimony before Mr. Justice W. F. Spence that Mr. Pearson had asked him in 1964 about any impropriety or anything of a scandalous nature about any MPs.

This, said Mr. Orlikow, was "absolutely contradicted" by Mr. Pearson in the Commons Tuesday.

"Police officers are trained to give testimony which is precise, correct, exact," said the NDP member. "If they have any reservations any nuances, they are trained to give those so there will be no misunderstanding."

There could be no further confidence between the government and the commissioner, Mr. Orlikow said.

Ian Sinclair New President Of CP Railway

MONTREAL (CP)—Ian Sinclair, born in Winnipeg and educated in the law, was elected president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Wednesday.

He said at a press conference after his election by CPR directors that the top brass of the giant company will not differ greatly in its policies from the team that included his immediate predecessor as president, the late R. A. Emerson.

N. R. Crump, the CPR's chairman and chief executive officer, said reorganization within the firm will continue primarily "at the second or third echelon of management."

Mr. Crump told CPR shareholders at their annual meeting earlier in the day that inflation poses the biggest economic danger to Canada.

Elected vice-president of the company as successor to Mr. Sinclair was S. M. Gossage, who has been vice-president in charge of company services for the past 18 months. He also becomes a director.

Mr. Sinclair, a bully, affable man of 52, joined with Mr. Crump in predicting for reporters that big changes in the world's markets for grain and resources will keep the CPR's freight business largely free of the "peaks and sags" that have characterized such business in the past.

EDUCATED IN MANITOBA

The new president is a graduate of public schools in Winnipeg, the University of Manitoba and the Manitoba Law School.

He first joined the CPR as an assistant solicitor in the company's law department in 1942. He became the CPR's general solicitor in 1953 and vice-president in charge of law matters in 1960.

Labor relations was a big topic for Mr. Crump at the press conference and in his address to the shareholders.

Richer costs were a factor in making Canadian companies less competitive on the world market, he said, and a key factor in the CPR's costs were wage demands by labor.

He said he had suggested to the company's shareholders that, in view of these demands "there might be some rough weather ahead."

In the face of the rising freight requirements, the railway is buying more rolling stock and equipment, although demand for passenger space continues to follow the downward trend in evidence since the Second World War.

Ex. OPP Officer Killed Man, Self Jury Finds

NAPANEE — Otto [illegible]well, 27, of Sandhurst died Dec. 21 of injuries inflicted by Raymond Tinkler, 30, a next-door neighbor later found shot to death, a coroner's jury ruled yesterday.

Mr. Teepell died in Kingston General Hospital 10 hours after being admitted with a fractured skull.

He had been found at the bottom of his cellar stairs by Cpl. Ronald Roberts of the Provincial Police, at Napanee after Teepell's wife, Cornelia bleeding and bruised, staggered to the home of Ronald Reynolds next door for help.

Tinkler, a former Provincial Policeman, was found a short time later shot through the head in his car on a sideroad north of Bath, 6 miles east of Sandhurst.

Mrs. Teepell testified that she went to bed about 11 p.m. Dec. 20, leaving her husband watching television. She was awakened some time later by Tinkler entering her room.

"Mr. Tinkler came toward me, seized me by the throat and I passed out," she said.

Mrs. Robert Laforge, wife of Tinkler's partner in a housebuilding firm, said Tinkler came to the front door of the Laforge home about 1 a.m. and asked to borrow her husband's .22-calibre rifle to shoot wolves.

Police said the rifle was found beside Tinkler in the car.

Mr. Tinkler's father Eustace, said his son had been unhappy over the way he separated from his wife and son, who were in England, and had said he was going to try for reconciliation.

Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court to head one.

The ex-postal clerk was found dead just four days before Mr. Justice Wells was to open hearings here on whether he had been treated fairly. As a result, closed hearings were held in Ottawa April 13-15.

The hearings, shrouded in secrecy until Wednesday night's communique was issued by Mr. Justice Wells, resumed in public here today.

INQUIRED ABOUT FARMS

In the transcript, Assistant Commissioner Kelly dealt at length with Spencer's connection with 19 farms in the south Surrey district of B.C. near the border and information about the legal steps necessary to purchase a farm.

He said he thought this assignment by the Russians significant because it suggested acquisition of suitable property for the establishment of a Soviet intelligence service "illegal network."

The location so close to the U.S. border suggested that an "illegal resident" agent virtually assigned to live there would be operating espionage agents based in the U.S.

"Illegal resident"—defined as a Russian intelligence agent operating under a cover—would make detection almost impossible, the assistant commissioner said.

"The hope is that this illegal resident will be able to undertake tasks without any assistance from any Russians living in the country and that he will become so independent he can operate a network of other agents and simply report and receive directions by radio from a centre outside of the country in which he operates."

Assistant Commissioner Kelly further testified at the Ottawa hearings:

1. Spencer reported on activities of ethnic groups so that other Russian agents could "neutralize" anti-Soviet activity by discreditable tactics, including character assassination.

2. He passed on a mass of general historical information to the Russians, including photographs of tombstones, names of schools that had closed, names of bankrupt businesses and names of logging camps and machinery repair shops operating in B.C. between 1943 and 1952. This would enable the Russian to send agents to Canada with perfect identities and knowledge of local customs, dress and other happenings.

3. He supplied driver's licences and other identification to the Russians so they would have a ready store of such material for their own ends.

At one point in the hearings, the assistant commissioner was asked by Mr. Justice Wells: "Do the matters that Spencer was called upon to perform, in your opinion . . . fit into an espionage program?"

The answer: "They do."

The assistant commissioner said that while the tasks were important for the information they provided, none of them were assigned to Spencer for training purposes and to test him as an agent before giving him further responsibility.

SOUGHT THE INQUIRY

Spencer, who sought the current inquiry in an attempt to clear his name, is identified as an expelled Canadian Communist and an industrious collector of information for the Russians. He was a seemingly quiet clerk who met officials at the Russian embassy on street corners under an assumed name.

In his lengthy statement to RCMP in Vancouver last May, he maintained: "I could not see that anything that I had done was of a subversive character."

But he also said that after the third of seven trips he made to Ottawa to deliver information to the embassy, he suspected he "was maybe being used as an agent."

He admitted being a member of the Communist party from 1936 or 1937 until 1946 when he was expelled for arguing about policy.

Spencer said he became associated with the Canada-Soviet Friendship Society and made his initial contact with Soviet embassy officials as a result of a visit by members of the society to a Russian freighter in Vancouver in 1957 or 1958.

Mentally Retarded Assoc. Hears Address by Ontario President

NAPANEE — Mrs. Eileen Kleinsteuber, president of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, congratulated the local association for the progress it has made, in a year, when she addressed members at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening. They have a nursery in operation, and a school will be opened the first of the year.

The members were slightly disappointed on learning that the school certainly would not open in September. A letter from Inspector Paul Anderson told them of the decision made by the Department of Education.

Mrs. Gerald Benn gave a report on the annual provincial conference in Niagara Falls to which she had been the official delegate. She was especially interested in home care of the retarded child, and was impressed by the efficiency of two retarded children who demonstrated some of the skills they had learned. The delicacy with which parents of such children must be approached was also discussed at the convention, and she passed on some of the suggestions made there.

"You Are Welcome, Child" was a film showing what has been accomplished in the school for the mentally retarded in Hamilton it is a workshop school with children taught to do all sorts of things they might not otherwise learn. The girls learn how to do household chores, such as bed making, serving tea, and even making cookies. Boys are taught to make simple, but useful articles such as shoe shine kits.

Mrs. Kleinsteuber announced that the system at institutions such as Smiths Falls, is to be changed. Day schools will be started and teachers are already applying for positions. There are 2,700 children in this institution alone.

Reports were received from all committees, and the financial committee reported on the progress of the "Flowers for Hope" campaign. A donation for $25 was received to start off the fund, which will be used to build a new school some time in the future.

Booths have been engaged for the fairs at both Napanee and Centreville, the members learned. Mrs. Kenneth Sexsmith reported the progress of the plans for the annual banquet, which will be held in October.

Rotary Club Hears Talk On Civil War

NAPANEE — Napanee Rotarians had long been curious for the reason their townsman, Wesley M. Alkenbrack, found the study of the American Civil War so fascinating, and invited him to explain his interest at Tuesday's meeting. Mr. Alkenbrack is a veteran of World War 2 and is president of the Legion, Branch 137.

"War is always fascinating—afterwards," Mr. Alkenbrack reposted To him it was not the events of the Civil War that mattered, but the implications, and Canada's part in it, especially the great feat of the invasion of Canada by the victorious North would follow the close of the war. "Thousands of Canadians fought in that war, and many of them died," Mr. Alkenbrack said.

At first Canada's sympathies were with the North, but there was a shift of sympathy as the war went on. Britain was in a dilemma. For economic reasons her sympathies were with the South, but if she upheld the South, the world would accuse her of upholding slavery. "Canada's ties were with Britain rather than with the North," the speaker pointed out.

FIRST MECHANIZED WAR

Adding to the interest is the fact that it was the first war which was mechanized to any degree. The South had 1,000,000 men under arms, the North had twice as many. By making use of the railroads, the South made good use of its smaller armies. For the first time, submarines were used in the Civil War. They were crude affairs, hand propelled, but effective in destroying an enemy ship. Unfortunately, the operators were also destroyed.

The speaker was introduced by Ron Macpherson, and Fred Carter thanked him for his interesting address.

Some other manufacturers have now announced that they will adopt this feature—but not until their 1967 models.)

World's best rustproofing. All our cars get a "bath." They're deep-dipped up to their rooflines in rustproofing compound six separate times. Then they're dipped again in primer and given a separate spray coat of primer. Then come three gleaming coats of Lustre-Gard super enamel. You get a beautiful finish and long-lasting protection from the ravages of rust.

Most powerful standard engines in their classes. Swift, smooth, seven-main-bearing sixes. Powerful, virile V8's. Take your choice.

Widest range of seating options in the industry. Luxurious reclining seats (buckets, if you want). Armrests and adjustable headrests. And fine-furniture coil springs in all our seats in all our models. That's one other North American car offers this—and it's in the luxury class).

Fibreglass rooflines and double door seals. A far cry from flimsy fabric rooliners and single door seals. Noise stays out. Drafts, winds, chills can't get in.

Attention to detail. American Motors offers the durability of plastic kick panels, all-metal rear-deck shelves, even ashtrays that roll out on ball bearings. Small details, yes—but they add up to overall quality.

Beautiful luxury fittings. A big, big selection! All the power equipment and features you want. And floor consoles. Thick-cut pile carpeting. Wire wheel discs. Walnut interior paneling. GETS IDEAS

VANCOUVER (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of the CNR said on his return from Japan Wednesday that he was impressed with the Japanese railway system and acquired 'lots of ideas about modernizing railway lines."

Some Vietnamese Are Pleased, Others Worried by Buddhists

In South Viet Nam there are the generals and the church leaders and a scattering of other influential people. Then there is the average man or woman, who never has access to a public address system or newspaper columns or the radio. What do he and she think of the current government crisis? The Associated Press staff sought to find out. A dozen AP men interviewed more than 100 Vietnamese—from the delta area of Hue to Can Tho in the Mekong delta.

SAIGON (AP) — Some are worried, some are disenchanted, many are pleased. . . .

A sampling of South Vietnamese opinion indicates the varied ways the peoples of this war - torn nation look upon the Buddhist hierarchy's efforts to wrest power from the central military government and place it in civilian hands.

Interviews with more than 100 Vietnamese in various walks of life showed division into these classes of thought:

—Those who are worried: The middle-class businessmen who see civil unrest and inflation as dangers to them; the huge civil service which sees another change of government as a threat to jobs; the bitterly anti-Communist refugees from North Viet Nam, who reflect the military's fear of an accommodation with the Viet Cong if a civilian government emerges.

—Those who are disenchanted: Right - wing intellectuals and the professional class that supported the Buddhist hierarchy in overthrowing Ngo Dinh Diem only to find they had plucked a political force they could not control.

—Those who are pleased by the Buddhists' deliberate attempt to impose their will on the general government. These include people with real or imagined grievances against the military regime. Among them are some Roman Catholics, some members of the Cao Dai and Hoa Hoa sects, and the Bahai faith.

—Those who see an end to the war growing from a Buddhist - dominated civilian government. Among these are people in the cities who send sons into the army, fight the rising cost of living and resent Americans for living in a style they cannot afford.

It must be emphasized that any sampling of opinion in South Viet Nam is restricted. About half the population is unreachable because it is in areas under Viet Cong influence. It is also true that the farther people live from the main towns, which are under government control, the less they talk about war and politics.

If any common theme runs through the interviews among peasants and poorer citizens, it is that they don't even know, care how the war is brought to an end, as long as it ends.

SOME SUPPORT KY

There are those who support the Nguyen Cao Ky government.

Said a 30-year-old secretary in Da Nang, centre of the rebellion against the central government:

"Premier Ky is not a perfect man, but he is anti-Communist. Our common enemy is the Viet Cong."

A 37-year-old Roman Catholic priest at Da Nang agreed: "Ky has some faults, but not enough to justify demonstrations. He should not be replaced now."

In Saigon, a 35 - year - old English literature student, working for an American firm as a secretary, said "Ky is not a very good politician, he lacks experience. But a military government is needed to beat the Viet Cong. Let him lead it."

Then there are those against Ky.

A retired civil servant in Saigon, age 56, who worked with the French and fled the Communist Vietminh from Hanoi to Saigon in 1954, said Ky should resign. His comment:

"It is legal to have a civilian government elected by the people. Only by such a government can we really carry the fight to the Viet Cong. We must make the war bigger and beat them. But we must make it legal first."

An 18-year-old construction worker near Da Nang believes Ky is "selling out to the Americans. . . . Only by getting rid of Ky will we gain peace."

A 25 - year - old fisherman near Da Nang observed: "I am happy with the people's struggle against the government." Another fisherman, living on a nearby sampan, had not even heard of the Ky government. "Leave me alone," he said. "I have a wife and six children to feed."

There are those who oppose the Buddhists.

WRONG NOW

A Vien Hoa student commented: "The Buddhists were right about Diem, but wrong now. They have the right to express their view, but with constructive criticism, not destructive actions."

A 18 - year - old Roman Catholic girl student at Saigon University: "Why do the Buddhists demonstrate so much? It is just what the Communists want."

The Buddhists had many supporters.

"They love Viet Na mand the people," said a 17-year-old South Vietnamese Women's Auxiliary Corps soldier in Nhatrang. "They want to throw all invaders from Viet Nam and bring peace."

An official of the Bahai faith: "The Buddhists know what religious persecution is in Viet Nam and so do we. A civilian government can help us all."

A Catholic student in Saigon University: "Ky is now no quarrel with the Buddhists.

We, too, want a civilian government. We know we can work with the oddhists to create a new society."

A South Vietnamese army lieutenant in Dalat: "Must the war go on and on? Maybe the Buddhist leadership can end it. I will welcome it."

What about the Americans in Viet Nam?

A 23-year-old Saigon night club singer: "If the Americans go home, the Communists come here. We don't want the Communists."

A laborer in Da Nang who had seen American aid in the form of trucks and other vehicles commented: "But this hasn't helped the people. The rich man is being helped, the poor man not."

A servant girl in Saigon who left her village in the highlands three months ago: "The American men seem nice, but the more Americans that come here, the more bombs, and the more villages ruined and people killed."

What about the outlook?

A Saigon tailor: "No negotiations, the Viet Cong will eat us all if we do. But somehow the war must be won, be ended soon."

A South Vietnamese paratroop officer: "Some day we must talk with the Viet Cong. But before we talk, let's fight, let's back up our talk with a big fight."

What about the Viet Cong?

"Maybe the Viet Cong will try and take advantage of a shift in government," said a Da Nang wharf laborer.

An Hue fruit farmer: "The Communists can profit from the riots and the trouble. They can infiltrate the city and use propaganda and psychological warfare."

The Vietnamese public, or those in the cities and the areas regarded as being pacified, will get an opportunity to vote for a new civilian government within three to five months, according to a decree signed by the central government.

Drama 'Workshop' Method Used in Unusual Manner

Accepting the fact that the "workshop" mode of drama instruction is reasonably "old hat," it could be said that the Belleville Theatre Guild is using an old dog for new tricks.

The local guild's teacher of the "new tricks" is Mr. John Faulkner, of Toronto, whose connection with the theatre is now a full-time one. A qualified public school teacher with a permanent certificate for teaching art and drama in schools, Mr. Faulkner says that, to his knowledge, the workshop experiment in Belleville is unique for this province. Now in the process of conducting a series of four weekend-long workshops with the Belleville theatre group, the differences in Mr. Faulkner's application of the workshop approach is actually quite a subtle, yet quite a comprehensive one.

Workshops are usually used by drama classes or acting groups to improve an actor's, or a student's, general technique. In other words, the workshop generally operates on abstract basis, often resulting in little or no sense of teamwork or definition of purpose. Workshop participants may merely assume roles in temporarily improvised situations, the purpose being to polish their spontaneity, or to improve their general acting "savoir-faire."

The Faulkner approach has been to direct the Belleville workshops towards a specific objective and to get them dealing with concrete problems." And what could be more concrete or specific than a play itself?

PLAY CHOSEN

The play chosen for the next guild production is "Ampitryon 38" — a witty commentary by the French playwright Jean Giraudoux featuring a topical script in a classical setting. This particular work places more emphasis on dialogue than technique, an apt choice, considering Mr. Faulkner's application of the workshop method of instruction. The choice is also appropriate, bearing in mind that amateur actors rarely become masters of polished acting - techniques, while they more frequently become effectively communicative in delivering the message of the play to the audience.

Mr. Faulkner finds that the new approach has met with an enthusiastic response on the part of the actors concerned, and he feels that the fact they are working towards a specific end has resulted in "a great deal of involvement and commitment by the cast."

Working with director Deirdre Warren, Mr. Faulkner is trying to instill in the local theatre guild his strong conviction that "the director is an extension of the actor," the converse of which is often accepted as a cardinal rule in the theatre. In the opinion of John Faulkner, a former award - winning amateur theatre director, the director best serves his purpose as "a controlling medium, directing the stream and flow of the ideas of his actors." Only in this way, he feels, can actors attain the freedom of expression essential to their art.

John Faulkner's work with the Belleville Theatre Guild is a project sponsored by the Community Programs Division of the Department of Education, in cooperation with the local theatre group. Without such programs, it is doubtful that amateur theatre groups in the province would ever retain the services of professional - calibre instructors.

The Belleville Theatre Guild will present its production of "Amphitryon 38" on two evenings, Friday, May 13th, and Saturday, May 14th, at the B.C.I. Auditorium. The play is one that holds something in store for those who want to be entertained, and for those who want to be stimulated.

Common Cold May Be Saving Your Life

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Don't curse that cold—it may be saving your life.

The possibility that non-fatal virus infections such as the common cold may protect many humans from cancer and leukemia was expressed Wednesday at the annual meeting of the American Society for Microbiology.

Dr. E. Frederick Wheelock of Western Reserve University School of medicine said competition between different kinds of viruses in the human cell may result in the death of one kind, thus producing immunity against the disease carried by the losing virus.

Wheelock disclosed new research in which he made mice temporarily resistant to leukemia, a form of blood cancer.

He found indications the immunity resulted from direct competition between viruses, rather than from production of a newly - found cell substance called interferon.

Wheelock said he inoculated mice with both leukemia-causing virus and benign virus on the same day. This produced normal amounts of interferon—a substance cells produce when attacked by a virus and which some researchers believe may keep the virus from growing.

Wheelock said most of the search so far has been with mice but that one human leukemia victim was kept alive several months by inoculation with non-fatal virus.

Former Ontario Premier Defends Action in Company

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Frost, former premier of Ontario, says an injunction prohibiting the KVP Co. kraft paper mill in Espanola from dumping waste into the Spanish River was dissolved in 1950 "to give time to find the ways and methods to correct the pollution problem."

In a letter Wednesday to The Star, Mr. Frost said "I am glad to give full explanation" to an April 27 column in The Star by Ron Haggart.

Haggart said in his column that the company was ordered by the Ontario Supreme Court in 1947 to "stop pouring poisonous garbage into the Spanish River . . . and pay $5,000 damages" to a local tourist camp operator.

"But in March of 1950," Haggart said, "after the case had been appealed through two other courts and the injunction against the KVP Co. had been held throughout, the Conservatives government of Leslie Frost introduced a little piece of law called 'The KVP Act' which at the stroke of a pen dissolved the injunction."

Haggart also wrote: "But the company was not without expert guidance.

"In 1962, Hon. Leslie Frost, former premier of Ontario, became a member of the board of directors of the KVP Co. Ltd. of Espanola, Ont."

In his letter, Mr. Frost defended his actions and said: "From the turn of the century, polluted effluent had gone into the river. . . . Actually, technology had not found a way to deal with pulp and paper pollutants."

Mr. Frost said the government decided the pollution problem should be solved and "that the community should not be closed up and the individuals affected should be properly compensated."

He gave his explanation of how the government had tried to achieve this.

"Now as for myself," he wrote, "the clear implication of the article is that my association with the mill for many years ago resulted in favors to the company which afterwards benefited my appointment to the company's board of directors."

Mr. Frost said since the column was published "it has been intimated that my connection with the Canadian KVP Co. is very lucrative."

". . . I may say that I receive directors' fees, the same as any director. I receive no remuneration whatsoever. My directors' fees . . . have varied between $1,100 a year and $1,600 a year, depending on my attendance at directors' meetings.

"I hold only one share of the company's stock to qualify me as a director."

The company mill is located 353 miles upstream from the mouth of the Spanish River. The river flows westward through the Sudbury district of Ontario, past Espanola and Massey to Lake Huron.

Out of every dollar spent by Bell over 95 cents are spent in Canada

This is remarkable for two reasons.

First is the amount that's being spent by Bell Canada: over $75 million dollars for new construction and equipment every year to meet ever-growing needs for communications — and this annual expenditure is likely to grow in the future.

And the second reason why this is remarkable is that practically everything, from simple gear to the most advanced electronic switching and transmission equipment is manufactured in Canada and can be bought here! That means, it must be as good or better, in price and quality, as anything we could import.

We must admit — we and Northern Electric, our manufacturing subsidiary, helped lots of small companies to set up production facilities so that we could get things here rather than have to import them. But the big thing is that it's now being done, and that we're working on getting the remaining small percentage made here, too.

Encouraging Canadian Production — one of the ways in which Bell contributes to our economy.

Federal Scouts to Start Survey of Buildings Suitable for Shelters

OTTAWA (CP) — A small army of federal recruits is about to begin a survey to determine which buildings in Canada provide the best protection against radiation fallout.

Most of the 300 university undergraduates who will be conducting the "fallout protection survey of Canada" have been recruited and, clipboard in hand will start marching on buildings across the nation this week.

The federal works department is in charge of the project approved a year ago after consultation with all provincesand which are co - operating in the survey.

The work is being done on behalf of the Canadian Emergency Measures Organization and when all the facts are in, and assessed by computers, the results will be fed back to the provinces and then to municipalities across the land.

Two premises underlie the survey: Canada, although unprepared to be a target area in any nuclear war, would be hit by massive fallout from the United states, particularly Canada's major population centres which are close to the border; and the home fallout shelter program of several years ago never caught on.

STUDY PRESENT HOUSES

—We had to begin consideration of existing buildings," explained Colin Bailey, chief of the works department's emergency planning division, who heads the project.

Canada is divided into 34 "emergency govern ment zones," and using these topographical designations, an area survey officer will lead the surveyors into the field. Staff recruitment, under the civil service commission, has been under way for three years.

Alberta's buildings were surveyed during a pilot project in 1964 and Saskatchewan won't be covered until 1967. The other provinces will be done this summer, although Ontario and Quebec are not likely to be completed until 1967.

What the surveyors will look for: The physical dimensions of all buildings of 7,000 square feet of floor space or more, which offer a "protection factor of 10 (people) or more"; and structural information such as construction materials, glassed areas, water, sewage, electrical, heating and ventilation facilities.

GET PROTECTION DATA

"The computer tells us how many people could be accommodated in a certain building, or on a floor of a certain building, and what protection against radiation the structure would provide as is—and what work must be done to improve and increase that protection," says Mr. Bailey.

Out of the mountain of statistics the emergency planning organization hopes to be able to recommend certain building changes, "mainly of an improvised nature," that could be made should the danger of a nuclear war seem imminent.

"It's a little like having the sandbags ready in case of a flood — even if they're never needed."

One aspect of provincial and municipal co - operation has been to publicize the project so building owners can aid the young surveyors when they come knocking.

"Our target is to complete the project by the end of 1967," says Mr. Bailey.

Defence Staff Prepares to Transfer Bases

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department will save at least $15,000,000 a year when Canada's two military installations in France are abandoned next year, defence officials estimated Wednesday.

The two, installations—RCAF Air Division Headquarters at Metz and the airfield at Marville—now cost some $28,000,000 annually to maintain.

France on March 29 asked Canada to relinquish the bases by April 1, 1967, or accept French command over them. Canada has chosen the former.

Officials said the defence staff now is working on the problem of transfer of personnel and equipment and that it may be several months before decisions are taken.

However, this shaped up as the most likely course of action:

—Two of the six CF-104 bomber squadrons at Zweibruecken and Baden-Soellingen in West Germany will be disbanded.

—The two CF-104 reconnaissance squadrons at Marville will be moved to the two German bases.

—Baden - Soellingen will be used instead of Marville as a stop-over point for Air Transport Command.

—The Metz headquarters will be drastically reduced in the number of personnel, now some 700, and shifted to one of the German bases.

Informants said it is possible that a joint headquarters will be established for the Canadian Army and RCAF in Germany.

Govt. House Formal Ball Swinging Affair

OTTAWA (CP) — The first formal ball held at Government House in over a decade turned out to be a swinging affair.

Over 200 MPs and senators from all political parties, including Prime Minister Pearson, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and their wives, joined in the light - hearted revelry Wednesday night.

The ball began shortly after 9:30 p.m. and dancing continued until 1:15 a.m.

An RCAF band played waltzes, Latin American music, show tunes and the occasional fast-tempo number.

Despite the fact everyone was in formal evening dress, it was one of the governor-general's most informal and high-spirited parties.

A buffet supper of roast beef, salmon and salads was served.

Mr. Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South and Mrs. Grills were among those present at the Governor-General's Ball held at Government House in Ottawa last night.

Parents Marvel at Changes In Education as Students Put on Display at Moira

If attendance and interest shown is any criterion, the Sixth Annual Display Night held last night at Moira Secondary School was a big success.

From the time the doors opened at seven o'clock to well after closing time at nine, the school halls and classrooms were crowded, with standing room, teachers, parents and friends.

The students came to participate in the evening's program of dressed up class routines and take part in the various demonstrations and active displays, which this year were held in all departments.

The parents came to look and to listen — and remained to marvel at the changes which a couple of decades can make in the high school education program.

CAN BE INTERESTING

They learned, for instance, that academic subjects such as the languages can be made interesting through a new approach presentation.

Even somewhat dry history can be made to come to life through debates on such topics as "The Nature of Confederation and the Treatment of French Canada since Confederation," which was staged by the history class.

In the shop departments visitors saw young students operating sophisticated electronics equipment.

In the home economics department the girls demonstrated their sewing ability and their turned models to stage a fashion show. Even fried potato chips were served to the hungry.

The chemistry laboratory was a particularly popular spot as students were placed on their own to conduct the experiments of their choice. (The lab department was still intact at the end.)

MANY DEMONSTRATIONS

In the mathematics department the whiz kids put their knowledge to work to prove that there is no percentage in going to Las Vegas with the idea of beating the "house."

Even in the old fashioned game of "craps" it was shown that the house always has the advantage.

In the commercial department modern business practices were demonstrated. Here, in addition to the usual typing and other subjects, students get practical experience on telephone switchboards and in cultivation of the proper telephone technique.

In the gymnasium there were girls and boys gymnastics, folk dancing and weight lifting, while in the cafeteria the school concert band gave a short performance. Here, also was held the fashion show, with coffee and cookies served following the display night program.

PREPARE SAFETY LAW

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor Minister John Nicholson said Wednesday his department is preparing new safety legislation for the transportation industry to be introduced in the current session of Parliament. Possible legislation includes new safety laws for railroad workshops and other industries, he told the convention of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers (CLC).

Flyovers or Landings On French Soil by NATO Allies Restricted

PARIS (AP)—France has told the NATO allies that it will review every month its permission for their military planes to fly over France or to land, informed sources reported Wednesday.

This means that flights over or landings in France by allied aircraft could be terminated on 30 days notice, the sources said. There was no sign this was about to happen.

The move was the latest in President de Gaulle's program to remove France from the military activities of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It came as Britain announced that George Thomson, the No. 2 minister in the British foreign office, will go to Washington and Ottawa to discuss NATO questions generally and the prospect of moving political and military headquarters of the alliance to London.

DON'T SEE TROUBLE

Official preliminary reaction in Ottawa to the new French move was that no difficulties are anticipated. The secretary Canada - France agreement lapsed some months ago, officials said.

De Gaulle has announced that France will no longer participate in NATO's integrated military structure, and he has ordered the withdrawal of all allied military forces—including Canadian—from France by next April 1.

The French decision for a month - to-month re-examination of allied flight privileges starting June 1 was communicated to the NATO partners Tuesday.

The United States directs about 100,000 flights over France in the course of a year and would be most affected by the move. Other major allies affected include Canada—with two RCAF installations in France — West Germany and Britain.

In the past permission for overflights and landings have been given almost automatically on Dec. 31 for the following year. The 30-day notification had been normally extended for 1966.

If allied military overflights were to be barred by France, an east-west barrier in effect would be erected across Europe from the Atlantic in the Iron Curtain. Military flights are not permitted over neutral Switzerland and Austria.

Allied officials consider the question of guarantees for overflights and landings by NATO aircraft to be one of the most important questions to be negotiated with France in connection with her withdrawal from NATO military activities.

Women Enter Fifth Week of Hunger Strike

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two Doukhobor women at the Kingston prison for women today entered the fifth week of a hunger strike although they have been force-fed by a prison doctor.

The women, Mary Malakoff and Mary Astakeoff, both of Kamloops, B.C., and both in their 50s, are members of the Radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect.

Penitentiary officials said the women are protesting their five-year prison terms for arson. They were admitted to the prison last November.

SPORTSLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Some time ago, when, of all things, he was accused of running out of a fight with George Chuvalo, Cassius Clay became the world's first profession al athlete to air his tassels from the traditional Hyde Park soap-box.

That was, I believe, before the Louisville Lip, had decorated war as all whites and had become an exalted member of the Black Muslims with the title of Muhammid Ali.

Clay was in Gio Luzzeon to keep a date with "Our Energy" — a bloke named Henry Cooper who had been flitting with the British Empire Heavyweight championship for some time and who had aspirations to become the world heavyweight title-holder.

But the Bow Bells, 'Amputated 'Eath, Covent Garden and Soho set were not overly impressed with the mouthings of the upstart from Mésmerica and the word reached the Clay camp that the 'Arries and 'Arriets had decided to hear the fight via the wireless with assorted pints of arf-and-arf.

The Clay exchequer was yawning for what he hoped would be a generous filling of British gold. But there were no throwbacks from the wireless people nor the pubs. So Cassius took matters in his own hands.

He set up his soap-box pedestal in the Park and started a one-man verbal war with "Energy" for his target. Now as bloody American upstart was going to say those things about 'Energy and get away with it.

The London bobbies ran fingers alongside their noses and smiled and Cassius loosed his shafts and predicted "Energy" would bite the dust in the fifth round. (He did, too).

The faithful milled around the gassing Cassius threatening all kinds of mayhem. Red Clay merely taunted them — and his tactics worked. They came to the fight in droves, saw 'Energy' drop Clay for an eight-count then take it on the button in the fifth. But Clay had made his point.

He and his entourage loaded $75,000 worth of English sovereigns in their saddle-bags and returned to the land of the free etc.

The second clash between the pair slated for London's Highbury open air stadium (the home of the Gunners?) on May 21 won't need any Hyde Park mouthings on the part of Muhammid Ali. If he isn't along the silk-suited ermine-and-diamonds set that formed his entourage at the Chevals fight in Toronto, half the places will be filled with the curious alone.

Cooper celebrated his 32nd birthday on Tuesday and was the guest of British sports writers at a luncheon. They had scarcely finished the dover sole with mild-and-bitters when the British champion was handed a telegram. Coop stretched his battle-scarred mug into a wide grin when he read it, with the remark "He seems to have me on his mind. I'm not worried. He's not on my mind. He'll find me in London town."

The cable was from Clay, up to his old footballing tricks. The cable read: "Cooper, you said you are dying to get me into the ring again because you got lucky once and caught me on the chin."

"Well, you will finally get another chance at last, but if you think you are going to finish me fast, you got to be sure of yourself and have no doubts. When I catch you, you must go out and after I have finished whipping you, you will feel like St. Happy birthday. Your London bridge will fall down."

In front of Cooper at the Cheshire Cheese in London's Fleet Street where the luncheon was held, stood a golden trophy, offered by the British Boxing News to the Briton who won the world heavyweight title. The last Briton to win the crown was Bob Fitzsimmons back in 1909.

Cooper's vulnerable spot is the skin over his eyes which opens like an oyster with a tap. He has been training for this, treating it for six months, three times a day.

He will have a hard job weathering the storm of left jabs that Clay can throw like a machine gun. He almost patterned Chuvalo with those lightning short, range punches. Cooper claims to have a hard left hook. If it comes to the jabs versus the hooks it looks like Clay to me.

Mays Sets National Homer Record

By MIKE RATHBY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays broke Mel Ott's National League home run record by hitting No. 512 Wednesday night.

Mays hit a fifth-inning pitch from Claude Osteen over the right field fence for his seventh homer of the season and 512th of his career.

It was the first homer of the season by Mays and his first two or win a game for San Francisco Giants, who held a 4-3 lead en route to a 6-1 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers when the $125,000 - a - year centre fielder connected.

Mays received a two-minute standing ovation from the Candlestick Park crowd of 32,220. The homer ended a seven-game drought in which Mays hadn't driven in a run and it ended a string of 86 innings in which Osteen had not allowed a homer.

Mays' ball was retrieved by Henry Garron Jr., 17, of Oakland, Calif., but his father didn't want to part with it.

"I was offered $100 and I think it was worth more," Garron said.

Mays autographed it.

HAS TWO TARGETS

He probably will pass two more goals this season. Mays figures to climb above both Ted Williams, who hit 521 homers, and Jimmy Foxx, who hit 534, before the season ends.

That would leave only one more target—Babe Ruth's 714 homers.

Elsewhere, Jack Hamilton allowed only one hit in New York Mets' 3-0 victory over St. Louis —a bunt single by Cardinals' pitcher Ray Sadecki in the third inning; Chris Short pitched a two-hitter in Philadelphia Phillies' 2-1 victory over Atlanta Braves; Houston Astros' Bobby Roberts shut out Chicago Cubs 4-0 on seven hits and Pittsburgh Pirates edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

Even though Mays stole the show at Candlestick Park, Gibbon made an impressive first start for the Giants by holding the Dodgers to four hits.

Osteen was in trouble before Mays tagged his homer, helping San Francisco to take un earned runs in a four-run second inning. He hit Jim Hart, allowed a single by Orlando Cepeda and then threw away Jesus Alou's bouncer for one run. Hal Lanier singled home another and Jim Davenport followed with a two-run single.

Hamilton, 26, bringing his record to 3-1, surrendered his only hit when Sadecki laid a two-out bunt down the third base line and beat Ken Boyer's throw to first. The right-hander, purchased from Detroit during the off-season, struck out six, walked only one and allowed only two balls hit out of the infield.

TWO HIT HOMERS

Ron Swoboda and Ed Bressoud gave Hamilton all the support he needed by slamming homers.

Short (3-1) was touched for both hits by Denis Menke, who singled to centre in the fifth inning and hit a homer in the eighth. The Phillies southpaw struck out five and walked two.

Tony Gonzalez provided the first Phillies run with a homer in the second inning off Ken Johnson and the other came across on a consecutive, fourth inning singles by Dick Groat, Bill White and John Callison.

Roberts, winning his second in a row after three losses, brought the Astros their fourth straight victory. Joe Morgan singled in the first run and Dave Nicholson took care of the other three with a homer off Dick Ellsworth.

Bob Bailey homered for the Pirates' first run in the third inning before they pushed across three unearned fourth inning runs with the aid of two errors by the Reds' third baseman, Pete Rose.

Cleveland Shortstop Brown Fractures Skull

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Brown, Cleveland Indians' shortstop, was under intensive care in hospital today after fracturing his skull, nose and right cheek bone in a collision with teammate Leon Wagner at Yankee Stadium.

Wagner is in hospital with a broken nose and facial bruises.

It was the second blow to the Brown family within three months. Dick Brown, Larry's older brother and a catcher with Baltimore Orioles, underwent surgery for removal of a brain tumor two months ago.

A high school teammate of Dick Brown's at Lake Worth, Fla., pitcher Jim Score of the Indians, suffered a near-fatal injury in 1957 when struck with a line drive off the bat of the New York Yankees' Gil McDougald in a game at Cleveland. Score, who retired from baseball, is a television broadcaster with the Indians.

TORE AFTER BALL

Roger Maris lifted a high fly ball down the line in left field in the fourth inning of the Indians' 5-1 victory. Brown tore back after the ball and Wagner charged in from his left. The 200-pound Brown and the 200-pound outfielder met head on. Both sprawled on the ground as the ball fell safely for a double.

Brown may be lost for months and possibly the rest of the season. Wagner is due back in a day or two.

They carried Brown, 26, off the field on a stretcher after trainer Wally Bock pried open his mouth to keep him from choking on his blood.

Wagner walked off under his own power. Both had been knocked out.

"It was one of those plays nobody could call," said Wagner. "I saw Brown. It didn't look like he could catch it so I put on a burst of speed. . . I thought I just brushed Brownie."

Gadsby Has Broken Toe Habs Couldn't Wait For Richard

By AL McNEILL

DETROIT (CP)—Henri Richard, one of Montreal's most proficient goal scorers, is still waiting, but the Canadiens just couldn't.

Coach Toe Blake said before the best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals opened against Detroit Red Wings that Richard, who missed a number of late-season National Hockey League games because of a knee injury, would have to be back to normal if Montreal was to win.

BILL GADSBY

However, the little centre, who is the second highest playoff points getter on the current Canadiens' roster, hasn't scored a goal in two semi-final games against Toronto Maple Leafs and five against Detroit.

But the Canadiens decided after losing the first two games of the finals, they couldn't wait around any longer. They won the next two games on Detroit ice and took a 3-2 lead in the series in Montreal Tuesday night.

Richard has collected only three assists in his seven playoff games this season.

HAS 19 POINTS

He is appearing in his 10th post-season run for the cup, and is second only to Jean Beliveau in playoff points on the current club with 88 goals and 47 assists.

However, he and Lorne Worsley were the only two regulars who did not join in the hour-long skating and shooting practice the Montreal club held on their arrival here Wednesday.

Blake stressed that the workout had been a "voluntary task" and he allowed several of the older players the option of having the ice after a warm-up skate.

Richard said that after the playoff between the Toronto and Detroit series that he "felt good and the knee felt okay."

"But I still wouldn't get going in the first two games (against Detroit)," he added.

"Now the knee is still okay— except when maybe I move the wrong way—but I still can't score a goal."

Richard said that his wingers Dave Balon and Leon Rochefort have come on strong and he is not surprised the line has clicked against the Wings.

Balon has picked up two goals and Rochefort one assist since the threesome were thrown together after the second game.

While the Canadiens took part in their voluntary skate the Red Wings were given the day off first period.

Abel said Roger Crozier's condition continues to improve and he will definitely start in goal for the Wings.

Crozier was injured in the first period of Sunday's fourth game here which Montreal won 2-1.

He twisted his ankle and sprained his left knee in the collision but played Tuesday night despite heavy bandages on his leg.

Tonight's game is scheduled at 9 p.m. EDT with the seventh game, if necessary, to be played in Montreal Saturday night at 8 p.m. EDT.

Canada Lost 'Gold' Hope

By ROD CURRIE

NEW YORK (CP) — Canada lost its brightest hope for the 1968 Olympic Gold Medal in women's figure skating Wednesday when Petra Burka, 19-year-old Canadian and North American champion, turned professional.

"I have no regrets," said the dark-eyed Petra after signing with the Holiday on Ice show and posing for cameramen at Madison Square Garden. "I feel I have done everything I can do in amateur skating."

But many considered the 1965 world women's figure skating champion a leading contender for the Olympic crown in 1968, particularity in view of her age.

As far as Petra is concerned, it was obvious she was happy to be at last free of the long school figures demanded by amateur competition.

Considered possibly the best women's freeskater in the world, she placed second to Djoulke Dijkstra of Holland in the 1964 Olympic freeskating but the dreaded figures—which count for 60 per cent of the total points—brought her to third place in the over-all points total.

FOUND FIGURES BORING

The figures have been her nemesis ever since she started competing in Toronto at the age of seven and she said Wednesday:

"I love to skate but I found the school figures so boring. As an amateur they were necessary but now, as a professional, I will be able to just skate."

Neither she, her mother and coache Mrs. Ellen Burka, a former Dutch national titleholder, nor officials of Holiday on Ice would disclose terms of the three-year contract although Mrs. Burka said it was "an excellent contract."

Frisch Raps Modern Baseball

TORONTO (CP) — Frankie Frisch, former all-star second baseman with St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, says he's disappointed with baseball today.

Frisch, 70, spoke Wednesday to 565 fans at a dinner honoring the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

"The players all have three uniforms nowadays. We never had more than one. You couldn't throw your socks away after wearing them half a season — they just stood there.

"Now they put in potted plants to give hitters a good background. And they always have a white new ball. Some of the players are pampered with their batting helmets.

"Can you imagine the Yankees in powder blue helmets?"

In the old days, Frisch said, things were different.

"We had the spitball, emery ball, shine ball. Sometimes the ball had so much sand on it, you'd be surprised if the pitcher could hold on to it."

Pressure Off Willie

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays can concentrate on his batting average again now that he's hammered a pitch out of Candlestick Park to bring him the National League career home run record of 512.

While pursuing the homer which eluded him for 10 days, Willie's average dropped to .284 from .348, and he admits feeling the pressure of going for a big record.

His got it Wednesday night as his San Francisco Giants defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1. In the fifth inning, Mays connected on a high change-up from Claude Osteen and sent it 360 feet and over the right field fence.

"I knew it was gone when I hit it," Willie admitted. "It was a long time coming."

A hassle developed over the ball Willie hit for the record. Henry Garron Jr., a 17-year-old high school student from Oakland, retrieved it. He and his father decided not to accept the $100 offered for the ball.

A disappointed Mays put it atop to say hegaining when he autographed the ball, handed it back to the senior Garron and commented, "Be my guest and keep it."

Osteen, who had a 4-1 record coming into the game, hadn't thrown a home run pitch in his last 96 innings. He struck out Mays in both the first and second.

Of the fifth - inning blast, Osteen said:

"I threw him a change-up and I knew the instant he began to go that it was gone. I've never been in the record book for anything and I'm sorry it had to come like this. I threw it where he likes them. It was a great milestone for him and I'm glad he reached it.

WAS A BAD GAME

"And that wasn't what beat me. It was one of my worst games and we were losing 4-1 at the time."

Willie compared the thrill of No. 512 with that of No. 1, the homer he hit off Warren Spahn as a rookie. Mays had gone hitless in his first dozen times at bat after being called up to the major leagues in 1951.

"The home run off Spahn kept me in the majors and if I hadn't hit that one, I wouldn't have hit this one, so it's just about even," the smiling Mays explained.

Mays said he'd like to concentrate now on his batting average, but added: "I'm not going to stop swinging. I have to be more relaxed now. If I ever catch up to some of those ahead of me, maybe it will be the same thing all over again."

Only three players in major league history now have hit more home runs than the 36-year-old Mays. Ted Williams had 521, Jimmy Foxx 534 and Babe Ruth 714.

Willie should eclipse the first two lifts season and become the leading right-handed home run hitter of all time.

Whether he'll ever catch the left-handed hitting Ruth's record remains problematical, but there are many who think he can.

YANKEES SHUFFLE

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees sent shortstop Bobby Murcer and catcher Frank Fernandez to Toledo of the International League on option Wednesday night. The move indicates that the club was unable to obtain waivers on pitcher Jim Bouton, who has been plagued by arm trouble.

Record For Hayman In Close Victory

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

"That one was too close for comfort," said Johnny Hayman.

And that just about summed up the 22nd annual Ken Colling Memorial Cross-Country Run yesterday.

Hayman, 17-year-old speedster from Moira Secondary School, won the race, his second in a row, but only a scant second over Trenton High School's David Prudhomme.

Prudhomme and Hayman were neck and neck all the way around the four-and-a-half mile course, providing one of the best races in some years.

Hayman was pushed to a record time by the Trenton youth, snapping his own mark of last year.

The winning time was 22 minutes and 48 seconds even while Prudhomme was clocked in 22:49. Hayman's former record was 22:52.01.

Third place went to a Picton runner, Robbie Ostrander, also in a good time of 22:50.5, just 11½ seconds behind Hayman.

Hayman paid tribute to his closest competitor in the BCIVS discoverer room following the race: "He ran a great race and stayed right with me all the way. I was only the last 50 or 70 yards of Queen Street that I was able to open up the little lead that I did have."

Asked about next year, the small but muscular redhead beamed, "I'll sure be trying for three in a row, that's what I'm aiming for now."

Mr. Cleo Colling "makes an annual presentation of the Ken Colling Memorial Trophy and in cases where the same athlete wins it three times he is allowed to keep it permanently.

"It looks like I may be dipping in for another new one after next year," offered Colling after the race.

He made the presentation to Hayman in the gym, along with cresta to the first 36 finishers.

There were 76 entries in the race, wricked by a fair crowd in bright but chilly weather, ideal for running.

Just about every secondary school in the Bay of Quinte district was represented, with the exception of Albert College. Hayman is a grade 12 student at Moira, active in many phases of athletics there and especially in track. Prudhomme is a 16-year-old grade 11 student at Trenton High.

Following Prince Edward's Ostrander across the line was another Picton entry, Allan Lindstrom, in fourth position.

Clyde Jourdin, a veteran of the race, from the Ontario School for the Deaf, grabbed off fifth place.

Ray Bouma, from BCIVS, came sixth with Bill Allen of Tweed seventh, and Duncan Rogerson of Trenton, eighth.

Allan Cup Finals Start Tonight

CALGARY (CP) — Coaches indicated a battle of tactical contrasts in tonight's opening game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup final series between Sherbrooke Beavers and Drumheller Miners.

Coach Georges Roy, who arrived here Wednesday night with two Beaver players out of action, said his light, young defending champions will continue to rely on fast skating.

But coach Roy Kelly, leing the heavier and older Miners, forecast a hitting game, partly because of the small ice surface at the 2,200-seat Foothills Arena.

Second game will be at Footbills Saturday. Further action will be at the Stampede Corral May 10 and 12. If necessary, the clabs will return to Foothills for frther games May 14, 16 and 17.

Oil Kings Surprise Generals 7-2

Dominate Play

By JOE DUFUIS

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings out-skated, outbumped and out-hustled Oshawa Generals for a 7-2 win Wednesday night to open the Memorial Cup finals—and immediately shattered the image of the West being easy pickings.

"This is the biggest game Edmonton's ever won," said Bill Hunter, the Oil Kings' manager. A western team hasn't been able to win a cup final in the East in 17 years. The Oil Kings have been in it in the last six years, and in that time won it only once—at home in 1963.

"They're either the best out of the West in a long time, or we're the worst in the East in a long time," said Wren Blair, Oshawa manager. The Oil Kings turned out to be "one big surprise."

The teams go at it again Friday night, starting at 8 p.m. EDT, in the second game of the best-of-seven series to determine the 1966 Canadian junior hockey champion. The third game will be played Sunday at 2 p.m., and the fourth next Wednesday.

All games of the series are being played at Maple Leaf Gardens as Oshawa's home arena is occupied with previously-booked attractions.

OUTSHOT THE GENERALS

Only 4,310 fans turned out to see Edmonton outboot the Generals 37-20 and puncture the Oshawa defence with ease despite a sparkling performance from Oshawa's defenceman Bobby Orr.

Orr fired more than half the Oshawa shots at Edmonton goalie Don McLaren, and got them off to a 1-0 lead early in the first period, scoring a blueline slap shot.

Chris Hayes was the other Oshawa scorer.

Centre Rose Perkins, the team's leading scorer during the regular season, got two of Edmonton's goals in the third period. Ron Lonsberry, Jim Harrison, Galen Head, Al Hamilton and Garnet Bailey were the other Edmonton scorers.

Lonsberry, Harrison and Ted (Cisher) Hodgson are all-stars with Estevan Bruins of Saskatchewan Junior League, picked up by Edmonton for the national final. Harrison and Hodgson each had two assists. All shots figured in four of Edmonton's goals.

Wren has protested Edmonton's use of the Estevan players to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, but the protest isn't expected to get far.

FIGHTS BREAK OUT

A third period fist-swinging brawl followed procedures and referee Frank Dalgnault after letting the players fight it out, assessed them with six major penalties.

The fight brought charges from the rival coaches of head-hunting Edmonton coach Ray Kinasewich said the Generals "went after heads because they couldn't take Edmonton's persistent body-checking."

"You can tell them to stop sending hashers" after Bobby Orr," cracked Bap Cuddolin, Oshawa coach.

A play involving Orr started the brawl.

Harrison crashed into the Oshawa defenceman while Orr was tied up in the Edmonton end. Oshawa's Bill White went after Harrison, and the fighting quickly spread.

Orr sent Dave Rochefort sprawling to the ice, and then sat on him. The Oil Kings' Doug Barrie and Ron Dunsmuir squared off in one bout, and White and Harrison had a toe-to-toe slugfest in another. Some players were landed and, except for Orr's bout, the Oil Kings came out best in the fistduffs.

White ended up with a deep cut on the head from Harrison's fists. Of the 18 penalties distributed in the game, Edmonton got 11 of them. But only three power play goals were scored, two by Oshawa.

City of Hull Gives Bobby A 'Day'

HULL, Que. (CP) — City council has named Wednesday, May 18, as Bobby Hull Day in honor of the Chicago Black Hawk winger.

Hull, who broke the National Hockey League's individual goal-scoring record for one season this year, is to receive a certificate and be named an honorary citizen of this city on the Ottawa River across from the capital.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—He's a Smoothie, a three-year-old colt won the first race of his career when he took the $2,200-purse first race at Fort Erie Racetrack Wednesday.

With John LaBlanc in the saddle, the colt completed the six furlongs in 1:23 2-5 and returned $4.10, $3 and $2.60 to his backers.

The daily double of He's a Smoothie and Dollar Scholar paid $11.70.

Rookie 'Great Scott' Hits Two

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Great Scott," exclaimed Manager Billy Herman when he saw the rookie infielder sporting an ascot on a sporting training trip.

So George Scott discarded the neckwear, but not the nickname.

Scott, Boston's dapper young first baseman, took over the American League home run lead Wednesday night with his sixth and seventh of the season as Red Sox blanked Detroit Tigers 7-0 on Earl Wilson's two-hitter.

It was just that kind of slugging that earned Scott a starting job during spring training. DROVE IN FIVE RUNS

Scott drove in five runs with his two homers as the Red Sox won their fifth game and third against Detroit this season.

Elsewhere, Fred Whitfield's ninth-inning homer gave Cleveland Indians a 3-1 decision over New York Yankees in a game in which Indians' shortstop Larry Brown suffered a fractured skull when he collided with teammate Leon Wagner going after a fly ball.

Washington Senators whipped Baltimore Orioles 3-2, Minnesota Twins rocked Chicago White Sox 6-1 and California Angels ripped Kansas City Athletics 13-2 in other games.

Scott's first homer followed one by Wilson in the fifth inning.

In the ninth, Scott hammered his second homer of the night, just missing the left field roof with a long drive.

HAS YANKS GOING

Whitfield, the Yankees' No. 1 nemesis, beat New York with a homer for the third time this season. The veteran first baseman, who played under New York manager Johnny Keane when Keane managed St. Louis Cardinals, has punished Yankee pitching for 13 homers in the last two seasons.

Brown and Wagner collided in the fourth inning chasing Roger Maris's blooper. Brown was reported in serious condition at Lenox Hill Hospital where examination revealed a fractured skull, fractured nose and fractured cheekbone.

Wagner suffered a broken nose.

The Senators beat the Orioles with three pitchers combining for a five-hitter.

Relievers Dick Lines and Ron Kline permitted just three hits over the last 5 2-3 innings after starter Jim Duckworth was forced to leave the game with a back injury in the fourth inning.

Minnesota scored three runs on one hit in the first inning and went on to beat Chicago as Jim Kaat scattered nine White Sox hits.

Bob Rodgers whacked four hits and Norm Siebern and Jack Warner drove in two runs apiece as the Angels racked Kansas City. Dean Chance pitched a six-hitter, and the Angels belted three Athletic pitchers for 12 hits.

WILL KEEP RARE COIN

HALIFAX (CP)—A student at King's College here says the coin he bought in Toronto is a rare Irish half-crown, one of 11 minted in 1943. He is uncertain of the value because few people collect Irish coins, but it's not up for sale anyway.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

WAGGLE WITH A PURPOSE

Before starting your backswing, free your wrists and hands from tension by waggling the clubhead. The waggle also serves another purpose. It sets the pattern of your takeaway. The movement of your clubhead during your waggle more or less previews the path your clubhead will take at the start of your backswing.

Therefore, I feel it is unwise to raise and lower your clubhead (see illustration No. 1) during your waggle. Such movement might cause you to lift your clubhead abruptly on your takeaway.

Instead waggle by moving the clubhead backward and forward behind the ball, more or less in the same groove it will assume during your swing (No. 2). Your takeaway should find the clubhead moving straight back from the ball and low to the ground. Your waggle should follow this same pattern.

STRESSES NEED

TORONTO (CP) — The need for a clearly defined research policy for agriculture was stressed Wednesday by J. R. Weir, deputy director of the science secretariat at the Privy Council office, Ottawa. Speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian Council of 4-H Clubs, Mr. Weir said such a policy should recognize the responsibilities of all educational agencies and ensure the development of a total research effort.

CBS to Sharply Reduce Coverage of Next Flight

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—The CBS news division under its president, Richard Salant, wants to do something constructive about the fierce three-network competition that sometimes brings to viewers complete duplication of coverage on some stories.

Salant, in a speech Wednesday to a conference of network-station representatives, proposed that the networks apply editorial judgment in coverage of the May 17 flight of Gemini 5.

Barring emergencies, he said, CBS will reduce sharply the amount of network time given to the flight for short periods to cover important events, including launching of course, docking in space, the walk in space, and return of the capsule.

"Man's assault into space is no longer unprecedented nor is each mission so extraordinary," he said. Most people now know the problems and perils of space and, he added, a space journey once the rocket is in orbit is a second-hand story, passed along by the space agency, which can be seen neither by television reporters nor caught by the cameras.

Hugh Downs of NBC's Today Show also talked about television practice Wednesday. In a speech prepared for the Advertising Club of New York, he cautioned Madison Avenue about aiming what he called "hard commercials" at viewers.

He decried "too many one-joke commercials repeated to a point of gross irritation. One bite out of a bat may be funny but not the 30th time you've seen it."

He also mentioned "biological distortion" — hammers in the head and fires in the stomach. He warned about diminishing credibility by using fantasy that gets too far out, such as tornadoes in sinks doing the dishes.

At the Park

First Showing Opens Tonight Famed Ghouls in Twin Bill

A double dose of motion pictures terror opens tonight at the Park Theatre and continues until Saturday under the title "Beauties and Monsters," consisting of two of the most fiendish monster tales ever to chill a spine. Shockorama presents "Billy The Kid Vs Dracula" and "Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter," in wide-screen and color through Embassy Pictures release, mark fifty-six years in the motion picture industry for director William Beaudine.

The veteran movie-maker joined the Biograph Company back in the halcyon days of the silent screen, supervised first as a teenage actor with such greats as Mary Pickford and D. W. Griffith.

He eventually became a director, and while still in his twenties, became recognized as one of the foremost film talents in the world. Some of his outstanding achievements are "Country Fair," "Bowery Battalion" and "Roar of the Crowd."

Recently, Beaudine has devoted himself to directing episodes of leading filmed television shows, including the "Rin Tin Tin," "Racket Squad," "Man Behind the Badge," "Naked City," and Walt Disney's "Wonderful World of Color" series.

"Billy The Kid Vs. Dracula" stars John Carradine, Chuck Courtney and Melinda Plowman. "Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter" are John Lupton, Narda Onyx, Cal Bolder and Steven Geray.

Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.35 p.m.

Desi Arnaz Back at Work In Studio That Bears Name

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—After a three-year absence, Desi Arnaz is back at work in the studio that bears his name. But there's a difference.

Whereas the onetime bongo drum-pounder once ruled the Desilu empire, he now is a renter of space at Desilu Culver Studio. He occupies the suite which David O. Selznick used until his death last year. In honor of Desi's return, the place has been redecorated.

The lady who ordered the redecoration is Lucille Ball, Desi's former wife and co-star, and his successor as president of Desilu.

"The prettiest landlady in the world," he commented.

Their old feud is now are strictly as landlady and tenant, since Desi sold Lucille all his stock when he stepped out of the business three years ago.

Why did he leave?

"For a number of reasons," he replied. "I found that I was working terribly hard, mostly in things that I wasn't particularly interested in. I was stuck with the managerial end of running three studios with 3,000 employees. That wasn't what I got into the business for.

"I enjoyed the creative end—getting together with some writers on an idea, following through with scripts, casting the project and bringing forth the final product. But I found myself tied up with a factory operation."

QUIT AND SOLD OUT

He quit. His marriage to Lucille already had come to an end. He sold out to her and later Paramount. Mrs. Desilu then looked after his horse breeding farm at Corona, Calif., which Desi's mission to extinguish. He raced his horses, kept an eye on his Indian Wells resort at Palm Desert, played golf and fished.

Then he got interested in a book. With our Consent, and contracted for a movie script. CBS boss William Paley heard about it and asked if Desi would be interested in a return to TV.

"I've got nothing against TV," Desi replied. "But I'm not interested in taking over the 20th Century-Fox television department, or MGM's or Screen Gems' if I can operate my own way, without getting involved with executive matters, then I'm interested."

So was Paley, and he made a deal with Desi to develop projects for CBS. Desi went to work and now he has three or four comedy series in various stages of development, plus a special to star Cantinflas.

"I'm operating at my own pace, without pressure," Desi explained.

Share Top Billing In Rich Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The moment of decision arrived today for owners of Kentucky Derby candidates and at least one was wishing he could perform a ceremonial rain dance on the way to the entry box.

A field of 16—and one more with Doc D'Eclair included if there was any hope of a downpour—was expected to post the entry fee of $1,000 before the box closed at 10:30 a.m. EDT.

Rain or not, the 81st Derby Saturday figured to be the second richest in the history of the 1¼-mile classic for three-year-old thoroughbreds. With 16, the most likely field, it will gross $156,000.

"A muddy track would give my colt about 10 lengths." Doc Jr., said. But the weatherman didn't offer much encouragement. He predicted no rain.

First in the entry box today on the strength of advance payment, was Aberdi, the first Derby starter for Reginal Webster who maintains stables abroad in addition to his string in this country.

Trainer Lucian Laurin, also looking forward in his first Derby starter in 30 years in the business, wasn't able to be at Churchill Downs for the actual entry, so he posted it at his office.

Grand Prix Stable's Abe's Hope and Michael J. Ford's Royal King also put up billing as the probable odds, with Abe's Hope a slight 9-5 favorite.

The two have met three times with Kauai King holding a 2-1 edge.

Only notches below them in the odds are Amboroid and R. J. Richards' Trapjaw.

Richards, transplanted from New York to Los Angeles 20 years ago, predicted Trapjaw would lead the now - injured Grustark when the Derby was classed as the Big G's one horse race two weeks ago. The colt now is out of action with a broken bone in his foot.

Braulio Baeza, who was to have ridden Grustark, now will be aboard the Wheatley Stable's Stupendous.

The derby's post time is 5:30 p.m. EDT, and will receive coverage by CBC starting at 3 p.m.

Sharp Polishes Leadership Bid In U.S. Talk

By JAMES NELSON

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP)—For a man who isn't ready to say yet whether he will be in the race when it comes for the Liberal party leadership, Finance Minister Sharp put on a performance here Thursday that should be to his credit when the race begins.

Invited to address the University of Rochester's Canadian studies group, Mr. Sharp delivered a basic working paper on his concept of Canada-American economic relations which at the same time set out his view of Canada's place in an interdependent world.

It was a soft-sell job, delivered with a competence which came from years of inside experience in the finance and trade departments.

In addition to the lecture, Mr. Sharp spent nearly two hours in a closed seminar meeting with members of the university faculty and graduate students in Canadian affairs.

A seminar participant said later Mr. Sharp "held his own—as much as he could." Near the end a student asked him point blank whether he would run for the leadership whenever Mr. Pearson retires. That was a question Mr. Sharp said, he hasn't answered yet even in Canada.

COMMITMENT TO HIMSELF

In his lecture, which included case histories of the development of the United States auto tariffs agreement and the gaining of exemptions from most of the U.S. guidelines designed to restrict the outflow of U.S. dollars, Mr. Sharp committed himself as an internationalist.

"Do not be misled by occasional burst of what may appear to you to be [illegible] nationalism (in Canada)," Mr. Sharp told his audience of about 300 students, professors and Rochester businessmen.

"Throughout our history as a nation we have known instinctively that our destiny lay in the world, not in frigid isolation within our borders or even in the more luxurious North American continent. We must share with you in a strictly bilateral arrangement.

"Interdependence is not new or foreign to us. We recognize and accept it in our bilateral relationship with you. We are prepared upon occasion deliberately to extend it, as in the automotive agreement.

"We seek to establish and work through new institutional arrangements which reflect this growing significance. But interdependence must be satisfactory to our bilateral relationship with the United States could develop only if it were to lead to greater, not less, independence.

"Thus, Canada responds instinctively, positively to multilateral regional groups and institutions set up to organize them."

The minister met local reporters who questioned him about "hostility" in Canada to American corporations. Mr. Sharp said it shouldn't be called "hostility," but concern for

Living Costs Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose by eight-tenths of a point during April in a record 143.2, the dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Increased food costs and an increase in the dairies provincial sales tax to five per cent from three were mainly responsible. All seven sections of the index were up.

The index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, has stood at 141.2 in January, 142.1 in February and 142.4 in March, the previous record high. The April figure was four per cent higher than in the same month of last year when it was 137.7.

There is no exactly parallel index of incomes But an index of industrial wages and salaries, based on 1961 equalling 100, was at 118.9 last December, latest figure available.

April food prices moved the food section of the index to 143.7 from 142.4.

INCREASES NOTED

The bureau said higher prices were reported for potatoes, tomatoes, carrots, eggs, dairy products, fats, bakery—and cereal products, bananas, frozen strawberries, canned vegetables, chicken and instant coffee.

Lower prices were reported on pork, some cuts of beef, lettuce, celery, cabbage and citrus fruits.

Housing costs rose on index to 143.8 from 143.3 on increased prices for furniture, appliances, floor coverings, textiles and household utensils.

Clothing went to 125.3 from 124.3 on a wide general price rise.

Transportation costs pushed that index to 136.7 from 136 as effects of the Ontario sales tax on cars offset lower gar prices in Western Canada.

Health and personal care rose to 179.3 from 178.1, triggered by widespread increases in doctors' and dentists' fees and optical care.

Recreation and reading also jumped to 157.8 from 156.5 after scattered price gains for radios, TV sets, reserved theatre seats.

Tobacco and alcohol, which accounts for six per cent of the total index' weighting, rose significantly per index to 125 from 123.4 due to a general increase in Ottawa prices and slight increases at Montreal and Vancouver.

The consumer price index measures changes since 1949 in prices of a selection of goods and services representative of typical purchases by families of from two to six, living in cities of over 30,000 population and with incomes during 1957 ranging between $2,500 and $7,000.

It is compiled by a check of prices on about 300 goods and services.

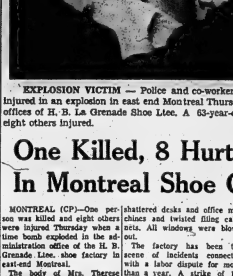
EXPLOSION VICTIM — Police and co-workers try to comfort one of those injured in an explosion in east end Montreal Thursday which rocked the general offices of H. B. La Grenade Shoe Liee. A 63-year-old woman was killed and eight others injured. (CP Wirephoto)

One Killed, 8 Hurt, by Bomb In Montreal Shoe Co. Office

MONTREAL (CP)—One person was killed and eight others were injured Thursday when a time bomb exploded in the administration office of the H. B. Grenade Lice. shoe factory in east-end Montreal.

The body of Mrs. Therese Morin, 63, was found in the wreckage of the office. She had been an employee of the company for 40 years.

Severely injured in the blast were Henri B. la Grenade, 51, vice-president of the company, Andre la Grenade, 37, a brother of Henri, and Therese Sirois, 23, an employee. Five others were treated in hospital for minor injuries and shock.



A police spokesman said Thursday night the blast was caused by a time bomb made up of four sticks of dynamite. The bomb was believed to have been placed in a desk drawer while the staff were out to lunch. The explosion occurred at 12:45 p.m.

Mrs. Morin, was thought to have returned to the office early after lunch to do some work. The injured persons were all entering the building.

The force of the explosion peeled plaster off the walls, shattered desks and office machines and twisted filing cabinets. All windows were blown out.

The factory has been the scene of incidents connected with a labor dispute for more than a year. A strike of 120 employees, members of the National Union of la Grenade Shoe Workers (CNTU), began April 25, 1965, and is still in progress.

The strikers are seeking an hourly wage increase of 15 cents. The current wages range from 73 cents to $1.90. There have been several cases of violence between striking unionists and non-union workers, still on the job.

"The management had a vote of confidence and you lost."

Viet Nam Vote Meaningless As Most Cannot Take Part

SAIGON (AP)—A leader of South Viet Nam's major political parties said today elections in the country will have no meaning unless two-thirds of the people are able to vote freely.

He estimated that only about one-fifth could do this at present.

His Thuc Ky, secretary-general of a faction of the Dai Viet party and no relation to Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, said that the elections promised by the military government could only be held in cities and towns under present conditions.

He suggested at least six months for organizing elections and an interim civilian government to serve during the period.

As now planned by the government, Ky said, the elections "will be only a show to satisfy the foreigners. It will not be representative of the people."

Ky, 47, a forestry engineer who served briefly as interior minister in 1964, also predicted that the voting promised by the military junta in the fall would produce a Buddhist - controlled national Assembly.

"The Buddhists want to oust the Americans and leave this country to neutralism," he asserted.

"The Dai Viet feels it is necessary for the United States to stay and help in the fight against the Communists. We are grateful U.S. help. Viet Nam cannot survive without this help."

But he said it would be a mistake to blame all anti-Americanism on Communist agitation.

Nationalist elements express their views because of the U.S. support of the military government, he said.

Ky charged that "minority groups" had fattened themselves on America n money.

"The peasants have received only drops of U.S. aid," he said.

He said the Viet Cong could be defeated militarily but much more had to be done to the countryside for a political victory.

FIRE ATOM BLAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nuclear test blast yield—equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of TNT—was set off underground Thursday at the Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site.

Peking Admits Rebel Groups Oppose Regime

TOKYO (AP) — Peking is stepping up a campaign against "anti-party" elements which the Communist regime admits are threatening its existence.

In an extraordinary move, the Chinese government has disclosed that rebellious groups which seek its overthrow now exists, not only among intellectuals, but in youth groups, the army and even in the Communist party itself.

The existence of these wayward elements was made clear last week in a series of officially approved articles, editorials and directives.

The Chinese leaders admit that the enemies of the 17-year-old regime "are generally authorities" and enjoy a certain "reputation" —a sign that they may include high-ranking Communists.

The usual admissions could be the prelude to a purge of "rightists" far deeper than that of 1957. The Liberation Army Daily, Red China's army paper, said on Wednesday: "The current great struggle . . . is being carried to greater depths."

Two Sentenced To Life Terms For Murder

CHESTER, England (Reuters) Ian, Brady, 28, and his mistress, Myra Hindley, 23, were found guilty today of killing Edward Evans, 17, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10.

Brady alone was found guilty of murdering John Kilbride, 12, the third of three victims in what was known as the moors murder trial.

Both Brady and Miss Hindley were sentenced to life imprisonment.

3 Witnesses Left In Spencer Probe

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The inquiry into the case of George Victor Spencer, shadowy figure in a web of Russian espionage whose career created a parliamentary crisis, is expected to wind up today.

J. J. Robinette, counsel for the commission under Mr. Justice Dalton Wells inquiring into the case of the dismissed Vancouver postal clerk, said he had only three more witnesses to call, all former postal co-workers of Spencer.

Harry Rankin, who had a mild clash with Mr. Justice Wells during the hearing Thursday and refused to cross-examine any commission witnesses, said he planned to call no one.

The Wells commission was set up by Prime Minister Pearson to find whether Spencer, 42, was fairly treated in being dismissed without pension from his post office job after 18 years of service.

The Vancouver hearings followed three days of testimony taken in Ottawa last month.

DESCRIBES ACTIVITIES

In those hearings, Assistant RCMP Commissioner W. J. Kelly said Spencer's association with Russian agents included espionage information about the Trans - Mountain oil pipeline, ethnic groups in Canada and plans for a new cemetery gravestones—apparently to supply false identities for Russian agents that could not be checked.

The assistant commissioner said Spencer's actions befitted into a program of Russian espionage in Canada, even to obtaining farms close to the U.S. border from which Russian agents could be slipped into the U.S.

It was on Kelly's allegations that Mr. Rankin clashed with the commissioner. He urged the calling of witnesses who gave information on which the RCMP director of security and intelligence had formed his report.

But Mr. Justice Wells said he would "revoke disclosure of this country's intelligence methods" and could not be done. "The security of this country is of more importance than the publicity of this hearing."

Mr. Rankin said in that case he would merely sit in "an observer's chair" and would examine no witnesses. He said Kelly's statements may have been evidence which should not be admitted.

WILL CONSIDER IT

Mr. Justice Wells said he presumed it was partly hearsay but under his terms of reference he had the right to admit it. "When I come to make my report (by Kelly's statements) will be evaluated in that context."

Earlier he told Mr. Rankin: "I propose to base my decision on the evidence I have heard. In an inquiry of this kind I can act on hearsay, but if it will comfort you at all, I don't think I will have to act on hearsay. . . ."

Mr. Rankin refused an offer

U.S. Airborne Bomber Alert To Be Relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has ordered a reduction in the continuous airborne alert of B-52 bombers, it was disclosed today.

He told the House of Representatives appropriations committee the constant bomber alert alert, conducted for more than five years, no longer is needed because:

—The U.S. radar warning system is good enough to get the bombers force off the ground before enemy missiles can destroy the aircraft.

—Of "the declining importance of bombers in relations to missiles."

No indication of the extent of the reduction was available.

McNamara's testimony, given in secret earlier this year, seemed certain to arouse new criticism from advocates of the bomber and those with questions reliance on missiles.

Two Advances in Battle Against the Flu Discovered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two advances in the battle against the flu were disclosed Thursday at a meeting of the American Medical Association.

Two scientists of the University of Michigan's school of public health reported what they called a "striking finding": a vaccine which reduces side effects and can be used safely on newborn children.

A research team of the University of Maryland school of medicine told of an experiment with the drug amantadine hydrochloride in which high fever was eliminated and the incidence of generalized aching and headache was cut by half.

The Michigan researchers, Dr. Fr. Du Deverteuil and Dr. A. V. Hennessy, noted that standard influenza vaccines usually have a toxic effect on children under three and are not often recommended by pediatrician.

The new vaccine, developed in the last five years, eliminates the flu-like symptoms of fever and headache felt by adults after standard vaccination and is safe for infants, they said. It differs from other vaccines in that it uses only one-tenth of the influenza virus instead of the 10 times given as inactive placebo. After 36 hours all 46 volunteers had nose and throat sprayed with live A-2 Asian flu virus.

Minor symptoms showed up only half as frequently in the drug-treated men. The most severe form of the illness—high fever—occurred only in those men not given the drug.

The Maryland team—Dr. Albert T. Dawkins, Dr. Richard B. Hornick and Dr. Yasuhuki Togo—screened 1,200 male volunteers at the Maryland House of Correction at Jessup and selected 46 as having no natural antibody protection against influenza.

Half the group were given amantadine capsules every 12 hours for nine days and the other 23 were given an inactive placebo. After 36 hours all 46 volunteers had nose and throat sprayed with live A-2 Asian flu virus.

Auto Pact Upheld

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is swallowing the 15-month-old Canadian-U.S. auto agreement.

But the pact signed Jan. 16, 1965, is getting a thorough chewing first.

The Opposition tried twice Thursday to amend the government resolution asking Commons approval for the major document.

The first amendment, to send the matter to the standing committee on energy and national resources, was ruled out of order.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled that a second amendment, requiring prior parliamentary approval before the agreement is reviewed in 1968, will go the same way.

Conservative and New Democrat MPs from Ontario ridings where the auto industry is important peppered criticism at the pact.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) said it was supposed to lower the price of cars in Canada. But 80,000 Chryslers shipped to the U.S. sold for an average $815 less than the same models in this country.

CONCEDED POINT

He and other Conservatives said industry Minister Drury's contention that the agreement had created 25,000 new jobs in the industry might be correct.

But these were assembly line jobs, making the unskilled workers, they claimed.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said the machine tool industries that produce auto parts and employ highly skilled workers have been neglected.

Auto manufacturers were importing parts from the U.S. and having them assembled in Canada.

Opposition MPs also said the 15-per-cent federal sales tax on production machinery posed a severe hardship for Canadian parts manufacturers trying to sell in the U.S.

"Canada is one of the few countries in the world that has been so cleverly able to discriminate in its own industry," said Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth).

Mr. Scott said Canadian MPs had to get most of their information on the plan from hearings in Washington.

Like other opposition MPs, Mr. Scott indicated approval would be forthcoming if requested. Mr. Drury would "have to commit suicide" if the Commons rejected the pact now.

He added though that it "con-

Margaret and Snowden Mellow Couple on Sixth Anniversary

LONDON (CP)—When Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon go dancing others on the ballroom floor are often heard to say: "How happy they look."

Today, as they celebrate their sixth wedding anniversary attending a gala charity ball in the French Riviera town of Nice, the comment will undoubtedly be made again, with special emphasis.

There seems no doubt that marriage to the amateur photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones has matured and mellowed the flamboyant younger sister, who is 35 and five months younger than her husband.

Family life has brought calm and contentment to the girl who once made headlines, who suffered public heartbreak over her doomed romance with divorced Peter Townsend, and of whom the popular columnists repeatedly asked: "Will she ever marry?"

It has done the same for Snowdon, who in his bachelor days was noted for wild Chelsea parties and a weird assortment of friends. After an uneasy start, he now takes the round seriously function in a practised stride.

His various advisory jobs in the field of design, including that with Lord Thomson's Sunday Times, give him more scope to develop his own talents than with Lord Thomson's Sunday Times, give him more scope to develop his own talents than the royal family for creative activity.

Since the married years have had a hefty share of rough weather The couple have come through the separation and other figures in Britain's royal circle.

The glamorous Westminster Abbey wedding of May 6, 1960, caused perhaps the greatest outpouring of public rejoicing since the 1953 coronation. But the U.S. popular press commented the Queen looked "dour" during the service, speculating that she disapproved of the match — an observation widely heard among Britons who watched the ceremony, the first royal wedding to be televised.

But the British people were in high good humor at the love match. Outside the palace on the wedding evening, 70,000 Londoners sang For He's A Jolly Good Fellow as Tony shyly smiled from the balcony in his first taste of public adulation.

It was not to last.

Hardly was the West Indies honeymoon under way than questions were being asked in Parliament about the wedding present list and the cost of spending with £54,000 for the baptism of then Princess Elizabeth in 1947.

The first year of the marriage was marred by a spate of harsh criticism that the Armstrong-Jones income was not enough for the £15,000 British taxpayers were paying Margaret for public services.

It was freely speculated that

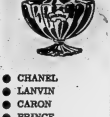
District Separate Schools Rent Use of U.S. Computer



The Belleville Separate School Board and ten other Separate School Boards have formed the Tri - County - Standardized Testing Association. The association enables the individual boards to rent at reasonable rates the facilities of a computer based in Chicago.

Effective September, 1961, the schools of these boards will have complete standardized testing programs to measure achievement and abilities. The machine scoring and computer analysis will save thousands of hours of teacher-time and enable the teachers to concentrate more on the individual aspect of personal instruction.

The computer makes possible growth analysis and the establishment of local norms. Hitherto, without specialized personnel in statistics, this was not possible.

Once the program has been in operation for a few years, the teachers and parents will have more objective data with which to give academic and career guidance. It is believed that this Tri-County Standardized Testing Association is the first co-operative in Ontario elementary schools to use the computer as an educational instrument.

firms, once and for all, the complete domination of our automotive industry by U.S. subsidiaries."

The pact was one-sided in favor of Canada but it was dependent on the good will of U.S. auto industries.

"This is the first time to my knowledge where a Canadian government policy is subject to the whims of American private business."

The agreement was a disturbing integration of Canadian facilities with those of the U.S. It made Canada highly vulnerable to U.S. decisions.

Mr. Scott and Mr. Newbitt both found disturbing gossip about the pact and the as-an type of agreement to other industrial areas.

They stated this would continue the integration of Canada with the U.S. and, just as important, it does not prevent any harm for Canadian firms operating in an industry which is not fully owned because that would be operating at a fantastic disadvantage," Mr. Scott said.

The opposition didn't question Mr. Drury's contention that the agreement is one of the most important trade arrangements ever made by Canada.

The industry minister said it has resulted in expansion, or plans to expand, for 136 plants and announcement of 60 new ones.

It had brought about a 94-per-cent jump in the export of automotive products and it had meant substantially increased business for parts manufacturers.

The auto industry now employs 77,000 in Canada.

South Africa Subject of Talk To Y's Men

The Belleville Y's Men were carried to South Africa by Y's man Glynn Thomas at their weekly meeting on Thursday evening.

Glynn Thomas was born in Johannesburg and lived there for the first eighteen years of his life before coming to Canada.

In a short talk he gave to the Y's men a picture of land that is a strange mixture of raw nature, advanced civilization and racial intermingling. South Africa is a land of dry deserts and tropical richness existing within a few short miles of each other. In the cities and towns, and villages are the negroes who speak 36 dialects, the white English speaking people from Britain and the Boers who are descendants of the early Dutch settlers. Mixed colored, Indians and Chinese round out the population.

The famous gold mining of the Rand and the tropical fruit are descriptive of the wide variety which underlies the economy of South Africa.

Within a few miles of the populous cities are wild bushland in which much of which has been converted into National Parks where antelope, rhinoceros, lions and elephants live in their natural habitat.

The evening closed with two color films which brought South Africa to life for those present.

Y's man Glynn Thomas now lives in Belleville and works at the Bell Telephone Co. Branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Friday, May 27 will be the occasion of a Family Banquet for Y.M.C.A. members. This night will be marked by awards for outstanding service by those who have participated in Y programs through the past winter. The banquet will be held at the Club Casara.

Fire Marshal Called in To Probe Blaze

PICTON (Staff) — A fire-bug in Picton?

Def Hogg of the Fire Marshal's office in Belleville has been called in by Picton Fire Chief Duane Foshay to help probe the cause of Wednesday morning's barn fire on Bethel Street. This is the third such fire in the past few months. Fire Chief Foshay said that he called in Mr. Hogg because there "seems to be a rash of similar fires lately."

The blaze was estimated at $500. It was partially insured. Damage to the contents of the building was estimated at $750. Camping equipment, an outboard motor and a camper-trailer owned by Gary Richardson were lost in the fire.

Firemen received the alarm about 1:28 a.m. but Chief Foshay believes the fire had about a 20 minute start on them before the department was alerted. The fire is believed to have started at the rear of the two-storey wooden structure, which was formerly an old carriage shed and had been converted into a garage.

Firefighters concentrated their efforts on keeping the flames from reaching a second garage located only three feet away from the burning building. A car inside the second garage had to be removed as a precautionary measure. There were no injuries but there were a few anxious moments when a gas can exploded as a door was pushed in, sending metal flying in all directions.

Village Sets Speed Limits On Outskirts

The by-law is in line with a request from the Department of Highways which, with the consent of the municipalities concerned, plans to up the speed limit on Highway 14 from Bloomfield to Belleville, from 50 to 60 miles per hour.

IN MEMORIAM

MAY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frederick Wallace Hall, who passed away May 5, 1945.
Time takes away from the trees,
To the shore of evergreen,
But from the face of those we love,
And never from the heart.
Sincerely, sometimes we shall see,
The face that we love so dear,
Some day we'll clasp his hand,
And never part anymore.
—Sadly missed and remembered by Mother, Sadly and grandchildren.

WHITE — In loving memory of our dear son and brother Lawrence Wallace White, who passed away May 5, 1961.
Time heals all sorrow,
His name we still call by,
Memories are sweet to answer,
But not to bring him nigh.
—Always remembered by wife Ruth.

STONE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away May 5, 1957.
We think of you daily, dear,
From time to time throughout the day,
As time goes by we hope and pray,
That God will keep you safe for aye,
We feel your presence near,
For he knows that you're the one we love,
We keep and rest father dear,
Until I join you in God's eternal home.
—Ever remembered by sons, Fred and Lorne, daughter Gladys Catharine and family.

STONE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away May 5, 1957.
Sleep on dear husband and rest in peace,
His sufferings have ceased,
He had a kindly word for each,
No one passed him by,
Some day we know not when,
We'll clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife Catharina M. Stone.

MARACLE — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Ernest Maracle, who passed away May 5, 1960.

Sheltered Workshop Need Outlined at OARC Meet

The May meeting of the Belleville and District branch of the Ontario Association of Retarded Children had an outstanding speaker, Mrs. K. "Bobby" Reid of Kingston, well known for her work with the Canadian Association, the Ontario Association and the Trenton - Brighton A. R. C. "Bobby" as she is better known is dedicated to the cause of the retarded.

Her talk inspired the many parents involved in the organization of the proposed Sheltered Workshop, to be opened in Belleville in the future. She emphasized the great need for training classes for the educatable retardate, so they in turn may become self-sufficient adults, able to acquire the confidence to handle a project in a sheltered workshop. The training must also include the ability to travel back and forth from their homes each day.

Mrs. Reid gave a most outstanding example of the trained young adult retardate, her son, who attends a sheltered work shop five days a week. This 19-year-old youngsted, with an I.Q. of 33 travels each day across the city of Kingston. Transferring from one bus to another, he must cross one of the busiest intersections to make connections with his second bus which takes him to Barriefield. From there he walks to his home on Highway 2.

His mother says the boy knows he must have two buses or four nickels or a combination of the two. He also knows he must have a transfer slip to get on his other bus. It took three training trips before the boy felt confident enough to tackle the journey alone.

Mrs. Reid feels that the educatable retardate should definately be integrated into public life through social activities such as local playgrounds, Kiwanis and Y.M.C.A. swimming groups and other activities.

At the business meeting, Mr. John Ross spoke on the National Crusade and the need for more pledges. Volunteers are urgently needed to help in the Flowers of Hope campaign. Helpers are also needed to fill packages of flower seeds so they may be ready for sale.

The Belleville branch is holding a Fashion show and tea at the Belleville Golf and Country Cedars the first of June. Tickets are available to anyone interested, by phoning 962-0221.

Stress Essential to Life, Trick Is to Live With It

"The family must provide the stability and security so that a human being needs in order to have the feeling of security which enables him to handle the stress in his life."

This was the observation of Mr. Dick Shooter, Toronto, clinical psychologist in addressing a public meeting last night sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association. "This is particularly important in today's rapidly changing society, where family mobility frequently makes it impossible for people to put down physical or geographical roots."

Mr. Shooter defined mental health as the ability to be able to cope with our lives, our problems and our stresses. "It is impossible to live without stress. In fact stress is essential to a meaningfull life. But too much stress can make life unbearable and produce negative physical and psychological changes."

In the family the child must develop a sense of trust which will provide an anchor to fall after stress. The family must recognize the child's necessity to grow and must give him the freedom to do so while providing constant rational guidance. It is also important that the family provide the child with a system of values including such universals as self and mutual respect, said Mr. Shooter.

He listed three main types of psychological climates existing within families. The authoritarian family, where the parent or parents have absolute authority over the children, can often prove stifling and restrict the healthy growth of the child. Or the other extreme the laissez-faire family, where anything and everything goes, can produce totally undisciplined and unhappy children who rule the roost. Mr. Shooter favored the democratic family where the parents assume responsibility for the welfare of the family but the child is gradually allowed and encouraged to assume responsibility.

SECURITY ESSENTIAL

Mr. Shooter commented that that the security of the child was fundamental; that no matter what happens he must feel that he belongs. With excellent illustrations, he showed that it was not the fact of meeting the created stress but the way in which this fact was perceived. An example was given the situation of the working mother. In some cases this can produce stress in a family and for a child. However it is not the fact that the mother is working that causes the difficulty but the way in which the child sees this fact, in a home where there is good communication and a sense of trust the continual physical presence of the mother is not necessary for the emotional security of the child.

Adolescence is a troubled period in a child's life when he faces emotional, social, ethical, and economic problems. As the adolescent searches for his identity, pulls away from his family and gravitates towards the group there will be inevitable problems the family will face. Often the child seems a stranger to his family. It helps if the parents can recognize these years and the rebellion as a normal and expected phase in the maturing process, and allows the adolescent to gradually assume independence and not the "psychological umbilical cord". Parents need at this point to assume that the previous ethical training they have given the child is sufficient. They must be secure enough within themselves to allow their child to disagree.

Besides the internal and family stresses that an individual faces, there are also external stresses caused by people met on the job and by economic problems. Sometimes people react to the stress that another person is having e.g. a wife has a mental breakdown and the husband develops ulcers.

Mr. Shooter stated that if stress is not dealt with in a manner suitable to our needs then things begin to happen. The changes usually begin to show first in our personal relationships. Nobody should be expected to be exposed to external stress continuously. Often it is a situation where a person has tolerated too much for too long. We must ask ourselves not "if" but "when" we will do something positive about coping with too much stress.

Mr. Shooter was introduced by Rev. Thomas Hutchinson, president of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association and thanked by Mr. Robert Potter, executive director of the United Community Services of Belleville and District Inc. The meeting was held at Edgemount Hall, at the hospital.

Firemen Use Foam to Subdue Fierce Blaze

A fierce blaze yesterday afternoon completely destroyed 1963 model truck owned by Greenaway Equipment of Toronto, on Highway 401, six miles east of Belleville. The truck was loaded with roofing material, pitch and propane gas tanks. There were no injuries.

Driver Louis Martien of Toronto was headed east shortly after 3 p.m. when he was made aware of a fire in his truck by Rea Soider, N. Front St., Belleville, a driver for Mel Barriage Landscaping Contractors, Limited.

After alerting Mr. Martien, Soider immediately contacted his office by two - way radio and Mrs. E. Ricketts, 87 Holmes Road, Belleville, a bookkeeper for the Landscaping Company, turned in the alarm to Belleville Fire Department.

Belleville firemen were on the scene for two hours. Chief T. E. Post said two of the propane gas tanks had blown their safety valves and another had exploded. Firemen had to use foam to subdue the flames.

Most Mail Carriers to Have New Delivery Routes Monday

Say Good-bye to your present postman tomorrow, for starting Monday practically every mailman will be delivering to a new section of the city. Why? The reason is that for the past few months local Postal officials have been devising a new system that will give more residents of the city house to house delivery by letter carrier.

At present residents of Hill, George Square and part of Evans have had to call for their mail at the Sub Post Office on North Front Street, while those who live in West Park Village have been served by group boxes. These are banks of receptacles that are placed at key sections an after the letter carrier has placed the mail for the residents in that district, the householder himself has to come to the group box to receive his mail.

Commencing Monday all residents of the two aforementioned districts plus Glen Ellis Drive, Village Drive, Lyndale Crescent, Albany Heights, Progress Avenue, Westmount Road and Walden Circle will receive daily delivery to their residences by letter carrier.

Another innovation that will be put into effect next week is that all business addresses on Front Street will receive two deliveries on Saturday instead of the single delivery in the past. This is possible because the downtown mail delivery in the past has been divided between two mailmen, and in the future it will be apportioned five.

Certain sections of the city that formerly received morning delivery will in future get afternoon service and the opposite holds true for other parts of Belleville. Since these new routes are laid according to seniority by the letter carrier staff, and since the new sortation set up is entirely new, it is to be hoped that the householder will bear with the inconvenience of perhaps late delivery for the first few days until this new system gets properly under way.

Plans are underway for other sections of the city to receive letter carrier delivery that have not had same in the past. These new additions will be put into operation in the not too distant future.

Employment Picture in Apr. Said 'Good'

TRENTON — April's employment picture in the Trenton area was quite good for the time of year," according to J. K. White, manager of the local employment office.

At the end of April, there were 393 unplaced males and 277 unplaced females, compared with 480 males and 307 females at the end of March with 446 males and 250 women at the end of April 1965.

Mr. White said there had been a general upswing in construction, manufacturing and agriculture employment needs in the area.

There is still a need for youthful production workers, (male, 18 to 21) for local plants, a recent survey indicated the majority of male students who will be seeking summer employment will be placed locally, Mr. White said.

Those who are seeking employment in the new General Electric plant should get their applications from the employment office this month. The plant will go into partial production early this summer.

U Thant's Warning

In his first public pronouncement for some time, UN Secretary-General U Thant has warned that political, economic and racial tensions are threatening to push mankind into "the total disaster of a third world war."

There is more than a hint of the feeling that mankind is heading inexorably in that direction, whether it likes it or not. This is implicit in the UN official's statement: "It is unthinkable that we may need a third world war to teach us how to co-exist on this richly-endowed planet, but sometimes events in the world seem to be pointing in this direction."

He added: "There is thus a desperate need to bring the forces of enlightened public opinion to bear firmly on problems which threaten, or are likely to threaten in the future the welfare of all."

Viewed in the light of history and going back to biblical times, Dr. Billy Graham suggested recently that the world is entering a period reminiscent of that which preceded the fall of the Roman Empire, which he reminded his listeners was sudden and almost unexpected. He warned that a day may be coming when mankind will be "cleansed" only through a great calamity comparable with the flood in the days of Noah and the Ark.

At still another, perhaps more practical level, we have Senator Ted Kennedy calling for a sweeping re-assessment of United States policy toward China. He is urging that determined and long-term efforts be made to achieve an understanding of with China, including the establishment of trading and diplomatic contacts with that country. Even if rejected, at first, such overtures should be continued, the senator said.

"If offered patiently and imaginatively and persistently enough, they might be accepted — but all at once, perhaps none immediately — but eventually, through the steady effect of chipping away at China's self-imposed isolation."

Senator Kennedy's suggestions have merit. Perhaps the United States should try to reach an accommodation with Peking. If it does not the consequences may be desperate. And Washington might begin, as he suggested the other day, by inviting Mao Tse-tung or another high Chinese official to visit the United States.

Flight Insurance

A proposed U.S. state department plan for 34 international airports to automatically insure each passenger for $75,000 has been criticized by an airline pilots' group and a trial lawyers' association as an invitation to maniacs to bomb planes.

Such is the perverseness of certain individuals that they are prepared to gamble on surviving a bomb-induced air disaster. But often it is not their own or their fellow passengers' lives such people are concerned with. For one reason or another these madcaps want the money to be left to someone else.

If the State Department was so naive as to believe such bomb-touting characters do not exist, it would do well to heed the advice it is now being given on this matter.

The Airline Pilots' Association has described the plan as an "invitation to sabotage." The lawyers' group was even more specific; it sent the state department a list of 16 bombings and hijackings that claimed 231 lives aboard airliners. Six of the bombings occurred on U.S. airlines with a toll of 188 deaths and with $1,327,000 worth of insurance involved.

The problem isn't serious one. Naturally the airlines should be made responsible for any loss of life for which they are held to blame. But in view of what the pilots' and lawyers' groups say, it would be better if flight insurance for passengers remained a voluntary thing. As it is, passengers can obtain it easily at any major airport.

The Oak Hills

The Oak Hills region north of Trenton is an interesting one of lakes and valleys and rolling hills which contrasts sharply with the relatively flat countryside near at hand.

Around Wooler and Stockdale (a "suburb" of Frankford), with its mill race and dam, one might be anywhere but in Ontario. New England perhaps. Or Scotland or even parts of Germany.

Here every prospect pleases and there is one in particular near the Oak Hills ski area where you look across a vast rippling expanse of valley and woodland, and far away is a glimpse of the Trent waterway around Glen Miller.

Near Stirling there is evidence of new initiatives which will give a fresh spurt to community activities. A field at the side of the highway from the south is the site of the projected Oak Hills golf club. Not far away is the flying club of the same name.

Even allowing for such untoward events as the recent bank robbery in Frankford the Oak Hills region is one where anyone should feel privileged to live, where the face of the land has changed little since far back in time, and where life may be lived in an atmosphere of calm and assurance.

U.S. Studies "Brain Drain"

London Free Press

United Nations' agencies are in receipt of a disturbing report from an Iranian sociologist who at UN request made a month's-long study of the vexing issue of "the brain drain."

The tendency of professional and skilled personnel to gravitate to the wealthier countries.

The report blames the authorities of both rich and poor countries alike for a situation which finds under-developed nations exporting the best of their talent, which so sorely is needed at home. Paradoxically enough, this reverse flow comes at a time when in Canada and the United States so much emphasis is being placed upon "peace corps" and similar efforts to assist developing lands, so much being expended upon technical and professional training for foreign students.

Money, it seems, talks an international language, with Western Europe draining talent from its former colonies even as the United States, the net gainer, attracts the best brains from Western Europe.

Dr. Ghassem Naraghi, author of the report, has suggested the establishment of an international agency that would seek to regulate the supply and demand in an essence "open ledgers" documenting the interchanges. He warned the flow to the wealthier countries was bound to increase: the U.S. for example found it cheaper to import talent than to train it in its own costly school system. He suggested that "lost-ed" countries should be entitled to equal value in return, perhaps in the form of cash aid for education.

There might be merit in this proposal for some form of compensation: Increasingly calls for the egghead rather than cash

Bilingualism in Spotlight

Edmonton Journal

Mr. Pearson's policy for bilingualism in the civil service looks reasonable and positive.

We hope he won't yield to pressure now from either side—English speaking or French-speaking.

Mr. David Lewis (a New Democrat with whom we rarely agree) made a good point: It is r commentary on the failure of Canadian governments that after a hundred years, the prime minister must admit French-speaking Canadians still don't feel at home in their own national capital.

Mr. Pearson's objective is this: in a diverse federal state, such as Canada, it is important that all citizens should have a fair and equal opportunity to participate in the national administration and to identify themselves with it and at home in their own national capital."

Thus, wherever in the public service bilingualism is demonstrably required, bilingualism will be positively encouraged, gradually, fairly and realistically. But there must be no penalty for lack of it.

The decision is bound to influence aggressive national inside and economic people increasingly will be motivated to pick up a second language. English or French.

Coincident with this, there's bound to be increasing public pressure on educational systems to improve and expand their language-training facilities.

And, what's wrong with that?

Stamp Collecting Popular

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Stamp collecting, or philately, is, in the minds of those who do not practise it, one of the strangest of all activities. For those who do collect stamps it gradually becomes a consuming interest.

The wish to collect something is apparently a deeply implanted characteristic in human nature. It takes various forms, ranging from the old fashioned string saver to the collector of antique automobiles. But of all these manifestations, stamp collecting is probably the most widespread.

Over the past decade, or a little longer, one of the prime factors in local stamp collection has been the St. Lawrence, International Stamp Club. It is one of the comparatively few international stamp clubs in existence, and its success has depended on the enthusiastic support of the membership.

The general public, probably, is not aware of the wide range of special interests in which stamp collecting exists. It is thus all the more interesting that the club was able to attract more than 100 members to its annual exhibition here, last weekend, a figure which comes close to the time the entire membership of the club itself.

One might infer that interest in stamp collecting is growing. As people often have more leisure these days, possibly more of them are finding more time to the hobby. But this only can be a small part of the reason for an increasing interest in philately as a serious hobby. Stamp collecting is not new, and the members suggests that serious stamp collecting, far from being the hobby of people with time on their hands, tends to be a busy man's avocation. It calls for the relaxation it offers. It is said by many collectors that stamps divert their minds from the cares of the day, and help them relax.

Red Chinese Greet Briton

Peterborough Examiner

A British author, Frank Tuohy, who has just returned from China, writes that Chinese school children are taught to hate the Americans. In turn, he protested that American children are not taught to hate the Chinese. Neither of these are particularly surprising revelations although it is probably worth remarking that the American environment seems to build a high vigorous abhorrence of communism (and therefore Communists) in its people.

But the interesting thing is that Tuohy found, as other western visitors have found before him, that Chinese people and children are extremely friendly to individual westerners who, while not American, aren't closely associated with the capitalist camp. He reports: "A burst of clapping. "Hullo, uncle! ... hullo, auntie!" are the greetings for all strangers whatever their nationality. With no shyness they crowd towards you; talking your hand, they steer you from room to room, and when you leave, insist on shaking hands three or four times.'

What this suggests and ordinary experience confirms this — is that it is possible to take a collective body of people, but that it is not so easy to take individuals. It is more than a heartening that Chinese — and no doubt the same is true of American — at different level can step out of a nation which they believe to be their sworn enemy. This serves to demonstrate the inherent absurdity of national conflicts that are carefully fed by propaganda, and the importance of widening the opportunities for human contact between citizens of rival powers.

The Olympics

Ottawa Journal

Canada should be as big league as accepting the loss of its bid for the 1972 Winter and Summer Olympics as it was in going after the games in the first place.

For the next year and one-half with centennial preparations and Expo, Canada has plenty on its card of coming events. Perhaps it is best that from room to room, and when you leave, insist on shaking hands three or four times.'

Southpaws' Problems

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

The nine out of 10 persons who are right-handed don't often realize how many inconveniences of daily living the left-handed person must put up with.

At home or at work, his life is filled with gadgets all seemingly designed with the idea of frustrating him.

Scissors, pencil sharpeners, garden tools, kitchen utensils and doors are but a few of the obstacles encumbering the activities of southpaws.

Writing accessories such as cheque books, notebooks and record forms are difficult for them to utilize legibly.

In industry automation has eased the left-hander's predicament somewhat by eliminating many of the more tedious hand operations of the past, but even the most modern machinery still favors the right hand.

These are just some of the common annoyances a "lefty" must endure in a right-handed world. And if trying to change an infant's natural bent for left-handedness is still considered wrong, the best answer for him when he grows up is to train himself to become ambidextrous.

Strictly Personal
Growing Old Gracefully

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Watching a television interview with Maurice Chevalier on the occasion of his 78th birthday, I thought how refreshing it was to see an entertainer of his years who was not a pathetic travesty of a former self.

In all the performing arts, one of the most depressing sights is that of a once - great performer who refuses to relinquish the spotlight, who cannot say good-bye gracefully when he or she is no longer able to scale the heights.

When we hear of these former stars continuing until they become embarrassing parodies of their former selves, we generally explain their conduct by one of two reasons — greed or vanity. We say that they love the money or love the applause; but I wonder if either of these explanations quite deeply enough.

Certainly it is true that many show entertainers and artists do not need the money; what is needed, but equally true, is that many of them do not have an overweening sense of vanity. They may be proud of their professionalism, but personal conceit is no g r e a t r among performers than among any other group of successful people.

What is it, then, that drives them to go on long after they are through? I suggest it is loneliness. The person who has dedicated his whole life to the public becomes intolerably lonesome when he is forced to live in a purely private capacity. It is this sense of isolation that drives him back relentlessly into the public eye.

Not only do most entertainers willingly submerge their private lives for the s a k e of their artistic identity, and feel truly and fully alive only when they are on stage as the Singer, the Dancer, the Actor, the Comedian. In this way, the personality cuts its own roots and can only slive by constant submersion in the waters of public attention.

This is more than v a n i t y, more than the need f o r approval; it is a psychic way of life that is scarcely understandable to those of us who live in more private ways. Proof that this is true is seen in the fact that so many of these people are not really vain about the way they are performing; offstage, many of them are passive and colorless, lacking personal definition.

To be "not working" for a performer is more than an economic hardship; it is in a way, a kind of sleep-walking. And the change that comes over a performer the moment he steps out of the wings is psychologically as dramatic as the injection of adrenalin into the arm of a sick man. Nothing less could explain the sad "return engagements" of performers who cannot make their final farewell.

To Your Good Health
Calcium Is Not Cause Of Arteries Hardening

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read your article on the two kinds of hardening of the arteries, and you stated that calcium deposits caused heart attacks and strokes, if I understood correctly.

In that case, what does a calcium spot on the lung mean? — M. C. H.

• • •

Well, I guess I didn't get the idea over exactly the way I wanted to. You seem to think that there's something inherently bad about calcium and calcium deposits, and that's not quite right.

When an infected or irritated area heals, you may frequently find calcium in the scar tissue. It is an essential part of providing strong healing.

A calcium spot on the l u n g means that at one time there was a wound, or infection or injury to the lung, and it healed, leaving the. calcium spot — which shows up by X-ray examination.

Assuming that the area now is thoroughly healed, that calcium spot is forever a souvenir of something that once happened. It represents no danger to you unless, of course, the scarring and calcification are so extensive as to interfere with functioning of the lungs, but it would be more than a "spot.").

Now let's get to the hardened arteries. All of us have some kind of hardening of the arteries as we grow up. It's a progressive process that continues pretty much throughout our lives.

Some hardening, therefore, is nothing to be alarmed about. It is only when the hardening becomes extreme that we need to be concerned.

The hardening isn't entirely from calcium, either, although some of it is present. The bigger factor is the gradual accumulation of fatty deposits which, if they become too extensive, can interfere with free flow of blood through the arteries, a n d at times, contribute to the clotting off the flow drastically.

That, and not calcium, is the master-maker which is responsible for some (but not all) heart attacks and strokes.

• • •

I hope this explains the question. Calcium is not a villain. Calcium is one of the extremely useful chemical elements, and we need a lot of it all our lives.

Without calcium, our bones would be soft and weak, without calcium the blood would not very easily and cuts and other injuries could not heal.

True, an injury to a joint, or to the foot, may result in a calcium deposit — a healed place which might in some cases be painful. A heel spur is an example, the "spur" being a healed place which, when the foot is lumpy, can be as uncomfortable as a pebble in your shoe.

But such calcium deposits serves the blame, though. The pain comes from the kind of injury, which the calcium helped heal.

Dear Dr. Molner: My baby was born very recently. Can I get pregnant before I start my regular periods again? — Mrs. C. A.

Yes, because ovulation occurs before menstruation. When ovulation occurs, pregnancy is possible — and if you become pregnant the first time you ovulate, you will not (usually) have a menstrual period at all.

Time of first ovulation after childbirth varies, but for 50 per cent of women it is within three months or less. For a few known women not to have a menstrual period for two years or more, because after each child, they become pregnant again before they had time to have a period.

OFF THE RECORD

Fire Dept. Will Inspect Homes Here

A program that has paid big dividends in the reduction of fire losses in other communities will be carried out in Belleville, Officials of the Belleville Fire Department yesterday announced that a systematic inservice inspection of homes in the city will begin in the very near future.

Announcing the home inspection program, Chief T. E. Fosts emphasized that the home owner or tenant is not obligated to allow firemen to inspect the premises but he urged everyone to co-operate with the inspectors and take advantage of this service offered by the department.

"We are responsible for protection in life and property and this program can boost one of forts to cut losses by fire in the city," Chief Fosts noted.

He stressed the fact that the department will not be understaffed while the inspections — expected to cover the city in about two years — are under way.

"On duty firemen will do the inspecting," he explained, "and they will carry out their duties, operating from a pumper that can be contacted by radio in the event of an alarm.

"While two firemen check homes for fire hazards, a third will remain with the pumper and should an alarm be received the siren will summon the inspectors and the truck will immediately leave for the scene of the emergency.

Inspector Bob Fair, in charge of the department's fire prevention office, said yesterday that before the inspections begin firemen must be acquainted with the procedure of carrying out the program.

"The inspectors will draw the householders' attention to fire hazards in the home and will recommend steps to eliminate them," said Inspector Fair.

He said that with the permission of the householder, inspection of the basement area as well as backyards and outbuildings will be done.

"At no time will our men inspect any other part of the house unless they are requested to do so and no inspection will be done unless an adult member of the family is at home to accompany the inspector on his tour.

"In the event that the householder is not at home when the inspector calls, a card will be left notifying the occupant that inspection will be made at his convenience."

The city will be divided into districts for inspection purposes and residents will be advised when the inspectors will be doing streets in their neighborhood.

Firemen are now being instructed in what to look for in the line of fire hazards in the home. Inspector Fair is lecturing the men on procedure involved and yesterday a group of firemen viewed a film in construction on what to look for. from P. Pickering, electrical inspection superintendent for Ontario Hydro, Eastern Division and Graham Norton, Electrical Service League, Toronto.

U.C. W. AFTERNOON UNIT

DESERONTO — "The Bible, and the blessing it brings to all mankind" was the theme of the meeting of the afternoon unit of the Deseronto United Church held in the Sunday School room early this week. Ladies of the evening unit and of other churches of the town had been invited to attend.

The leader, Mrs. Rockwell Hawley called on Mrs. William Cochrane to conduct the worship service. She, in turn called on Mrs. W. H. Sills for the meditation. Mrs. Sills pointed out that while the Bible originated in the East, it now is precious in every part of the world, and to all classes of men, old and young, rich and poor. It takes its message of hope, of consolation and comfort, and of happiness to all men of all races.

Mrs. Cochrane and Mrs. Hawley sang an appropriate duet.

Mrs. John Piercy introduced Rev. Rudd of the Canadian Bible Society who enlarged on the message Mrs. Sills had given, speaking mainly of the distribution of the Bible in India. He showed a film which illustrated his words. He was thanked by the Rev. Russell Finley, minister of the church.

Student Nurses Hear Talk on Mental Illness

The student nurses at Belleville General Hospital and the student assembly at Moira Secondary School were addressed on Wednesday by Mr. Richard Shooter, psychologist, at the invitation of the local Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Mr. Shooter spoke on the importance of realizing that mental health is really the totality of one's life, and of recognizing the difference between mental health and mental illness.

Though hard to define, perhaps a good definition of mental health is being able to cope with the contingencies of life. Obviously, there are wide variations in circumstances, and in how each individual will deal with them, but the most common factor in all forms of emotional disorder is a feeling of being unable to cope with daily problems.

SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

In speaking to the high school students Mr. Shooter outlined the areas which might create problems, as being emotional, social, ethical or economic.

To be mentally healthy, the individual has a basic need to relate to others comfortably and to maintain his contact with them. He emphasized the need of understanding oneself and that "an ounce of prevention of mental ill-health is worth a ton of cure."

MUST UNDERSTAND PATIENTS

In talking to the nursing students, Mr. Shooter pointed out that nurses must understand patients as individuals who are more involved in, and concerned about, their lives and problems outside hospital than in. Some nurses and other professional workers have a greater ability to relate to patients than others, regardless of their professional and technical capabilities.

Throughout the day, Mr. Shooter reiterated that individuals must understand the factors involved in good mental health for their own sake and for the sake of others with whom they come in contact.

Women Sell Passports to Raise Funds

MONTREAL (CP)—Women's organizations across Canada have sold $75,000 worth of passports to Expo 67, says Mrs. Geoffroy Birtz, chairman of the fair's women's advisory committee.

"And by July 31 we expect to have sold more than half a million."

July 31 is the deadline for the Expo 67 club plan launched by the committee and administered by the National Council of Women in Ottawa.

The plan was promoted among women's groups across Canada as a way to save money for individuals planning to attend the world's fair and raise money for the clubs.

A season passport good for daily use throughout Expo—April 28 to Oct. 27, 1967—cost $30 now compared with $35 for one bought after July 31.

A one-day passport can be bought now for $1.80 compared with $2.50 after the deadline, and a seven-day passport can be purchased for $6.50 compared with $12.

PLAN HOSPITALITY

Even after the cut-rate deadline expires, however, the women's advisory committee will have plenty to do. One project is hospitality.

"We are organizing a national book - up of men and women interested in entertaining men and women from other parts of Canada and other parts of the world," says Mrs. Birtz, a Montreal lawyer.

"For example, if a couple from Paris wants to go on to Vancouver after visiting Expo we could arrange for another couple in Vancouver to meet them on their arrival and show them their city and entertain them in their home."

Law School Expansion Outlined By Speaker at Alumni Dinner

Eastminster United Church played host to the annual spring dinner of the Belleville and District Queen's Alumni Association on Wednesday, May 4th.

The head table was decorated with spring flowers in the traditional Queen's colors and silver candles with red, yellow and blue candles.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. W. B. McCurdy, Dean of the Faculty of Law was introduced by Queen's man Pip McCormick, who is a registered student in law.

Dean Lederman spoke of the Queen's Law past and present. The present law school was initiated in 1957, and already has to expand both staff and accommodation.

In the not too distant past, McCormick's wealth consisted of natural resources.

In the forseeable future her greatest source of wealth will be her educated men and women.

VAST GROWTH

There has been a great expansion in Canada with science, technology and urbanization. There must be some control of these forces so that man may derive the greatest benefit from them. The disciplines of the studies of the humanities and social science are combined in the study of law.

Until recently, the number of admissions to the bar had been static in spite of the fact that Canada's population had doubled and her business had increased about 100 per cent.

Dr. MacKinnon, past principal, and Dr. Corry, present principal of Queen's were prime movers in having legal education extended so that now five universities in Canada have added a Faculty of Law. In 1963 there were 2000 young Canadians seeking admission to Law School - by 1966 there were 650 and the law schools could not accommodate all of them. By 1970, it is estimated that 1500 students will be seeking admission.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

The most recent developments of legal education are: Admission to Law School, a university degree. H very good admission may be granted two years after grade 13; bar admission course one year in an office followed by six months at Osgoode. Osgoode Hall is now part of York University. The Law Society is the only governing body for the bar admission course.

Dean Lederman mentioned that 80 universities across Canada were represented in the student body, the majority coming from Queen's, Toronto, Toronto and Western, while the professors hailed from Oxford, Harvard, Columbia, U.B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, Toronto and Queen's.

The heart of the Law School is its law library.

The Queen's law library consists of 60,000 books, one of the best law libraries in Canada. If a professor doing research has 80 per cent of the necessary books in his own library, he will be content to send out for the remaining 40 per cent. A good law library is an absolute essential for graduate students, the other struggled.

The ideal law school hopes to teach law in context with social need and social usefulness.

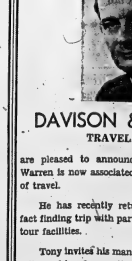
The speaker was thanked by Rod Cameron and Herb Hamilton of the Alumni service and the gathering news of the campus. So many changes are taking place, that though Dean Lederman was only appointed in 1957, he is now the senior dean.

He added that the stadium is donned and the bear future will see its historic site covered with more college buildings.

During a brief business meeting a slate of officers was presented and the new president, Betty Smith of Brighton spoke briefly and welcomed the group.

Quintebelles Appoint New Officers

Last Tuesday evening, the Quintebelles Chorus held an installation ceremony of new officers for the coming year.



The following were installed and presented with corsages: Joan Hale, president; Doreen Reynolds, vice - president; Adrienne Moorman, treasurer; Joan Anderson, Mildred Weymark, librarian and wardrobe convener; Jane Wilkins, social convener; Grace Clement, publicity convener and historian.

Past president, Kathy Mills presided at the installation, assisted by Betty Dunlop.

The Quintebelles director, Nora Barber, was thanked for her excellent direction in the past year.

Barbershop harmony and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

Giving Boy Affection Will Not Do Him Harm

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is three years old and I am worried about him. When Kurt was born his father made it plain that he was going to raise his son to be a man and not a sissy. My husband feels that boys should not be cuddled or kissed or shown any affection. When Kurt falls down and cries my husband ignores him and makes me do the same. Even when the child is sick I am not permitted to rock him.

Last week Kurt had a cold but his father insisted that I give him a cold sponge and not pamper him. He got a chill and his cold very nearly developed into pneumonia.

I believe in discipline but I think my husband is carrying things too far. Kurt stutters when he speaks to his father and I am sure he is terrified of him. My husband reads your column and agrees with most of the things you say. It would help a great deal if you published my letter and gave us your opinion. — KURT'S MOTHER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MOTHER: Ask your doctor to talk to your husband at once. If something isn't done to change your husband's thinking, you are going to have a seriously disturbed boy on your hands.

Every child needs affection. Cuddling and gentleness does not make boys queer. Harshness, rigidity and an absence of father love can drive male children to identify with their mothers — and this can cause homosexuality.

Liberal Women Request Sales Tax Be Reduced

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Women's Liberal Association asked Thursday that the province's Conservative government abolish the seven per cent sales tax increase.

Delegates to the annual meeting also agreed to ask the Board of Transport Commissioners to review train services in communities affected by the cutting down of CPR service.

Delegates approved a resolution that the federal government increase efforts to get immigrants to become citizens. They defeated a clause that suggested consideration be given to withholding children's allowances and old age pensions from immigrants of long standing.

Mrs. R. A. Kinnear of Port Colborne, a past national president, said "I am distressed that women Liberals would consider discriminating against ethnic groups."

A Niagara Falls delegate said U.S. citizens should be charged a higher fee for use of Ontario provincial parks than Canadians because they have more money.

Her suggestion was not approved, but a resolution was passed urging that the $5 annual fee for entrance to provincial parks be reduced.

A resolution in favor of the abolition of the death penalty was defeated in a close vote.

The delegates voted to request the department of national revenue to raise the amount that a married woman can earn before any deduction is made from her husband's tax exemptions. They voted against a second clause asking that married women be able to deduct baby sitting and household help costs from her taxable income if they are required because of illness.

They approved resolutions asking that a widow's succession duty exemption be increased to $100,000; that more women be appointed to government boards and commissions; and that Ontario women be appointed to the Senate.

They agreed to ask the Ontario government to improve services and residential treatment accommodations for both retarded and emotionally disturbed children.

Day of Debutante Gone From Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—The office of Nova Scotia's lieutenant-governor has announced there will be no St. Andrew's Ball this November. It means the day of the debutante is gone from Halifax.

No one seems to care. And no one is surprised, except, perhaps, that it took so long.

The beginning of the end came in 1959 when the Queen announced she would receive no more formal presentations. That same year the Governor-General declined to receive the trusting curtseys.

The following year the swank Artillery Ball in Ottawa was discontinued and the lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan said he would follow the pattern set by the Queen.

But it continued in Halifax and in St. John's, Nfld., where until Confederation in 1949 the debutantes had the bonus of a trip to London and their curtsy out at Buckingham Palace.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, although both staunchly loyal to old customs, haven't observed the debutante trial for more than 45 years. What little seem to be that the debutante ball just hasn't a purpose anymore. At one time it seemed necessary for a young woman, of a certain social level, to meet young men who were eligible suitors. The debutante ball provided this.

Now the normal young people, regardless of their class in society, has met scores of eligible young men through service clubs, universities, not to speak of school dances and "record hops."

There was no reaction whatever from prospective debutantes. Those who "came out" a year or two ago said they had little or no feeling for it. They said because "my mother did it" and more because it supported the Children's Hospital Auxiliary.

Some of them weren't keen on it at all. They grumbled about wasting one Sunday afternoon going to dancing class so they could whirl properly around the great room in the traditional waltzes.

FOR PATIO, COTTAGE OR FISHING CAMP DAYS

Interested in making a set of giant goldfish place mats with matching guppy glass coasters?

A luncheon table, set with these, instantly takes on a happy summertime holiday air.

They are elegant enough to be conversation pieces when serving a meal on the patio, while, at the same time, delightfully humorous and serviceable enough for the cottage or fishing camp.

These uncomplicated roly-poly place mats are shaped from a 13" x 18" piece of orange burlap or butcher linen. A matching felt boat liner is simply stitched to the back.

Strips of wavy, midnight blue and white rickrack (narrow and wide) are tacked in place for fins, twinkly eyes and an arrogant lantern jaw.

A set of four or six is an irresistible bazaar item, and if you give them to your holiday hostess as a gift, you'll be the top v.i.p. on her list of guests to be re-invited!

The patterns of course are available, and we do want to thank you all again for the many original hints and suggestions most of you kindly include with your requests. — SUSANNA

QUESTION

We would appreciate it very much if you would tell us just how to go about preparing oysters in the shell.

S. L.

ANSWER:

HOW TO PREPARE OYSTERS IN THE SHELL

Oysters should be scrubbed well to remove all sand. To open oysters in shell work over a strainer on a bowl. Hold oyster, deep shell down, and insert oyster knife into the hinge. Turn knife to pry up the upper shell enough to cut hinge muscle, then run point of knife between shells to open. Discard upper shallow shell. They are now ready to serve cold and raw as oysters-on-the-half-shell, with lemon or cocktail sauce.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu by Mary Moore

Tuna or Salmon Loaf; Caper or Tomato Sauce; Spinach; Oven French Fries; Apple Tapioca with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce (see Thursday); Tea.

BROILED OYSTERS-ON-THE-SHELL

Arrange raw oysters on the half shell on broiler pan. (They are usually supported by rock salt to prevent tipping.) Put together (for 12 oysters) ¼ cup butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon onion juice or finely grated onion, and a shake of cayenne pepper. Divide this Lemon Butter evenly over each oyster. Sprinkle each with 1½ teaspoon buttered fine bread crumbs. Pass under hot broiler burner until golden brown and serve at once.

I have mailed to you several former releases giving oyster recipes.

QUESTION:

Will you send me a recipe how to make yogurt? I have been wanting it for years.

MRS. M. R.

ANSWER:

I have not made yogurt this way but this information comes from a reliable source. It is much simpler than acquiring and using yogurt culture.

HOMEMADE YOGURT

One-quarter cup fresh commercial yogurt is beaten until smooth and added to 2 quart pasteurized whole or skim milk in an ovenproof bowl. Stir until blended. Fasten a clean thermometer to side of bowl, submerging it in the milk. Place in oven, turn on burner(s) just slowly to 120 deg. Fahr. Turn off heat at once, cover bowl, and allow heat to drop to 110 deg. Fahr. Maintain temperature between 90 deg. Fahr. and 105 deg. Fahr., by reheating oven, until milk becomes consistency of junket - softly set. This takes about 2 or 3 hours. Don't overstep consistency frequently during last 30 minutes. Chill immediately after milk thickens. Yogurt may be kept in refrigerator 3 to 5 days.

Keep ¼ cup as a starter for making yogurt again. But purchase fresh commercial yogurt once per month to keep yogurt culture strong.

Many Attend Band Women's Club Annual Coffee Party

By MARIE HUFFMAN

The lovely home of Mrs. George Graham, "Alameda", overlooking the Bay of Quinte on the Trent Road, was the scene once again on Wednesday evening, of the annual coffee party of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club.

The spacious and beautifully furnished rooms of this picturesque home were the gathering place for several hundred guests of the club from Belleville, Picton, Napanee and Trenton, whose presence helped to support the club's projects in the presentation of bursaries in local high schools, as well as those of the Canadian Federation overseas.

The many guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Graham, assisted by club president, Mrs. Marie Huffman, and president-elect, Miss Ruth McMullen. Miss Joy Nicol took tickets at the door, and Mrs. Dorothy Ellis was treasurer for the evening.

The long, beautifully appointed table in the dining room was covered with an antique lace cloth, with a centrepiece of yellow flowers, flanked by yellow tapers in large silver candelabra. The silver services were presided over during the course of the evening by Miss Hilda Collier, Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson, Mrs. Eva Doolittle, Miss Florence Fitzgerald, Mrs. Irene Haig and Mrs. Dorothy Brown. Other members of the club acted as hostesses in the living room, where tea was served, ladies poured by a hard-working group in the kitchen.

The piece-de-resistance of the evening however, was a presentation of delicious eats the way during coffee hours, from the house of Originally Yours, under the direction of Mrs. Enid Neal.

Originally Yours is placing the emphasis on parties this year, and the stunning fashions shown were testimony to the initiative being available, to say nothing of the imagination and skill with which they were executed.

SUIT ENSEMBLES

Among the suit ensembles was a stunning four piecer in a fine houndstooth check in rayon and wool, topped with a smart bunt cap with leather brim. The coat was in long length lengths, semi-fitted with long straight sleeves and large buttons set off by a small black Ascot tie.

The younger set was not forgotten in the design of a beautiful formal gown, but rather that first important dance. Made of pure white peau de soie, in a pretty parfait shade, this gown featured an Empire bodice cut from a matching embossed peau de soie, and was sleeveless with a round low cut neckline. The skirt hung softly from bodice tucks and reached just below the ankle. A matching evening stole completed the costume, begun in the simple style.

A wonderful gay sports ensemble was shown in red and white circus stripes, that was as versatile as it was attractive. It could be worn nine different ways. A flashing red swamp coat was worn over a gay rib tickler pop top and wide cuffed shorts with large hip pockets was completed with a pretty drawstring bag.

ATTRACTIVE MODEL Miss Leslie Gardner of Halloway wears a formal gown of silk peau de soie in parfait shade at the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club's annual coffee party and fashion show. The event was held at the home of Mrs. George Graham, Trent Road on Wednesday evening.

There is always a show-stopper, and this time it was of the canine variety. A charmingly demure white poodle accompanied her mistress who wore a really "in" jump suit of rayon and silk. It featured rubbed fabric, freshly printed in greens on beige ground. It was completely simple and sleeveless with round neckline, princess fitted, and adorned with two patch pockets. Beautiful antique beige buttons added an unusual accent.

A dignified and well-behaved poodle charmer, was attired in a "doggie" coat of matching material.

BRIDAL GOWN

The wedding gown must be the climax of any fashion presentation and the appreciative audience was treated to a vision out in traditional lines, with lowered round necklines, long slim fitting sleeves and featuring an empire set-in bodice from which fell the gently flowing bouffant skirt. The skirt was appliqued with exquisite lace and sequins made from the gown's own fabric. A graceful waist train flowed from the back and a rose headpiece completed the lovely picture.

Models for the fashion show were Betty Cairns, Shirley Woodcox, Leslie Gardner, Nancy O'Connor, Enid Neal and Rene Klassen. The fashion commentary was handled by Mr. Dave Charlton of CJBQ.

An added feature of the evening was the busy corner of the don at Almeda, where many of the guests enjoyed having their tea cups read by two visiting "gypsies."

Tickets on a gift certificate for a hat from Woodley's were sold by Miss Enid Smith and the lucky winner was Mrs. D. Blakely. Other prize winners were as follows: hair style, Mrs. Craighead; door prizes, Mrs. A. Perry, Mrs. L. Kells, Mrs. E. Anderson and Mrs. Margaret Marshall The club extends its grateful thanks to the merchants whose kind donations of prizes contributed so greatly to the success of the evening.

It was an evening that will long be remembered in Belleville circles, and club members are grateful for the enthusiastic support given to the event and to the gracious hospitality of their hostess. Chairman of the evening was Mrs. Shirley Woodcox, with Mrs. Colombe Bolt, as co-chairman.

Successful Living

Live Daily Life Here Not in Old Home

DEAR DORIS: I missed my family, so to give me a wee treat my husband sacrificed to pay three fares, my mother and two sisters, out here from Scotland.

DORIS CLARK

Just the visit got off on the wrong foot. They missed all their friends, thought all Canadians were rich, and not once in three months brought in a cake or a few groceries. We entertained them as much as we could afford.

One word borrowed another, and they arranged, unknown to us, passage back. One week end when we were absent they left without a word.

This was an awful shock to me. Now my old school chum back in Scotland has turned against me because of their tales of our mistreatment — all untrue. I feel she is condemning me without hearing my side of the story.

I should appreciate an outside opinion, as I feel so very sad over the whole affair. — NOT OVER IT.

DEAR NOT: Such an exit was inexcusable, even if Canada didn't rate with them. And even if the "one word which borrowed another" was exchanged in anger.

Now their own guilt feelings make them dress up their tale of woe. The more they tell it, the more you grow horns. Your old chum just can't sort out the truth.

But family ties are strong. They'll come round in time, and you'll have to be the steady one. Write the truth once, concisely, to your friend. Keep in contact with your family — but get your daily satisfactions out of your life in the new land.

DEAR DORIS: I have an anklet problem now and I hope you can help me. This may sound silly to you but I want to protect my reputation.

I have worn anklets with my best nylons all my life. My daughter came to visit me last week and she told me that only prostitutes wear anklets these days and decent women don't wear them any more. I was horrified to hear her say that. I wear them like any other jewel and wrist bracelets.

What do you think? — NO PROSTITUTE.

DEAR N.P.: There does seem to be an association of anklets with that lower virtue, in some quarters. Not everyone is aware of this, as the clergyman tells me two modest members of his church wear them. So you are in good company — as well as bad. A case of "Evil to him who evil thinks!"

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I completed my grade seven and got half way through grade eight and quit.

I was wondering if it was possible for me to take a correspondence course for grade eight at home. I would like to have my grade twelve. — HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL: Join the club! Thousands of dropouts are right now working their way through high school by burning the midnight oil. Their daytimes are fully occupied by raising families or doing regular jobs.

Write to your provincial department of education for details.

Weekly Youth Page

MR. AND MISS BCI . . . Marilyn Clark, 18, a grade 13 student, and Rick Loynes, 17, a grade 12 student, were chosen by a student vote Wednesday as Mr. and Miss BCI for 1965 - 66.

Farewell Till Next September

This is the swan song of the youth page for this year. It will start again in September.

The youth page depended all winter upon you, the students of the district, and you came through.

Next year some of you will have graduated, but there will be new faces to take the reins, and new ideas to write about.

We trust you have enjoyed the youth page. We certainly have. The Intelligencer will still carry the weekly feature, Youth Parade for you, along with the top 20 hits in the Quinte area.

Thanks for your co-operation and good luck on those examinations.

TURTLES

By HARRY TUCHMAYER (M. S. S.)

Now for some culture to brighten up your day –
As I sit and ponder, night and day
I think of many things
Of story books, and J.F.K.
Of beetle bugs and butterflies
sizzling in the snow;
Of man and life, and love and fife;
Of sticks of wood, of Robin Hood;
Of tired rats and rocket ships;
Of honeypots and lots of dots;
Of windows big and windows small –
But most of all, I think of turtles
Basking on the Beach,
So remember, as long as turtles bask on the beach, we can all go around with weary written on our faces.
There are all kinds of turtles, big, small, short, thin, fat and sick turtles who have no other purpose in life than to advance indulging in nothing.
Turtles are not brooyed enough in this protesting world, I think, sort of, well wouldn't you if your leader was a snapper?

B.O.T.C.H. Dance Big Success

The best swinging affair ever was held Saturday night by the B.O.T.C.H. sponsored a Viking Hop in St. Micahel's Auditorium featuring the Big Town Boys from Toronto.

The auditorium was crammed to its capacity. Over 200 disappointed teens were turned away at the door.

The crowd came into the dance wearing everything from lumber jackets and sweatshirts to their Saturday night best.

The Big Town Boys were at their best. No one could have asked for better entertainment. While the band took breaks, Dave Charles and Wally West provided groovy sounds from the "Twin Twenty Fifie."

Our only regret was that we didn't have a bigger place to hold this dance so everyone could have been there.

The executive of B.O.T.C.H. would like to thank the local teens for giving their enthusiastic support to this organization. We hope that everyone realizes B.O.T.C.H is for you — The teenager.

Canadians Are the Lucky Ones

YVONNE ARMSTRONG (OSS)

As Canadians, we live in a land of prosperity and promise for the future. In material terms, we have enough food to feed our people and enough uncontaminated water to satisfy our thirst.

However, we must not forget that over half the world is starving. Yes, thousands of our brothers are starving.

The people of these underdeveloped countries must learn more about agriculture, which would enable them to know how to protect and harvest their crop potential.

It will take time, and until then over half the people of the world go to bed hungry—babies, children, teenagers and adults.

Most of those who die in an underdeveloped country of malnutrition, are children who never had the chance to grow up, attend school, or work, or even had the thrill of laughing while they played.

I guess we are lucky to live in a land which gives us so much and we sometimes give it so little. Canada is our birthplace and our heritage from our forefathers to this generation — the modern generation.

Explains Key Club Services

By KIRK LIGHTFOOT (BCI)

On several occasions in the past four years, while I have been working on Key Club projects, I have been asked, "What is a Key Club? What does it do?"

On the spur of the moment this is a very hard question to answer. However, I will try to explain exactly what it is and what it does.

The Key Club is a service club in the school sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. It is an international group of 78,370 young men (at the last count) whose headquarters is in Chicago. This is one of the fastest-growing organizations in North America. Last year it increased by 6,362 members. No one knows where it will end. Someday, I hope, there will be a Key Club in every high school in North America.

A Key Club is good for a school: it brings a school prestige and honor. Trenton High, for example, should be especially proud of its Key Club, which in 1964 brought national recognition to Trenton by winning the Parents' Magazine award for outstanding service to the community. The students and teachers of B.C.I., Quinte, and Moira need to be proud of their Key Club for the recognition they have brought these schools. This year Moira was the only service club out of 85 in Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes. Last year B.C.I. was fourth in the achievements of O.Q.M. and won its Division award. In 1964 B.C.I. won the O.Q.M. volleyball tournament, bringing fame to Belleville.

Key Clubbers work hard for these honors. They spend many hours washing cars and selling little things that no one seems to want, so they can have money to help needy families at Christmas, financially support an experimental farm for Retarded Children, buy the school a new flag, or give scholarships and prizes to those who achieve high marks in school. But this is only the beginning of a Key Club program. Key Clubbers give of themselves. They sell tickets and try to keep order at football games. They take time out from the speed of today's living to help others with vocational guidance. They co-operate with school and community leaders, but they also push for things new and different for their generation — the youth of to-day.

This looks like a lot of work. It is. So you may ask yourself what it does for the young men involved.

Key Clubbing helps prepare us for responsible citizenship. It teaches us how to accept responsibility. It teaches us how to work and get along with other people. It teaches us to give of ourselves for worthy causes.

Key Clubbing also teaches us compassion. Just ask any of the boys who have seen the faces of the children receiving our gifts at Christmas. I will never, as long as I live, forget the smiles of those children.

All this may make Key Club look very serious and dull. Well, it is serious, but it is far from being dull. A Key Club is about the O.Q.M. Conventions.

Key Clubbing is a lot of fun and a great experience for youth. So parents, teachers, students, and you ordinary people . . . please support Key Clubs. They are good for you.

Dave's Hideaway

By Dave Charles

Dear mod music makers, this is the last edition of "Dave's Hideaway" — for the season . . . Both the "Youth Page" and the "Hideaway" are seasonal and both will return next school year . . . I hope ! ! ! Over the last 23 weeks or so I have had the privilege of talking with you on subjects of importance to both of us. Results are now evident because of your support . . . Thank you . . . at times I came on strong with harsh phrases of criticism and in return provoked comment from you and ideas for solving your problems. I only wish I could continue this weekly column throughout the summer as well. However, I will be able to use CJBQ radio the "teen voice of the Bay of Quinte," in this cause . . . I would like to thank The Intelligencer, and especially Claire Hoy for the valuable tips and suggestions for "The Hideaway." I must confess that I am not much with the pen. This is not meant to be published in any way shape or form . . . I find that plain everyday teen talk works every time . . . All in all most music makers, the "Hideaway" is something that can grow with the times and roll with the punches as you see fit .

The Youth Page itself was very successful and caught the fancy of everyone in the Quinte District.

With reports from high school writers, the Youth Page was always something to look forward to . . . I also hope that this feeling continues next season with a possibility of expansion .

My final report as to what is happening in the capital of Canadian music . . . B.O.T.C.H. is well underway planning their dances for the coming weeks . . . and whispers have reached my ears of an even better report soon to open . . . The "Grapevine coffee house" was the first in the Quinte District to open and is still going strong with the grooviest atmosphere and reasonable prices, and respectable reputation . . . Keep it up Gingerbread .

In Trenton, Teen Club 106 has witnessed the biggest crowds in history of teen dances. They present only the finest in mod entertainment. June 18 "The Big Town Boys" will return to the Quinte District at Teen Club 106 . . . See you there for sure . . . also May 14 for all the movers and groovers in Trenton over 15 at the Trenton Community Gardens the new home of Canadian talent, the show stopping "Toronto Counts" will open this new scene — Dee and Yeomen will be available opening night. For all mod music makers in Trenton each and every week, the Hideaway will feature top Canadian acts. The Community Gardens is said to have a bad name, however this will no longer be true . . . I will be at every dance with Sounds Incorp.

To prove that this area is in the know and on the go here is a s-u-r-p-r-i-s-e ! ! ! Coming to Belleville each and every Wednesday at the Belleville Arena the most fantastic shows in Canada . . . That's right . . . Each and every Wednesday you'll be at the scene at the Belleville Arena with not one, two but three top Canadian bands to move and groove to . . . How does that sound Brenda and Bobby . . . "Out of sight" or what . . . okay . . . what does it cost ? ? You won't believe this either . . . just 50 cents to see and dance to all three bands . . . Groups such as the "Big Town Boys," J. B. and the Playboys, Little and the Consuls, Barry Allen and the Rebels, Counts, Secrets, Bobby Chris and the Imperials. You name them they'll be here each and every Wednesday at the Belleville Arena for just 50 cents . . . We'll call these Wednesday get togethers "Dave's Gig" . . . Time and date of first one will be announced on "At the Top" . . . Wow . . . Pow ! Zap ! Gosh ! Gee ! It's what's what's happening . . . Baby . . .

I have received comments both good and bad about my show, newspaper column and personal appearances . . . Constructive criticism I love and take it to heart . . . the other kind is motivated by dead beats who have nothing else to contribute other than their useless hot air . . . Remember moms and dads give your son or daughter credit for having some brains in his or her head. Therefore do not believe everything they hear or see . . . believe me . . . your mod music maker is on the bit, and can understand the difference between the truth and garbage, entertainment and trash, good and bad. If you should decide what they should read on matters that are very trivial you are pushing things. Some parents think that I am after their teens to do this and that, to go here and there and to buy this and that . . . To some extent you are right, but remember this is my job and I get paid for doing a good job . . . and I enjoy my job. As well as being an announcer I am also a promoter of things that I think the teens of Belleville should have just like teens in other big cities do . . . Is this wrong? As I stated before it is up to your son or daughter to determine whether or not to participate. If nothing was offered and Belleville returned to being a dry old prune again then you would find Sue or Jim living in the wrong places and at scenes that would cause alarm . . . I offer your teenager a good clean time, and in return want your approval, please and thank you .

This is where I usually tell you about up and coming records, but somehow I think you are all in the know with the new and up comers . . . Listen to "At the Top" you'll hear them . . . "Parting is such sorrow," said Grandmother Quinte and some famous persons . . . This we say until September and will see you around I am sure. Enjoy the up and coming summer and don't play too hard . . . Stay healthy, happy and full of spice. Again to you many thanks mod music makers and Shangri-la.

How About Our Gerda As Centennial Project?

Martha Musgrove (BCI)

My fellow Canadians, we have arrived! No more need we hang our heads in despair. All those years of faithfully copying Mother Britain and Sister America have finally returned our interests — with dividends. What am I talking about? After 100 years of patient striving, Canada has finally achieved the true test of Nationhood — our very own sex and security scandal.

It seems that beneath those humble exteriors, Canadian politicians really do have wild, animal passions. I think we can safely surmise that H a nsard wasn't the only thing some of our less sedate M.P.'s were chuckling about during those tedious sessions in the House of Commons. Who knows what lurid thoughts were racing through the mind of the Honorable Member from Gopher Hole, Saskatchewan as he tried to concentrate on admiring his constituents' wheat? We, the voters, may never know what form orgies made the chandeliers in the Chateau Laurier tinkle in shame.

Canadians can feel nothing but pride in our sex and security escapade. It has all the dimensions and shocking revelations of the very best scandals. We had a handsome, athletic M.P. chasing a voluptuous blonde chasing a Russian spy chasing an underworld character chasing a Mountie chasing a camera; or was it the other way around? At any rate, I think someone should talk to the Canada Council about setting up a grant so that living in a pad could write a poem about the whole affair, or Harold Town could paint a mural of Hemy Miller could write a novel or Cecil B. DeMille could produce a massive spectacle in glowing color. Thank goodness the Mounties have red coats!

Seriously, I think everyone is overlooking the possibility of turning the Munsinger Affair into a dandy centennial project. I mean, despite the sordid details, this scandal was carried out in the true Canadian tradition. Notice, please, how Monsieur Sevigny was awfully nice about sharing the obvious charms of Miss Munsinger. Notice, too, how careful he was to keep it in the party. He would never let those Liberals ever their hands — er — take her to lunch. Then too, the Munsinger Affair tore down barriers between French and the English as the Bilingualism and Biculural Commission never could. There is nothing like sitting around a table in the parliamentary cafeteria, discussing the various assets of discarded female companions to bring out the brotherhood in men.

The centennial celebrations of 1967, would be very hollow indeed if we didn't at least bow a poignant duet between Pierre and George rendering sweetly the strains of "If you know Gerda, like I know Gerda." Of course, the real big attraction would be the arrival of Miss Munsinger, herself, at Dorval. Picture the camera zooming in on that innocent face and the microphones straining to pick up that sweet voice saying those immortal words, "Really, they were both just good friends."

The only flaw in the whole plan is that the Senate, that stalwart body of silent men, might feel hopelessly left out of the whole proceeding. Hmm—I wonder what ever happened to Charlotte Whitton?

SWINGING INTO SPRING . . . Shelley Fabares swings into summer with a swinging summer coiffure.

Motion Key To Swinging Coiffures

By REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

Motion, motion, motion is the key to summer's swinging coiffures. The secret is a blunt cut that leaves crown and sides long enough to spin into a variety of styles, yet short enough so back and neck require no setting. In fact, all that's needed are nine large rollers — five to curl front straggls away from the part, four to twirl crown tresses back from hairline. As actress Shelley Fabares illustrates, the bangs and sides lend themselves to sculptured styling. Bangs are combed in a center pattern, while side tendrils are parted over the ears and shaped into cheek-touching "spoon curls."

If you're a go-girl with an action-paced schedule, consider this smooth 'n' simple adaptation of the same set. Part tresses and brush hair forward, so it hugs like a helmet. Lift crown, slant bangs and comb sides to form an "arrow tip" on each cheek. Now, switch from comb to hairpin for the finishing touches. Shelley, seen in the MGM film, "Hold On!", follows the Hollywood trick of using curved ends to straighten and refine hairline, rounded tip to pat stray strands in place.

The convertible hair style continues to grow in interest with the addition of a pin-on jiggle curl. Tresses are parted in the centre and bangs swept to each side. A small pin curl, just behind the ear, is used as the "anchor spot" to attach hairpiece. Strands can be either coiled, braided or laced with flowers and ribbons, so with each toss of the head the coiffure has a zingy, carefree look.

P.S. For the "magic set" plus flattering comb-out styling tips, send for our new book let, "Swinging Hair Styles." Photo-illustrations preview the latest look in coiffures. 50-Mile Hike in Rockies Wins Boys Prince's Praise

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—A 50-mile hike that took them close to the summit of a 7,100-foot mountain led to a meeting with Prince Philip for five boys from British Columbia.

The hike filled the "expedition" requirement for the Duke of Edinburgh's gold award. The B.C. teen-agers were among 18 Canadian boys who received the award from the prince during his Ottawa visit in March.

"That was a wonderful day," said Stephen Owen, a slight, brown - haired boy whose business-like manner is offset by a dimpled grin. "We talked to the prime minister in his office. He has quite a bit in common with the headmaster of our school—like they both went to Oxford."

Prince Philip chatted with the winners during the award ceremony held later that day at Government House. "He asked us about the expedition and about our school."

The boys also met Governor-General and Mrs. Vanier and members of the diplomatic corps.

The B.C. boys are all 17 and in Grade 12 at Shawnigan Lake school, on Vancouver Island about 30 miles north of Victoria. It's a private school for 240 boys from Grades 8 to 12.

THREE-YEAR PROJECT

It was the headmaster of the school who got them interested in the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme. It was started about 10 years ago in Britain by Prince Philip to teach young people how to use their leisure time constructively.

Usually supervised through a school or organization like the boy scouts or girl guides, the scheme offers a lapel pin and certificate at bronze, silver and gold levels for achievements in four categories—public service, expedition, hobbies and fitness.

"We've been working on it since we were in Grade 9," said dark-haired Robin Mc-Daniel, who got his hobby award for drama. "About 12 of us started out."

That made it a three-year undertaking.

Reports that the five had actually climbed Mount Garibaldi were denied by Peter Quinn, a smooth-spoken member of the group.

"No, we went across Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi Park, and that was just because it was in between where we started out and where we wanted to end up. And the part where we were is only about 6,000 feet up."

"We went through a pass on the Black Tusk—that's a volcanic formation," explained Robin. "We could have gone over the top, but it wouldn't have been a very practical route."

LUGGED HEFTY PACKS

The other two hikers were Peter Ladner, absent for the interview, and fair - haired Tony Slater.

They each carried 50-pound packs for the three-day hike, which they planned for about 12 months. The actual climbing took place on a weekend last October. "We got Friday and Monday off from school," observed Robin with satisfaction.

"The weather was great—about zero at night and 35 or 40 in the daytime."

For the public service part of the award, the boys took up fire-fighting, so successfully that they're on 24-hour call with the local volunteer brigade. They've got their own 30-foot fire engine, two rescue wagons, and a mobile emergency kitchen.

"We do that with the school cadet corps—it's to replace training like just marching around with a discipline that would be useful for civil defence work," said Stephen.

Although the Duke of Edinburgh's Awards were begun with urban, even underprivileged, youth in mind, 11 of the 18 boys who received gold awards in March were from private schools.

"I think it's because it's easier for them to run a pilot project like this since they're already doing some of this kind of thing," said Peter Quinn.

"And they've got the boys there all the time," added Robin.

Tony plans to go to Victoria College next year and the others will be at the University of British Columbia in arts. Robin wants to study international politics, Tony is undecided about his career and the other three think they will go into law.

Even though they have reached the top award, Prince Philip said there is still a place for them in the scheme.

"I hope you'll go on helping the younger boys," he told them. "They'll probably take instruction from you better than from older gentlemen."

Students Enjoy Week At Quinte

By GAIL NICHOLS (QSS)

Last week at Q.S.S. will be long remembered by its students as a real "fun thing." It was Student Parliament week and every day after school there were exciting happenings. Monday, the program was aimed mainly at the girls, as a fashion show, sponsored by Simplicity and using Quinte girls as models, was presented.

A body-rending litter race took place Tuesday afternoon to the amusement of the whole student body. Two laps around the school including a muddy obstacle course took the "go" out of the bearers and the people they carried — but not so much so that they couldn't throw the Prime Minister into the mud bath! Poor Bob!

The track team received the trophy for winning the race and the stage crew earned a prize for the best decorated litter.

The main trophy is to be presented annually and in itself is very symbolic — five silver nuts welded together in a semi-circle on a wooden base!

The gymnasium was the scene of a bloody brouhaha in a game between the teachers and the students Wednesday afternoon. What a schmozzle! The score was 6-3 and of course the students won. All the proceeds go towards the support of Quinte's overseas orphan.

Thursday night was on the peaceful side as the room reps. sold beanies and ribbons in the school colors. Then on Friday evening, the climax of the events arrived as the annual spring semi-formal, with a Spring Fantasy theme, drew a grand crowd.

The decorations were fantastic, the music perfect and the lunch delightful. A wonderful ending to the week's activities.

The students of Q.S.S. extend their thanks to the Student Parliament, and Prime Minister Bob Storie.

Women's Role In Agriculture Is Outlined

GUELPH (CP) — If your mother-in-law is surprised and your wife understanding you probably are a successful man.

This was the opinion given by Ontario's agriculture minister, William Stewart, to some 350 Women's Institute officers Wednesday.

He was speaking on the role of women, primarily in the agricultural field.

Mr. Stewart commended the women for the work they have done to raise the standards of the home in the province, especially in the safety field.

Women can, and do, have an important part in the use of pesticides on the farm, he said.

MUST LEARN RULES

He said modern agriculture cannot exist without pesticides, but farmers have a responsibility to study instructions and learn how to follow them.

"Along the same line in farm safety, the rural wife can do a great deal to bring to the attention of her husband and family the need of safety precautions with machinery and livestock."

Mr. Stewart announced that a pilot project at Kemptville will be introduced for training experienced young people as agricultural workers.

He added that short courses will also be introduced to retrain farm people in farm techniques and farm management.

The conference continues.

Needs Revision

MONTREAL (CP) — Because of "problems of conflicting interpretations," Quebec's ancient Civil Code "is in urgent need of a general revision," Justice Minister Claude Wagner said Thursday night. Speaking to members of the McGill Law Graduates Society, Mr. Wagner said revision is needed if the code is adequately to fulfil its essential role as the basic law that governs the private relations between the citizens of the province.

Last Fall's Rains Provided Basis for Another Big Crop

By ALLEN BACKMANN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Those dreary, wet days that interfered with harvesting last fall helped establish moisture reserves to get the Prairie grain belt on the road toward its fifth consecutive bumper crop.

Heavy September rains and substantial winter snowfalls combined to give most of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba a water-logged sub-soil that augurs well for this year's crop prospects.

It couldn't come at a better time. Surveys show farmers plan to increase their seeded acreages of almost all principal grains under the incentive of booming wheat sales that virtually guarantee a market for every bushel they can grow.

"We got the makings of an excellent crop year," says A. M. Runciman, president of United Grain Growers Ltd. "This appears to be one of the outstanding years on record for sub-soil moisture reserves."

With sub-soil reserves already in excellent shape, a spring snowstorm swept across the Prairies after much of the frost was out of the ground to provide the surface moisture for proper germination and early growth.

The reserves don't guarantee a bumper yield, in which growing-season weather and well-distributed rainfall remain the biggest factor. But they do provide an insurance policy, helping to tide the developing grain over hot, dry periods that otherwise would take a heavier toll.

APRIL SNOW HELPED

Statistics prepared by the meteorological branch of the federal department of transport for The Canadian Press show that precipitation across the Prairies was 10 to 12 per cent above normal for the period from Aug. 1 to Feb. 28 this year. This is a repeat of last spring's situation that set the stage for the third largest wheat crop on record.

An abnormally dry March in Saskatchewan and Alberta dropped the provincial averages closer to normal but an April snowstorm—its statistics were not immediately available—was expected to recoup the losses.

At the end of March, Manitoba was in the most enviable position with moisture totals 13 per cent above normal in the west and 18 per cent in the east. Saskatchewan's normally dry southwestern section had 8.41 inches of precipitation in the period from Aug. 1 to March 31, 32 per cent above average. The rest of the province was near average.

Only the north-central part of Alberta showed a moisture deficiency with 8.06 inches of precipitation recorded, 10 per cent lower than average. Other parts were above normal for a province-wide average of seven per cent above.

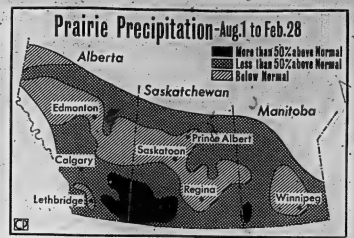
CROP PROSPECTS GOOD

Robert English, statistician for the Alberta department of agriculture, says the overall situation in the province is good with fall rains providing the base for this year's crops.

"While there has been little precipitation this spring, most of the snow in Alberta is where it will do the most good, that is in the south."

The normally lush peace River country, hard-hit by extremes of too little or too much moisture last year, received eight to 10 inches of snow in mid-April that soaked into the ground to replenish used-up moisture reserves.

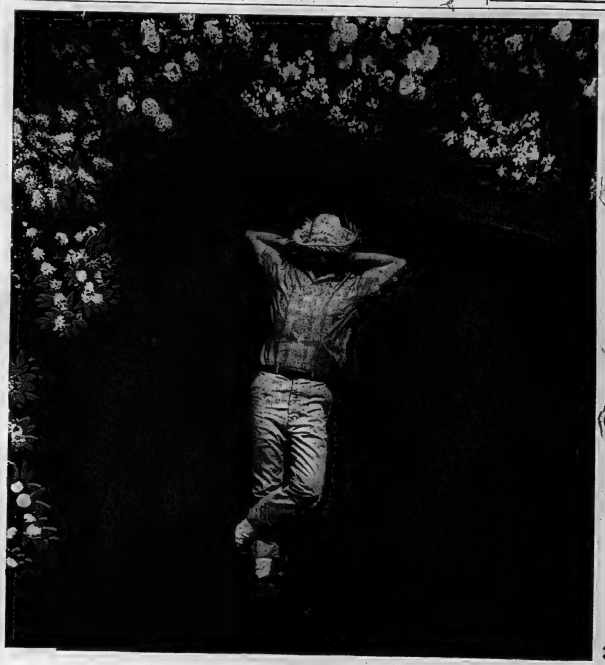
All the statistics lean toward a bumper crop in keeping with yields of the last four years. Last year, the 477,917,000-bushel wheat crop was 13 per cent higher than 1964 and 43 per cent higher than the 5-year average.



With wheat acreages expected to be increased by 1,200,000 acres to 28,250,000 acres, ideal conditions could produce a record harvest.

HAZARDS AHEAD

But farmers and agriculturalists are quick to point out there's many a hazard between seeding and harvest. Last year's anticipated record yield, for example, dwindled in the expectionally wet months of August and September.



The September rainfall, while playing havoc with harvest, was a major contributor to the favorable moisture conditions this spring. Precipitation was above average throughout the Prairies, particularly in eastern Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Broadview, Sask., recorded 5.57 inches for the month, about four inches above average.

Western Manitoba had a similar experience with 4.17 inches of precipitation in the month compared with an average of 1.60.

A GOOD YEAR IN THE MAKING — Heavy September rains and substantial winter snow falls have given the Prairie Provinces a good start on a fifth consecutive bumper crop. In most of the grain-growing areas moisture conditions are above normal. Map shows precipitation in relation to normal conditions. (CP Newsmap)

OMSIP enrollment period extended to May 16th

Ontario Health Minister Dr. M. B. Dymond has announced that residents of the Province may still receive full Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan coverage and benefits by July 1st providing they enroll in the Plan before May 16th.

"The Plan is a success," declared the Minister. "The number of applications received already cover more than 1,100,000 of our citizens."

Dr. Dymond added, however, that a large number of residents had indicated they would join OMSIP but for a variety of reasons had been unable to send in their application in time. The OMSIP open enrollment period has therefore been extended by two weeks in order that these persons may qualify for coverage from the day the Plan goes into effect on July 1st.

"The May 16th deadline is final," added the minister. "This enrollment deadline cannot be extended any further because it takes time to process such a flood of applications even with the most modern equipment available."

The extension of the open enrollment period means that those residents who have already enrolled, and those who enroll before May 16th, will be protected by OMSIP, beginning July 1st.

Ontario residents who enroll after May 16th will have to undergo a minimum three month waiting period before they are entitled to OMSIP coverage and benefits, said Dr. Dymond.

OMSIP head office is located at 135 St. Clair West, Toronto. Applications are already being processed by modern micro-photo methods and computers.

Notification of acceptance to be sent out shortly

People who have already enrolled in OMSIP need not apply a second time.

Dr. Dymond stated that their applications are now being processed, and their notification will arrive in the mail very soon.

The second enrollment period (deadline May 16th) is for people who missed the first deadline.

OMSIP PROVIDES COVERAGE REGARDLESS OF AGE, INCOME, OR HEALTH

OMSIP has been established to provide adequate insurance coverage for the payment of doctors' bills, and to make this coverage available to all Ontario residents regardless of their age, income, or state of health.

Enrollment in OMSIP is voluntary.

The Plan is intended for individuals and their families and does not provide group coverage. (Group coverage is where a number of individuals collectively purchase insurance through their place of employment, union, etc.)

Everyone who has lived in Ontario for the past 3 months is eligible to join, except those who are entitled to physicians' services under another Act.

Members are free to choose their own doctor. If a member travels outside the province, and requires care, OMSIP will still pay the doctors' bills up to OMSIP established rates.

People who find they cannot continue to pay for all or part of their OMSIP contract because of unemployment, illness or disability, may apply for temporary assistance in paying their fees.

Payment system is flexible

Doctors' bills are paid for you by OMSIP in either of two ways.

Your doctor may submit his bill directly to OMSIP. This is the most convenient method for everyone and it is hoped most doctors will use it.

Or your doctor may prefer to bill you directly. In this case, two courses of action are open to you.

You may pay the bill and submit the receipted account to OMSIP, or you may submit the account to OMSIP prior to paying the doctor.

In either situation when the doctor bills you directly, you will be paid the amount of the established OMSIP rates. These rates are based on 90% of the current schedule of fees listed and prepared by the Ontario Medical Association.

Legislation approving the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan—OMSIP for short—was passed in the Ontario Legislature on Feb. 16th of this year. Coverage commenced April 1st for social assistance recipients. Coverage will begin July 1st for those who have already enrolled, or who enroll prior to/or before May 16th.

OLD AGE PENSIONERS

Many old age pensioners have automatically been enrolled in OMSIP but most must fill in and submit an application.

Those who will get automatic coverage are pensioners who are presently receiving benefit under the Ontario Old Age Assistance Act, or those pensioners who have been declared eligible for coverage by the Ontario Department of Welfare. These pensioners have already received their OMSIP registration cards.

All other pensioners must complete and submit an application to receive OMSIP coverage.

If you have not received an OMSIP registration card, or have not already sent in an application form, you must apply before May 16th for coverage when the Plan starts on July 1st.

Many qualify for full or partial assistance

Since the aim of OMSIP legislation is to provide adequate medical insurance for Ontario residents, full or partial premium assistance is available for those who require it.

Automatic fully-paid coverage

Many residents and their dependants have automatically received fully paid coverage under OMSIP. These are people who are already receiving benefits under the following Acts:

- The Blind Persons' Allowances Act
- The Disabled Persons' Allowances Act
- The General Welfare Assistance Act
- The Mothers' Allowances Act
- The Old Age Assistance Act
- The Rehabilitation Services Act

Automatic fully-paid coverage is also provided for old age security pensioners and their dependants declared eligible for coverage by the Ontario Department of Public Welfare.

Fully-paid coverage on application

People resident in Ontario for the past 12 months and who had no taxable income in 1965 get full assistance.

This means if these people make out their application form now, before May 16th, they will get OMSIP protection, fully paid for by the government, starting this July 1st.

In addition, many who have been resident in Ontario for the past 12 months will be eligible for partial assistance, depending on their taxable income and number of dependants. (See below).

Conservation Areas Will Open on May 14

Parks and conservation areas owned by the Moira River Conservation Area will be officially opened for the season on May 14th, it has been announced by Authority officials.

Improvements for all three Authority conservation areas — the Vandervaeter Area at Thomasburg, the Price area at Actinolite and the O'Hara's Mill area northwest of Madoc — have been planned for this year.

This year the Price park at Actinolite will be extended on the west side of the Skootamatta River, where an additional five acres has been purchased. A new access road to the west side of the river will be put in and a picnic area developed.

Softball backstops for the O'Hara Mill and the Price Parks will be installed.

Reerection of the country old log schoolhouse at O'Hara's Mill is now almost completed and will be open for inspection during weekend. Plans are to fit the old school out in a manner in keeping with its age.

The feature attraction of the area, the old O'Hara sawmill will be operated May 22nd and thereafter at three weeks intervals during the summer.

The executive committee approved the purchase of junior swings for the Vandervaeter area and also for the purchase of a "flogger" to keep down the mosquito menace.

Mr. Sharp said in his lecture that Canadian - American economic relations in the past three years in which he has been trade minister and then finance minister were, on the surface, generally quiet and progressive. But he said they had moments of high tension, suspense, and drama behind the scenes.

This was obviously how he would like to have it continue, without open raucous—or "hostility," as the Rochester reporters termed it—but with effective discussion and decision in cabinet offices and joint conferences.

Until recently the difficulty has always been that decisions made by the U.S. in domestic affairs frequently have a profound impact on Canada, and Washington tends to forget the existence of its neighbor and number one trading partner.

KNOWN AS TUAN-BEE — Manson Toynbee, a native of Ganges, B.C., has spent 7¼ years teaching in Sarwak province in Borneo as part of the Canadian external aid program. The natives called him Tuan-Bee, a compliment because "tuan" in Malay is a term of respect. He is shown at Ottawa with mementoes of his stay at Borneo, which since 1963 has been part of the independent state of Malaysia.

Teacher From B. C. Finds Borneo Hills Less Dangerous Than Canadian Streets

By GERALD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The man known as Tuan-bee in the hills of Borneo says they're not as dangerous as Canadian streets.

Manson Toynbee, a 30-year-old school teacher from Ganges, B.C., adds teaching is a pleasure among the Kelabit and Penan natives of Sarawak, where he has just ended 7½ years as a worker under the Colombo Plan.

The tall copper-haired British Columbian went away originally for the normal external-aid assignment of two to four years. He proved so valuable in the Borneo highlands that the Malaysian government kept asking for extensions.

He was principal of Glenagles Elementary School in West Vancouver in 1957 when the external aid office picked him out in its hunt for teachers to help set up education systems in Southeast Asia under the Colombo Plan.

Canada has sent 65 teachers and 73 advisers to Malaysia and in the process spent $3,700,000 since 1953.

Until Sarawak was turned over to Britain in 1946, it had been ruled for a century by a succession of white rajahs in the British Brooke family. The natives had gone uneducated.

When Mr. Toynbee arrived, the aim was to get everyone to Grade 4 at least. Today the bedrock is Grade 6.

The six-foot-three Toynbee was officially headmaster for groups of from five to 20 schools. He not only supervised and administered, but taught and built.

It took a week on a treacherous river, then eight days of biking, to get to the highlands of which he has the best memories.

In his time there, Indonesian raiders burned a couple of villages and planes strafed another.

The Kelabit natives he worked with once used heads to settle quarrels between tribes and took slaves.

The basic diet of rice is rounded out with snake, monkey, pig and fruit.

"Fruit was" the salvation," said Mr. Toynbee, recalling those years in his Ottawa hotel room.

"I made a habit of never asking what I was eating until after I ate it," he said. "I never could get keen on monkey but food wasn't a problem."

Shows of temper were out among the peaceful Kelabits and violence was rare in the jungle.

"Compared to accidents on Canadian streets, Borneo is much safer," he said, watching the rush of traffic on Confederation Square.

In six months of teaching 47 teen-agers, he never had to speak to one about discipline or assignments.

"The average Canadian teacher would find it paradise there. Teaching really is a pleasure. There is such a desire to learn."

When he suggested to the village chief that girls not be matched for marriage until they had completed nursing, the chief promptly passed the order along to the women.

He also told them that henceforth Tuan-Bee would make the decisions on marriage.

This was the only incident that left him slightly shaken. It took some diplomacy to get out of the cupid role.

Since 1953, Canada has given higher education to 393 Malay students.

Coming to Canada next year will be Mr. Toynbee's adopted son, a 16-year-old Malay who came under his care shortly after he arrived.

He is one of the five per cent who'll return to Sarawak to continue the job men like his new father have started.

As for Mr. Toynbee, he'll return to education in B.C. for a year or so but he looks forward to another assignment abroad.

He thinks he'd like to try the West Indies next time.

"A guy like this can almost write his own ticket," says an external aid officer.

3 Witnesses

by Mr. Robinette to call to the stand for cross-examination one of the RCMP officers who took a statement from Spencer.

The Spencer statement admitted giving information to the Russians on trips to Ottawa but said he in the later stages thought to suspect he was being used as a spy agent.

Mr. Justice Wells said Mr. Rankin's refusal to cross-examine this witness could only lead him to believe that Mr. Rankin accepted Mr. Spencer's admissions.

Spencer's dismissal from his postal clerk's job following the expulsion of two Russian diplomats from Ottawa for espionage activities caused a furore in the Commons.

REVERSES STAND

Prime Minister Pearson finally reversed the stand of his justice minister and—following an unprecedented personal telephone call to Spencer in Vancouver—ordered the inquiry.

There were reports Justice Minister Leclerc Cardin was forced to call the cabinet over the issue, but he stayed on.

At Thursday's session, the commission heard evidence from RCMP Cpl. K. E. Hollas on how Spencer was shadowed on a trip through B.C. and Alberta which covered the route of the pipeline that feeds oil to Vancouver and U.S. refineries.

Spencer took many pictures, and RCMP shadowers took the same shots. Many showed pipeline pumping stations, valve boxes and the big refinery at Taylor, B.C.

Jack Webster, CKNW radio commentator, told how he paid Spencer $1,500 personally from his company—Webster Productions—for a one-hour and 32 minute interview. He also paid Spencer $100 in expenses to get him to come to Vancouver Island for a time to keep him out of reach of other newspaper and radio reporters.

The commissioner also heard evidence about Spencer's medical condition leading up to removal of a cancerous lung. Dr. Stanley Sunshine said Spencer went through a "psychological crisis" following the operation, but had said he did not consider himself a spy.

James Mortimer, a bartender friend, and Edgar Bloomfield, a fellow postal worker, said Spencer had told them of making a mistake, but never defined just what the "mistake" was.

In 1962, the newly ennobled Earl of Snowdon took a job with Canada's ebullient press baron, Lord Thomson, as artistic director of the Sunday Times. But still the critics were not satisfied. Now it was said that since Snowdon is making a salary, why not cut the royal allowance?

The births of the Snowdon's two children, Viscount Linley, now 5, and Lady Sarah, now 3, helped warm the frosty mood. The couple began making more official trips, proving especially successful in helping promote British trade in places as far apart as Amsterdam and Hong Kong.

The semi-official, trade-boosting trip to the United States last fall drew more sharp questions in Parliament about public money spent on what had started out as a private visit. But the heated words were confined to the Commons.

Canadiens Capture Cup In Overtime

The Intelligencer
ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1966 13

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

What a way to go!

So now it's twenty years without a Stanley Cup for Bill Gadsby as he and his team mates went down with all guns firing last night.

The Red Wings battled back from a 2-0 deficit to force overtime but it just wasn't enough.

There is not much that can be said about a goal that is carried into the net caught somewhere on a sliding player and that's the way Henri Richard bagged the winner. However, the shifty Montreal centre played a great game and if someone was going to win it for the Habs, no one was more deserving than Richard.

The Canadiens, as usual, had a great hockey club, balanced from goal out, and despite the sentiment riding with the Wings, the better hockey club won the championship.

The game was by far the most exciting of all the playoffs, marked by great speed and narrow escapes around both nets. Howe and company had goal-scoring chances as did Bellveau and crew but in a game as keenly-contested as that one, inches are the difference between victory and defeat.

Roger Crozier was a deserving winner of the Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player in the playoffs. It would have been difficult to select one Canadien from a team that displayed such balance.

* * *

So, to the Montreal Canadiens go congratulations, and the spoils, and to the Red Wings, the thanks of the fans for such an all-out effort and an exciting series.

They came riding out of the west in a manner that would make Billy The Kid look like a girl guide.

Gunned down in the east on many previous occasions, the westerners are determined to make it a different story this trip.

After Wednesday night, many are inclined to take them seriously.

They are the Edmonton Oil Kings, representing the west against "Boy" Guidolin's Oshawa Generals in the annual Memorial Cup finals.

The Kings whipped Oshawa 7-2 in the series opener, out-bumping, out-hustling, out-skating and apparently out-fighting the Generals. They also out shot the OHA champions by the fantastic total of 52-28.

Both Guidolin and Edmonton coach Ray Kinasewich charged that the opposition was "head-hunting" in the opener.

"I like a rough, hard-checking game," said Kinasewich, "and if they can't take it, then let them go home." He said the Generals were after heads because they couldn't take the peculiar body-checking.

Bep also had plenty to say about the matter: "We didn't see one good check all night, and you can tell them to stop sending bushers after Bobby Orr," he told a reporter.

The Kings' Jim Harrison crashed into Orr while he was tied up in the Oshawa end. Oshawa's White went after Harrison and as tempers flared, the fighting spread. Orr fleared Dave Rochefort and spoke to him. White and Harrison battled and the losers' Ron Dussiaume took on Doug Barrie.

"Except for Orr's bout the Oil Kings came out best in the fisticuffs," says one story. White had a deep head cut from Harrison's fists. Six major penalties were doled out.

Aside from the rugged play, Guidolin and boss-man Wren Blair were most unhappy with their charges. Bep said his team was soundly trounced and offered no excuses. "We didn't skate, we didn't hit," he said.

Blair added: "They're (the Oil Kings) either the best out of the west in a long time or we're the worst in the east in a long while."

I suppose team hasn't been able to win a cup final in the east in 17 years — but it sure looks as if the Oil Kings are going to try.

DETROIT (CP)—Henri Richard borrowed a page from his famous brother's notebook Thursday night and scored at 2:30 of overtime to give Montreal Canadiens a 3-2 victory over Detroit Red Wings and with it the Stanley Cup before 15,134 fans.

It might not have been as pretty as others scored by the crafty little centre, or as fabulous as many scored by his brother, but it gave Montreal the best-of-seven series 4-2.

It was the first time Henri scored in overtime in Stanley Cup play compared with a record six overtime goals by the now-retired Maurice Richard in 15 explosive playoff series.

And it came in the Detroit Olympia, scene of one of the Rocket's greatest playoff feats, overtime goals in successive games that allowed Montreal to rebound from a two-game deficit and beat Detroit in the 1951 semi-final.

HENRI RICHARD

By coincidence, the same pattern was followed in both series with the Red Wings winning the first two games in Montreal only to have the Canadiens storm back with four successive victories.

NO COMEBACK WIN

the first three and roared back to beat Detroit.

From start to finish, it was a lusty, wide-open game as both sides threw everything into the fray. Action seldom let up and reached a peak in the closing minutes of regulation time when first Montreal and then Detroit missed glorious chances to get the winning goal.

While Richard suggested after the game he would rather have seen a more prominent member of his team get the winner, it was the play of the 160-pound centre that had as much or more to do with Montreal's comeback.

Richard referred to Jean Beliveau and J. C. Tremblay, outstanding in both the semi-final and final series, and top candidates for the Conn Smythe Trophy awarded to the outstanding player in the playoffs.

The trophy was awarded by the National Hockey League governors to Detroit goalie Roger Crozier.

HE GAVE SPARK

Montreal didn't begin to overpower the Red Wings in this series until the 30-year-old Richard returned to form after recovering from a leg injury suffered late in the season and reinjured in the semi - finals against Toronto.

Detroit won the first two games 3-2 and 5-2 before losing 4-2, 3-1, 5-1 and 3-2.

No one agreed just how the winning goal was scored.

Richard said the puck bounced into the net off his arm, but Crozier and Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman said Richard pushed it into the net with his hand.

Several Red Wings protested the goal briefly to referee Frank Udvari, but to no avail.

Prior to Richard's winner, Beliveau and Leon Rochefort gave Montreal a 2-0 lead and Norm Ullman and Floyd Smith brought the Wings level to force the overtime.

This was the fifth time Montreal has won the cup after tak-

Only 27 Cars Left

MacLennan-Wilson Near 'Home'

By WALTER HAYES

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-seven battered and bent cars, all that remains of the original field of 60, left here early today on the final leg of the 4,000-mile Vancouver - Quebec City car rally.

They arrived here Thursday night caked with mud and minus four of their number that fell by the wayside during the 16-hour grind from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—said by many of the drivers to have been the toughest of the rally.

All but a mudhole on a dirt road about 30 miles from Sault Ste. Marie caught at least a dozen cars. They bogged down in the thick mud and many lost valuable penalty points because of the delay.

Four cars were disqualified Thursday, three because of excessive time. The other, trying to make up time after getting free from the mud, left the road and was too badly damaged to continue.

The slimy mud also took its toll of two of the top five drivers.

Ewen Graham and Henry Acteson, both of Calgary, dropped 30 penalty points after becoming stuck and fell from second to third place.

Fourth-place Rosemary Smith of Dublin, Ireland, and her co-driver Ann Coombe of Toronto, dropped from fourth to eighth when they went off course momentarily and got bogged down in mud as they attempted to turn around. They lost 310 points giving them a five-day total of 412.

The leaders of the rally since the start continued their flaw less driving and navigation and finished the day without penalty.

Toronto fireman Paul MacLennan and John Wilson, a mathematics professor from Waterloo, Ont., had only 2 points against their Ford-Lotus Cortina.

MacLennan and Wilson's nearest on the three-car Cortina team, Roger Clark of London, England, and Robin Edwards of Fabreville, Que., also ran clean and finished the day with 67 points, moving into second place.

Graham and Acteson had 46 points when they left Sault Ste. Marie, but were assessed an additional five when officials found an error in scoring on the first day. The 30 points lost through Thursday's delay gave them a total of 76, but they continued to lead the privately-entered cars.

'The Baracuda of Detroit'

The Barracuda of Scott Harvey of Detroit and Mike Kerry of Toronto arrived at one control one minute late. They were assessed 10 points for a total of 190, but still were able to move from fifth to fourth place vacated by Miss Smith.

STAY SECOND

Gene Henderson of Dearborn Mich., and Doug Gallop of Toronto, in their Falcon also picked up points for lost time but finished the day fifth over-all with 223 points. They are second among the private entries.

Fyfe Hochreuter and Paul Masson, both of Toronto, were third in the private category and seventh overall with 231 points.

The Ford team appeared as part of the team prize after one car on the only other remaining team dropped out Thursday.

It was the Fiat of Royce Emery of London, Ont., and James Edwards of Southwold, Out. The other two Fiat team cars arrived here Thursday in 25th and 27th places.

The Corlinas, lying first, second and third, need only reach Quebec City tonight to win the team award. Today's run is 11 hours, the shortest yet.

Birdie Tebbetts took advantage of New York Yankees slump and went with John O'Donoghue, one of his second line pitchers, for Cleveland Indians' series finale in New York Thursday.

The result showed up the Yanks' weakened state as O'Donoghue managed seven shutout innings before needing help from Bob Allen as the Indians scored a 4-0 victory that left the once-feared Yankees with one run in three games against Cleveland, mired in ninth place in the American League.

The Yankees have been shut out four times in their last seven games and have managed just 10 runs in one game against Kansas City Athletics. The team batting average has dwindled to .208.

Tebbetts' Indians lead the league with 14 victories in 15 games.

In Thursday's only other league game, California Angels blanked Kansas City 1-0.

FILL-INS SPARKLE

Dick Howser and Chuck Hinton, replacements for the injured Larry Brown and Leon Wagner, drove in the first two Indian runs after O'Donoghue and Bob Friend had duelled through six scoreless innings.

Howser's sacrifice fly scored Fred Whitfield, who had opened the seventh inning with a triple, one of four the Indians hit. Vic Davalillo opened the eighth with a triple and Hinton's sacrifice fly brought him home. Duke Sims' second triple of the game added two insurance runs in the ninth.

Fred Newman and Bob Lee combined on a four-hitter and Norm Siebern drove in the game's only run as California handed Kansas City its 14th loss in 17 games.

Newman allowed all the Athletic hits in the first six innings before giving way to Lee.

What's an umpire to do?

Take Chris Peleknodas. He had his problems Thursday night during Houston Astros' 4-3, 13-inning victory over Chicago Cubs.

Chicago starter Bill Faul took time out to protest the electronic applauding hands on the Astrodome's scoreboard, but Peleknodas refused to let Faul get his goat.

Faul suggested Pele knodas give a signal to stop the scoreboard. Peleknodas said pitch, or watch the scoreboard show a guy taking a shower.

Faul pitched. Lee Maye hit a double for a 3-2 Houston lead, and the scoreboard showed a guy taking a shower as Faul left.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco Giants outlasted Los Angeles Dodgers 8-5 in 10 innings, Atlanta Braves edged Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 and Cincinnati Reds walloped Pittsburgh Pirates 10-6.

The Astros finally beat the Cubs in the 13th when Joe Morgan and Jim Wynn singled around an intentional out. John Boccabella drove across all the Cubs' runs on a homer with one on in the fifth inning and a double in the seventh that knotted in Ron Santo with the tying run.

The Giants chased Sandy Koufax and built a 7-0 lead in the second inning but the Dodgers played a convincing game of catch-up with Wes Parker, Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson hitting homers.

The Giants eventually pushed across the winning run in the 10th without a hit when Jim Davenport reached first on John Kennedy's error, took second on a passed ball by John Roseboro and scored when Willie Davis dropped Jim Hart's long fly.

Blues Name L. Patrick Manager

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Lynn Patrick, general manager and coach of Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League, was named general manager Thursday of the new St. Louis National Hockey League franchise.

Sidney Salomon, president of the new club, St. Louis Blues, said it has not been decided whether Patrick also will coach. The Blues do not begin playing until the 1967-68 season.

Patrick was at Los Angeles the last two seasons. Formerly, he coached New York Rangers and Boston Bruins of the NHL. He was the Boston general manager from 1954-57 and was vice-president and general manager from 1957-65.

Proclaimed 'The Greatest'

"WELCOME HOME, BOBBY" says Earl Anderson, shaking hands with Point Anne's Bobby Hull. In the back ground is the sign Anderson had erected near the Canada Cement plant.

Point Anne Signs Honor Hull

Point Anne's most famous native son officially came home yesterday.

Bobby Hull, at his Big Island home for the past week, took a quick trip to Point Anne yesterday afternoon, along with wife Joanne and two of the pair's three husky youngsters.

Hull was officially welcomed to the Point by Earl Anderson, general foreman of the Canada Cement Company's Point Anne plant.

Anderson greeted Hull in front of one of his pet projects, an eight by twelve foot sign, placed just across from the plant.

"Point Anne, birthplace of Bobby Hull — World's greatest hockey player," reads the sign. Along the bottom follows: "1965-66 scoring record — goals 54, assists 43," and in a larger circle is the numbers "97". Hull's record point total.

Anderson said he had arranged for the sign to be painted by a plant employee, Jack Stewart, and that it was a gift of the Canada Cement Company.

"I am honored," said the Chicago Black Hawk left winger.

"Isn't it big," beamed wife Joanne.

Little Bobby and Blake, the two older members of the Hull "kid line" were busy talking to Grandpa and Grandma. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hull Sr., to pay much attention to the sign. Baby Brett was home with the sitter.

Nor was it easy to keep the active pair still long enough to pose with the rest of the Hull family for pictures, wearing their Chicago Black Hawk jackets. "They call them the white tornado and his helper around Chicago Stadium," offered Hull Sr.

Another sign, this one the banner type, also proclaims Point Anne as the home of Hull. It is placed near the front of the Point Anne Lane, on Highway No. 2, and was paid for by Canada Cement plant employees.

"We are all mighty proud of Bobby and the whole Hull family," Anderson said before Bobby's arrival. "We tried to arrange for Dennis, to be here too, but he had to go to St. Catharines this afternoon," added Anderson.

Dennis, Bobby's younger brother and also a professional hockey player, saw action with the Hawks 'and their CPHL farm team in St. Louis this season.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— An all-star team from the International Baseball League will play Boston Red Sox in Toronto June 30, George Sisler Jr., league president, said Thursday.

Bobby Orr Hurts But Will Play

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Generals enter the second game of the Memorial Cup finals against Edmonton Oil Kings tonight with their ace defenceman Bobby Orr nursing a sore groin muscle.

The injury won't keep him out of the lineup but may slow him down. It has been bothering him for the last few weeks but so far hasn't affected his play.

However, the leg caused him enough pain in Wednesday's cup opener, won 7-2 by Oil Kings, that he was permitted to miss the team workout Thursday night.

"We just decided to give him a rest and keep him off his skates until game-time," said Oshawa coach-gm Sep Guidolin.

"It bothered me a bit Wednesday night," said Orr, "but it will be okay."

MAULED AT START

Orr's problem added to Oshawa's main problem—trying to restore morale after the mauling by Edmonton in the opener. Third game of the best-of-seven series leading to the Canadian junior hockey title is scheduled for 8 p.m., EDT Sunday, with the fourth game next Wednesday.

Two other Generals, winger Danny Sanford and Nick Beverley, a defenceman, have recovered from minor knee injuries picked up in the first game. Paul Cadieux, a forward - defenceman utility player who missed the opener because he had to write university exams, will play for Oshawa tonight.

Edmonton will make only one lineup change with defenceman Harold Myers replacing Kerry Ketter who received a shoulder separation in the opening game. Ketter will likely be fit for Sunday's game.

UNHAPPY WITH GOALIE

Edmonton coach Ray Kinasewich expressed disappointment over the play of his goalie Don McLeod in Wednesday's game. "I thought Oshawa got a couple of soft goals," said Kinasewich. McLeod handled only 28 shots, 12 of them from the stick of Orr, who scored one of Oshawa's two goals, his first in playoff competition this year.

Guidolin said his team doesn't usually play a hard - hitting game, but may have to resort to heavy checking to stop the Oil Kings.

Kinasewich said he was aware through scouting reports that the Generals weren't noted for heavy hitting. In the opener, Edmonton manhandled the Generals, picking up 11 of the 31 penalties.

Did he tell his players to body-check the no-hitting Generals?

"I gave them some general reminders," said Kinasewich.

"Outplayed But Won" — Blake

Can't Agree On Winning Goal

By AL McNEIL

DETROIT (CP) — While the man who scored the winning goal thought it should have gone to someone else and the opposing coach and goaltender believed it should have been disallowed, the Stanley Cup rests once again with Montreal Canadiens.

Henri Richard, who had gone eight playoff games without a goal, accounted for the overtime tie-breaker that beat Detroit Red Wings 3-2 Thursday night and brought Montreal the Cup for the seventh time in 11 seasons.

In the hubbub of the celebrating Canadiens' dressing room, Richard sat quietly in a corner fending off his equipment and mused that the goal should have gone "to someone who played well for all the series."

"It should have been someone like J. C. Tremblay or (Jean) Beliveau who played well all through the series that got that one. Someone gave it to me from the corner and someone grabbed my stick and pulled it, said, adding that the puck hit him when he fell and went into the net past Detroit goaltender Roger Crozier.

VERSION VARIES

The Wings' netminder, who won the Conn Smythe Trophy worth $1,000 and as automobile, had a different version of the play.

"Richard was sliding across after he fell and he hit the puck with his hand into the net," Crozier said.

"I asked the referee (Frank Udvari) if it was a good goal and he said it was, and I never saw them change their minds yet."

Detroit coach Sid Abel was dejected by the sudden turn of events that overcame his club at 2:30 of overtime.

"My only wish is that the game had been decided on a clean, hard-shot goal," he said. "I asked Roger about it and he told me Richard had gloved the shot into the net.

GOALS WIN THEM

"I knew we had a bad game in Montreal Tuesday night when we didn't do anything, but you still win games by scoring goals and they got the one that counted tonight."

A jubilant Toe Blake, who has coached Canadiens to their last seven Cup wins, admitted that he thought "they outplayed us but we still won."

Blake was busy parrying questions with reporters as to his plans for next season.

"This is a-bad time to say anything about retiring. I've got a winner now, but maybe I'll be back next season."

Blake said midway through the fourth schedule that this would be his last year at the Montreal helm.

POLICY PAID OFF

He said his series strategy had been to "get all our guys fighting like hell and let the refs take his course," adding with a grin that this policy had paid off.

"I thought this was the greatest final for years," Blake said.

"Sure they outplayed us tonight but we still won. It's the goals that count," he said, referring to the fact that Detroit outshot Montreal 30-22 on the night's play.

Detroit veteran Bill Gadsby is not certain he'll return.

Gadsby, a 20-year man in the league and who has yet to be a member of a Stanley Cup team, played Thursday night with a special protector attached to the boot of his right skate to protect a broken big toe on that foot.

"I don't think I'll play next year but I'm not sure right now. I want to talk to Abel and (owner) Bruce Norris in the next couple of weeks before I make up my mind."

Gadsby said he would consider a coaching offer if it's "from Detroit."

Canadiens

ing the league championship and the 15th in Stanley Cup history Montreal has won.

Under coach Toe Blake, who conceded the Wings were the better club Thursday night, Montreal has won seven Cups in 11 years and eight league titles.

The Cup triumph is a reality for Blake, 53, who has suggested that for reasons of health he might retire.

The league title and playoff series victories by the Habs meant $3,750 for each regular member of the club. The victory in the final was worth $2,000 a man.

The Red Wings won $2,750 each for finishing fourth in the regular season, winning their semi-final over Chicago Black Hawks and collecting the losers' share in the final.

Over the game, Detroit outshot Montreal 30-22 but the margin would have been greater except for missed passes at key moments and rolling pucks.

Beliveau opened the scoring mid-way through the first period.

BACKHANDED REBOUND

The giant Montreal centre backhanded a rebound under Crozier, playing his second game with his left knee and ankle taped because of injuries.

Richard did the spadework on Rochefort's goal 10 minutes into the second period, breaking free at the Montreal blue line, carrying into the Detroit end and hitting Rochefort with a sharp pass.

In less than two minutes Detroit charged back. Ullman, who finished with 13 points to lead all scorers in the playoffs, lifted a hard shot from the point during a power play for his sixth goal.

The Wings tied the score 2-2 halfway through the third when Smith tipped in a screened shot from the point.

Goodie Howe was robbed by Lorne Worsley in the Montreal nets with just two minutes remaining in regulation time to set the stage for Richard who scored the first overtime goal in 12 years to decide a final series.

George Schlatter, Producer, Passionate Defender of TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans today are exposed in one year to more good comedy, superior writing, more vaudeville routines than another generation saw in a lifetime," says producer George Schlatter.

"Audiences know when a show is slow, whether it is deliberately or it's a spot, or a put-on. Think of the people who have seen the Bolshoi ballet, experienced a opera, have their choice every night of comedy or drama. Think of the numbers of hours of entertainment, education, culture and comedy available. I say that even 15 years ago nobody could conceive of an industry that could turn out this enormous quantity of material—and do it easily and, generally

Schlatter, who had had a hand in developing many a variety series, including a couple that failed to fulfil their promise, is passionate defender of television.

"I say that the television audiences are spoiled rotten," he added.

TAPES SPECIAL

The free-lance producer recently taped an NBC special saluting winners of Grammy Awards, given by the recording academy. It will be broadcast May 18, with a raft of singing stars repeating awards-winning performances and other celebrities introducing them.

This is a one-shot program of a special nature — a program planned around pre - selected personalities and well - known music.

"The day of the pure 'personality special' seems to me to be running out," Schlatter continues, "and I think we will have to come back to a specific program that, in itself is the big event."

Slams Liverpool 2-1

First Cup for Germany

GLASGOW (AP) — Twenty soccer fans were scheduled to appear in court today for greeting a German team in Scottish fashion—with a barrage of bottles.

The bottles showered down from the terraces of Hampden Park Stadium as Borussia Dortmund took their lap of honor after taking the record. A record encounter between the city's two top teams, Rangers and Celtic, ended with three dead from heart attacks and a dozen in hospital.

Borussia grabbed its victory —first for a German club in a European competition—with a fantastic goal in the 16th minute of extra time.

Sigi Held, a brilliant centre-forward, raced through alone. Thomas Lawrence, the Liverpool goalkeeper, raced out to make a desperate dive at the edge of the penalty area.

The ball soared way out to the right wing where Stan Libuda hit it first time with a long shot. Lawrence was helpless as the ball floated into the far corner of the Liverpool goal.

Liverpool had equalized and won through to extra time only on a 70th minute goal by leading right Roger Hunt which the Germans claimed came from a pass beyond the byeline.

Borussia's first goal was scored in the 42nd minute by Held from 12 yards.

The match was a grim defensive battle but for the most part played with even temper by two of the toughest teams in Europe, both winners of their leagues this season.

Jeanne Crain Runs Career And Manages 7 Children

By BOB THOMAS

Could there be any doubt that she is just as serene in real life? Not when you consider how she manages an acting career and a family of seven children, ranging from a collegian to a 10 months old.

Now does she do it?

"I have no system," she admitted. "The only way I operate is to take one thing at a time. I never worry about things until they happen."

Whatever her method, it seems to agree with her. She has reached the age when she is supposed to begin, yet she retains the fresh beauty she exhibited in Margie, Centennial Summer, Letter to Three Wives, Pinky and other memorable films of her 20th Century-Fox career.

Now she has joined with another Fox graduate, Dana Andrews, in a new film, The Devil of Terrero. It is being made at MGM as a two-hour movie for television, although it may be released in theatres first.

FEELS GOOD

"It feels good to be working again," she commented in her dressing room. "This is the first picture I've done since I had Christopher. He was born afterthought."

Jeanne-Crain last year joined the family which already included: Paul Jr., 19 and a student at Loyola University (Los Angeles); Mike, 17; Tim, 15; Jeanine, 14; Betsy, 8; and Mia, 6. Father is Paul Brinkman Sr.

Admittedly, she admits, she have it easier than most large families, since they employ a gem of a couple who have helped manage the household for 12 years.

"They've been with us since before the three youngest children were born," said Jeanne, "so they're really a part of the family. Also, the older children take care of the younger ones, and two of the boys can drive, so it's no problem for Paul and I to get away."

That can happen, since much of her film-making in recent years has been in Europe. Her last one was a German-Italian-Yugoslavian production.

Jeanne will be stationed here in the future, since she is embarking on her first television series next fall. She will be co-star with Howard Duff in Mendigan Ford, which will be made at her old alma mater, 20th Century-Fox.

It's a kind of Dragnet or Naked City with the accent on what happens to the policemen after they finish their daily routine," she reported. "That's where I fit in; I play Howard's wife."

Herald 'Shockorama'

Throughout the world, applause takes many different forms. It ranges from thunderous handclapping in one country to shouts of "Bravo!" in another. But when it comes to horror, the universal language is screams and shivers.

And it's screams and shivers that are the main order of business at "Shockorama," the latest in screen terror-tainment now at the Park Theatre today and Saturday only. Filmed in color and wide-screen through Embassy Pictures release and consisting of a double dose of chills and thrills furnished by "Billy The Kid Vs. Dracula" and "Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter," "Shockorama" presents two of the most fiendish ghouls of all time on one giant program.

"Billy The Kid Vs. Dracula" stars John Carradine, Chuck Courtney and Melinda Plowman and was produced by Carroll Case and directed by William Beaudine.

"Jesse James Meets Frankenstein's Daughter," also produced by Case and directed by Beaudine, stars John Lupton, Narda Onyx, Cal Bolder and Steven Geray.

Canada Cup Date Set

TOKYO (AP)—Golfers from 36 countries, including Canada, will vie for the 1968 International trophy and Canada Cup on Tokyo's Yomiuri Country Club course in November, the Japan Professional Golf Association announced Thursday. The association said it expects several more countries will enter the four-day world tournament on the par-72, 6,962-yard layout Nov. 10-13.

Shoemaker Aboard Abe's Hope Derby Choice

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Bill Shoemaker, trying to become the first jockey in 64 years to ride two Kentucky Derby winners in a row, climbs aboard pre-race favorite Abe's Hope in Saturday's 92nd Derby.

Abe's Hope, from the Grand Prix Stable of Joe Bartell and Robert Byfield, was made a 5-2 favorite by the Churchill Downs handicapper Thursday.

A field of 16, including two questionable starters, were entered Thursday, each adding $500 to the Derby pot. If all start, the 1¼-mile classic will gross $164,000. If any drop out, its starting fee of $1,000 will be subtracted from the total.

Second choice at 7-2 before the betting starts was shared by Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Stupendous, carrying the colors of the Wheatley Stable, and Kauai King, owned by Michael J. Ford of Omaha.

Reginald Webster's Amberoid was next at 6-1.

Shoemaker, beginning to grey a little at 34, will be starting in his 15th Derby, more than any other active rider. The retired Eddie Arcaro holds the all-time record with 21 appearances and six winners.

Shoemaker has won three times, including last year with Lucky Debonair.

RECORD SET IN 1962

The last jockey to ride consecutive Derby winners was Jimmy Wingfield in 1901-02.

Still in doubt as Derby starters are Sean E Indian, with a bothersome leg scratch, and Blue Skyer.

"They just talked me into entering," trainer Jim Padgett said after he pulled a surprise and made Blue Skyer the last entry in the box.

Padgett, sounding very doubtful, said Ray Broussard will be his jockey "if we really start."

Amberoid, due his final pre-Derby track appearance in a blowout today, drew the inside post position for the Derby, which had a 5:30 p.m. EDT post time. It will be televised by the CBC, starting at 5 p.m.

Stupendous goes from No. 2 while Kauai King starts in the 13th gate, next to Abe's Hope in No. 13. Abe's Hope also happened to be the 13th horse officially entered in the race Thursday.

"You want a demonstration? Jane, go back and have Bert make you up as an old lady."

NAESSENS SENTENCED

PARIS (Reuters) — Gaston Naessens, self-taught biologist who claimed to be able to cure leukemia, was sentenced in his absence Thursday to two years in prison and 10 years' loss of civil rights on charges of false pretences. Naessens, said by his lawyer to be doing cancer research in the United States, disappeared last October after an appeal court upheld an 18,000-franc (about $3,850) fine for illegal practice of medicine and pharmacy.

Allan Cup Opener

Miners Top Beavers 6-3

CALGARY (CP) — Drumheller Miners, paced by forward Ron Leopold, Thursday downed Sherbrooke Beavers 6-3 in the first game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup senior hockey final.

The Miners downed the defending champion Beavers on the strength of a big effort in the third period. The first was scoreless and the second ended in a 3-3 tie. A crowd of 1,530 watched the contest.

The Beavers' playing - coach Georges Roy said Calgary's 3,200-foot altitude above sea level tired his players and "we plan to bring in some oxygen to help us in the next game."

Drumheller coach Roy Kelly said his club was fired up and "hungry" because for several of them, this is their last season in the Alberta Senior League.

Leopold scored twice for the winners and Tony Kohlman, Sid Finney, Bill Voss and Owen Malley added singles.

Centre Jean-Pierre Mallette, despite having 10 stitches in a cut lower lip suffered in a first-period collision, led the Sherbrooke attack with two goals. Gilles Cartier scored the other Beavers goal.

Beaver goaltender Serge Aubry, backed by sterling defence work from Lionel Robidas, made 30 saves. Al Rollins stopped 25 shots for the Miners.

Second game is scheduled for Saturday.

Rod Gaudreault picked up a stray puck and slipped it across the Miners' goal. Rollins dived the wrong way and Cartier scooped the puck past him at 4:36.

Aubry held off the Miners with some sparkling saves, but at 13:37, Kohlman took a goalmouth relay from Bill McCulley and poked it under Aubry's leg.

Mallette, injured in a collision with Jack Rudichuk in the first period, returned midway through the second and drilled home a pass from Roy.

With three seconds remaining in the period, Harvey Linnell of the Miners belted a flaming shot from the blueline. Aubry dropped the twirling puck and Finney tipped it past him.

Pat Halas centred a pass to defenceman Ray Sawka. Aubry blocked the drive, but Malley drilled the rebound home at 9:34 of the third period.

Claude Cardin fired from over the blueline at a screened Rollins less than three minutes later and Mallette deflected it into the open side of the net.

Voss and Leopold retaliated with markers 56 seconds apart midway through the period and Leopold rounded out scoring at 18:43 with a six-foot drive.

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

No one can look at the social revolution that has been taking place in the United States in the last decade without recognizing the important part courts of justice have played in the struggle for human rights. With a courage that other institutions, including the churches, have not always shown, judges have handed down history-making decisions in which the constitutional rights of all citizens have been defined and upheld.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 8: "Justice Established in Judah," II Chronicles 17 through 20.

Equal justice under the law is not a luxury, but an absolute essential if democracy is to function In a recent speech to a group of high school leaders, Vice President, Hubert Humphrey is quoted by the newspapers as saying that "the key to survival is social justice for all men which carries with it respect for human dignity and the right of every individual to choose his own job, his own way of life, his own partners and friends."

Such freedom does not happen automatically. It must be protected from outside enemies who would destroy it, and be safeguarded from within by a system of law that prevents encroachment by those who would deny equal rights and opportunities to others.

PROGRAM OF DEFENCE AND JUSTICE

Jehoshaphat, king of Judah recognized these two needs for his kingdom, our lesson points out. Upon ascending the throne, he first provided a strong defence against possible outside enemies by building fortresses and storage cities, and establishing a large standing army. Having provided for the nation's defence, he turned his attention to establishing a system of judges in each city, warning them against any perversion of justice by showing partiality or taking bribes.

A court of appeal was set up in Jerusalem. Certain judges were appointed to deal with civil cases, such as those involving bloodshed. A special court of priests was established to try cases "in all matters of the Lord."

In this way Jehosaphat lived up to his name which means "Jehovah is Judge." Jehoshaphat knew that nothing is gained if men's rights and freedom are protected from invasion by an outside enemy, and then are eroded by a lack of justice at home. It would be ironic for the United States to defend the rights of free men in South Vietnam, then to deny equal protection under the law to some at home.

The foreign press often accuses the people of the United States of hypocrisy when, in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, they say, "with liberty and justice for all." No one would argue that the states have not arrived at this ideal state of affairs, but at least they are moving, however slowly, in that direction. Communism is going in exactly the opposite direction. Communism believes in what it calls justice for only one class of people. All other classes are to be liquidated. This is hardly justice for all. Americans believe that justice comes not through revolution, but through respect for the orderly processes of law.

The basis for true justice, as Jehoshophat knew, is the character of God. "You judge not for man but for the Lord," he reminded his judges. (II Chron. 19:6 RSV) God is the one who demands justice. Indeed, justice and mercy are His first requirements. "What does the Lord require of you?" asked the prophet Micah, "but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?" (Micah 6:8 RSV)

Jesus echoed this statement when He accused some of putting religious obligations ahead of the practice of justice. "You tithe mint and dill and cummin" He told them, "and have neglected the weightier matters of the law." (Matthew 23:23) What are those weightier matters of the law? "Justice and mercy and faith." These come first. In God's eyes, church attendance does not cancel out lack of justice and mercy in every day affairs.

It was inevitable that some should want to take advantage of Jehoshaphat's strength. Ahab, the king of Israel, was one of those. He sought Jehoshaphat's help in fighting a common enemy. Four hundred so - called prophets blessed the venture. Only Micaiah warned against it. (II Chron. 18:5, 16) Four hundred is one seemed a safe margin. But Micaiah was right. Ahab was killed in battle, and the voice of the lone dissenter was vindicated.

It is not enough to have courts of law. There must also be the voice of courageous prophets who dare to speak out against what seems to them contrary to the mind of God. Religious leaders must match the courage of the courts in calling for justice in our day.

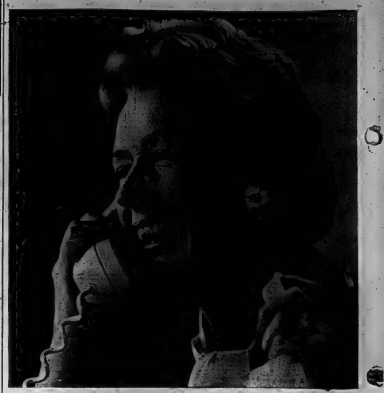
Twp. Taxes Up Average Of $30

PICTON (Staff) — North Marysburgh Township Council passed a bylaw this week which will increase taxes for North Marysburgh ratepayers an average of $30, or more this year. The 1966 rates are 54.77 mills for farm and residential, up 6.74 from last year, and 59.97 for commercial up 7.30 mills from last year.



A major reason for the increase is an increased requisition from the Prince Edward district high school board; also an increase in the public school levy and a $1,000 expenditure for a new township dump were also a major factor in the tax jump.

The township treasurer discovered a debt owing to the county which dated back several years and had to be paid back.

The total budget for the township this year will be $35,058 of which the levy will raise $81,-222.86. Last year's total budget was $90,252. Public and secondary schools total $40,397 of the total budget for the township this year.

Township auditors, revealed in their report that there had been a surplus in the public school board's budget of $15,000 from 1964 which had not been recorded. Councillors learned, however, that this money was being used to purchase a site for the new central school. The auditors also questioned the fact that the Marysburgh museum kept a separate bank account and noted there is no legislation to prevent this.

Many home owners desire a patio on which to enjoy their leisure hours. Their problem is that:

(a) They think the cost of this luxury is prohibitive or;

(b) They think the undertaking of such a project far exceeds their manual capabilities.

Now, thanks to Wilson Concrete Products Ltd.'s helpful hints, this desire can be fulfilled.

Start with the floor plan; taking into consideration where you plan your flowers, shrubs, etc. Preferably plan your patio where you have some shade. Plan as large a patio as possible. Nothing is more annoying than to have friends visit you and find yourself short of space. After deciding on the outside patio size, mark out the area, remove the sand and soil to a depth of 2" or 3". Refill this excavated area with fresh sand and rake level.

Begin to lay the slabs by starting at one corner nearest your house. Lay a rope parallel to the house level. The outside row in the other direction should be laid with a slight fall from the house for drainage. With your levels now set, fill in your patio area from the starting corner keeping levels the same. To complete your patio, sprinkle sand over the patio after all the slabs are laid and sweep sand into the joints of the slabs. Now your patio is ready to enjoy.

All material required in the laying of this patio can be purchased from Wilson Concrete Products Limited. Even the sand which you require can be purchased at $.75 per 100 lb. bag or $4.00 per ton. One ton minimum amount of bulk delivery. Sand is exempt from both Federal and Provincial Sales Taxes.

The staff of Wilson Concrete Products Limited is quite willing to help you in the planning of your patio. A patio is one of the finest additions to your property. It is fun to plan and when you have finished installing it, well just sit back, put up your feet and relax.

Chinese Communist Secretary Assails U.S.-Soviet "Holy Alliance"

TOKYO (AP)—A leading Chinese official has called for "a united world front to crush what he calls a U.S.-Soviet "holy alliance."

Tung Hsiao-pang, general secretary of the Chinese Communist party, said Friday night the U.S.S.R. and the United States are "rallying monsters of all kinds to knock together a counter - revolutionary 'holy alliance', in an attempt to isolate China, Albania, all Marxist-Leninist parties, all Marxist-Leninists and all revolutionary forces."

As a reaction to this, Tung said, China is forming an international front based on "the great unity of all the revolutionary peoples of the world. . . ."

Tung addressed a crowd of 10,000 gathered in Shanghai to honor visiting Albanian Premier Mehmet Shehu. The official New China news agency distributed the text of his speech today.

He urged a "fight to the finish" against the Soviet leadership and said there could be no compromise with it.

Tung's speech reflected a further toughening of the Chinese line both at home and abroad. It coincided with new purges of Chinese intellectuals and stepped - up attacks on the U.S.S.R., which is accused of selling out the Viet Nam war effort on behalf of the United States.

Hysni Kapo, of the Albanian Communist party politburo said the Soviets "are undermining the heroic struggle of the Vietnamese people behind the facade of 'aid', and are attempting to profit from it and strengthen Soviet - U.S. collaboration."

Tung reiterated China's readiness for war and described it as a weapon against imperialism.

"True Marxist - Leninists and thorough proletarian revolutionaries have no fear of war," he said. Both the Soviets and Americans use war "to intimidate the revolutionary people," he added, and the U.S.S.R. in particular "attempts to stamp out all revolutionary wars."

Maul Viet Cong In Two Days of Raging Battle

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command claimed today a total annihilation of a reinforced enemy battalion in two days of savage fighting in central Viet Nam.

A military spokesman said there was "precious little left" of more than 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops encountered 10 miles north of Bong Son and 280 miles northeast of Saigon in Operation Davy Crockett. The fighting has taken place near the coast along the South China Sea.

The spokesman said troops of the helicopter-lifted 1st Cavalry (Airmobile) Division killed the enemy soldiers Thursday and Friday.

A South Vietnamese spokesman reported that Vietnamese paratroopers and a reconnaissance unit who supported the American action killed 84 more. This raised the total enemy dead to 416.

News of the heavy ground fighting, the biggest action in three weeks, dominated a day which there were also these developments:

1. Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky declared he will remain a key figure in the Vietnamese government for at least another year.

2. The U.S. Air Force, in a delayed report, said its fighter-bombers had wrecked two spans of the Viet Bac Giang railroad and highway bridge 25 miles northeast of Hanoi.

3. Air Force B-52 bombers again bombed a suspected Viet Cong troop concentration near the Cambodian border, 75 miles northeast of Saigon. It was the seventh day in a row that the giant bombers rendered the Viet Cong stronghold to support U.S. 1st Infantry Division troops.

ENEMY FORCE RETREATS

The military spokesman said there had been no significant contact with the enemy since midnight Friday, indicating the remnants of the enemy force had fled.

The spokesman said 12 U.S. air sorties were flown in support of the action "and credited pilots with killing 85 of the Viet Cong.

"If the enemy force was a battalion as estimated at first," he said, "there is precious little of it left. Even if there were two enemy units, they were badly mauled."

He reported that the fighting was over mostly open terrain in an area about three miles square near Viet Nam's northsouth highway No. 1. Much of the action took place under drenching monsoon rains.

"I give up. What's so special about today?"

One in 7 Goof in Returns

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—One is seven Canadians made a goof in his income tax return this year, Revenue Minister Benson told the Commons Friday.

A big computer in Ottawa found 1,210,000 errors among 7,100,000 returns, the rejects were sent back to district taxation offices.

Opposition MPs, complaining about the complicated personal tax form, said it's a wonder the average was not higher.

"I feel we cannot simply go on and on putting more and more detail in tax forms which intelligent and thoughtful citizens have great difficulty in understanding," said Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton).

"I think they have become a statistician's nightmare."

Social Credit and Creditiste MPs also pressed Mr. Benson to simplify the form, but he made no promises.

Mr. Bell also wanted to know what right the revenue department had sending back uncertified cheques from employers for payment of regular income tax deductions.

The government insists on certified cheques when payments are made direct to Ottawa.

"The minister's duty accountant's duty is to see he is self-declaring," said Mr. Bell. ". . . The taxpayer, in my view, has the

Liberals Attempt Rebirth

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP) — Stock in the political doldrums for 28 years, Ontario's Liberal party attempts a rebirth at its latest reform image today via a three-point overhaul of its own constitution.

The party's annual meeting is to be asked to approve the establishment of a province-wide $5 membership fee; a greater voice for the rank-and-file in policy matters, and a leadership convention every two years of every general election.

Tentative approval to these measures was given by the party's constitution and party structure committee Friday, but ratification is needed by the party in plenary session. Little opposition is expected.

Liberals are aiming at vastly increasing their financial resources and at every ship through the establishment of 83 provincial memberships. The only existing Liberal card-carriers are at the riding level.

Charles Templeton, defeated Liberal leadership candidate, told the party Friday that, unless as it may sound, "we are back-and-doomed."

Ontario president Gordon Blair made a plea for year-round financial support, saying it was no longer sufficient to put on a splurge at election time.

NUMBERS MAY RISE

Allen Linden, chairman of the constitution and party structure committee, said the membership fee may allow the party to raise the numbers to perhaps 300,000 from the present 80,000 or 90,000.

The move to make the provincial Liberal leader subject to re-election every five years was defended with a slightly cloudy format: He must seek a vote of confidence within two years of a general election in Ontario.

The party has run through a succession of leaders since the liberal government was ousted by the Conservatives 23 years ago, never to regain power up to the present. The last was Andrew Thompson, who elected the fall of 1964 after the personal defeat of party leader John Wintermeyer in the 1963 election.

Mr. Thompson has no plans for seeking a vote of confidence at the current meeting.

The lead weight in the policy decisions, the party decided to make members of the provincial caucus answerable to the rank-and-file as to what action has been taken on resolutions submitted to the parliamentarians.

CONVICTED OF MURDERS — Ian Brady, 28, a stock clerk, was convicted of triple murder in Britain's "Bodies on the Moors" trial in Chester, England. Brady's mistress, Myra Hindley, 23, was found guilty of two murders. Both were sentenced to life imprisonment. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

Two Murderers Start Serving Life Sentences

CHESTER, England (Reuters)—A man and his mistress convicted of three grisly sex slayings known as "the moor murders" today began to serve their life sentences in separate prisons.

Ian Brady, a 28-year-old Scottish sex clerk, was found guilty Friday of murdering Edward Evans, 17, and two children, John Kilbride, 12, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10.

An all-male jury found Brady's mistress, 23 - year - old Myra Hindley, guilty of slaying young Evans and the Downey girl.

An hour after the sensational 14-day trial ended, a police convoy took the pair through a hostile crowd to a remand home near Warrington in Lancashire.

A squad of policemen tried to clear the jeering crowd back. Women broke through the cordon and hammered on the windows of the van carrying the killers. People shouted "hang them."

Brady and the platinum blonde Miss Hindley today were to be sent to separate prisons in the nearby Manchester area. The sentences on the pair came after the jury had deliberated for two hours and 22 minutes. When the verdict was declared, red-robed Judge Fenton Atkinson said: "These were three, calculated, cruel, cold-blooded murders."

He told the cdfen, impassive Brady: "In your case I pass the only sentence which the law now allows, which is three concurrent sentences of life imprisonment."

The death penalty for murder was abolished in Britain last year for a five-year trial period.

A spokesman for the home office—responsible for prison policy and administration—said last night the average length of a life sentence was until recently about nine years. But this had been outdated by the abolition of the death penalty, he added.

Brady and Miss Hindley were arrested after her 18-year-old brother - in - law, David Smith, told police of Evans' murder. Smith was the key prosecution witness during the trial in Chester Castle in this northern England city.

Testimony was that Brady battered Evans with it as blows, then strangled the youth in what was described as a deliberate execution of the art of murder.

Wall St. Seesaw Rebounds Friday

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week was jolted to the steepest weekly loss since the week immediately preceding the Black Monday crash of May 28, 1962.

The 1966 week was the worst on record.

If not for a surprise news blitz Friday that General Motors would resume normal operations at all its assembly plants Monday, this week would have ended far worse than the 1962 week.

Less than an hour before the close, the market was battered down to extremely sharp losses as averages. When the GM news came, stocks reversed themselves and the Dow Jones industrial average ended the day with a rise of 3.06 instead of the loss of 10.41 it showed an hour earlier. The ticker tape ran 23 minutes late Friday, the biggest delay in the newly-improved ticker since it was installed on Dec. 1, 1964.

Volume of 48,021,680 shares also was compared with the 2,800,000 the previous week. It was the largest since the record-breaking 60,328,830 shares on the week ended April 16.

Analysts agreed that statements by GM officials and other officials did much to create a pall of uncertainty over Wall Street. These statements having to do with the anti-inflation drive and the question of possible tax increases in the United States, seemed to pose a threat to the business and financial community.

The market had one of its steepest drops on Thursday in response to a statement by Gardner Ackley, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, questioning whether further profits rise is in the national interest.

Chairman William McCheny Martin of the Federal Reserve Board used the occasion of the Thursday retreat after he proposed a "simple, clean-cut, across - the - board increase in taxes."

The decline that day had a double-barrelled explosive. The market was rising a little when news came that GM had cut back production at four auto assembly plants."

News that GM, the world's largest manufacturer, will resume full operations Monday had the opposite effect, rescuing prices from a dizzy decline.

24 Degrees Lowest Ever Recorded Here

Farmers and fishermen were both crying this morning — and their tears were in danger of turning to ice.

Overnight temperatures throughout the province broke records for May — and those here were amongst the lowest.

It was 24 degrees here — and also 24 at Trenton where the previous record low, set in 1904, was seven degrees higher, 31.

Lowest temperatures reported in the province was 15 degrees, at Earlton, Highest was 33 at Windsor, but this was also a record low, one degree below that previous May mark of 34.

Quinte district residents had double reason for grief. This region is the site of the chief vegetable and fruit growing areas of the province, and such crops are very susceptible to damage by low temperatures at this time of year.

And Saturday was the opening day for the pickerel season in Quinte waters and in Prince Edward County.

The fishermen were out — but even this hardy breed suffered casualties.

At the CPR railroad bridge at 8:30 a.m. only three boats and one lone river-bank angler were in evidence. Most opening days the areas is se thick with boats as a naval base when the fleet is in.

Unkindest cut of all was delivered by Mr. William Archbold, of Christchurch, New Zealand, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sargent, R. R. 5, Belleville. As they listened to the furnaces click on and off regularly and rapidly Friday evening, Mr. Archbold observed central heating was unnecessary in New Zealand's temperature climate, "but, of course, this is your winter."

And Saturday was the opening day for the pickerel season in Quinte waters and in Prince Edward County.

The 23-degree overnight temperature recorded at Toronto International Airport was well below the record of 33 degrees established for the month on May 10, 1947.

Ottawa recorded an overnight low temperature of 27, three degrees below the previous record set in 1928.

Ottawa's overnight low was 23, eclipsing the previous 28-degree record set in 1900.

It was 19 degrees in North Bay where the previous overnight low record of 34 was set in 1956. 21 degrees in Sudbury where the record of 29 was established in 1928, and 16 in White River.

FISHERMEN SPREAD OUT

The cold weather was believed only partially to blame for the failed to the number of fishermen trying their luck in the mouth of the Moira River. The fact that a local fishing derby has branched out this year, taking in East Lake, West Lake, Hay Bay, Consecon Bay and Lake Ontario as well as the Bay of Quinte also had something to do with the limited number of anglers here. The increase in the number of locations resulted in a split of the derby entries.

Last year, as many as 35 boats were on the water in the mouth of the river during the first hours of opening day. This morning, the number of boats in the area was 10. And only four were sticking with it by 9:30 a.m., with no catches reported.

Reports from early spring grass crops was being shown by farmers at Belleville Market this morning. One farmer said it depended on how far along crops like alfalfa and clover had progressed.

"If those crops are peeking through, then last night's frost got them . . . they're gone," he said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Skies are clear everywhere. The extreme cold is expected to persist over the Maritimes as a high pressure ridge drifts eastward across the area. A disturbance is expected to move through the Ohio Valley Sunday and may cause cloudiness in southwestern Ontario.

Castro Faces Financial Squeeze in Sugar Slump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro apparently faces a financial squeeze this year from a slump in his country's No. 1 money crop, sugar.

Castro acknowledged in a speech this week that Cuba's 1966 sugar harvest will fall to reach 5,000,000 tons, 1,000,000 tons less than the 1965 crop. The goal this year was 6,500,000 tons.

Castro blamed the reverse on a bad drought.

But Washington analysts, who often disagree with Castro, credit Havana's setback to Communist mismanagement along with the lack of rainfall. They note, too, that world sugar prices have plunged from around 12 cents a pound in late 1963 to some 2½ cents a pound now.

What happens in sugar is generally regarded as the most important barometer of the island's economy, long devoted to sugar. Soviet aid to Cuba and the U.S. trade embargo on it have only partial effect.

The Soviet Union is reported to be assisting Cuba with more than $200,000,000 a year, but Washington observers doubt the Kremlin is likely to boost this by the time Castro's fraying relations with Moscow. The Havana revolutionary is outspokenly at odds with China.

One guess here is that Cuba will cut back some of its 1966 shipments to the Soviets in order to maintain sales to non-Communist countries. Each million tons of Cuban sugar bought by non - Communist nations could put some $55,000,000 in foreign exchange into Havana's nearly empty coffers.

Dispute Votes in Six Boxes In Selma's Sheriff Primary

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Sheriff Jim Clark, saying "the United States overcame for free elections in Viet Nam, but denies them in Alabama," has launched another attack in his bid to keep from being unseated.

The segregationist sheriff called Friday on the Dallas County Democratic executive committee to rule he received more votes than Sheriff-elect Tuesday's race for the Democratic nomination for sheriff.

It was the latest step in the legal battle over the race which began with Clark's challenge of six ballot boxes containing ballots which the U.S. Justice Department contends gave the nomination to Baker.

Clark, who became a segregationist symbol last year during racial demonstrations in his Dallas County, was [illegible] announcement he had with Baker, then safety director of Selma.

Clark himself followed a policy of mass arrests of demonstrators. Baker supported a more moderate course.

The Justice department entered the election fight Thursday with a petition in federal court seeking an order that the disputed ballots be counted.

The petition contains that some 1,700 votes in the boxes make Baker the nominee.

U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., in an order Friday, demanded the Dallas County Democratic executive committee appear at a hearing in Selma May 18 to show cause why the ballots should not be counted, and Baker declared the winner.

Shortly afterward came the announcement he had asked the county committee to declare him the recipient of most of the legal votes cast, coupled with a charge that there were "many, many irregularities" in the primary nominating election.

He also criticized what he contended was increased federal interference and U.S. Attorney - General John Doar, whose department is the justice department's bid to get those contested votes tallied.

"This is still Alabama," Clark contended, "sets for how ballots are to be cast and the duties of the election officials, and I am sure that if these same boxes had disclosed a majority for me, federal officers would have contested their boxes."

Federal poll watchers were on duty in Dallas County during Tuesday's primary voting.

U.S. Auto Firms Admit Defects Found in Thousands of Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. auto industry promised to do better after disclosing Friday that shortcomings, ranging from major fire hazards to misplaced ash tray lights, had been found in thousands of cars since 1960.

General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors admitted detailed reports to a House of Representatives committee indicating that one of every five cars built during the past six years had been involved in a check of possible defects.

The auto makers, in letters trying over the statistics, stressed that many of the defects did not involve safety.

Senator Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, who is investigating auto safety, had asked the four auto firms to supply his subcommittee with a list of "product defects and deficiencies found in the 47,000,000 cars built since 1960."

He said the company reports:

"In the last six years, 8,700,225 cars have been involved in so-called recall campaigns . . . that is, six years, 18.5 per cent of the cars have been defective in some respects. It should be clear that many of the defects were not safety related."

Ribicoff said James M. Roche, president of GM, disagreed with him Friday. He quoted Roche as saying that safety questions were not responsible for an April drop in sales or for limited production cutbacks in four GM assembly plants this week.

In Detroit, GM announced Friday all 23 of its auto assembly plants will be in operation Monday, adding that at least one plant is scheduled for a second shift.

A capsule summary of the four suit firms' reports to Ribicoff showed:

In seven model" years, GM has had 71 recall campaigns which involved 4,800,000 of its 25,000,000 cars it built in that period. Many of the items were minor. One of the items included was the carburetor hazard from [illegible] carburetor ad-Justment in the 1960 Oldsmobile.

Ford listed 184 recall campaigns. Its suply list of cadBack items included some cases of defective brakes, power hoods, tires or ignition that could cause safety problems.

The firm started last week a campaign to recall 182,000 of its 1966 Dodge, Coronets and Belvedere because of loose nuts in the front suspension assembly.

AMC said that in one of its most recent cases in October, 1965, it had telephoned dealers warning of a defect in the steering wheels of 5,970 Ramblers. It said all the cars were located and the defect was confirmed and corrected in 5,871 cars.

Flying Officer Grant McCaw recently received his commission at Canadian Forces Base, Summerside, P.E.I. He is the son of Mrs. Marjorie McCaw of Belleville, Ont.

Market Small Due to Cold

Cold weather reduced the number of vendors on the local market here today.

First of the new combined with the last of the old to make up the slim offerings, rhubarb and green onions represented the new crop, at 15 cents a bunch for rhubarb and 10 cents for onions.

Maple syrup was still offered, at $6 to $6.50 a gallon.

The old crop included potatoes, at 75 cents for six quarts, carrots, at 50 cents a small basket, turnips at 10 to 15 cents each and apples 75 cents a six-quart basket for McIntosh, 80 cents for Spys and 90 cents for Delicious.

Scouts Need French-English Closer Ties

OTTAWA (CP)—A closer relationship and understanding between English- and French-speaking scouts is "perhaps the most pressing need" in the Canadian movement, Lt. Gen. Howard D. Graham, president of the Boy Scouts of Canada, said Friday.

Arrangements will be made final soon for liaison and exchange of plans, information and ideas between the two scout groups, he told the 52nd annual national scout meeting here.

Lt.-Gen. Graham said centennial year next year will be one of the busiest the movement has ever experienced.

About 1,500 scouts and leaders will attend the 12th world jamboree at Farragut State Park, Idaho, more scouts will be on a centennial interprovincial camp-out, scouts will operate graves of the Fathers of Confederation, repeating a 1927 ceremony; and Sir Charles Maclean, Commonwealth chief scout, will make his first coast to coast official visit.

He voiced concern that the national headquarters building fund deficit of $136,969 is not being cleared fast enough.

Belleville Man Injured At Stirling

A level crossing accident this morning in Stirling sent a Belleville man to hospital with undetermined injuries.

Joe Goguen, 29, of 15 Harriet Street, Belleville was driving a small van-type vehicle across the CNR tracks in Stirling's north end when it was struck by a train about 8 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Goguen, the only occupant of the van, was thrown from the vehicle by the impact. He was rushed by City Ambulance Service to Belleville General Hospital, where his doctor reported him to be suffering multiple abrasions, and several possible broken bones.

IN MEMORIAM

REID — In loving memory of my dear mother, Edith Reid, who passed away May 8, 1964.
Oft when I think of you, dear mother,
And our hearts are filled with pain,
We wish that you could be in heaven,
Could we hear your voice again.
Your hands have rarely been idle,
But still we don't forget
The many things that loved you best,
Your memory lingers yet.
Never forgotten by son Raymond, Susan, Larry and Mark.

MARACLE — In loving memory of our dear mother, Gladys Smith, who passed away May 8, 1964.
Mother dear, you left us one day,
Your work was done, our hearts are sore
As years go by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by daughter Joyce and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear sister, Gladys Smith, who passed away May 8, 1964.
Quietly and suddenly came the call,
Sister, dear, was surprised to all.
Dearer to memory than words can tell,
Is the memory of a sister we loved so well.
Sadly missed by sister Kate and brother-in-law Jim Taylor and family, also brother-in-law Orval Smith and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear mother, Gladys Smith, who passed away May 8, 1964.
No one can fill your vacant place,
Memories linger with a smile,
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why some things have to be,
In His wisdom God has planned,
Nothing my power to see.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Marjorie.

WRIGHT, Ethel M. — In memory of my dear wife and grandmother who passed away May 7, 1964.
What is sweeter than a mother
All loving this world may send
But when I lost my darling mother,
I lost my dearest friend.
Sadly missed by daughter Mildred, son-in-law Harold Mitchell, Barb, Laura.

LINTOTT, William George — In loving memory of our dear dad, who passed away May 7, 1964.
Ten years have gone since that sad day,
When God saw he loved you most
So took him home — it was His will.
But in ours he liveth still.
Lovingly remembered by son Percy, Dot and family.

MARACLE — In loving memory of a very dear father, Jack Maracle, who passed away May 8, 1962.
Three lonely years have now gone by,
Dad,
Each day my thoughts I do not try,
God took you home, He had to have you,
He eased your pain, but broke my heart.
It's not the tears I shed at the grave,
It's not a heart that was broken,
It's the quiet tears in the after
That are used for words left unspoken.
As days turn to weeks, and weeks to years,
Dear Dad, I'll wander with quiet tears,
For memories like the stars that shine,
Made to last till the end of time.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Gladys and son-in-law Glenn.

REVELL — In loving memory of my dear husband Edwin (Ted) Revell, who passed away May 8, 1963.
Alone I never walk the way
Each day I spend with you,
But sometimes in the silence,
I imagine he is here.
No companion for so many years,
No one to share my joys and fears,
And yet, in some mysterious way,
He keeps me company.
Or for a touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.
Sadly missed and remembered by your wife Lillian Jean.

REVELL — In loving memory of my dear father, Edwin (Ted) Revell, who passed away May 8, 1963.
Dad is in hope, I prayed in vain,
For God to make him well again,
My heart is sore as I write these few lines,
I watched him die with a broken heart.
Every day I sadly miss him,
Deeply do I feel my loss,
Lonely is my home without him,
Held me God to bear my cross.
Sadly missed and always remembered by his daughter Vera and son-in-law Glenn.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear mother, Gladys Smith, who passed away May 8, 1964.
Yesterday, sweet memories, like jewels I hold,
Are in my mind, locked safe for always.
A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the greatest mother, the world has ever known.
Happy memories, fond and true,
From us who thought the world of you.
—Always remembered by son Harold, daughter-in-law Shirley and family.

When you are as active as Mrs. Arbuckle you really appreciate electric heating

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth F. Arbuckle live in an electrically heated home in Oshawa. Recently, the Arbuckles were interviewed to discover their feelings about electric heating. Here are their comments:

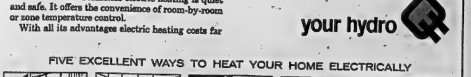
"We definitely notice a difference in the cleanliness with electric heating. Of course we still get a little dust, but I think it's due to the fact that we have a lot of broadloom—you get fluff off that. We don't get any greasy dirt.

"Electric heating has certainly made housecleaning easier. I vacuum the broadloom, wash the tile floors and that's about all there is to do.

"I'd recommend electric heating for any new home."

Families throughout Ontario share the Arbuckle's feelings. However, there is more to electric heating than cleanliness. Flameless electric heating is quiet and safe. It offers the convenience of room-by-room or zone temperature control.

With all its advantages electric heating costs far less than you may think. No wonder so many people are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience and economy they want in a heating system.



LOOK FOR THE TRIPLE SEAL OF QUALITY— THE STRONGEST GUARANTEE A HEATING SYSTEM CAN HAVE

The Triple Seal of Quality is a three-fold guarantee backed by the manufacturer of the heating equipment, the contractor who installed it, and the Electric Heating Association of Ontario who ensure that the system is correctly designed and the house adequately insulated.

For full information about electric heating, consult a qualified electric heating contractor, or your Hydro.

FIVE EXCELLENT WAYS TO HEAT YOUR HOME ELECTRICALLY

Baseboard units save space, permit room-by-room temperature control. Radiant or hot water types available.

Radiant ceiling heat: concealed within ceiling. Each room's temperature can be individually controlled.

The Economic Scene

Canada's economic dependence on the United States is very real. Whether we like it or not the success or failure of the United States, in all its multitudinous dealings around the globe, affects the fiscal and trading pulse of this nation and others.

In other words, we cannot survive, or at least function in the affluent manner to which we have become accustomed, without the unceasing and energetic efforts of the vast system of individual and corporate enterprise that is the United States.

The problem is to strike a balance. This is a problem that affects every Canadian and certainly every government that rules in the land. Canada does manage to maintain a fair degree of trading independence in that it buys and sells from areas of the world shunned by Washington. Nevertheless, there still remains a large proportion of the Canadian economy which lies under U.S. control.

This is the thought behind what Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp calls an economic manifesto for strengthening Canada's independence. Its provisions have already been listed, and include such measures as reducing the country's dependence on massive foreign capital and the encouragement of Canadian-owned international companies.

Significantly, Mr. Sharp's manifesto also calls for the avoidance of any trade or customs union with the United States. Lately, Opposition spokesmen have been critical of the government's policy of "continentalism," saying that it is strengthening U.S. control over the Canadian economy.

At the same time Mr. Sharp says he is strongly opposed to discriminatory measures intended to favor Canadian companies over foreign-owned subsidiaries. He said tax law can be used to "Canadianize" foreign subsidiaries within limits.

This is the part of wisdom, and is in sharp contrast to Walter Gordon's call for the reinstatement of the tax on foreign takeovers of Canadian companies which was withdrawn from the 1963 budget.

Mr. Gordon's suggestion is surprising, in view of the furore its introduction raised in 1963, yet the former federal finance minister makes this and other suggestions in a book, A Choice for Canada, to be published today.

The Globe and Mail describes some of Mr. Gordon's proposals as "likely to be more controversial than the most contentious measures introduced by Mr. Gordon during his term as finance minister from 1963 to 1965."

Many of his proposals, however, are similar to those proposed by Mr. Sharp, and have the same fundamental objective — the reversal of the trend toward foreign (meaning the United States, for the most part) control of the Canadian economy.

The Spencer Case

Now that the RCMP's dossier on George Victor Spencer has been revealed it is clear the one-time Vancouver postal clerk was very active in supplying vital information to the Soviet authorities in Canada.

Assistant Commissioner W. H. Kelly's report on Spencer is in the best traditions of counter espionage. It is indicative of the fact that no scrap of information is too insignificant in the fascinating and often dangerous game of espionage.

Spencer is reported to have supplied photos and information to the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa that could have been used for industrial sabotage or a projected clandestine espionage centre near the Canada-United States border in British Columbia.

Spencer seems to have been extraordinarily naive about the whole business. In his statement to the RCMP last May he maintained: "I could not see that everything I had done was of a subversive character." But he also said that after the third of seven trips he made to Ottawa to deliver information to the embassy, he suspected he "was maybe being used as an agent."

Espionage thus is at its best and most efficient when it provides a country which is a potential enemy with precise information on the entire spectrum of life in other lands. It also furnishes information on people, and there have been many instances of late in which the Soviets have shown an avid thirst for such information for the purposes of blackmail.

In espionage there are no half measures. A recent report on the activities of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency referred to a woman member of the CIA staff whose sole task is to find out all she can about President Sukarno of Indonesia. "And I mean everything," a CIA spokesman was quoted as saying.

As far as Canada is concerned, it has been proved often enough in the postwar years that it is a prime target of Soviet espionage activities. Who knows how many Soviet agents are abroad in this country. One thing is clear, the RCMP is maintaining a strict watch on such activities. It is also clear that Ottawa is not the quiet capital city it is often painted as being.

Ottawa Offbeat

Joe Greene Can Be Folksy As Well as Diplomatic

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — No, the not-so-green John Joseph Greene, freshman Agriculture Minister, isn't one of those mentally trying on Prime Minister Pearson's Liberal Leadership shoes.

Not officially.

At least not just yet.

But those headlines and speculative items Joe Greene-style folk tales aren't going to hurt when the time does come for that jockeying-for-position.

While the other, more openly-avowed candidates such as Trade Minister Winters, Defence Minister Hellyer and Finance Minister Sharp labor mightily to burnish their public images, Joe-Joe just sits there in the Commons, passing himself off, outrageously, as a backwoodsy from the Upper Ottawa Valley — when, in fact, he's a city slicker from Toronto — telling tales from up Arnprior way.

To give it the authentic Ottawa Valley old "folk" touch, he even speaks of Arnprior as the "Prior."

When Joe-Joe finds himself in a bit of a crunch where he's about anything he might say could land him in the soup — and so in the Prime Minister's already bulging bad books — he plays it safe and simply quotes something "the old folks up the Valley" have said in their wisdom.

Like the other night when he was making "a talk" — not a speech — as he carefully calls it, at Delhi, in the very heart of Canada's richly productive tobacco country.

WITH CAUTION

This is the part of Ontario where they must have felt like saying the only get votes by coming to her when State Secretary Judy LaMarsh began putting on those tear-jerking TV days as Health Minister after swearing off cigarettes as an unhealthy habit. And the Greeks started looking for another Helen of Troy in an election 2300,016 of 344,302 votes cast for Prince Alfred of Saxe-Coburg, who was lonely, and the Americans, who are eventually given to a Danish princess who became King Christian X of the Hellenes in 1863.

Of course, 200 people were drowned in the wreck of the Schiller, on the Scilly Isles.

Even Canada's aviators — Nungesser and Coli took off from France to fly to North America and were never seen again.

Today in History

Greece was officially proclaimed an independent state 1,836 months 134 years ago today — in 1832 — and King Ludwig I of Bavaria scrapped the throne on behalf of his 17-year-old son Otto. The young king was popular with the Greeks, except so far as he was under Bavarian influence, but lost British support when it took Russia's part in the Crimean War. Otto grew more autocratic and the Greeks started looking for another king. In an election 230,016 of 344,302 votes cast for Prince Alfred of Saxe-Coburg, who was lonely, and the Americans eventually given to a Danish princess who became King Christian X of the Hellenes in 1863.

Makes His Own Soap

Windsor Star

An observant woman at the Windsor market recently noted a man purchasing a large amount of lye. She wondered why, and then remembered her girlhood on an Ontario farm. "Are you going to make soap?" she asked. She was right. That's just what he was going to do.

Nowadays housewives have a wide selection of boughten soaps and detergents available, each one supposed to be better than the other, and to make clothes whiter than white, be easier on the hands, etc, etc.

Few remember the homemade soap of earlier days. The making of it followed the killing of a beast, so to have the fat available. Other ingredients included lye and wood ashes. They were mixed in a large tub with due care that none of the lye got into the eye or burned the flesh.

The result was in two forms. One was a thick brown liquid, called soft soap. It was used mainly for the scrubbing of floors, etc. The other was hard soap, cut into chunks of appropriate size for the washing of clothes and hands.

It is curious, in light of claims of modern soaps and detergents, that housewives could get their linens and other clothes quite white with this primitive sort of soap. They did so even though they had to do the washing by hand, with the old scrub-board and tub. The bleaching was done by hanging the clothes out in the clean sunlight, summer or winter.

It is interesting that at least one man in modern Windsor has confidence in the old-time soap and knows how to make it. He probably finds it economical too. It may be Canada's way of trying to beat inflation.

Film Sparks Controversy

Peterborough Examiner

Although the prospect must be distasteful to thoughtful persons it is highly likely that the suggestion of Rt. Rev. R. J. Webster, Catholic Bishop of Peterborough, regarding a group dedicated to movie censorship, will find some support. Bishop Webster has suggested that the Parent-Teacher Association form a film group that would "get some criteria for estimating the value of movie films and find ways of expressing themselves about the form of entertainment." This is apparently motivated by complaints about the award-winning movie Darling.

The Roman Catholic church has always been a pack leader in movie censorship, in the conviction that individual morality can be outwardly imposed. The cautious wording of the statement aside, there can be no doubt that what is being suggested here is a back-door attempt to extend to all people the sort of censorship which the Catholic hierarchy imposes on themselves, at the behest of the church.

It is bad enough that we are afflicted with a provincial film censorship board. Perhaps the best way to assure that this populace at large is not further afflicted by self-appointed arbiters of morality is to support the cavilings. This will not be easy because it is never easy for massive people to swallow the pill of moralistic condescension. On the brighter side, however, perhaps an unfavorable reaction from the proposed P.T.A. film group can come to have the same impact as the banning of books in Boston — assurance of wide attention.

Hot Seat

Ottawa Journal

At the dedication of a new postage stamp in honor of Albert Einstein, at Princeton, N.J., the scientist's explanation of relativity was recalled: "When a man sits with a pretty girl for an hour it seems like a minute. But let him sit on a hot stove for a minute, and it is a lot longer than an hour. That's relativity."

New Parents Need To Learn About Babies

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a one-year-old boy who, I admit, gets too much attention. He is our first child.

My husband feels that he should be trained early to be a "good boy." Whenever the baby starts fussing for no special reason he scolds and tells him to shut up. The baby cries even more and it becomes an endless scene.

I think my husband is wrong. It would be better to ignore the child and I am afraid he will grow up to be afraid of his father and eventually turn against him. Is it reasonable to scold a one-year-old and what good does it do? — Constant Reader

A great deal is known about bringing up babies — but each new parent has to learn it all over again.

At a year, a baby doesn't understand the words or meaning of a scolding, but he understands the tone of voice and senses the attitude. When he is told to "shut up" and he just yells louder, it may be his way of saying, "You shut up, too!"

Or it may be a way of trying to say, "I'm restless and I'm tired and I'm bored and why doesn't somebody do something for me?"

Babies need to be with people (parents, brothers and sisters if any) some of the time. They also need to be alone some of the time. Sometimes a fussy baby needs only to be put to bed for a nap or some rest. Often he needs only to be put in his play pen for another hour, to relax from the stimulation and pressure of the big world around him.

Of course you have to say "No" at times to a baby. That's how an infant learns. It he gets into a kitchen cupboard and starts hauling out all the pots and pans, he has to be stopped — but but him have an old pan to hammer on, if he wants to.

An important part of keeping a one-year-old happy is regularity of living habits: eating, napping, bedtime. He learns what to expect. He learns to adjust. He learns that fussing and whining won't change the routine of his life.

He learns by absorbing simple facts: If he raises a boilerplate trying to get attention, he finds himself in his room or his playpen. He begins to realize that life's like that!

But it need not be shouted at, told to "shut up," or to "be a good, good, good baby" either.

Keep things calm. Keep them simple. Keep them definite. Do not expect a baby to understand why he shouldn't cry or fuss when he feels like it — but let him learn that he doesn't get his own way by fussing.

Remember that at the age of a year, a baby had only 12 months to begin learning about the world.

Dear Dr. Molner: This may seem like a small problem but it is nerve-wracking to me. I have a large amount of hair growth inside my nose. I rub my nose constantly and it becomes irritated. Is there any way the hair can be removed other than cutting it? — Mrs. H. B. L.

My first answer is that it is best to keep the hair cut. I don't know of any satisfactory alternative. My second, thought and I think it might be important, is that some irritant other than the hair may be bothering you: Cosmetics, perfume, powder or some other factor in your environment.

• • •

Mrs. A. B. K.: The cause of polyps is not known; however, some individuals seem more likely to have them. The best answer is to keep on having them removed if (a) they are in an accessible location, by which I primarily mean the bowel; or if (b) they are a nuisance, interfering with breathing, sinus drainage, etc.

N.Y. Broadens Divorce Laws

Hamilton Spectator

Now that New York State has passed a highly controversial new law broadening grounds for divorce, perhaps Canada will finally do something constructive about its uncivilized approach.

Ever since Confederation, adultery has been the only grounds for divorce in this country.

The New York law's grounds for divorce now include cruelty and inhuman treatment, desertion after two years, imprisonment for more than three years, and homosexuality. In addition, a marriage may now be officially dissolved if the partners have lived apart for two years after first obtaining a court separation decree.

The change in the antiquated New York law are similar to those recently recommended by the Ontario section of the Canadian Bar Association.

Thanks to New York's example, Canada may now presshead. Already Senator Arthur Roebuck has suggested that Parliament may at last act. In fact, he said, a joint Commons-Senate committee may actually soon recommend even wider changes than those enacted by New York.

It is now up to respectable groups to have their say. Ontario's government, too, should take a definite stand in favor of widening grounds for divorce. If Parliament knows that the country is lined up in favor of a sensible and humane law, it may do something constructive. Otherwise, it will, with its usual timidity, keep still.

To continue to malign Ottawa into action is no longer the proper or feasible strategy. A hard push is what is needed.

Pressure Can Heat Hazard

Brockville Recorder and Times

"Caution: Never puncture or throw container in fire. Never leave container where temperature will exceed 120 degrees Fahrenheit."

Thus reads the warning printed on all the new pressurized spray cans that are finding their way with increasing frequency into the home. From toothpaste to paint, more and more products are being put into cans where, under pressure, a liquid can be sprayed in a fine mist to touch up a scratched enamel kitchen appliance, wax a table or kill a fly. But these handy cans can hurt more than a fly. A friend of ours who lives outside the city limits and thus escapes the municipal garbage collection service, once a week carries a plastic bag of garbage and trash to a municipal dump.

On a recent tour to the dump, he pushed a can of spray, cut to toss his bright green bag of debris in with the piles of other refuse there.

He had no sooner left his car than this possible became the probable. A discarded pressure can in burning rubbish exploded, sending flying its cover over the head of the innocent bystander. The airborne debris barely missed the man and landed dangerously near his car parked 30 feet from the smouldering rubbish.

Living Conditions, Do Vary In Mexico's Many 'Colonies'

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Q. "We have for many years wanted to go to Mexico for several months, but never knew how to make a contact for an apartment (eating out is too costly for people our age). In your article on Mexico we noticed houses or apartments can be had with servants for $180.00 a month. How does one make arrangements?" — Mr. and Mrs. J. B., Miami.

A. All areas of Mexico that have North American colonies (and there are many of them: Cuernavaca, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan, Lower California, Guadalajara, Ajijic, Morelia, Zacatecas) fervently have real estate agents, invariably North Americans who cater so much needs.

But we can't think of a less safe place than varied Mexico to rent a house or apartment sight unseen, let alone choose an area to stay a while sight unseen.

Most thoughtful visitors pick likely places, check into a hotel for a few days (Mexican hotels still are mercifully cheap, even good ones), and investigate possibilities with the real estate agent.

Not only does each community in Mexico differ considerably, but the living conditions do too. Ajijic and Puerto Vallarta are still relatively undiscovered by the hoi polloi. Acapulco, Mexico City and Guadalajara are more modern and Yankee. You should give careful consideration to where you may want to spend your time.

ARE CONCERNED

Q. "We are about to embark on our first major cruise and would appreciate a word from you concerning a matter which has given us some apprehension.

"Our cruise was arranged by a small travel bureau, not in our city. While I have no reason to doubt the integrity or financial stability of this bureau, I have no basis for unlimited confidence in it either.

"About 60 days before embarkation I am expected to pay this agency more than $4,000 as final payment for our accommodations. About 10 days or 2 weeks after that I am supposed to receive the tickets, which will be the first evidence that our passage has been secured. During the period from final payment to receipt of the tickets my investment in this adventure is in the hands of a relatively unknown company.

"Several weeks ago I wrote to the steamship company asking them to authorize payment to the travel agency as their representative but have had no reply.

"Because of the services the agency has rendered I feel that they are entitled to the commission which they would lose if payment is made directly to the steamship line.

"Is my concern in this matter unreasonable? Do you have any suggestions as to how I may solve this problem in fairness to the agency, and with financial protection for myself?" — (Name and city withheld.)

A. First off, no one should invest that kind of money in a service without full knowledge of the reputation of the agent. If in doubt, you should have checked with the local Better Business Bureau, or taken your business to surer ground: the same cruise should be available from almost any agent, certainly by any well-established one.

Aside from that, however, you still do not necessarily have cause for concern. For one thing, no agent may claim to be a representative of a cruise line if he is not. And if he is bona fide, he is bonded.

STANDARD PROCEDURE

Advance payment before departure is standard procedure. Usually you pay a 25 percent deposit on your space, for which you receive a receipt in the company's (not just the agent's) name. When you pay the balance, the receipt is cashed in, if these procedures have been followed, everything should be all right.

It is both needless and futile for you to tow try to Purchase your ticket directly from the steamship company. They wouldn't accept the booking, and if they did there probably is no way in which the agent's commission can be garnered, unless you want to cover him yourself — certainly a needless waste of money.

Perhaps this is why the steamship company did not answer your letter. Many more of them are notorious for lax and old-fashioned customer-relations policies.

Q. "Is it true that you may buy any hotel anywhere as a mailing address, even if you're not planning to stay there on your trip?" — A. J. Palo Alto, Calif.

A. Normally, yes, though some states require resorts may conceivably not be liable for this courtesy and return mail privileges that have not holding reservations. Many hotels legerdemain travellers, to play it safe, that state in which a town from home, the local express office, as a mail drop. Make sure all mail, including that is sent to the hotels, is marked "Please hold for arrival" with the approximate date you expect to pick it up.

The magic castor of plated silver held six Sandwich glass bottles. Turn the knob and the doors swing open.

Opened Cathedral Doors Reveal Condiment Bottles

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Castor sets have been the delight of the housewife since the early nineteenth century. A rack of metal held bottles for vinegar, oil, mustard and other condiments. The castor set was placed in the centre of the table and passed when spices were needed.

The most dramatic type of castor was made in the United States was the magic castor in 1870. It was a large silver-plated cathedral-shaped container. When the top knob was turned, six doors opened in the side of the cathedral and passed the bottles of condiments. Other elaborate revolving castors were made, but they are very scarce.

Several readers have commented that a Hoosier cabinet was a brand name and not a type. It is true that the original Hoosier was made by the Hoosier Manufacturing Company of New Castle, Ind. As often happens brand names came to any of the many copies of the mean original product.

The antique collector today who wants a Hoosier cabinet will take any of the large, many drawered kitchen pieces made near the turn of the century, when the original Hoosier appeared.

Granny glasses are one of the latest teen-age fads. They are so far out the teen-ager feels they are camp. The first use of eye glasses was recorded in Marco Polo in 1270. Benjamin Franklin is said to have invented the bifocal lens before the American Revolution. Many pictures exist showing him wearing glasses.

Today's granny glasses are a copy of the type sold by peddlers after the Civil War. German-made glasses were sold in any one of five different strengths. If your eyes need the help of a magnifying lens, the glasses worked. Any other type of eye problem remained unsolved.

Q. During what period were pole screens popular?

A. A pole screen was placed in front of the fire to protect those sitting in front of the fire from direct heat. The design was first popular during the early 1700's. The legs of the pole screen were designed in a form popular for other furniture of the same period. Pole screens were used in England and America through the 1820's when they lost favor.

VON Said in No Danger Of Becoming Obsolete

OTTAWA (CP)—The Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada is in no danger of becoming obsolete even though changes in upon us with frightening rapidity," Health Minister Macdonald said Friday.

"There is still a place for the considerable body of professional nursing accumulated by the VON over the years," he told 300 delegates to the VON annual meeting.

He called the 68-year-old organization "as tough as granite and as unflappable as its formidable founder, Lady Aberdeen," wife of one of Canada's first governors-general.

New programs, such as medical care insurance, with consequent emphasis on home care services, offered a role for national voluntary organizations such as the VON.

MUST FACE PROBLEM

Joseph Jaffrey of London, the retiring VON president, said the problem of establishing support from the public at large must be faced.

The appeal in 1964 had fallen "considerably short of the objective which we had set."

Mr. Jaffrey, chairman of the board of directors of Canada Life Insurance and board member of several other large corporations, said:

"I believe I am qualified to suggest that general success in giving are increasingly showing reluctance to support worth charitable causes."

The 1964 appeal raised about $845,000 plus a $125,000 special donation to the pension fund. The directors decided that the only way to raise the necessary funds was an assessment of the branches.

FEES TO INCREASE

This would mean an increase of two cents on the charge made on each visit made by a branch nurse. The increase in the charge bringing it to between 10 and 15 cents, would go toward the budget of the head office in Ottawa.

Jean Leask, the order's director-in-chief, said there now are 710 nurses and other staff directly engaged in giving nursing care through VON.

Home visits totalled 1,300,000 last year, and were made to 30,000 homes. Cases were evenly divided between mothers-and-babies and medical and surgical patients.

She said five patients out of every ten were over 65 years old, and in some cases VON care enabled these patients to live independently. Three patients in 10 were between 15 and 65, and two in 10 were under 15.

Nurses Suggest Minimum Standards of Employment

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario nurses have approved suggested minimum standards of employment for registered nurses.

The standards were presented by the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario to the membership on the second day of their three-day annual meeting which opened Thursday.

Standards recommend a 35-hour work week, an annual vacation of three weeks and a biannual increments of five per cent of basic salary regardless of general salary increases.

The RNAO standards suggested that a nurse who moves to a new job be given one year's increment for every two years' experience in previous jobs. The delegates voted in favor also to recommend increments for every year of useful experience.

The recommended minimal salary scale for hospital nursing service ranges from $5,100 for a staff nurse in her first year, to $10,000 for an assistant director. Nurses with more than six years' experience and a master's degree.

CHRISTIAN CAREER TYPES

Dr. C. A. Roberts, associate professor of the department of psychiatry and school hygiene, University of Toronto, told the nurses people in the health field may be worrying too much about their careers and not enough about their patients.

"We are stressing formal education, supervision and clinical training almost as ends in themselves rather than as a means for improving patient care. Many financial incentives are in terms of more formal education and the further one is removed from patient care, the more likely one is to be recognized and paid."

Dr. Benjamin Schlesinger, associate professor of the school of social work, University of Toronto, said most people are frightened and anxious in hospital and often find more warmth in their contact with ward orderlies than with professionals.

Dorothy M. Smith, dean of the faculty of nursing at the University of Florida, said some nurses stand in the way of innovations which are scientific, theoretical side so students can be taught what to do and when.

ANSWER:

Sylvia you are wonderful! I know your kitchen description! I made pureed cream of bean soup, the recipe (see below) as I interpreted it, & so pleased that it is going into the "exceptionally good" file.

PUREED CREAM OF BEAN SOUP (adapted from Sylvia's ideas):

1 lb. white navy beans, 6 cups cold water, ½ lb. end of shank from smoked ham (or ham bone), 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 cups milk, 1 cup 18% cream, ¼ teaspoon celery salt.

Soak the beans overnight in cold water. In the morning drain them on to cook, simmering gently for 3 hours or until soft. Remove ham shank (or bone). Force beans through strong sieve. Cut any meat from shank, chop it and return to purée. Add also the salt, milk, cream and accent. Carefully reheat but be sure you do not scorch it. Serve with Croutons.

Cut 2 slices crust-on white or 60% whole wheat bread into ½" cubes. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in frying pan and toss bread and dry out these croutons in it, stirring.

Note: 1) These may be made in advance and allowed to dry out at room temperature. The crisper they are the better. 2) These croutons have a chefly touch and highly recommended by me.

Attend Rival Schools, Games Prove Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boy friend and I attend rival high schools. It isn't just ordinary, everyday rivalry, it's real bitter competition. Our schools really hate each other.

When Bobby's school plays an out-of-town game I always sit with him, and I cheer for his team. He does the same when my school plays an out-of-town school. But when Bobby's school plays my school we have real trouble deciding where to sit.

ANN LANDERS

Last year I sat with him but cheered for my own team. All the kids around made rude remarks, like, "Shut your mouth or go over where you belong." Last year Bobby sat with my school but he cheered for his team. Some of the kids who were sitting nearby threatened to do him bodily harm.

Please tell us how this problem should be handled. — NOT REALLY TRAITORS.

DEAR NOT REALLY: There are bound to be mixed emotions during these highly charged events. I believe the sensible way to handle the problem is to separate when your school plays his school. Each of you will be more comfortable if you sit with your classmates.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For 20 years I have been married to an unhappy man. He has always had a sour attitude toward life. He resents people who are cheerful and contented.

Although my husband has done many unkind things to hurt me, I have stayed married to him because he is basically a decent man. Our three children are turning out well and I'm sure I could not have done that by myself.

Three years ago I took up painting at my doctor's suggestion. It has been wonderful therapy for me and has led to a part-time job which I love. The job does not interfere with what I can do for my children since I leave for work after they go off to school and I am home before they return.

My husband insists that I quit the job. He says my first duty is to our home. I'm afraid that, like so many people who are unhappy, he can't bear to see anyone enjoy life. He liked it better when I was miserable and half sick.

I want desperately to keep this part-time job. But suddenly I feel drained of all my strength and I no longer have confidence in my own judgment. Please help me. — TIRED TIRED TIRED.

DEAR TIRED: Does your husband complain because the beds are unmade or the meals inadequate? Take inventory — and be honest.

If the house is not up to snuff, hire some help. But don't give up your part-time job! It has given you a feeling of achievement, dignity and personal worth and you must not lose it.

* * *

Confidential to SHALL I GIVE HIM A HAND?: No. Give him a foot, strategically placed. The man has been lying and sponging off decent people who trusted him. If you tolerate his presence another day each less set him up again — you are out of your ever-lovin' mind!

100-year Family Correspondence Leads to New Zealanders' Visit Here

A family correspondence, maintained over the generations, resulted in the meeting in Belleville this week of two fourth cousins who live 10,000 miles apart.

They are Mrs. Jack Sargent, curator of Hastings County Museum, and her fourth cousin, Mrs. William Archbold of Cheviot, North Canterbury, New Zealand. Both are great-great-granddaughters of George Levack and his wife, Catherine Rugg, of Caithness, Scotland.

Mrs. Archbold's grandmother, Margaret Jane Rose emigrated from Scotland to New Zealand about 1870. Mrs. Sargent's grandmother, Jessie Rose, had settled in Canada some time earlier. The two women began a trans-Pacific correspondence which was continued by succeeding generations until Mrs. Archbold and Mrs. Sargent met for the first time on Thursday.

Mrs. Archbold and her husband are on the first leg of a once-in-a-lifetime, round - the-world trip. Before they return home in four months time they will have travelled in Great Britain, Europe, and the Near and Far East. During the two days they were in the Quinte district, Mr. and Mrs. Archbold spent most of their time directly through the country-side to visit historic sites in the country's farms. Mrs. Archbold is an ardent gardener and is keenly interested in the work of her local historical society. Mr. Archbold owns a 1,800 acre sheep farm, second 70 miles from the city of Christchurch in the southern end of the two islands that make up New Zealand.

"In driving through your country, I noticed that the farms on the whole are not as prosperous as ours in New Zealand", Mr. Archbold said. "I was struck with the number of barns and stock-housing buildings. At home, where the temperature never drops below 22 degrees, and then only for a short time, we can leave the stock on pasture all year and never need to house them."

Mr. Archbold and his son care for a 100 head herd of Hereford beef cattle and 1,950 dual purpose Corriedale sheep. They keep a Shorthorn cow for milk and two saddle horses which they ride for sheep round-ups. About 250 acres of their farms can be cultivated and for this they hire heavy machinery and an operator from an agricultural contracting firm. They also hire help in the three men they hire in November, their mid-summer season, for shearing. Mr. Archbold's sheep produce 62 bales of wool, weighing 200 pounds each, each year. The wool for the New Zealand-developed Corriedale sheep is coarser than the Australian variety and a good deal of it is shipped to American carpet manufacturers.

"New Zealand farms produce more per acre than any other land, although England produces more per acre," Mr. Archbold said. "The difference I think we husband our natural resources more carefully than you do. In the past 14 years New Zealand has pioneered aerial farming of hilly country. Every farm has a small landing strip and we hire single-engine Piper aircraft to spread lime, fertilizer seed and superphosphate fertiliser over our rough pastures. Half the fertilizer used in New Zealand is spread this way. We found it has doubled and tripled the land's productivity."

NEW ZEALAND LAND HUNGRY

Mr. Archbold was a city-bred boy who turned to farming in his late 'teens. He couldn't do it today," he said. "Land prices are booming in New Zealand. Everybody is land - hungry. Costs are so high the average working man can't afford to own his own home and everyone is operating on hire-purchase, or the installment plan as it's called here."

"Our country is desperately short of foreign funds," he continued. "We are loaded in debt and more to America rather than to England. Most of our farm machinery is American made. Because we have as little foreign currency we have to wait as long as two years to get delivery of even a small Australian car, I have been struck, too, by the number of Scots in San Francisco, by the great number of big, modern motor cars on the highways."

"We New Zealanders are a lot like Canadians," Mr. Archbold added with a chuckle, "Always running ourselves down."

Mrs. Archbold, who runs a large Jerseys complex with running water, electricity and a freezer, has seen nothing in Canada to match her expectations. She would like to take back to New Zealand with her.

NEW ZEALANDERS

"TV dinners and cake mixes are new to me," she said, "but large supermarkets are going to be a catastrophe in our cities."

Before leaving Canada she plans to view modern art on display at Toronto's City Hall.

The home we have town and country art clubs for painters," she explained. "They serve both to foster art and to bring townspeople and farmers together."

As for the goosestrions-long family correspondence, it will continue. Mrs. Sargent and Mrs. Archbold have made plans for their tiny grandchildren to continue the family tradition, an inherited scheme for increasing international understanding and co-operation.

Working Mothers Need Day Care Programs, More Household Help

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—As everyone knows, invention is the necessity of Mother.

Woman—the resourceful sex—has always been able to juggle two or three jobs expertly—as Lois Benjamin phrases it. Keep the sauce spoon and the pablum going simultaneously while she's typing with her toes.

But now with 9,000,000 mothers in the United States bringing home wages, Mrs. Benjamin, a young working mother herself, thinks it's about time they got some assistance on a grand scale.

The two major needs this middle class working mothers, she says, are government-sponsored day-care programs and a revision in the economic status of household workers so that adequate help at home would be available.

These would be better Mother's Day gifts than all the candy and flowers in the world, she says.

Mrs. Benjamin has had a lifetime of contact with the problems of working mothers. She is the daughter of a famous one who was designer Lois Copeland —and she's the mother of Tony, 7—and Roger, 5.

Mrs. Says she's an expert too, having just written a book So You Want to Be a Working Mother.

"About those day care centres to take care of children while mother works," she says, "they're the first thing emerging countries set up. Their position is that they need women in the labor force.

"The U.S. position is that mothers are needed at home—based on ancient and honorable and cockeyed theories about what women want.

"Day care should be regarded as a public utility as much as water or electricity."

Some concentrated effort—either by the government or perhaps some large nationwide employment agency—should be made to upgrade domestic work, she says.

Wever, R.R. 6, Belleville, to Samuel J. Rekker, son of Mrs. Rekker and Mr. and Mrs. R. Rekker of Belleville. Rev. P. Breedveld performed the ceremony and Master Martin Scholten played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau de soie with an Empire waist, long lily-point sleeves and a full skirt ornamented by a large bow at the back. A pillbox headdress held her elbow-length veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses with white pompons.

Mrs. Susan Appel, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of rose peau de soie with Empire waist, A-line skirt and large bow at the back. The bridesmaids, Miss Irene Slickster, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Rosie Wever, sister of the bride, were dressed alike in gowns identical to that of the matron of honor. All attendants wore matching wedding-ring headpieces with short veils and carried crescent bouquets of white carnations.

Miss Lorraine Vanderschaaf, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor-length dress of rose peau de soie with fitted bodice and set sleeves and carried a small bouquet of white carnations.

Mr. William Rekker, was his brother's attendant, and ushers were Mr. John Rekker, cousin of the bridegroom and Mr. Menno Hoekzma.

Tops Motor Hotel was the scene of the wedding dinner, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece beige suit, beige accessories and a corsage of orange roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a pale blue brocade dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For her wedding trip to Toronto and the West Coast, the bride chose a three piece suit of beige and green with green and beige accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

On their return, the couple will live at 186 Stephen Drive, Toronto.

PATIENCE PUSHES IN PHOENIX

Eli Ward, of Phoenix Arizona, suffered a stroke which left him partially paralyzed. This happened in 1961. No longer able to work, the responsibility for earning an income fell upon his wife Beulah, aged 50. Beulah found jobs as a cleaning woman in downtown cities. However, not wanting to leave her husband alone, she pushed him in a wheel chair to and from her work, a total of 15 miles daily. It took her six hours to make the round trip. Beulah did this for three years.

When her story became known, a prominent business-man who prefers anonymity, came to the rescue. He gave her a gasoline-powered, twin-cylinder three-wheeled cart, equipped with headlights, tail lights, automatic brake and easy steering. This cart carries the wheelchair, and travels at 10 miles an hour. Now, Beulah and her husband make the round trip in less than two hours.

When paralysis struck, Beulah saw the path of duty, and patiently followed it. She has been handsomely rewarded. If you are trying to do that which is right and good, keep eventually at it. Your Heavenly Father knows, and your blessing is on the way.

Lines on Life

Many Feel Inadequate

By Dr. Stuart F. Rosenberg

A story is told of a man who was being treated for many months by a psychiatrist for what he had thought was an "inferiority complex." After half a year of treatment, the psychiatrist called him in and suggested that he would not continue with him any longer.

"Why?" asked the man, "I thought that you were going to be able to cure me of my inferiority complex?" "I will tell you," replied the psychiatrist. "You don't have an inferiority complex. You are just plain inferior!"

This may be a funny story to some, yet there is no doubt that most complexes which instill in us a feeling of inadequacy are based upon some inferiority in us — either real or imaginary.

Life is filled with illustrations of people who are obsessed with their own shortcomings.

We remember Somerset Maugham's story "Of Human Bondage". Philip has a club-foot, and this physical defect gives him a great sense of shame, whenever he has to wear shoes, and prevents him from becoming a Soccer player. However, not wanting to leave her husband alone, she pushed him in a wheel chair to and from her work, a total of 15 miles daily. It took her six hours to make the round trip. Beulah did this for three years.

When her story became known, a prominent business-man who prefers anonymity, came to the rescue. TEXT FOR TODAY: "Let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." (Galatians 6:9)

Life is filled with illustrations of people who are obsessed with their own shortcomings.

We remember Somerset Maugham's story "Of Human Bondage". Philip has a club-foot, and this physical defect gives him a great sense of shame, whenever he has to wear shoes, and prevents him from becoming a Soccer player. In the famous story, "The Brothers Karamazov," Dmitri was afraid of one thing only — to take off his socks. He was on trial for murdering his father, but his greatest misery was not the accusation or even the public contempt of the courtroom; it was the shame that overcame him when he was ordered to take off his socks. Here is how the author describes that terrible moment: "They were very dirty — and now everyone could see it, and what was worse he disliked his feet. All his life he had thought in both his big toes hideous. He particularly loathed the coarse, flat, crooked nail on the right one, and now they would all see it!"

However much men may differ in their experiences of shame and fear, most are frightened by the prospect of coming in contact with people whenever they have to reveal themselves and to display that part of themselves dislike or are ashamed of.

What happens to such people? They are often afraid to face up to the real and ever - present tasks of life. There are those whose defects create a sense of inadequacy that long, the ever come — but overcome in the wrong way. A typical example of many people who tend to be rather arrogant and bully-like. They falsely compensate by attempting to be everything that they really are not. They brag, they push, they shove, they hurt. At heart, they are really frightened people. But in their over-compensating, they play a fictitious, false role. They will never be tall at all, and they might as well learn to be big about it.

Then there are those who have no serious defect, but who imagine that they have. These people are even more difficult to deal with, because they create fraudulent mechanisms with which to deal with the world. But a man who is fighting windmills because he thinks nobody loves him will never be at peace — not even in victory.

Such a man is never at home in the world, because he is never at home with himself. The thing that bothers him most — although he very rarely realizes it — is his general sense of inadequacy as a man, which he blames on imaginary faults that do not really exist.

Free-floating, unattached feelings of inadequacy are usually a place to land; they paralyze our mental muscles and make us miserable. Instead of attacking these feelings and overcoming them by positive action, such people usually attack all other people.

Instead of imagining ourselves as personal victims, we need to know how to feel like heroes — heroes who can defeat their own difficulties by shedding their imaginary faults and latching onto imaginative personal possibilities.

A Lift for Living

Good Mother World's Most Convincing Argument for God

By REV. HAROLD E. KOEN

Mother is the first and best thing that happens to children. Before a child comes into the world, or is known by anyone save God, it is loved and held closely by mother.

Through a mother's pain we were born; through a mother's tender care our infant life was sustained; and all our days were warmed because mother fanned the flame of life.

Mother hurts when and where anyone else in her family hurts. She is the lady of compassion whose temperature rises to 103 degrees whenever her child's temperature exceeds 98.6.

Simply having children does not make mothers of women, but loving children makes women mothers. Mothers come in all sizes and shapes. Mothers are nicely, if oddly, proportioned. The loveliest mother has high ideals. The slenderest has wide interests. The tallest has a short memory for our faults and failures. And even the tiniest mother has a big heart.

Every mother is a businesswoman. Her business is producing honorable men and women. From the raw materials that come to her at birth, A mother's business is life's baby. To be entrusted with impressionable, pliable lives, still unmolded, is sacred. It is a holy thing to be able to impress little ones with honesty, honor, love and loyalty. To be able to lift a life so high — or depress a life so low — is a sacred business.

BUSY FOR OTHERS

Some people in this world deserve little and get much, and some deserve much and get little. Mother pays little attention to what she deserves and to what she gets. She is too busy seeing what she can do for any one who needs her. She is preoccupied making her todays into tomorrows.

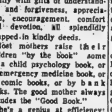
Mother makes every day a birthday or xmas, loading her family with gifts of understanding and forgiveness, appreciation, encouragement, comfort and devotion, all splendidly wrapped in kindly deeds.

Most mothers raise their children "by the book" some by a child psychology book, or an emergency medicine book, or by comic books, or by bank books. The good mother always decides the "Good Book."

She's a genius at efficiency; when the children are small she not only gets everything done in a day but gets everything done in a dozen times over! Mother seldom has a chance to worry about what her children will be when they grow up. She's too busy chasing after them to see what they are up to now.

Mother is that gracious lady who has never learned to count — to count herself first, or to count herself in when it comes to enough pie, or ice cream or any of the other of life's material advantages.

A good mother is the equal of a dozen school teachers, a small convention of clergymen, and a score of policemen and judges, all added together. A mother is a Jacquelyne-of-all-trades. She is a singer, whose hymns crooned at the cradle and sung at the ironing board and the kitchen sink will, like God's goodness and mercy, follow us all the days of our lives.



SHE HAS ANSWERS

She preaches sermons one can see, as well as hear, by the way she walks happily through our lives. (She is the only Bible some people of the neighborhood ever read.) She is an interpreter, who knows the precise meaning of a baby's cry, a boy's anguished yelp a daughter's sob or a husband's scowl, and she comes on the run with the exact answer.

Mother is a clever magician, adroitly changing life's heaviest drudgery into life's highest privilege, making ordinary sons look like heroes and transforming ordinary daughters into radiant angels by saving a word of praise. With a reassuring word she makes childhood worries disappear into thin air, and with a touch of her hand she changes a child's chaos to calmness. Her softly spoken prayer the air is cheered of anger and ill will, and all our single days seems bright and good again.

A sceptic once asked me why I believe in God. I fumbled for words, came up with a weak explanation, and tossed it aside in utter frustration. Then a mother walked through the room carrying her little babe, and all I needed was to look at the figure and say, "There!"

A good mother is the most convincing argument for God I've ever seen, for mothers don't just happen; mothers are Heaven-sent. Mothers are God's goodness wearing an apron, God's truth setting the table, God's beauty tenderly saying, "Good night, Dear. I'll see you in the morning."

WANT TO BE RICH?

Willie Sanders of Cleveland, Ohio, wanted to "strike it rich." He was a degreasing machine operator earning $92 a week. He paid $3 for a ticket on a Irish sweepstakes. Sander's ticket turned out to be worth $35,720 However, there came with it a million dollars worth of headaches.

Because he was afraid to fly, Sanders hired two men to go to Dublin, Ireland, to collect his winnings. He paid $7,500 for their services and travel expenses. On the strength of his winnings alone, he engaged in some gambling and lost several thousand dollars. As soon as his money arrived in Cleveland, the Internal Revenue Service filed a Tax Lien against him in the amount of $28,375 His estranged wife had him arrested on a non-support charge, claiming he was $7,420 in arrears on his $35 a week payments. The Cleveland police department found four outstanding traffic tickets against him dating back one year. In addition to all this, he was pestered by a host of people who tried by various means to get a slice of his winnings.

Sanders won $35,000, but what did he gain? Let us hope he gained experience . . . experience which taught him what each of us should remember . . . that money of itself is no guarantee of happiness.

Controversial Film Will Not Be Shown Says Paper

CBC Reporter Hit on Head By Sevigny

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the CBC will not allow This Hour Has Seven Days to show a controversial film on youth at 10 p.m. EDT Sunday.

The film, Youth: in Search of Morality, was prepared hastily this week after disclosure Monday that a camera crew had filmed two youths and a girl in bed, the newspaper says.

"It was not to have been shown until the fall, but had been prepared by the Seven Days staff as what producer Douglas Leiterman called a complete answer to all the charges about the film."

Although cleared Friday night by showing Sunday night, word came from the CBC that the document would not be shown," the newspaper says.

"The normal Seven Days show (the last of the current season) will go on on Sunday," it quotes Hugh Gauntlett, a public affairs supervisor.

The film intended to be shown has begun two years ago before Seven Days went on the air.

"It used as its main characters two young men who were paid by the CBC for their participation. . . . No bedroom scenes were shown in the movie. There was no mention of drugs and there were only a few passing references to alcohol."

The film was about teenagers' attitudes toward sex.

The film was to have been introduced by Patrick Watson and narrator LaPierre, whose contracts will not be renewed by the CBC next fall.

The Globe quotes Mr. Leiterman saying the bedroom scene was discarded after last September.

"My concern was that it not be left around loose where children could get hold of it and maybe show it at parties," the newspaper quotes him.

"The corporation had wanted it, that was okay, but we had seen it and were finished with it. We were anticipated some future inquiry and we never intended to use it."

Viewing Public Is Good Judge Says LaPierre

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP)— The CBC is behind the times in its concept of broadcasting, Fred (Sonny) LaPierre, co-host of This Hour Has Seven Days, said Friday at a press conference.

When a reporter sunnggested that LaPierre, co-host Patrick Watson and producer Douglas Leiterman are ahead of their TIME, LaPierre said:

"If we are, our mail indicates a hell of a number of other Canadians are too."

The viewing public is a good judge of what is proper taste in programs and had been quick to disagree with CBC management's view of Seven Days.

"If the corporation had wanted it, that was okay, but we had seen it and were finished with it. We were anticipated some future inquiry and we never intended to use it."

"right to pay however he likes and he should not be allowed to go around by the minister."

Mr. Benson replied deductions are being handled increasingly at the local level, with payments routed through chartered banks to the government treasury About 90 per cent of employers liked it that way.

The practice, along with other improvements, boiled down to one hour's worth of labor time a month work that used to take 668 man-days of work a month.

The Commons approved the department's $94,565,800 spending estimates for 1966-67 in the last minutes of the Friday sitting.

AUTO PACT APPROVED

Earlier in the day, the opposition gave grudging approval to the auto trade agreement signed 15 months ago between Canada and the United States.

Conservative MP's complained that it is Parliament's right to pass judgment on such agreements before they take effect But Industry Minister Drury said the pact is within the cabinet's executive authority.

He said automotive production and employment have increased under the agreement although car prices are not yet lower. The final price of cars "is not relevant in this particular agreement."

Aviatrix Plans Solo World Hop

LONDON (Reuters) — Sheila Scott, a 38-year-old former actress, has sold her jewels to raise money for an attempt to become the first Briton to fly solo round the world.

She hopes to start Wednesday. Her route of 30,000 miles will be one of the longest solo flights ever attempted in a single-engine light aircraft.

Only two other women, both Americans, have made round-the-world flights — Jerry Mock and the late Joan Merriam Smith. A third American, Amelia Earhart, perished in the Pacific during an attempt.

Miss Scott will use a Piper C manche 260-B, normally a six seater, but modified to accommodate extra fuel tanks for a range of from some 3,000 miles.

Longest hop on the planned route is the Honolulu - to - San Francisco leg of 2,400 miles which will take 18 hours.

WILL STUDY

To keep her alert during the long hours alone, Miss Scott has tape recordings of music and a Spanish language course she will study on the way.

The first part of Miss Scott's route will be Europe, then the Middle East, India, Singapore and Darwin, Australia.

The last of the 20 legs is from New York via Gander, Nfld., The Azores and Lisbon to London.

She expects the flight to last 4½ to six weeks unless monsoons in Asia cause serious holdups.

Miss Scott took up flying seven years ago and has become Britain's ace woman racing pilot.

She has won 40 international trophies, was Britain's first woman commercial helicopter pilot and is licensed to fly craft ranging from balloons to seaplanes.

Believe Mao Gives up Active Leadership

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese newspaper Asahi Shimbun says Mao Tse - tung is thought to have stepped down from active leadership in Chinese politics.

The mass-circulation newspaper quotes Japanese foreign office specialists on China as saying they believe the Chinese Communist party chairman now is a "symbolic being."

"The experts, moreover, feel that even if Mao should die in the near future, there is no immediate possibility of Communist China's foreign policy line softening," says Asahi.

Deseronto Dissolves School Board

DESERONTO — Thursday marked the end of an era in Deseronto, when the Board of Education was formally dissolved.

On motion of W. J. Spence, now chairman of the Public School Board, the balance of funds on hand, approximately $18,500, was handed over to the town, and the Board of Education was disbanded.

When Deseronto joined the Napanee school area, this board ceased to function except to administer the funds on hand. Now that all outstanding accounts have been paid and the books audited, its reason for existence came to an end.

Donald Reid, vice-chairman of the Public School Board and Mrs. D. C. McVicker, a member; Reeve Donald Armitage; William Schell, Deseronto's representative on the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board; together with Mr. Spence formed the membership of the board which is now out of existence.

Mr. Spence acknowledges that, as a result of amalgamation of all. He himself was one of those who had recognized that Deseronto could no longer support a high school, and that it would be better for the pupils to attend modern schools in Deseronto or Napanee. Some of those present at this final meeting had been among those who most bitterly opposed the move.

Their progress has won over sentiment and the ties with the past, and Deseronto is showing a united front to concentrate on making the Deseronto Public School "the best public school in the area", as Mr. Spence puts it.

3 Injured In Separate Accidents

NAPANEE — Two boys injured in separate accidents Wednesday are still under observation in the Kingston and Addington County General Hospital.

Seven-year old Larry Edgar Presley was struck by a car when turning into the driveway of his home on the Bridge Road, about three and a half miles south-west of Napanee. He received abrasions and bruises but his condition is not serious. He is under observation.

Driver of the car was Mary Edna Carey of R.R. 3, Napanee.

At 11.40 Wednesday morning, three-year-old Danny Denning ran out from behind a parked car on John St. and was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Ross Brown of R.R. 4, Napanee. He has been treated for facial bruises and cuts.

Thursday evening two cars were extensively damaged on Dundas St. in Napanee, and

Optical Plant Managers Visit Great Britain

DESERONTO — J. W. Spence, president and general manager of the Canada Optical Co., and A. E. Fraser, production manager, returned last Saturday from Great Britain where they had spent ten days investigating similar businesses and familiarizing themselves with their methods.

They visited six optical manufacturing plants in England and Scotland and had several meetings with representatives of similar plants on the Continent, two from Germany and one from France.

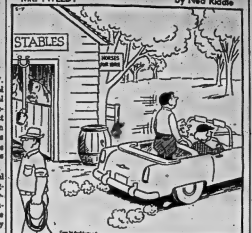
In all probability this will be the beginning of an exchange of technical information between nations, Mr. Spence says. Several of the European representatives who have already visited the Deseronto plant, have marvelled at the speed with which the work is done here.

The Deseronto plant, which has been 20 years in operation now has about 90 employees. Mr. Spence has had his present position for ten years, and in that time the interior of the building has been entirely remodelled and a great deal of new and modern equipment has been installed. The output has almost doubled.

The Deseronto officials found things markedly different in England and Scotland. The pace is slower, and people have time for the niceties of life. Everyone has time to be kind and courteous. Nothing is casual to the business man, especially his dress, which is always immaculate and correct. Traffic is dense, but while they were on the other side of the Atlantic, the men did not hear a car honk.

Arrangements were made for return visits to the Deseronto plant of representatives from the countries they visited, and from Germany, France and Italy. These will be completed before October.

Carl Hamm of Odessa was taken by ambulance to the County Hospital. He is still under observation but so far no internal injuries or fractures have been found.



Major James Donald Howson of 8 Rose St., Napanee has parked his car under the street light in front of the Limbert Graham residence while he visited the home. He had barely entered when his car was hit by the vehicle and car driven across the walk and on to the lawn of the home next door. Fortunately, Major Howson had left no one in the car, and Hamm was driving alone.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

The minor sport scene in the city, both softball and baseball, are putting plenty of effort into preparing for the fast-approaching season.

It should add up to a good summer of ball for the kids and that is what really counts.

The Belleville Minor Softball Association announced plans yesterday for a rules clinic this coming Monday night.

The clinic will be held for coaches and umpires, at the Recreation Centre, beginning at 7.30 in the evening.

There is said to be a shortage of umpires for the minor softball so any newcomers will be welcome at the clinic. All present coaches and umpires are urged to attend. It is much easier to show or tell the boys the proper rules when you are sure of them yourself.

Turning to the minor baseball, we are told that so many youngsters have registered to play that expansion is necessary.

Due to the large number of applications for the tyke division, a two-team grouping for the younger of these boys has been formed. It will be known as the tadpole league.

So the B.M.H.A. has 18 teams right now. They are two tadpole, six tyke, six peewee and four bantam.

And something else has been added. This year there will be two peewee division teams in OBA competition, one major "A" and one "A", along with the other divisions' all-star teams.

The Eastern Ontario Baseball Association has its minor entries from Belleville, Frankford, Peterborough, Oshawa, Whitby, Port Hope and Ajax.

All told, minor softball and baseball look like they are in for great seasons.

One thing that will help even more is plenty of support from parents and fans in general. The kids will be playing in a couple of weeks so keep an eye for their games and give them your support.

BITS AND PIECES

Sid Abel caught a lot of hockey fans' attention with his remarks directed at "Punch" Imlach at the conclusion of the Stanley Cup finals on TV Thursday night. In part, he told Imlach to "mind your own business", then got in a beauty of a crack about "not having a brewer setting out all season on my club." A telecast gone Imlach had knocked Abel's humane style of coaching.

Parsons soccer club makes its Kingston and District seasonal debut against the Dunbrick, in Kingston, today. The Belleville club's home games will be played under lights at the Fairgrounds this year, the first of which is Tuesday night against Kingston Hungaria. Kick off is at 8.00.

Only a few more days to get your tickets for the Bobby Hull Testimonial Dinner. Ed Lee reports the tickets going well. And don't forget, all proceeds go to the Shriners' crippled children and the Alhambra's retarded children. The dinner is Thursday next.

Hull called the shot Thursday afternoon on the Montreal Stanley Cup victory when asked who was going to win. He also showed little surprise when Toronto-Chicago trade rumors were mentioned. The same evening, Chicago coach Billy Reay said between periods that his bosses felt "only Hull and Hall are untouchable as far as trades go" on the Hawk club.

Arena manager Robb Burrows passes along word that professional wrestling will be starting soon here. "Tentative date call for the 24th bouts on Friday, May 27 and we should have definite word shortly," stated Robb the other day.

The Riteways Novice hockey club is being feted at Papa's this afternoon and we understand will receive gifts from the City at the same due, for that great victory march in the Brampton Journament. We are told most of the boys on the club will be moving up the ladder to peewee next season. It was a fine season for coach Moe Hunter, manager Don Whelan and their young charges. Here's hoping the boys' hold on to their fine team spirit and good sportsmanship as they grow into the higher divisions.

Says Toronto Paper

Gadsby To Coach Wings

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Bill Gadsby, veteran defenceman with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, will coach Detroit next season.

Gadsby, retiring from active playing after 20 seasons in the NHL with Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and the Wings, met Detroit owner Bruce Norris Thursday night after the team was defeated by Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final.

Gadsby, 36-year-old native of Calgary now in the insurance business in Edmonton, is scheduled to meet with Norris again within two weeks to sign a contract as coach, the paper says.

Gadsby said Thursday he is interested in coaching only the Red Wings, not a minor league club.

Sid Abel, currently serving as both coach and general manager of the Wings, will devote his full time to managing duties.

For several seasons, Gadsby has been part of Detroit's unique coaching system in which Abel appointed players as his assistants.

Orioles Clip Indians In Marathon

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles defeated Cleveland Indians 3-2 Friday night in a 15-inning baseball game that had all the drama of an American League final.

Two unbeaten pitchers started — Dave McNally (3-0) for the Orioles and Sam McDowell (4-0) for the Indians.

The teams were tied 1-1 after nine innings. McNally left after holding the Indians to three hits in 10 innings and McDowell departed after scattering seven hits in 12.

In the 15th Rocky Colavito and Fred Whitfield singled off Dick Hall with one out for Cleveland, but Pedro Gonzalez popped up. Then came Leon Wagner who had left hospital only 12 hours before.

Wagner, who broke his nose in a Wednesday night collision with teammate Larry Brown, stepped to the plate as a pinch hitter and rapped a single to left field, and the Indians led 2-1.

Dave Johnson led off the Orioles' half of the 15th by hitting Bob Allen's first pitch into the left field stands for a homer.

POWELL CLINCHES IT

Andy Etchebarren followed one out later with a walk, and pinch hitter Curt Blefary was hit by a pitch. In came Lee Stange for Allen and up came Boog Powell for Aparicio. Powell singled and the four-hour, 15-minute drama was over.

Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers edged Chicago White Sox 1-0, Minnesota Twins slipped Boston Red Sox 5-4, California Angels defeated New York Yankees 7-4 and Kansas City Athletics trimmed Washington Senators 2-1.

Denny McLain stopped the White Sox on one hit—a Ron Hansen single in the second inning. McLain retired 22 of the last 23 batters he faced and scored the game's only run on Norm Cash's sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Tony Oliva and George Scott each hit two homers. Scott's second homer tied the game 4-4 for Boston in the top of the ninth while Oliva's second won it for Minnesota in the bottom.

Norm Siebern led California past the Yankees, now 6-18, collecting two doubles and a single and driving in four runs. The victory was the first for the Angels over Whitey Ford after nine straight defeats.

Chuck Dobson stopped Washington on four hits and singled across Kansas City's first run in the 8th inning. The deciding run scored in the same inning as Bert Campaneris forced Dobson.

Giants Hop Into National Lead

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco Giants left Bob Gibson at the gate as the Atlanta Braves caught Barry Latman at the wire, but Milt Pappas and Rob Gardner finally made the winner's circle in the National League pitching derby.

The Giants paralyzed a walk, an error and two of their three hits off Gibson Friday night into three first-inning runs and a 4-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals that shot them into the league lead.

The Braves, held to one hit by Latman for eight innings, struck for six runs in the ninth and halted Houston Astros' winning streak 6-0.

Pappas, meanwhile, gained his first victory in the league as Cincinnati slugged Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 and Gardner was won for the first time in the majors as New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 2-1.

In the other NL game, Philadelphia Phillies spotted Pittsburgh four runs in the top of the 11th inning and then countered with five in its half for an 8-7 verdict that dropped the Pirates into second place.

Gibson's shaky start enabled the Giants to stretch their winning string to five games behind unbeaten right-hander Gaylord Perry and to climb 1½ games ahead of Pittsburgh. Perry won his eighth with late-inning relief from Frank Linzy—while Gibson's record dipped to 2-3. Don Landrum and Willie McCovey, the first two batters Gibson faced, singled and walked, respectively. Willie Mays tapped to the mound but Jim Hart slashed a two-run triple and scored the third run of the inning when Tito Fuentes' grounder went through second baseman Julian Javier.

Gibson then retired 24 straight Giants — before Tom Haller homered with two out in the ninth—and established a career high of 14 strikeouts.

Latman, who had posted a sparkling 1.29 earned run average in three starts, limited the Braves to a third-inning single by Felipe Alou until the ninth, when Alou led off with another single.

The Houston right - hander walked Hank Aaron and, two outs later, Joe Torre singled across the first run of the game. A run-scoring double by Rico Carty knocked out Latman and the Braves went on to lock it up on a two-run single by Denis Menke and a single by pitcher Denny Lemaster.

Lemaster yielded seven hits in snapping the Astros' winning streak at five games.

Pappas, acquired by Cincinnati in the inter-league deal that sent slugger Frank Robinson to Baltimore, won for the Reds on his fourth try. He scattered eight hits, and retired the last 12 men he faced and was backed by Tony Perez' two-run homer and a three-run shot by Art Shamsky.

The loss was the fourth in a row for the Dodgers.

HOMER DECIDES GAME

Cleon Jones' leadoff homer in the ninth lifted the Mets past Chic go and gave Gardner a winner in his ninth big league appearance. The 21 - year - old southpaw had allowed only four earned runs in three previous starts this season without being involved in a decision.

He stopped the Cubs on four hits, including Ron Santo's sixth-inning homer, and struck out eight. He also had two of the Mets' six hits, driving in their first run with a double in the fifth.

The Phillies blew a 3-0 lead in the seventh inning, fell behind 7-3 in the 11th and then came back to defeat Pittsburgh relievers Woody Fryman and Roy Face.

Singles by John Callison, Harvey Kuenn, Tony Taylor, Cookie Rojas and Jack Brandt produced three runs before Dick Groat capped the outburst with a game-winning, two-run single.

Triumphant And Tired Habs Home

MONTREAL (CP) — A tired but triumphant team of Montreal Canadiens arrived Friday to a brief heroes' welcome at a downtown railway station.

The players were red-eyed the day after their sixth-game victory over Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup final and the big celebrations that go with a triumph in the National Hockey League classic.

Most Canadiens filed directly past the reporters and 500 fans waiting to greet them at Central Station.

The train bringing the team from Detroit arrived in Montreal 1½ hours late.

"I guess the train stopped for a couple of hours to straighten the boys out," said Mrs. Dave Balon, whose player - husband finished a rather so-so season with a late playoff flourish.

Team captain Jean Beliveau was greeted with the traditional team shout of "les Canadiens sont la!" (the Canadiens are in) as he stepped from the train.

More cheers followed as goalie Lorne Worsley and forward Henri Richard appeared. Richard scored the winning overtime goal in Canadiens' 3-2 victory over the Wings, which gave them the series four games to two.

"What are you guys going to do now that it's over?" one reporter asked.

"Sleep, man, just get to sleep," one of the players answered.

"Officiating Disgraceful"

Oil Kings Rap Referee

By BILL SCOTT

TORONTO (CP)—"We'll get a crowd of 14,000 here Sunday," predicted a Maple Leaf Gardens publicist after Oshawa Generals defeated Edmonton Oil Kings 7-1 to tie the Memorial Cup junior hockey final series at a game apiece.

"Teh and we'll get a new referee," answered Oil Kings' manager Bill Hunter, who described the officiating as "a disgrace for a national final."

Attendance was 8,210 after Wednesday's opener drew less than 5,000.

Hunter and Edmonton coach Ray Kinasewich both said the leniency of referee Frank Dalneault of Montreal encouraged chippy play. Dalgneault handed out 34 penalties, including one misconduct and four majors for fighting.

WILL LOSE CONTROL

"He's going to lose control," Kinasewich added, "and that won't be good for the players or the fans."

Oshawa coach Bep Guidolin said the Generals won the game for Bobby Orr, the 18-year-old defence star had difficulty skating because of a groin injury and was used sparingly. Orr said he hurt himself while practising last week.

Both coaches agreed that Oshawa defencemen Nick Beverley Chris Roberts and Barry Wilkins played a major role in the Generals' comeback after their 7-2 loss in Wednesday's opening game. Oshawa goalie Ian Young made 17 saves, but his defence stopped easily twice as many.

SCORING FOR BIG PLAY

"We were trying to make the big play," Kinasewich said, "giving them a lift and they took advantage of it." He said the Oil Kings just quit after the first period when they were behind 2-0.

Kinasewich and Hunter both said goalie Don McLeod, who made 34 saves, didn't look good and Don Caley, a pickup from Weyburn, Sask., Red Wings may replace him in Sunday afternoon's third game.

"We didn't play well, in fact we couldn't play much worse," Kinasewich said. "But we'll come back Sunday."

Al Hamilton, considered the West's outstanding junior, only played a brief appearance for Oil Kings in the third period. Kinasewich said the 19-year-old 200-pound centreman injured his tailbone a couple of weeks ago and was in pain Friday night. Kinasewich said Hamilton's attakes were broken during the game and his spares weren't too good, so he was kept on the bench.

All the Generals, with the exception of Orr, are in good physical shape.

Generals Bounce Back For 7-1 Win

All Even

By JOE DUPUIS

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Generals bounced back into contention for the Memorial Cup Friday night, thumping Edmonton Oil Kings 7-1 to tie the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey championship at one game each.

The victory erased the 7-2 Oshawa defeat by Edmonton in the series opener Wednesday. Third game is set for 2 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Bobby Orr of Oshawa and Edmonton's Al Hamilton, key players for their teams, saw little action in the game that brought protests from the Oil Kings that referee Frank Dalgneault was too lenient in calling 34 penalities and should be replaced for the remainder of the playoffs.

The Oshawa reversal in form, before 7,210 fans, was crafted by defencemen Nick Beverley, Chris Roberts and Barry Wilkins, and forwards Danny O'Shea, Wayne Cashman and Chris Hayes.

Cashman figured in five of the Oshawa goals with centreman O'Shea potting three, and Cashman and Hayes one each. Cashman also had four assists. Bill Heindl and Ron Duesiaume got the other Oshawa goals.

SPOILS A SHUTOUT

Defenceman Doug Barrie's third-period goal spoiled a shutout for Oshawa goalie Ian Young who handled 16 shots compared to 52 in the opener. Orr, nursing a groin injury received while practising last week, assisted on O'Shea's second goal, the only one scored by either team on a power play.

Hamilton, the outstanding defensive prospect from Fitz Fion, Man., was bothered by a back injury received two weeks ago.

"If you're gonna come back that's the way to do it," said Oshawa manager Bob Blain. "We couldn't have played much worse," said Edmonton coach Ray Kinasewich.

Both Kinasewich and Bill Hunter, the Oil Kings' manager, blamed the "chippy play" in the game on Dalgneault's leniency. "We'll get a new referee for the third game," said Hunter.

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., first vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which assigns the officials for the series, said Dalgneault will not be replaced.

WILL CHANGE LINESMEN

Pollock said two new linesmen will be brought in for Sunday's game—Willard Norris of Guelph, Ont., and Patrick Shetler of Alliston, Ont.

He gave no reason for the change.

The Generals got the first break in the opening period when Cashman scored while Hamilton was serving a minor penalty.

Cashman got a break inside the Edmonton zone and fired the puck between defenceman Bob Falkenberg's legs that zoomed into the net behind goalie Don McLeod.

Heindl's goal at 11:06 gave Oshawa a 2-0 lead going into the second period. Cashman, goals by O'Shea, four minutes apart in the second period, defeated Oil goalie. "We just just quit after that," said Kinasewich.

The Oil Kings were unable to find any skating room against the Generals and they were outshot 16-9. Each time they picked up two majors as the result of two brief fights, and goalie McLeod was given a misconduct.

Tough Rally Ends

Wilson-MacLennan Expected Winners

By WALTER HAYES

QUEBEC (CP)—The fortunes Shell 4,000 car rally ended Friday night with the last of the 26 finishers struggling into the city under cover of a heavy snowfall.

The snow capped six days of the toughest car rallying most of the veteran competitors had ever experienced.

A combination of dusty mountain roads, prairie mud and almost continual pounding rendered the field almost bare of the original 60 cars that started last Saturday night in Vancouver.

But throughout it all, the Ford - Lotus Cortina of John MacLennan and John Wilson ran steadily and climbed on to the finish—famp outside the Chateau Frontenac Hotel in unofficial winners.

The pair accumulated only 32 penalty points during the 4,100-mile run to lead almost from the start.

The results will be made official tonight and awards will be presented at a closing banquet. The delay is necessary to allow officials to hear any possible protests from drivers over timing errors.

Last year MacLennan and Wilson pulled into Vancouver, first and were declared the winners. But a protest and subsequent scoring change dropped them to second and gave the lead to Klaus Ross and John Rae of the second straight year.

One official said there could be no protest this time that could affect first place.

A Cortina driven by Roger Clark of Britain and Robin Edwards of Parkeville, Que., was second with 67 points, nine less than the third place Ford Falcon Graham and Henry Actenson of Calgary in their Volvo.

Graham and Actenson easily won the private - entry award with more than 300 points over Bill Henderson and Gallop finished sixth over-all with 283 points.

The Cortina team, with its third car in ninth place, automatically won the manufacturers team award by being the only team to finish.

THE COMPETITORS—Datsun, Renault and Fiat—dropped out earlier.

IS WOMEN'S WINNER

Another automobile winner was Rosemary Smith of Dublin, Ireland, who with Ann Coombe of Toronto took the Coup de Dames Award by being the only women to finish.

Miss Smith, a top European rallyist competing in her first Canadian rally, was eighth over-all in her Sunbeam Imp Sport coupe.

Fourth over-all was the Barraculda of Scott Harvey of Detroit, Mich., to finish in the 4,000 rally. He and co-driver Mike Kerry of Toronto accumulated 37 points.

Third among the private entries were Fritz Hochrester and Paul Mauson, both of Toronto, in their Volkswagen. They had 370 points and were seventh over-all.

Harvey said he didn't think the rally was as tough as last year's and termed the large dropout — the highest in any Shell 4,000 rally—on more unexperienced crews.

But Harvey was in the minority. Most of the drivers said the rally was the toughest because of the variety of conditions.

There were mountain sections where the roads were closed to the public and drivers were required to make the fastest times possible from start to finish.

TAKE TOLL

Many of the cars dropped out after going off the road in these sections and exceeding the maximum time limit while trying to extricate themselves.

MacLennan, a 31-year-old Toronto fireman, won the tough Canadian winter rally in 1962, 1963 and this year, and was travelling to Kingston.

OHA delegates unanimously accepted a motion to set up a pool system under which each team will contribute 10 per cent of its gross gate receipts from regular season games and playoffs. Purpose of the pool is to help keep poorer-drawing teams solvent.

It was decided that the pool will be administered by the OHA or someone picked by the OHA.

OHA Seniors Get Facelifting

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association's senior series Friday underwent a two-phase facelifting that will cost the game Dalgneault's leniency. "We'll get a new referee for the third game," said Hunter.

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., first vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which assigns the officials for the series, said Dalgneault will not be replaced.

WILL CHANGE LINESMEN

Pollock said two new linesmen will be brought in for Sunday's game—Willard Norris of Guelph, Ont., and Patrick Shetler of Alliston, Ont.

Derby Has 15 Entries

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — More than 300,000 racing fans—mostly tycoons to nail-biting $2 bettors — jammed Churchill Downs to the rafters Friday for the 92nd running of the Kentucky Derby.

Centre stage for America's most coveted affair thoroughbred racing prize were four dozen owners, trainers and jockeys and 15 colts in the prime of their equine lives.

When the special Derby mutuel train for racers at 8 a.m., Kauai King held a slight edge on the odds board over Lucky Debonair. Kauai King was posted at 5-2 and Abe's Hope at 3-1.

But only $174,114 was dropped in the Derby pot on Friday in advance betting at the track. And less than a third of that was the amount expected to be in the pool by post time, 5:30 p.m. EDT. Churchill officials carry the race starting at 5 p.m.

Stupendous, Mrs. H. C. Phipps' sixth Derby starter since 1938, and Amberoid, first Derby starter for Reginal N. Webster, president of the Thoroughbred Owners and Breeders Association, also were getting good play.

The mutuel field — shortened to four horses when Mary Keim withdrew Sean E Indian because of injury—was posted at 8-1 and 15-1 odds respectively.

Longshots in the race were Quinta, an early speed horse who has won four races at six furlongs or less; Sky Guy, another quick starter with questionable staying power, and Fleet Shoe, a $5,200 purchase as a yearling in California.

Next meeting is scheduled for Friday June 3 in Granville.

Matt Leyden, president of the OHA, said after the meeting the pool system has been operating in the junior series for about 20 years.

"But nobody in the senior league seemed to want to do it that way," he said.

"It will help to pay off bills and encourage teams to stay in the league."

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!

IN 3 MONTHS
Hair Specialist Here Monday
Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness
OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville, Monday, May 9th, 1966, at the Hotel Quinte.
Specialist A. Jespersen will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 10:00 to 9:00 p.m.
This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all" but is designed to be individual after a personal examination by a specialist and check at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.
Who Can Be Helped?
Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Soma conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage of length in time!
Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss—dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea—can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.
DON'T PUT IT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE
Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you are going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald—unless you get your scalp in healthy hair-growing condition again.
Examine Yes Free
We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.
Your only obligation is to be convinced. We do not accept cases that will not respond.
Guarantee Satisfaction
The Roberts Specialist will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied with in 30 days or it will cost you nothing.
For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Ryan's room in the Hotel. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience.
Examinations are given in private.

The first annual Intelligencer Gold Cup Classic is in progress at the Bowl-O-Drome today and the winner should be known around 9:00 o'clock this evening. Th se six semi-finalists will be decided this afternoon and this information w ll be available, over CJBQ on t h e 6:10 sports news.

• • •

The Gold Cup Classic, which pits the top area five pin bowlers in man-to-man match play, should give some idea of t h e comparative skill between the local s-hot-shooters and the out-of-town stars. There's nothing like match play to determine a man's true ability under pressure. And it's certainly the best method for the bowler to acquire the experience needed for future competitions.

• • •

Last Saturday's 15th annual "Mr. Bowling" Tournament was a great success and our sincere congratulations go to Glenn Hamilton for coming through under pressure, in championship style, to post a sensational ten-game five-pin-fall. Glenn, who had the 4th highest average in the city last season, could be the bowler of the future. By that I mean, he could be the Belleville bowler to break the 200 seasonal average mark, within the next few years. Since deciding on spot bowling a few seasons back, his improvement has been consistent and, at times, even fantastic.

• • •

Still with the "Mr. Bowling" Tournament . . . while few, perhaps, spotted the ultimate winner, the majority were right about one annual participant: Miss Kim Scriven. They said he could not win . . . and he didn't! Scriven, one of the most popular bowlers at the Bowl-O-Drome, though out-classed, enters the "Mr. B o w l i n g" Tournament each year and really enjoys the association.

• • •

Just in case that spot bowling instruction article we took to get strikes didn't work out perfectly; I'll continue and give the second (one standard) for picking off corner pins: A righthanded bowler should place his left foot on — and in line with — the dot on the extreme right of the approach, then bowl the ball directly across the centre dart on the lanes. If thrown properly the left corner pin — or counter — should be hit dead centre.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Today is the opening d a y of the 1966 Pickerel and Pike season in the Bay of Quinte area. All night Friday hundreds of tourists funnelled into the city from such places as Toronto, Oshawa, Hamilton on the Canadian side, and from Ohio, Pennsa., and New York state on the American side of the border. Many of these travellers plan to stay for the weekend and the rest will be in our section of the country for a week or more.

Be courteous to these fellows. They will be back again because they catch fish here.

Most of the local resorts are booked solid and it will be very hard to rent a boat in the West, East, and Consecon Lake region and also around Mohawk Beach and Trent River.

I think the Mohawk Beach waters shoiuld pay off this year as the water is higher and there was a fair Pickerel run in the Salmon River. The mouth of this river also should pay good dividends if fished properly. Mepps, Slynter and Yellow Saltys seem to work well here.

The mouth of the Trent River should also be good, either drift fishing with worm or jig fishing from the dam.

West Lake would be my third choice this year mainly because this lake will be so crowded with fishermen this weekend that it will be next to impossible to fish this lake properly. Regardless, there will be many nice f i s h taken out of these waters.

Lake trout and speckled trout fishermen have been going at it hot and heavy the past couple of weeks and the fishing in general has been poor with a few exceptions.

The rainbow fishermen of the area have been catching some nice ones in the Shelter Valley and Grafton creek section as well as in the Gananoque River. Opening day saw these streams crowded with more fishermen than trout.

Several nice b r o w n s and speckles were caught in C o l d Creek with Mepps and worms.

Some of the smaller lakes in Algonquin Park are open but the Big One, Opeongo is still icebound. The ardent l a k e trout fishermen of the cities Bob Taylor and Doug Bone, are all ready and have been for two weeks. In fact, they are probably back at the lake at this writing.

Suggest Different Punishment for Girl

DEAR DORIS: I am having trouble with my three-year-old daughter, and I just don't know what to do any more. She defies me all the time. Whatever I say not to do, regardless of what will happen, she does it anyway. I have tried spanking and that's no good, even with a stick.

I thought maybe I wasn't giving her enough attention, but that didn't help; talking to her, being nice just about everything. She is a bright girl, I have read books and they say it could be my fault. She has been like this since small.

I want to enjoy her but she won't let me. I wind up being mad at her and spanking.

Is there such a place as child and parent guidance? I thought of going to a psychiatrist for us both but we can't afford one.

I love her and I don't want her hating me. — AT SEA.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR AT SEA: Now that you know for sure that spanking is no good, throw away the stick. This kind of punishment is at best only an emergency substitute for better kinds of discipline, and with some youngsters it doesn't work at all.

Praise works when punishment won't. A hug and a kiss when she does something friendly will cause her to repeat it. When she is defiant, try a quiet conversation and a period alone in her room to think things over.

She must sense, not uncertainty and impatience in you, but a controlled, reliable attitude that what you say goes, in this house.

Easier said than done? I agree. And individual dilemmas sometimes need individual guidance. Discuss yours with the trained worker at the Children's Aid Society of Belleville and Hastings County, 63 Moira St.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. Starzeky
Employer Relations Officer

There has been a very buoyant employment picture throughout the community during the past week. This economic activity is centred mainly in the City of Belleville and its immediate area but the rural districts have also contributed their share towards this trend.

In the northern part of the community, men have recently been hired to work on the construction of a new dam at Lake Baptiste and also to assist in the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests annual tree planting projects. The marble quarry north of Tweed has resumed its operations. This business which started in 1965 is another illustration of the diversity of the district's economy. In addition, the wood products and marble chip firms are also active. In the southern part of the community a consolidated public school system consolidation is under construction near the Village of Ameliasburgh. In the agricultural field the local farmers have been extremely busy preparing and planting their spring crops.

All of this activity has created a good local labor demand, not only for the skilled but also for the semi-skilled and unskilled worker.

This past week has been a number of the community's graduates returning to their homes seeking employment. The present labor demand is such that the National Employment Service Office has been able to assist these young people in obtaining temporary employment.

Last year undergraduates who were taking engineering courses were more in demand. This past preference appears to be absent at the present time. More varied employment opportunities and better wages are available to the male undergraduates as compared to the co-eds.

JOBS OPEN

In the female division locally, an excellent position is open for a qualified stenographer possessing a Grade 12 education, preferably single. Work of a confidential nature is available for a young man with shorthand and typing ability for afternoon work. For women interested in shift work, there are opportunities on a part-time basis. Positions are vacant for cashiers who are free to work on Saturdays. There are also a number of office clerical positions calling for either shorthand or typing experience. A janitorial firm urgently requires office cleaners who must be insurable, bondable and have their own transportation. In demand also are day workers. Out-of-town employment offers a wide choice, for example, telephone operator trainees are required in various cities in Ontario. There are also openings in plant production work and as qualified secretaries.

In the male division locally, a firm near Belleville engaged in aircraft servicing and inspection requires an experienced jet aircraft electrician. This position carries a good wage rate and excellent fringe benefits. Two important Belleville manufacturers now have clerical openings for young men preferring those with definite aptitude, experience or training in accountancy. These can be considered as career entry positions. A bottling plant in the city requires a route salesman for its soft drink distribution. An attractive remuneration is offered.

Other openings for routemen in various servicing concerns occur regularly and one such opportunity exists locally for a young man as driver salesman for a dry cleaning firm.

In demand also are the following types of workers: instrument man; draftsman for a land surveyor; furniture salesman; bank clerks-manager trainee; machinists.

There is an urgent requirement in a neighboring town for welders.

Both workers seeking employment and employers seeking workers are invited to contact the NES Office, 324 Church Street, Belleville or phone 962-8681.

Number of Key Issues Fall As Prices Stagger on Market

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices staggered on Canada's stock markets this week as a number of key issues fell to 1966 lows.

The decline reflected the sharpest daily drop on the New York Stock Exchange since the assassination of President Kennedy in November of 1963, on news Thursday that General Motors had cut production at four plants in the U.S.

Adding stimulus to the declines were hints by some United States government officials of a need for income tax increases to combat inflationary pressures.

At Toronto, Canadian issues reacted to New York influenced the heaviest losses. As a result, the industrial index Thursday dropped 2.42, its largest daily slide in 11 months.

MARKET RALLIED

Up until the late stages of Friday's session it appeared the index was heading for another severe drop. However, the market rallied on news that GM expected all its U.S. plants would be in operation Monday, and the index was only off .37 to 164.50.

At one point near mid-afternoon Friday the industrial index fell to 163.15, its lowest level since August, 1965.

Unlike the heavy selling that occurred in New York, volume at Toronto was considered moderate. Total shares traded were 19,010,655 compared with 21,221,554 last week.

Among the major losers were: Ford of Canada and General Motors off 4¼ each to 149¾ and 80¾; Chrysler 1 to 48; Alcan Aluminium 7/8 to 41¼ and Moore Corp. and Interprovincial Pipe Line 3/4 each to 83 and 80¼.

Accenting Wednesday's downward trend was a decision by the Board of Transport Commissioners that earnings of Bell Telephone and B.C. Telephone are at their maximum allowable levels and any increase must be offset by lower rates.

BELL RECOVERS

Bell finished the week, down 1¼ to 58 on 82,364 shares. It reached a 1966 low of 57¼ Friday before recovering late in the session. B.C. Telephone tumbled 10 to a low of 63.

Base metals also felt the impact of the decline as Inco retreated 4¼ and Falconbridge and Hudson Bay 3¼ each.

Scurry Rainbow, also traded on the American exchange, lost 3¼ to 28¼ as the western oil index moved down 3.54 to 205.86.

Golds were mixed. Dome gained 2¾ to 42¼. Kerr-Addison fell 1 to 15.

Cam Mines highlighted speculatives, jumping 37 to 72 cents on 2,173,198 shares.

On index, golds were off 54 to 167.50, base metals 3.97 to 91.41, and the TSE 4.36 to 155.93.

At Montreal, industrials were down 5.56 to 162.86, utilities 3.44 to 141.78, banks 1.43 to 120.83 and papers 3.35 to 117.47. Volume was 8,052,940 shares compared with 6,409,682 last week.

The Golden Years
Widow Successfully Turns Empty Life Into Adventure

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I retired at the age of 60. This was three years ago, and at the time I believed my retirement was going to be enjoyable. What I enjoyed most of all would be as wonderful as it has turned out to be . . ."

These words came from a widow, Mrs. Carolyn Williams, who describes her income as "quite small."

Mrs. Williams moved when she retired, to find a better climate and to be near her children and grandchildren. She took an apartment in a community where she was a total stranger and immediately decreed that she would work out her own destiny without help from her children.

"I was utterly delighted to be so close to them. But they had their duties and interests, and I had mine. Obviously we would be together frequently and I would naturally be pleased at their invitations, I — not my children — would make my friends and my daily life."

This, over the three years, is what she did:

— Chose an apartment near her children, because she didn't have a car, found the church active and friendly, made it a major point to attend, and in several months was a member of five different organizations within the church.

NEW FRIENDS

— Transferred from back home her members h i p in Great Books Discussion Group and began to collect a different set of friends.

— Joined with three friends she made at church and became "Friends of the Local Library," then began taking part in the library's summer reading program for children.

—Took a six-month course in watercolor painting from a private teacher, and meanwhile joined a local concert association that provided free musical programs each winter.

— Joined the Salvation Army auxiliary and started taking a major part in its welfare activities.

— Enrolled in a physical conditioning class for women and attended sessions one night a week until an appendix operation put a stop to it. Then she enrolled in a conversation a l Spanish course for two terms.

— Began work at home on the first hooked rug she had ever made, chuck by her mother-in-law and sold two of them, then took up crewel-work pillows, and is now launched on a crewel-work bedspread that will have a series of 18 bird groups in the design. The design came out of her activities as a bird-watcher . . . as did her latest project of carving birds from balsa wood, paint, and then, and using them as Christmas presents. .

— Switched political parties in 1964 (Presidential campaign) and worked for two months in a political office, joined three civic fund-raising campaigns, and made half-her own clothes.

"From all this," says Mrs. Williams, "you can see why I have little sympathy for retired people who sit around and complain they have nothing to do. The only organization I have joined that bored me was a Senior Citizens group."

What Mrs. Williams has done with retirement is somewhat bizarre — she has done so much of it. But the activities she has generated are within reach of most older women. She is not a very community, in just about any volume they want. And almost always a woman is welcomed into such activities, without competition and jealousy from other women . . . which is not true of retired men following the same course.

Almost every retired woman or widow could use what Mrs. Williams has done as a blueprint — or a little energy and courage, and turn her empty life into an adventure.

Priority Items on Agenda

By RON LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—After sitting for 71 days, the Commons turns today to the first priority item of legislation this session.

Debate will open on legislation creating new titles and functions for six cabinet ministers.

This administrative shakeup was begun in January under cabinet orders, but many of the changes require parliamentary approval. Some of the changes, particularly a three-way split of the Justice department, already have drawn opposition fire.

The legislation flows from the Dec. 17 cabinet shuffle and partly from recommendations by the Glassco royal commission on government organization, which found much overlapping among federal departments.

Prime Minister Pearson is expected to lead off the debate on a resolution he introduced May 2. The detailed bill will be made public only after the resolution is passed.

The resolution provides for establishment of five reorganized departments and the creation of a new cabinet portfolio—president of the treasury board.

The new departments now exist in fact but their names can be changed by Parliament only now.

—Manpower combining immigration, citizenship, manpower mobility, vocational and technical training, job placement and unemployment insurance. Immigration minister Marchand is minister-designate.

—Solicitor - General, combining the RCMP, penitentiaries, parole board and other former branches of the justice department. Solicitor-General Pennell has appointed for these agencies since Jan. 1.

—Energy, mines and resources, a merger of the department of mines and technical surveys with the natural resources and water resources branches), the coal board, energy board and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. Mines Minister Pepin will assume this portfolio.

—Registrar - general, a new department that will deal with the registration of business. Now under Privy Council President Favreau, it will group the companies branch, combines investigation branch, copyrights and trade mark and bankruptcies.

—Indian affairs and northern development, merging the Indian affairs branch with the northern affairs department under Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

Veterans Minister Benson has been designated as the first treasury board president. He will direct the government accounts and organization.

The legislation also provides for three ministers without portfolio, senior officials for each new department.

Debate at the time since the new Parliament opened Jan. 18 has been devoted to spending estimates, supply debates, the throne speech and budget debates, a discussion of redistribution of seats and the establishment of committees.

The only substantial bills passed by the Commons so far created the Science Council of Canada, expanded credit for fishermen and farmers and updated airport regulations.

Expect Viet Cong To Use Monsoon For New Assault

SAIGON (AP) — There is growing belief that the Viet Cong and thousands of recent reinforcements from North Viet Nam will come out of hiding soon and fight.

They have been lying low for weeks. U. S. military sources say the insurgents have been critically short of supplies and hurt by repeated search - and - destroy sweeps and air strikes.

Viet Cong soldiers are thought to be resupplying and regrouping to take the initiative with the onset of the monsoon rains which prevent Allied ground forces getting full air support.

The monsoon season, just beginning, runs into August.

The most probable Viet Cong targets are U.S. and South Vietnamese outposts along the Laotian and Cambodian frontiers.

NEED SANCTUARY

Military sources say some of the infiltrating North Vietnamese troops, however, the United States has ruled out Cambodia as a sanctuary. Armed reconnaissance has already been flown over the border when attacked from Cambodia.

Reinforcements for South Viet Nam and neighboring border areas are estimated at 90,000 "main force" Viet Cong, 20,000 North Vietnamese plus large numbers of peasant - by - day, part-time guerrillas.

All told, U.S. sources say, the insurgents have 250,000 men under arms in one way or another in South Viet Nam and nearby countries.

Rhodesian Talks Starting

LONDON (CP) — Talks between Britain and Rhodesian officials were set to begin today to see whether a basis exists for further talks over ending of the Rhodesian independence crisis. African nationalists boycotted a session.

Political observers here said they had doubts about a solution emerging from the exploratory talks.

Both governments sponsored the talks, hoping that they will break a deadlock that developed Nov. 11 when Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia declared the African colony independent under a white-minority government.

SECRECY PREVAILS

The white Rhodesian team flew to London Sunday for the private talks and was rounded by secrecy. The men were escorted from the airport by police cars and booked into a hotel under assumed names. Britain's Cabinet Secretary Gerald Clarke, Stanley Morris, as expert of African tribal affairs, and Sir Cornelius Green-field, Smith's chief economic adviser.

Britain's team consisted of Duncan Watson, assistant undersecretary at the Commonwealth office, and Oliver Wright, a foreign office adviser and former private secretary to Prime Minister Wilson.

Both sides are still far apart in their basic attitudes.

Knock Out Two North Viet Nam Missile Sites

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter - bombers knocked out two more Soviet-built missile sites in North Viet Nam and chased off a flight of Communist MIG-17s southeast of Hanoi, the U.S. command reported today.

Navy A-4 Skyhawks hit a surface-to-air missile site 12 miles north-northwest of Haiphong Sunday, the U.S. command said, while air force pilots reported they destroyed a missile site 30 miles north-northeast of Hanoi.

An air force spokesman reported three weeks of raids had severed all but the main road and rail supply routes between Hanoi and Haiphong and to China.

Must Move Little Left -- Gordon

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Templeton led 10 candidates for five Ontario Liberal party vice-presidencies Saturday at the annual convention of the party.

The victory put the former TV personality and newspaper editor in line for the Ontario Liberal presidency now held by Gordon Blair of Ottawa, who was re-elected president by acclamation this year but announced he will not seek office again next year.

Mr. Templeton entered politics in 1964, when he stood for election in the Conservative riding of Toronto Riverdale in September. He lost the election and a few days later lost the party leadership to Andrew Thompson.

He was appointed a vice-president of the party last year to fill a vacancy.

Four vice-presidents re-elected were David Greenspan of Toronto, Michael Mortarity of Hamilton, Mrs. Grace Lewis of Ottawa, Grace Lewis of Toronto, immediate past president of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, won fifth spot.

Andrew Thompson and Walter Gordon, former Liberal finance minister, spoke during the last day of the convention Saturday.

Mr. Thompson told the delegates it might be the last time they would be together before the next election. He described as "menaces of the province's Conservative government.

The Liberal leader said some politicians think the people are stupid. Ontario's tragedy, he said, is that the people are ahead of the government in thinking.

Mr. Gordon challenged the delegates to adopt "deliberately and forthrightly a left-of-centre set of policies clearly stated and agreed to."

He said the party should not allow itself to unconsciously adopt a waffling approach somewhere between a cautious conservative program and left-of-centre policies.

Fulton Informed Of Relationship By Police Head

OTTAWA (CP)—Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister, testified today that the then prime minister John Diefenbaker, told Pierre Sevigny Dec. 13 that Mr. Sevigny had slept with a known prostitute and that the relationship must end at once.

Mr. Fulton told the Munsinger inquiry that former Conservative associate defence minister had first denied any improper relationship with Gerda Munsinger, that he had known the West German blonde before but had stopped seeing her several months previously.

Mr. Fulton, who said he was at the meeting between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Sevigny, testified that he (Mr. Fulton) informed Mr. Sevigny that the police had a report that he spent the night of Nov. 26-27, 1960, with Mrs. Munsinger.

Mr. Sevigny then admitted he had spent the night in her Montreal flat, but said there had been nothing improper.

SECURITY MENTIONED

Mr. Diefenbaker had stated that he was not interested in denials or explanations but that he wanted the relationship ended immediately and that (Mr. Diefenbaker) must be satisfied there had been no breach of security.

Mr. Sevigny had become incensed and angry at the suggestion that there had been any breach of security, Mr. Fulton said.

Mr. Sevigny had referred to his character, reputation, war record, and loss of a leg, and said he had never discussed any government information with Mrs. Munsinger.

The then prime minister had repeated he was not interested in explanations of why the relationship had happened, or in denials of it. He wanted to be satisfied there had been no breach of security.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Sevigny had stated he could not understand why such a serious view was being taken on the matter and that George Hees, Conservative trade minister, had known Mrs. Munsinger too.

Mr. Fulton said the RCMP report stated that Mr. Hees had been seen with Mrs. Munsinger publicly on two occasions. This was a different report than that concerning Mr. Sevigny.

Mr. Sevigny finally ceased his denials and accepted that the relationship must end and that Mr. Diefenbaker must be satisfied there had been no breach of security, Mr. Fulton said.

Mr. Sevigny had agreed that the association would end. Mr. Fulton and Mr. Sevigny left Mr. Diefenbaker's office together.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Sevigny had told him he "cut" the prime minister was not satisfied about security.

Mr. Fulton said he was told by RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harvison in mid-February, 1961, that Mrs. Munsinger had left the country early that month.

Mr. Fulton said he had told Mr. Diefenbaker within 48 hours that Mrs. Munsinger had left the country and found that Mr. Sevigny had already given the prime minister the same information.

South African Lawyer Given Life Sentence

PRETORIA (AP) — Abraham Fischer, 58, former senior lawyer who led the defence of the big South Africa sabotage trial, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for conspiring to commit sabotage.

He could have been given the death sentence on the charge. Life imprisonment in South Africa means just that unless the government reduces the sentence.

The most serious charge on which he was convicted was conspiring with banned African nationalist organizations to commit sabotage aimed at bringing about an armed insurrection to overthrow South Africa's white supremacist government.

Justice W. Rumpff said in a three-hour opinion that Fischer belong to South Africa's outlawed Communist party and took part in his activities. Fischer had admitted being a Communist, saying that participation in the party's activities offered the only avenue for acting against South Africa's apartheid policy of strict racial segregation.

President Proposes New Pact

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—President Johnson has proposed that the United States, Russia, and other space powers join in a treaty outlawing military activity on the moon and denying anyone or any nation lunar sovereignty.

Johnson said the objective is to make sure that astronauts of all nations can freely conduct scientific investigations of the moon.

Non-military goals in outer space are attainable, Johnson said, and in his view a treaty is needed to lay down rules for exploration of the moon and other heavenly bodies for peaceful purposes only.

Johnson said the treaty proposal will be discussed by U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg in the 28-member United Nations committee on outer space.

After that, it would become a matter of formal negotiations among nations involved in outer space exploration, looking toward a treaty.

SUGGESTS ELEMENTS

Johnson said "the elements of such a treaty would be as follows":

"The moon and other celestial bodies should be free for exploration and use by all countries. No country should be permitted to advance a claim of sovereignty.

"There should be freedom of scientific investigation, and all countries should co-operate in scientific activities relating to celestial bodies.

"Studies should be made to avoid harmful contamination.

"Astronauts from one country should give any necessary help to astronauts of another country.

"No country should be permitted to station weapons of mass destruction on a celestial body. Weapons tests and military manoeuvres should be forbidden.

"I am convinced that we should do what we can—not only for our generation but for future generations—to see to it that serious political conflicts do not arise as a result of space activities. I believe the time is ripe for action. I believe that we should not lose time."

THINK RUSSIANS AHEAD?

Asked whether Johnson's treaty proposal represents any new concern that the Russians might beat the United States to the moon, Deputy Press Secretary Robert H. Fleming told reporters at press headquarters here:

"I don't see that conclusion out of it at all."

Urges U.S. Recognize Mongolia To Gain Asian Listening Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield proposed today that the United States recognize Mongolia, a Communist nation sandwiched between China and Russia.

This would help ease international tensions, Mansfield said in an interview, and give the United States "a valuable listening post" between the two Communist giants.

Mansfield's proposal came as he endorsed the call by Senators Robert F. Kennedy (Dem.-N.Y.) and George McGovern (Dem. S.D.) for appointment of a "blue ribbon" commission to reassess U.S. policy toward China.

State Secretary Dean Rusk who testifies before the Senate foreign relations committee today, described the commission proposal as "an intriguing idea." But Rusk said for more than a year the executive branch has had "a very competent group . . . making an intensive study of these matters." He did not identify the group.

Rusk said he discussed the issue recently with President Johnson "the desirability of systematizing outside advice in the general areas of the world. I think it is very likely that we shall be doing something of this systematically than we have done before."

Vice - President Hubert Humphrey was reported actively supporting the proposal to create a commission. Although he was silent about Johnson's reaction, Humphrey's endorsement was viewed as indicating a willingness by the administration to explore new avenues in Asian policies.

Senator Robert Kennedy (Dem. N.Y.) said Humphrey's support encourages him to believe such a policy review may materialize.

Rusk disagreed with Senator J. W. Fulbright's view that American forces in Viet Nam have turned Saigon into another Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat who heads the Senate foreign relations committee, expressed this view in a speech last Thursday night.

Rusk said Fulbright's allegations reflect "unfairly and inaccurately on what our men are doing over there."

Rusk also took issue with comments made Sunday by historian Arthur Schlesinger on the CBS television program Face the Nation.

Schlesinger said Johnson and the military, in the judgment to overlook that the Viet Cong equals Hanoi equals Peking seems to me crazy." And he said there is fear among intellectuals that Johnson "is not in personal control of his government."

Asked about Schlesinger's statements, Rusk said: "Mr. Schlesinger is not an expert on Asia. He played a very small role on Asian questions when he was in the government."

Cold Snap Hits Most Areas

TORONTO (CP) — A record-breaking cold snap hit most areas of Ontario for the second night in a row. It would have been worse except for a cloud blanket which kept temperatures from dropping even further overnight.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A police bullet in his chest and his heel crushed in his pregnant wife's lap, Leonard Deadwyler's dying words were "she's having a baby."

Authorities gave this account of Deadwyler's death Saturday night after a high-speed chase:

Deadwyler, 21, was driving his wife, Barbara, 25, to hospital. With them was their son, Leonard Jr., 2, and Ganalier Ferguson, 31, owner of the car.

Several police cars pursued Deadwyler at speeds of up to 80 miles an hour before he eased off to a slow rate.

Deadwyler's car continued to drive at an inch forward as officers J. M. Bova and K. E. Ross approached and ordered a complete stop.

The car continued to inch forward.

Bova, pistol in hand, thrust his head, shoulders and arms through Deadwyler's open window to remove the ignition key.

The car suddenly lurched forward, knocking Bova off balance and causing his pistol to fire. The bullet struck Deadwyler in the chest.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital. Attendants said his wife was not in labor. Their son was turned over to juvenile authorities for care.

Expect Viet Cong To Use Monsoon For New Assault

SAIGON (AP) — A new political storm threatened Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime today following his declaration that he expects to stay in power at least another year. Efforts were being made to intimidate the South Vietnamese premier's words.

Although the government censored Ky's weekend statement from the Vietnamese language press, it spread rapidly by word of mouth through Saigon. Political groups threatened counteraction against the ruling generals.

Tri Quang, Buddhist leader, Thich Thien Minh, told a crowd of 5,000 persons in Da Nang that the Buddhists would organize another wave of protests if the government failed to live up to its pledge to hold elections for a national assembly next fall.

Minh, leader of the youth movement of Saigon's Buddhist Institute, is a protege of the politically powerful monk. Thich Tri Quang, principal figure behind the recent unrest that forced the junta to postpone elections at the end of the summer.

The Buddhist leader in Da Nang, Thich Minn Chieu, said a reporter that Ky had made many observations in the past and later withdrawn them.

EXPECTS REVERSAL

"I expect he will reverse this statement," the monk said. But he warned: "The government has said there will be elections. I have a few more months. If the elections are not held, there may be a reaction."

Ky told a press conference Saturday: "I expect to stay in power for at least another year—perhaps until the middle of next year. There is no doubt about that."

He said the promised election this fall will only choose an assembly to draft a constitution. It will take at least a year before the assembly finishes the job and can appoint a civilian government, he said.

OTHERS SURPRISED?

Some Western diplomats in Saigon believed Ky's statement took the Buddhists and the 10-man directory by surprise. A 32-man election committee began deliberations under the junta's auspices last week to prepare the legal groundwork for the election. It expected to complete its work before the end of the month, and the junta will be called on to ratify its recommendations.

Mrs. Rebecca Sine, 103, Dies at Nursing Home

One of the oldest residents of the Stirling district, Mrs. Rebecca Sine who earlier this year celebrated her 103rd birthday, died Saturday at the Green Acres Nursing Home at Bayside.

Although bedridden for several years because of a broken hip, Mrs. Sine had been ill only for a short time. She was at the Green Acres Nursing Home for two weeks, having previously resided at the Green Nursing Home in Stirling.

Born in Sidney township near Sine, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barrie and always recalled early life in the district.

She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Stirling and of the Bethel W.M.S.

Predeceased in 1928 by her husband Charles Sine, she is survived by a son Karl of Belleville and two daughters, Mrs. William (Beatrice) Wannamaker of Colborne, and Mrs. P. J. (Irene) Ford of this city, nine grandchildren, 30 great grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon from the Thompson Funeral Chapel with interment in Stirling Cemetery.

At the start it was Patrol Leader Doug Williamson's idea. Doug thought he had an idea worth considering and so did Cougar Patrol (which Doug is) when he told them about it. So the trea was "planted" and as ideas will,-if properly attended and watered, it grew. The other patrols agreed to try it out. Troop "A" was willing to co-operate in the project and Packs "A" and "B" of the cubs were invited to add their efforts to the venture.

Finally everything was in readiness and on Friday night May 6th in the Sunday School auditoriums at Eastminster Uniting Church, fathers, mothers, group committee men and a few special guests saw the results of the "Hobby Night" and there were about fifty displays. The list comprised of tabling (the art of making (believe it or not) bird houses, a wooden chest, numismatics (coins to the uninitiated), rocks shells, models (boats, cars, trains, working and otherwise, a set of hand-carved chess men, numerous stamp collections, seeds, bugs (mostly living moths), match book covers, postcards, books and of course Doug Williamson's own personal contribution - the idea that started the project - a study of the place of the rabbit in our world. Never knew the rabbit was so interesting.

Everyone agreed even the little people too young for cubbing (but not for very long) - that it was a good idea and should be repeated. Looks as if congratulations are in order for al concerned but most of all to the boy who had the idea.
